Mr. Lech is showing some very beautiful coats, made up in Persian lamb and sealskin. Every man should provide his wife with one of these, to protect herself against the cold blasts of a long winter. But probably she would prefer a mink set or a pony coat. If so, Mr. Lech has these and can suit the most fastidious. A very dressy looking fur is the mink and one that lends attractiveness to one's appearance. The mink is being much worn this season, being decidedly popular among the fashionable fair sex. Mr. Lech has a magnificent display of mink furs in the newest creations of muffs and stoles.

For the young girl attending school some very attractive furs, that are bound to please, are displayed in a varied assortment of grey squirrel, black and grey lynx, sable, muskrat, grey lamb, and many others that are made up in ruffs and muffs, to excite the attention of the fair wearer.

The Wm. E. Lech store is new and up-to-date and conducted along enterprising lines. Mr. Lech has had many years of experience in the fur business and couple it with this, the best quality of furs that can be had, the customer is assured of always receiving the best.

THE EVENING CHIT-CHAT

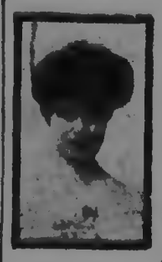
By Ruth Cameron

WHEN you use a public telephone booth, do you always remember that it is public?

In the matter of taking care not to get too near the mouthpiece, I mean.

While waiting for my train the other day I chanced to sit near a public telephone booth in a very busy railway for half an hour and what I saw set me to doing some pretty tall thinking, and brought me to two conclusions.

One was that I would never place my mouth within six inches of one of those mouthpieces.



The other was that I would tell you folks about it.

Eight people used that telephone during my stay. Six of them placed their mouths so close as to almost and sometimes quite, touch the mouthpiece. A man with a straggly, unclean mustache, a badly broken out face, an odour that reach of me where I sat, and a general appearance that made me feel he might have had almost any unmentionable disease, pressed his mouth tight against the mouthpiece.

How horrified she would have been at the thought of letting that creature touch her, to say nothing of kissing her.

And yet as far as germs and uncleanness go, her contact with the mouthpiece he had pressed his mouth against, was almost as bad as a kiss.

I believe that one should even be careful in the use of telephones in offices and private houses, to say nothing of public instruments.

I believe that the telephones in offices and even in private houses ought to be washed off occasionally with some good disinfectant. Of course, you know that the members of your own family are clean, but it certainly does not do any harm to guard against the passing on of colds or the spread of children's diseases in this way, and it may do infinite good.

In Massachusetts a law has just gone into effect which absolutely forbids the providing of public drinking cups by any public or private institution.

The telephone is not, of course, as great a menace as the public drinking cup, but I think it is a close second, and I trust we will soon see some legislation providing for the frequent cleansing and disinfecting of these instruments.

Why wouldn't that be a good thing to refer to the legislative committee of your woman's club?

And in the meantime, suppose whenever you enter a telephone booth you remember my friend of the offensive mustache and aroma, and keep your mouth just as far away from the mouthpiece as is consistent with making yourself heard.

Annual Dinner Of No. 6 Company, 57th Regiment Was A Great Success

Most Enjoyable Affair Was Held In Hooper's Palm Parlours Last Night—Splendid Turnout of the Men of the Company.

THE TOAST LIST

The annual dinner of No. 6 Company of the 57th Regiment was held last night in Hooper's Palm Parlours. A large number of both officers and men were present. The whole party numbered about forty-five. An excellent supper was served, after which a high-class programme was given. Capt. A. P. McLean presided in a very capable and acceptable manner.

A toast to the King was proposed by the Chairman and heartily honoured by those present. This was followed by an instrumental solo by Pte. A. J. Bourque, which was very much appreciated.

Song, by Mr. W. McIlroy, which was encored.

Toast to "57th Regiment of Peterborough Rangers"; proposed by Lieut. R. N. Merritt. Lieut. Merritt said that they should feel particularly honoured by having such a large number present. Regarding its Captain and officers, said the speaker, No. 6 Company has been loyal this year, and has grown considerably. After making a few other remarks regarding the splendid improvement of the Company, he concluded.

Lieut. Col. A. Stevenson, O.C., responded in a very pleasing manner. He said that he must congratulate them upon the large turn-out, and smilingly added: "It is larger than I ever saw out on parade." He said he was delighted to see so many present, and also to be with them. He told a number of amusing stories which caused a great deal of laughter and applause. "I have been three years a private and twenty years an officer," said the speaker, "and the higher up you get the more responsibility you have." He then spoke of the Boy Scouts and the way they turned out, and said that if the men of No. 6 Company would do the same the Company would be even more of a success than formerly. "We want to get the drill interesting," said the speaker, "and if the ideas of General French were carried out it would be more of an interesting character. There should be a desire to drill existing among the men, so that they can stand up in defence of their country."

Lieut. Col. J. W. Miller was called upon for a recitation. He expressed his pleasure at being present and also belonging to the 57th Regiment, and stated that his interest in the Regiment was just as live as when he first enlisted. He said that he felt proud of the soldiers when he saw them marching along, and, he added, that each man should feel his responsibility. He told them that they could not belong to a better club than a company of militia, and that if a man does this he puts himself in a position to defend his country if needed. It improves a man also in generally straightening him up and makes a better man of him in general. Col. Miller also spoke of the splendid new armories that the men had to drill in, and said that that should encourage them to become more interested in the Regiment. "Show your country you are not in it for fun," he said. "If war comes, which I sincerely hope will not happen, be men, shoulder your rifles and go out like men who are worthy of the name you bear. Look at the brave men who fought in the time of Napoleon. They were the men who changed this country's destiny. I am proud of this Company. It is a credit to its Captain—Capt. A. P. McLean." He also thanked them for their kind invitation, and said that they could not have too many of these meetings. He then gave a recitation, "The Valley". It was very appropriate to the occasion and was greatly appreciated.

Major Clegg expressed his pleasure at being present and getting an opportunity of speaking to them. "We have always been proud of No. 6 Company," he said, "and if all other Companies would work up like No. 6 there would be a fine showing in the 57th Regiment.

The next item was a song by Pte. H. Sawyers. It was encored and both numbers were greatly enjoyed.

Major Bennett said that it was a source of gratification to be with them. He referred to the remarks of former speakers, including Col. Miller's, and said that they could be applied by him. He congratulated the men on having such a fine Captain as Captain McLean and in return congratulated Capt. McLean on having such a fine company. He referred to the remarks that the Colonel made regarding the oath of allegiance that a man must take upon entering the service, and he said: "I think No. 6 Company is keeping up to it."

"There is no doubt in my mind," he concluded, "that No. 6 Company was the best on parade last summer, and I hope it will continue to improve."

Capt. Walker, the adjutant, said that he was grateful to see such a magnificent turn out. He said "this evening No. 6 is a 'full' company. Of course No. 6 was always faithful and came when they could. We take upon ourselves the responsibility of attending twelve days in the season and we should live up to it, and No. 6 Company has endeavoured to carry it out." He then told a number of amusing stories and concluded by wishing them God speed in the work they had undertaken.

Dr. Eastwood congratulated Capt. McLean upon the splendid Company he had and also thanked him for the opportunity of speaking.

Lieut. K. G. Lech then proposed a toast to the "Sister Corps," which was responded to by Capt. W. C. Ackerman, C.F.A. Sergt.-Major Fee also replied, saying that it was a great pleasure for him to have the privilege of responding to a toast to the Sister Corps. He said he came here in 1906 as first instructor of the field battery and that he had enjoyed the privileges of the rank ever since.

A song entitled "Good-bye, Sweetheart, Good-bye" was then given by Mr. Wm. McIlroy. He was encored and then sang "The Maple Leaf Forever" and all present joined in the chorus.

A toast to "The Company's Officers" was then proposed by Sergt. M. Rosenburgh. He said he did not expect to see so many present; he thought it would be only a little family gathering, but he had been agreeably surprised. He stated that he was glad to see so many out, and spoke of the former condition of the company as compared to its fine showing now. He said that they were fortunate in having so capable an officer as Capt. McLean.

Capt. McLean responded. He said: "I thank you gentlemen very much for the hearty way in which you have responded to the toast. I am no speaker, so will leave the speaking to Messrs. Lech and Merritt. But I wish to say that I am pleased to see present so many distinguished officers as those on either side of me. I wish to thank the officers and men for the way they have stood by us this season. They have stood by us to a man, and I wish to thank you for the way you have turned out to-night. Our object is to go forward next year and I think we are going to do it."

Lieut. R. N. Merritt said that he had no speech to make; that he thought, considering the few times he had turned out, that it was a matter of courtesy that made them put his name on the list. He also went on to speak of the success which should be attained by the No. 6 Company under the instructions of such fine officers.

Lieut. K. G. Lech then said that it afforded him great pleasure in seeing so many present, and stated that he believed No. 6 company was the only company complimented upon its fine turn out last year, and said that he hoped next year would be a more successful one.

A much appreciated instrumental solo was then rendered by Pte. J. Harstone.

A toast to the "Non-Commissioned Officer" was then proposed by A. J. Perks and responded to in a neat speech by Sergt. Lech and Sergt. A. R. Ackerman. Sergt. Ackerman said that he was no speech maker, but that there were a few things he wished to say. He said that it was his last night with them and he wanted to thank them for the happy time he had enjoyed while with them.

Mr. Cobcomk said that if the men would turn out the company would still improve.

Cor. Matthews gave an interesting but brief account of his trip to the old country. He said he visited Sierre Barracks and that it was a very interesting place. The recruits were taken there and then given gymnastics and two or three hours drill, but they turned out some fine looking men. The swagger of these men around on Sunday, took his eye, he said. They would walk around in fours and looked nice.

A toast to the Press was then proposed by Sergt. Perring and was responded to by representatives present.

The very enjoyable evening was then brought to a close by singing the national anthem.

the church to the donor of the bells, the late William Grey, and said that as often as the bells rang out their call, so often would the minds of those who heard flit back to the generous benefactor who gave, not only this chime, but the bell which had now been discarded, the handsome Parish Hall, which bears his name, as well as magnificent gifts to the City Hospital and other institutions.

Among the selections rendered were God Save the King, Home Sweet Home, Nearer My God to Thee, and Lead Kindly Light. The verger of the church, Mr. Webb, had charge of the ringing of the chimes and although he had had no former experience he performed in a very creditable manner. The bells are now all in their positions, but there is some work yet to be done in regard to the ringing of them. It will be known as the Taylor-Clavier system.

Mr. Groh has demonstrated how a very ordinary farm can be made a money-maker, to its owner, at the same time that the fertility is being increased and improvements made.

Mr. Groh has given close attention to farm forestry, a subject of importance to Ontario farmers. He has kept a daily individual milk record of his herd for eleven years. His experience in building silos, stables, walls and tanks with cement, and in the use of gasoline engines, render his instruction on these lines of special value to farmers.

DR. COOK ADMITS HE MAY HAVE BEEN "MISTAKEN" ABOUT REACHING THE POLE

Tells Hampton's Magazine That he May Have Been Crazed by His Privations in the Frozen North.

TO LIVE QUIETLY

Special wire to The Examiner:

NEW YORK, N.Y., NOV. 30.—Dr. F. Cook has come out of his shell, and has made what is tantamount to a confession that he did not discover the North Pole after all. Hampton's Magazine, which published Peary's great story, has discovered him in London, and elicited the statement from Cook that he may have been crazed by his privations in the Arctic and made mistakes in his bearings. He pleads that he has been branded as a liar, but was merely mistaken. With his family he intends passing the rest of his life quietly.

MR. STRATTON MADE PATRON OF THE ROYAL ASTRONOMICAL SOCIETY

Is Paid a Signal Honour by the General Council at its Toronto Meeting, in Recognition of His Assistance to the Peterborough Centre of the Society.

At a meeting of the General Council of the Royal Astronomical Society of Canada held last night in Toronto, the name of Hon. J. R. Stratton, M.P., was placed upon the records as a patron to the society, the first time this very high honour has been conferred by the Royal Astronomical Society.

Mr. Stratton recently presented the Peterborough centre of the Society with a very handsome telescope and a year ago indicated his interest in their welfare by giving an "at home" for the Society. The members of the local centre are very grateful to Mr. Stratton for his kindness and generosity, and felt that some fitting recognition should be made of the deep interest he had displayed.

Accordingly at last night's meeting of the General Council, Mr. H. B. Collier, the president, and Rev. Dr. Marsh, of Sprucevillle, the secretary of the Peterborough centre, moved that Hon. Mr. Stratton's name be placed in the records as patron of the Society as a recognition of his valuable interest and assistance. The motion was seconded by Dr. W. F. King, of Ottawa, the Dominion astronomer, and supported by Prof. Alfred DeLury, professor of Mathematics at the University of Toronto and was unanimously carried by the Society.

OPPOSITION GAINS GROUND FOLLOWING ANNOUNCEMENT FROM LEADER BALFOUR

Unionists Consent to a Referendum on Tariff Reform and This Concession Will Increase the Opposition's Chances in the Present Campaign---Get Enthusiastic Reception at To-day's Meeting.

Special Wire to the Examiner.

LONDON, ENG., NOV. 30.—It was stated by independent sources this morning that the announcement by A. J. Balfour, the leader of the Unionists, that he would consent to a "referendum policy" on tariff reform, should greatly increase the opposition's chances in the present campaign. This removes one of the Liberal's best planks for getting votes in Scotland and North England, where protection is in disfavour to a great extent. Already the effect of the Unionists taking this stand is evidenced. This morning Balfour and his supporters addressed workmen's meetings at lunch time in constituencies known to be strongly free trade. They were given a great and apparently a sincere reception. It is now almost purely a question of throttling the House of Lords, and even in the Liberal parts of England there is an under current of feeling that it is a bit unbecoming to make the upper house a mere puppet of the Commons. Perhaps the situation is best expressed by the statement that the outlook is for a new parliament that will muddle along another year and again appeal to the country leaving the big questions still unsolved.

THREE MEN DROWNED WHILE GOING TO AID OF OTHERS

Examiner Special.

SAULT STE. MARIE, NOV. 30.—Andrew Harwood, Jas. Boyce and Frank Lowe, all married men of the Michigan Soo, were drowned at midnight while going to the assistance of a disabled vessel in a terrible snow storm in the tug General which was rammed and sunk by the Canadian Pacific steamer Athabasca, which two years ago was stranded for days on Flower Pot Island. The rest of the crew of the General were rescued after much manoeuvring.

SWEARS THAT ATTEMPT WAS MADE TO BRIBE HIM

Special to the Examiner.

WOODSTOCK, ONT., NOV. 30.—The principal evidence at the County Council graft investigation to-day was the statement of W. L. Buchanan on oath, that he was waited on by Reeve Silcox, E. L. Sutherland and a man named Young, who offered him bribes of from three hundred to thousand dollars to let the sale of the Ingersoll-Woodstock road go to arbitration, with Judge Finkle as arbitrator.

Some Features Of The Ward System Of Electing Aldermen

The City Council for 1911, will, as everyone knows, be elected by the Ward system. There are features of this system with which probably the ratepayers are not acquainted. There are five wards and two aldermen will be elected in each one, making ten in all instead of twelve as at present. Eleven years ago when the Ward system was in vogue, three were elected in each ward. The candidate receiving the highest number of votes in each ward is elected for two years, so that in future only one alderman will have to be elected annually. A man may run in any ward in which he owns property. The boundaries of the various wards are as follows.

East ward is all east of the river.

Nomination day is Monday, December the 26th.

WEDNESDAY, NOV. 30, 1910

ULSTER, TOO.

Nationalist Quebec, has broken out, of all places, in Ulster, the arrogated home of all loyalty to crown and kingdom. At a great mass meeting of Ulsterites it was declared in effect, that if Ireland got home rule, was put on the same basis as Canada, Ulster would raise the roof—wouldn't stand it would fight. And Mr. Balfour, the leader of the Opposition, encourages this incipient rebellion by inciting to civil war. He told the Ulster people that home rule for Ireland would "not be forced on a hostile and determined people." What different from this spirit is the attitude of the Quebec Nationalists, who wish to segregate Quebec from the rest of the Dominion so that they can cut loose from the Empire, and from the domination of the hated English, so that they could have their own way? The loyalty that is associated with the boast of being the casket of "civil and religious liberty"; that when it cannot have its own way, rebels, is pretty much of a sham.

SCOTLAND FOREVER!

This is St Andrew's day, the feast of the patron saint of Scotland. The day used to be celebrated in Peterborough, with braw doins', a big supper, with patriotic toasts and speeches, and rousin' songs. But this form of celebration has fallen into disuse. "And", as Lucky Dodds would say, "what for no?" The most sincere friendship is not of the gushing kind; the kindest, truest heart is not worn on the sleeve; the best loyalty is not of the blatant kind. A Scotchman doesn't need to cram himself with a ten-course dinner; does not need to toast the land o' cakes till he is "absolutely tu" in order to show his affection and loyalty to the land he has left. His heart is aye in the Highlands or words to that effect. His affection never cools for his beloved Scotland. It is a part of his life and he doesn't need to make a splurge to convince himself that he has loving and loyal memories of Scotland.' Yet all over the world to-day, Scotchmen from the Scotchman roosting on the north pole, to the Scotchman broiling his pow under the perpendicular rays of the equatorial sun,—will have a quickened heart beat, will take a new breath of the air of the lochs and glens, will sniff the heather afresh, and in a thousand ways turn his heart and mind to the old land. Scotchmen the world over, may well remember Scotland with pride, for in a thousand ways the Scotch are the salt of the earth, the steadying factor that gives poise to the best elements of our civilization

SOUND SEED.

The experts tell us that the farms of Ontario do not produce more than half of what they are capable of doing. This may be due to imperfect cultivation, but along comes another class of experts who tell us that the quality of seed is the secret of big crops. This is very important. There is as a rule only one proper seed time, if that is allowed to pass, then tares well to a first class crop. It happens, however, that the farmer or gardener may be on time in regard to the sowing of seed, but it also happens that the seed is defective will not germinate properly, or is of a quality that cannot be expected, and does not, produce a good crop. Seed time may be observed, but if the seed fails, the season's crop of either garden or field is a failure. With good seed there would have been in all probability, a good crop. Expert agriculturalists speak strongly of the necessity of good seed, both as to germinating quality and as to constitutional vitality, that can impress itself upon the crop. The government recognizes this and the Seed Commissioners branch of the Dominion Department of Agriculture has been making tests, (last year), of seed corn, field, root and garden seeds sold in Canada.

As everyone knows, most garden seeds are sold in sealed envelopes and hitherto there has been no guarantee to the purchaser of the percentage of these seeds that would germinate. The inspectors who enforce the Seed Control Act bought 2,527 samples of seed exposed for sale by retailers and wholesalers all over Canada, and these were sent to the Seed Laboratory for testing. It was found that 33 per cent of these seeds was "highly satisfactory," 49 per cent "up to standard," and 18 per cent. "prohibited." The Seed Control Act sets up a standard that certain classes of seeds offered for sale must be capable of germinating in the proportion of at least two-thirds of the standard required for good seed of the kind. If the seed comes below this standard, the package must be marked according to the percentage of germination, so that the buyer may know for what he is paying. The value of this Act to the agriculturist is obvious. The Act furthermore provides that seedsmen and dealers may be prosecuted for not complying with its requirements. A further test was made last May, in which 702 samples of garden seeds were examined, and the examination shows that about 11 per cent. were below the standard. This is an improvement of 7 per cent. over last year's test, and shows that the Seed Control Act has commenced its beneficent work.

The importance of seed control is very obvious; not only to the farmer, but to the gardener. How much heart-burning ofttimes and loss of results come from bad seed is impossible of computation. An instance is given the Examiner of a lady who planted a packet of pansy seeds, numbering at least 100 seeds. Of these, though planted with the greatest care, only five or six grew. Another case supplied is that of a packet of summer turnip seeds, of which not one seed germinated. These may be small matters, but they are a type of the possibility of a great loss and disappointment from defective seed. One thing is almost certain, the seed time that is the best and the proper seed time is lost, the season's crop is lost. This state of things obtaining all over the country, would go far to account for a shortage in the matter of yield of crops, and emphasizes the importance of the seedsmen offering for sale, and farmers and gardeners purchasing, only good, sound seed.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The tide of immigration into Canada continues unabated, despite the opening of the winter season, and the department now estimates that the total influx for the fiscal year will reach 350,000.

Hon. Mr. Stratton, M.P., West Peterborough, has been made a member of the following standing committees of the House of Commons for the present session Railways and Canals, Private Bills, Banking and Commerce, Privileges and Election, Mines and Minerals.

Mr. F. B. Carvell, Carleton, N. B., has introduced a bill in the House of Commons to amend the Inspection and Sale Act, so as to make the weight of a barrel of potatoes, "sold or offered for sale," 180 pounds. While Mr. Carvell was at it, he might have provided for defining the weight of a dozen eggs, "sold or offered for sale," or made it compulsory to sell eggs by weight at so much a pound. When the housewife has to pay from 30 to 35 cents per dozen for eggs, some of a size very little greater than a pigeon's eggs, she certainly does not get value for her money. If the size of eggs were uniform and the size respectable it would be a different matter. Selling eggs by the pound would be fair both to seller and purchaser.

Inconsistency Of Borden-Bourassa Side-track Canadian Naval Policy

(Manitoba Free Press.)

Mr Monk who as member of the Federal House, has in his Nationalist campaigns, to think perforce of the wider audience which follows his words has, since the Drummond and Arthabaska election, been trying to make it appear that the only issue in that contest was the failure of the Government to consult the people before embarking upon its naval programme. This is an insincere and dishonest attitude. The contention that the Government should have consulted the people was simply the pretext under which the Nationalists prosecuted their extraordinary campaign, with its appeal to ignorance, prejudice, and passion, with its talk about a per capita tax of $25 to be collected immediately for the navy; with its pretence that the English intended to make the French fight their battles; with its sneers at the English flag as the symbol of oppression; with its dangerous talk of oppression; with its dangerous talk of an opportunity for revenge for the defeats of 1837.

What pray does Mr. Monk mean by consulting the people? If he means that there should have been a referendum, it can be said that as yet the referendum has no place in the government of Canada. It will probably be adopted in due time in the various provinces, and may ultimately become an adjunct of the Government of the Dominion. But this is far in the future. If Mr. Monk means that there should have been a general election, the Government are to be commended for not giving the mcbrands a chance to burn down the house. If the Government had proposed a referendum or even a general election with an interval for discussion, what a roar of protest would have gone up from the Conservatives. This would have been denounced as another dodge of that arch-traitor Laurier to avoid doing anything for the defence of the Empire.

The Government followed the proper course. It consulted Parliament which was fresh from the people, and Parliament (it is to be recalled) declared unanimously in favour of a certain naval policy. Subsequently, when the Government undertook to carry this policy into effect, Mr Borden acting under pressure and in the supposed interests of his party, repudiated his former position and made the matter of naval defence a political question, therefore assuming the "fearful responsibility" which Sir Charles Tupper had warned him that he would assume if he failed to co-operate with his political opponents in working out some acceptable scheme of naval defence.

The Government's policy has been based upon a resolution, unanimously adopted by Parliament. It has been approved by Parliament. In due time the electors will have the opportunity of passing judgment both upon the scheme and its authors. If they do not like the Liberal programme, they can put the Government out of power and replace it with a Borden-Bourassa coalition which will have a policy of not spending a dollar for naval defence, and also of giving $25,000,000 every little while to the Admiralty

A CURIOUS COINCIDENCE.

(Ottawa Free Press.)

Reviews of the past year, with all its memorable happenings, are already beginning to appear in the English press and magazines, and will continue to increase in number until New Year's eve. So far, however, we have not noticed that any writer has called attention to one of the really strange coincidences of folklore and modern reality.

There is an old English saying, which has been current among the people for many centuries and which predicts misfortunes for England whenever Good Friday falls on Lady Day, that is on March 25. The saying is:

"If our Lord falls on our Lady's lap England shall have a great mishap."

The last year on which Good Friday was on March 25 was in 1811, and that saw the death of Queen Victoria's husband, the Prince Consort. This year it came again and we had the death of Edward VII.

It will not occur again until 1921. What will be the calamity then?

ON A BUSINESS BASIS.

The Department of Marine and Fisheries at Ottawa was at one time shown to be in the grasp of the spoils system and the theatre of many gross abuses. The Ottawa Free Press has made some enquiries relative to the condition of affairs which now exist, with the result that it has seemed this statement from the purchasing agent of the department:

In November, 1908, the Minister of Marine and Fisheries gave written instructions to disregard all patronage files an lists containing names of firms which had been recommended to the department, and these instructions were communicated to the purchasing agent and all the agencies of the department, and since that time the department has been acting strictly under these instructions.

All expenditures are now authorized through the purchasing and contract branch, and it is the duty of the purchasing agent to see that the prices are fair and just, and that all work is carried out as economically as possible.

In the purchase of supplies and carrying out of work under this department, tenders are invited publicly for work and supplies where the amount of the expenditure will warrant same and time will permit, and the lowest tender is always accepted, provided the goods offered are satisfactory. The politics of the different tenderers are not taken into consideration in any way and at the present time the purchasing agent is not aware of the politics of a large number of firms supplying material to the department.

Where the amount of expenditure will not warrant the expense of inviting public tenders, the leading manufacturers or dealers are invited to quote prices, and the lowest tender, if material offered is satisfactory, is always accepted.

The questions of quality and price are the only ones considered when purchasing supplies or having work done by this department.

The patronage system has been thoroughly eliminated from his department by Hon. Mr. Brodeur, and it will remain eliminated so long as the Liberals are in control. The other departments of government are being similarly dealt with and an example of good business policy set which the provincial governments might well follow.—Brantford Expositor.

POST CARD COLUMN

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Dear Sir,—I notice by your paper that the 57th Band is to give a concert in the City Market Hall. I thought the Market Hall was rented for Market purposes and not for concerts, and if the Market Clerk is renting the Market Hall for concerts, then the Chief of Police should see that he pays the license of $40.00 at once and before the concert, the same as other places of amusement have to pay. I hope that prompt action will be taken in this case.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, for your valuable space.

FAIR PLAY.

$40,000 EMBEZZLER HAS DISAPPEARED

Examiner Special.

Rochester, Nov. 28.—An admitted embezzler of upward of $40,000 of the Rochester & Lake Ontario Company funds, George M. Clarke, its secretary and treasurer, is missing to-day. His palatial residence on East avenue has been attached, and notice of attachments have been served on banks where Clarke is known to have large deposits.

The law firm of Lewis, McKay & McMillan, represents the water company. Former State Senator Lewis said to-day that Clarke acknowledged that he had used several thousands of the company's funds. While the investigation was on he disappeared. Mr. Lewis said:

"Clarke was secretary-treasurer of the company for several years before the present management secured control last June and was retained in the same capacity by the new management.

"He admitted to President Henry Brewster and myself that he had used several thousands of dollars of the company's funds and that his books were doctored to cover his appropriations."

The missing officer is said to have played the stock market heavily and to have applied part of the company's money to the purchase of his residence.

THE FEET IN PRISON

Tightly imprisoned in the modern shoe the feet perspire and the skin is chafed and irritated until it is in anything but a healthy condition. Corns and bunions are formed and walking becomes torture. Possibly you never thought of Dr. Chase's Ointment in this connection but it brings wonderful relief and comfort almost instantly. Its soothing, healing effects are magical.

Our Elevator

Our elevator is one of the wonders of the age. It cannot possibly fall. The ordinary elevator is held up by ropes, and these ropes often wear out and their connections often break loose, and then—disaster.

Our elevator is exactly like the Lift Lock. It is built on a great steel piston that rises and retires into an equally strong steel cylinder. There are no ropes to break and wear out. The elevator sits directly on its strong steel column.

It gives a comfortable feeling to the shopper when she enters an elevator like ours. All the new elevators that are now being built in the large cities are on this plan. It is quite an interesting machine.

Let us show it to you.

CHAPTER XXXIX.

THE TRAITOR.

"I do not understand you, Ducaine," Lord Chelsford said slowly. "You have been a faithful and valuable servant to your country, and you know very well that your services are not likely to be forgotten. I want you only to be consistent. I must know from whom you received this packet."

"I cannot tell you, sir," I answered. "It was a terribly dark night, and it is not easy to identify a hand. Besides, it was snatched away almost at once."

"In your own mind, Ducaine," Chelsford said, "have you hazarded a guess as to who that unseen person might be?"

"It is too serious a matter to hazard guesses about, sir," I answered.

"Nevertheless," Lord Chelsford continued, eyeing me closely, "in your own mind you know very well who that person was. You are a bad liar, Ducaine. There was something about the hand which told you the truth—a ring, perhaps. At any rate, something."

"I had no time to feel for such things, sir," I answered.

"Ducaine," Lord Chelsford said, "I am forced to connect your refusal to hazard even a surmise as to the identity of that hand with your sudden desire to break off all connection with this matter. I am forced to come to a conclusion, Ducaine. You have discovered the truth. You know the traitor."

"On the contrary, Lord Chelsford," I answered, "I know nothing."

Later in the day he came to me again. I could see that he had made no fresh discovery.

"Ducaine," he said, "what time did you say that you left here last night?"

"At midnight, sir."

"And you were back?"

"Before one."

"That corresponds exactly with Grooton's statement," Lord Chelsford said. "And yet I have certain information that from a few minutes before eleven till two o'clock not one member of the Military Board quitted the library."

I bowed.

"That is conclusive," I remarked.

"It is remarkably inconclusive to me," Lord Chelsford remarked grimly. "Whom else save one of your friends who are all upon the Board could you possibly wish to shield?"

"That I even wish to do so," I answered, "is purely an assumption."

"You are fencing with me, young man," Lord Chelsford said, grimly, "and it is not worth while. Hush!"

There was a rap at the door downstairs. We heard the Duke's measured tones.

"I understood that Lord Chelsford was here," he said.

"Lord Chelsford has left, your Grace," Grooton answered.

"And Mr. Hill?"

"He has been at the house all day, your Grace."

The Duke appeared to hesitate for a moment.

"Grooton," he said, "I rely upon you to see that Lord Chelsford has this note shortly. I am going for a little walk, and shall probably return this way. I wish you to understand that this note is for Lord Chelsford's own hand."

"Certainly, your Grace."

"Not only that, Grooton, but the fact that I called here and left a communication for Lord Chelsford is also—to be forgotten."

"I quite understand, your Grace" Grooton assured him.

The Duke struck a match, and a moment or two later we saw him strolling along the cliff side, smoking a cigarette, his hands behind him, prim, carefully dressed, walking with the unhurried ease of a man seeking an appetite for his dinner. He was speedily out of sight, and Lord Chelsford was on the point of descending for his note, when my heart gave a great leap. Lady Angela emerged from the plantation and crossed the open space in front of the cottage with swift footsteps. Her hair was streaming in the breeze as though she had been running, but there was not a vestige of colour in her cheeks. Her eyes, too, were like the eyes of a frightened child.

"Why, Angela," he exclaimed, "you look as though you had seen a ghost. Is anything the matter?"

"Oh, I am afraid so," she answered. "Have you seen my father?"

"Why?" he asked, fingering the note which Grooton had silently laid upon the table.

"Something has happened!" she exclaimed. "I am sure of it. Last night he came to me before dinner. He told me that Blenavon was in trouble. It was necessary to send him money by a special messenger, by the only person who knew his whereabouts. He gave me a packet, and he told me that at a quarter-past twelve last night I was to be in my music-room, and directly the stable clock struck that I was to open the window, and some one would be there on the terrace and take the packet. I did exactly as he told me, and there was some one there; but I had just held out the packet when a third person snatched it away, and held my hand close to his eyes as though to try and guess who I was. I managed to get it away and close the window, but I think that the wrong person must have taken the packet. I told my father today, and—you know that terribly still look of his. I thought that he was never going to speak again. When I asked him if there was a good deal of money in it—he only groaned."

Up on the top of the stairs I was shaking with excitement. I heard Lord Chelsford speak, and his voice was hoarse.

"Since then," he asked, "what?"

"A man came to see father. He drove from Wells. He looked like a Frenchman but he gave no name. He was in the library for an hour. When he left he walked straight out of the house and drove away again. I went into the library, and—you know how strong father is—he was crouching forward across the table, muttering to himself. It was like some sort of a fit. He did not know me when I spoke to him. Lord Chelsford what does it all mean?"

"Go on!" he answered. "Tell me the rest."

"There is nothing else, she faltered. "He got better presently and he kissed me. I have never known him to do such a thing before, except at morning or night. And then he locked himself in the study and wrote. About an hour afterwards I heard him asking everywhere for you. The servants thought that you had come here. I saw him crossing the park, so I followed."

Lord Chelsford came to the bottom of the stairs and called me by name. I heard Lady Angela's little cry of surprise. I was downstairs in a moment, and she came straight into my arms. Her dear tear-stained little face buried itself upon my shoulder.

In Dread Of Piles

Many Believe That Nothing Short of the Surgeon's Knife Will Effect Cure. They Do Not Know

The agony caused by the intense itching, the depressing and debilitating effect on the system, the dread lest a surgical operation might be necessary—these are the things which make piles or hemorrhoids so distressing.

The doctors have been recommending surgical operations as the only cure. But the surgical operation, with all its dangers and expense and pain, does not usually effect a lasting cure.

Many a case has been cured by Dr. Chase's Ointment afterw the surgical operation had failed. Here is a case which doctors gave up.

Mr. J. Mayer, Boden, Man., writes; "Dr. Chase's Ointment is a wonderful preparation. I had itching piles for over six years, and though I tried two doctors' prescriptions and used many other preparations could not obtain much benefit. The doctor told me there was no cure for me, and that I would have to undergo an operation.

"I bought a box of Dr. Chase's Ointment and was completely cured in one week. As this was six months ago and there has been no return of the old trouble, I believe that the cure is a permanent one."

One thing certain, Dr. Chase's Ointment will bring you relief from the distressful itching and burning almost as soon as applied.

It stands the cure through and nothing. It is only necessary for you to try it by the treatment regularly and persistently. Don't be satisfied with relief. Dr. Chase's Ointment will cure you positively if you will do your part. 60 cents a box, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

CHARGED WITH ROBBERY.

Brakeman E. E. McIntosh Is Sought By the Police.

Toronto, Nov. 30.—A warrant has been sworn out by Superintendent Rogers of the provincial police for the arrest of Edward Elmer McIntosh, formerly a brakeman on the G.T.R., and residing at 69 Galley avenue. The charge is that he did steal the $30,000 in unsigned Traders' Bank bills of which $8,000 was found in a furnace flue of the house by a four year-old child of the family that moved into the house three weeks ago.

McIntosh is 26 years of age, and, with his wife and one young child, lived in the house from the time of the robbery last year till Nov. 7. Then they disappeared, but it is known that McIntosh was in Stratford on Sunday with a Darracq touring car, which it is believed he has since disposed of. The auto was a six cylinder touring car, with green body and seating seven persons.

What first directed suspicion against McIntosh is that he was known to have been investing heavily in real estate immediately before the disappearance of the bills. It is supposed a number of persons were involved in the robbery. For months the Galley avenue house has been watched, and the neighbors became aware of it. He is thus described: About 5 feet 6 inches in height, fair complexion, brown hair, weighs 160 pounds, prominent dimple in his chin, straight nose, and generally good looking.

Kingston Wants Hydro Power.

Kingston, Nov. 30.—The City Council will likely carry out the suggestion of Hon. Adam Beck and ask the co-operation of the neighboring municipalities in the district in securing cheap power from the Hydro-Electric Commission. A meeting will be held in Brockville, if the municipalities will agree to enter.

Kingston wants to get power, and Prescott is said to be just as eager for it. It is hoped to get Brockville, Gananoque, Napanee and Deseronto to fall in line. Power could be secured from Waddington, N.Y., across from Morrisburg. The Seymour Co. of Cobourg have a proposition before to the city, which will be taken up Thursday, but it is not satisfactory, and better concessions will have to be made by the company before a contract would be signed.

Trestle Gave Way.

Halifax, Nov. 30.—Seven men injured, two probably fatally, by the collapse of the banking station at No. 2 Colliery, Glace Bay, yesterday. The engine and a train load of cars were being run out on the trestle when it gave way and the entire train dropped to the ground, a distance of 35 feet. James McKeay, fireman, received cuts and bruises and a dislocated shoulder, and Jack McInnes, brakeman, bruises and cuts. The others injured were Joseph Mullins, foreman of the banking station; John Morrison, Jack McInnes, conductor; M. Perry and Charles Coffin. The damage will total about $3,000.

Hearing the Silence.

Little Phyllis was at a concert. The music rapped, and the buzz of conversation ceased. "Oh, mamma," exclaimed Phyllis, "listen to the hush!"—Heritage.

The Famous Rayo

Gives the Best Light at Any Price

When you pay more than the Rayo price for a lamp, you are paying for extra decorations that cannot add to the quality of the light. You can't pay for a better light, because there is none. An oil light has the least effect on the human eye, and the Rayo Lamp is the best oil lamp made, though low in price. You can pay $2, $10, or $20 for some other lamp, and although you get a more costly lamp, you can't get a better light than the white, mellow, diffused, unflickering light of the low-priced Rayo.

Has a strong, durable sheet-holder. This open burner adds to the strength and appearance. Made of solid brass, nickeled, and easily cleaned.

Ralph Connor Defends.

Winnipeg, Nov. 30.—Hon. Colin Campbell and Rev. C. W. Gordon engaged in acrimonious conflict yesterday morning while the former was on the stand in the enquiry into Dr. Shearer's charges. After stating that in his opinion nothing could be farther from the truth than the accusation of graft by police in administration of the segregation district, the Attorney-General went on to characterize Dr. Shearer's statements regarding the morality of Winnipeg as the most bitterly cruel that ever went before the public.

Rev. C. W. Gordon (Ralph Connor) took up the cudgels in defence of Shearer, and put the Attorney-General through a severe cross-examination, in which there was a good deal of mutual recrimination. The Attorney-General said he had formerly had a good opinion of Shearer, but in this case his zeal had run away with his judgment.

Ald. Adams shook his fist in the face of Rev. Charles D. Stewart, and demanded that the latter take back the offensive statement that the name of Adams should be placed with that of Daly, Evans & Co., over every house of prostitution in the segregated area.

Attorney-General Campbell, in speaking of the difficulty of obtaining conviction under the present criminal law, suggested an amendment permitting conviction on prima facie evidence.

HER KIDNEYS WERE KILLING HER

"FRUIT-A-TIVES" SAVED MRS. WEBBER'S LIFE

After Three Doctors Had Given Her Up

Clanbrassie, Ont.

Two years ago, the doctor made forty-four calls on me and then said he had done all he could for me. I was suffering with intense Kidney Trouble and severe inflammation had set in. Two other doctors were consulted and agreed that nothing could be done to help me.

On the recommendation of a neighbor, I took "Fruit-a-tives" and they cured me. To-day, I take "Fruit-a-tives" as my only medicine. I am in excellent health and "Fruit-a-tives" is the medicine that cured me after I had been at death's door for months.

I am glad to be able to give you this testimonial. It may benefit some other woman suffering as I suffered, as I believe that I would not be alive to-day had I not used "Fruit-a-tives."

THE EVENING CHIT-CHAT

By Ruth Cameron

I AM exceptionally glad to-night that I write this chat.

Because it gives me a chance to express some pent up feelings about the person who regards indiscriminate and considered plain speaking as the shining evening star among virtues. And if I didn't have that chance, seems to me I'd explode.

Of course you know the kind of person that I mean.

You also meet up with them every once in awhile, and, in the name of their dislike of hypocrisy and burning love of truth, are informed of some disagreeable and completely unnecessary fact by them.

"Truth, oh truth, how many wrongs are committed in thy name?"

I suppose you are wondering what makes me so very rancorous to-night.

Well, I'll tell you.

Molly, the little stenographer lady, came to see me yesterday. Molly is one of my favourite heroines, along with Joan of Arc and Marie Antoinette. If I am ever clever enough I am going to put her in a book. She is twenty-one years old. She is very pretty. If she hadn't been overworked and underamused all her life she would be even prettier. She works in an office through which many men of all sorts are continually passing. A few of them are genuinely kind to her, but most of them insist upon regarding her prettiness as a sort of "Girl for sale" sign. Almost every new man tries to work up a more or less desperate flirtation with her. "You can't trust any man. Not even the white-haired ones, who begin by talking about their daughters at home. Often they are the worst," is the sum of Molly's experience. And yet, despite the handicap of her surroundings and her charm, the stenographer lady has kept both her character and her dignity intact.

Molly has worked ever since she was sixteen and never earned more than ten dollars a week, because she didn't have a good equipment to start with.

To return to my theme—the stenographer lady came to me last night with the corners of her mouth turned down. That is rare for Molly, for despite her far from hilarious life, she manages to keep those corners pretty perky. And this was the raison d'etre, as it came out in due season. A big event had just taken place in Molly's uneventful life. She had bought a new hat—the first one she had had in three winters. And, alas, it was a terrible error in judgment—a hideous shape and an unbecoming colour.

The stenographer lady, as soon as she had bought it, dimly suspected that she had made a terrible mistake, but her mates knowing how much its purchase meant, and how very, very long Molly would have to wear it, nobly rose to the occasion and reassured her, and Molly was comforted.

And then, as ill luck would have it, Molly met up with a plain speaker, and the plain speaker, glorying in the fact that she was no hypocrite, told Molly, "You know I never can pretend to like anything when I don't, and, really, Molly, it isnt a bit your style. Why, you looked better in that old hat you wore last year than you do in this. And no one is wearing that kind of feathers now, and look at that velvet. It's terribly cheap.

Of course, the girls who told Molly it was the most becoming hat she ever had didn't do right.

Hypocrisy is wicked, of course, but I wonder what St. Peter thinks of certain things of plain speaking.

When anyone asks one's opinion in regard to something which can be altered, I think one should tell the truth as gently as possible. But when anyone asks one's opinion on some unfortunate and unalterable fact, like poor little Molly's ugly hat, I don't see why it isn't perfissable not to tell everything one knows.

Do you?

Debate Between Y. M. C. A. And Park Street Church Has Been Called Off

The debate between the Y. M. C. A. debaters and the Park Street Baptist church has been called off. The debate was to have taken place last night, but owing to the fact that there was some misunderstanding about the question for debate the Park Street debaters refused to wrangle. The question which the Y. M. C. A. men accepted in the first place was "That Canada Should Have a Navy." Feeling that the question was not quite definite enough to make an interesting discussion the Y. M. C. A. men asked that it be changed to read "That Canada should have a navy supported by the Canadian Government rather than contribute to the navy of the Mother Country." The Baptist debaters never accepted this as the subject and so the debate had to be called off. It is hoped that, as the Association men are ready with the affirmative, it will be possible for them to meet with some other wranglers, who would like to argue the question with them. In other words, they are going around with a chip on their shoulder looking for some debating society with heroism enough to knock it off.

The Mechanical Drawing Class will meet as usual to-night.

The first game in the Bowling Competition at the Y. M. C. A. was pulled off last night. The Lancashire Trio proved to be far too big a proposition for the Midgets. They managed to roll up a score of 1082 and the best the Midgets could do was 974. There is keen interest in this competition and it promises to be one of the best the Association has ever had. When it is over there will be some good bowlers developed, who never before rolled a ball. On Thursday night the match will be between the Big Three and the Mivvies.

LECTURES ARRANGED FOR THE LOCAL BOY SCOUTS

Enthusiastic Meeting of the Executive Committee Held Last Night —His Honour Judge Huycke Was Chosen as Chairman.

TO ENROLL MORE BOYS

An enthusiastic meeting of the Executive Committee of the Peterborough Boy Scouts was held in the Armories last night and many matters of importance were thoroughly discussed. On motion of Mr. O'Connell, seconded by Mr. Kenner, Judge Huycke was unaniously chosen as chairman of the committee.

It was then decided to obtain, if possible, a competent assistant for the present scout master and to continue enrolling new members. The committee have a few excellent men in view and hope to obtain one or more of them to aid in carrying on this very important movement.

It was further deemed wise to make this organization a distinctively Peterborough one, and to welcome to its ranks any new members either individually or in patrols without regard to any political, religious or social connections, so long as each would-be member or patrol is willing to comply with the rules of the organization as laid down in the Scout book. It may be well to add that this is quite in accordance with the former aims of the organization.

The committee further thought it advisable to carry on a series of lectures to be delivered by a number of the foremost men in Peterborough, and Dr. MacPherson, Medical Health Officer, has kindly consented to begin the series on Saturday evening of this week with a talk on first-aids. The other speakers who are expected to lecture from time include the following well-known gentlemen: Dr. M. J. O'Brien, D. Walker, A. Mowat, John Crane, G. C. Wainwright, Judge Huycke, D. O'Connel, H. R. H. Kenner, J. E. Hodgson, J. H. McClellan, F. D. Kerr, Lt.-Col. Stevenson, and others. The subjects will be varied and it is hoped that interest in this organization will not be allowed to flag.

The efforts of the committee are also being directed towards a means of promoting athletic games and physical culture among the boys. Those wishing to become members should do so at once, as the work will progress rapidly. The only requirement is to attend the Friday night meetings in the armories and indicate that you are sincere in your desire to become a good Scout. No fee is charged. Come on, boys, and be among the first to have your names enrolled.

SIGNS MAY EXTEND SIX AND A HALF FEET OVER THE SIDEWALK

Board of Works Amend the Sign By-law—"We Want More Illuminated Signs on Our Streets" Says Ald. Duncan.

THE SNOWPLOUGHERS

At a meeting of the Board of Works last evening, the tenders for snow-ploughing were received and contracts awarded. Those present were Ald. Hicks, chairman, Ald. Gillespie, Duffus, Graham, Metheral, Phelan and Duncan.

The following were the successful tenders:

District No. 2, E. Flaherty	$197
District No. 3, Wm. Saxby	$130
District No. 4, G. Innes	$118
District No. 5, R. Nicholls	$155
District No. 6, M. Rasheau	$120
District No. 7, A. O'Brien	$100
District No. 8, J. P. Francis	$ 92

With the exception of one, all the lowest tenders were accepted. For the district in which Mr. Nicholls was awarded the work, J. Coomb tendered $35 lower, but Mr. Nicholls was awarded the contract on his past reputation. Not being acquainted with Mr. Coomba, the committee was loth to let Mr. Nicholls go, against who never a complaint ahd ever been lodged. Ald. Duffus moved seconded by Ald. Duncan, that Mr. Nicholls' tender be accepted. Ald. Graham moved in amendment seconded by Ald. Phelan, that the lowest tender be accepted. The vote resulted in a tie and the chairman supported the original motion.

The Sign By-law.

City Engineer Hay reported that there were fifty-one illuminated signs in Peterborough. Five of these are what he termed lanterns, and therefore did not come under the heading of "illuminated signs." Five had paid the license fee and of the remainder, five did not comply with the by-law.

"I'd like to encourage the placing of signs along the street," said Ald. Duncan. "I would like, if it is possible, to have the city supply every verandah in the city with electric lights. It would be a splendid way of illuminating the streets."

Ald. Metheral thought that the sign by-law was very much like the building by-law, both being very often ignored. He believed in making them live up to the by-laws.

Ald. Duffus moved, seconded by Ald. Duncan, that the sign by-law be amended to allow signs to come out over the street six and a half feet, and the chiuse in regard to the fees be enforced.

It was moved by Ald. Graham and seconded by Ald. Duncan, that Messrs. E. and F. Conroy be paid, the balance due them on the Smith street bridge contract, on the certificate of the City Engineer.

On motion of Ald. Duncan and Metheral, Mr. F. Bartlett will be paid $64 for services rendered the city in the construction of manholes

STIRRING ADDRESS BY REV. J. BENNETT ANDERSON

CONVINCES HIS AUDIENCE

Rev. J. Bennet Anderson preached a very interesting sermon, in continuing the mission at St. Luke's church last night. He took his text from the 4th chapter of the gospel of St. John and the 4th verse, "And he needs must go through Samaria."

"Ye must be born again," said Mr. Anderson. "There are two types of character set forth here, one was a learned man, or he could not have held his position. The second character, perhaps widely different, was namely, the woman at the well of Samaria. This woman was what we would call to-day, a fallen woman," said the speaker, "and the question arises, would there be fallen women if it were not for fallen men? We are all sinners. The learnedness of Nicodemus did not ensure his entrance into heaven. Learnedness will not save. There are so many people who think that they can save themselves. They are very foolish. They can no more save themselves, than a joiner can make a wooden desk without wood. God must be in them, and work in their hearts first. If they have not received the gift of God, the trusting and the doing will not help them. Of course, I myself believe in doing, but that is not all. James believed in showing faith by works. Yes, that is all right. Some believe in faith and not works, and some in works and not faith, but they must be joined together before they will attain the desired end. David said 'the sacrifice of God is a broken spirit and a contrite heart.' But I want you to bear in mind what I said on Sunday night, and think out what I endeavoured to show you, also what I shall endeavour to say now. It is hard to do any kind of Christian work if the heart is not right with God. My dear brothers, Paul said, 'give my body to be burned and my goods to the poor,' but I say, no charity or faith will make love of God. It's for want of love of Christ that leaves us where we are. We may have a fine organ, a fine choir, a splendid place of worship, and a large congregation of fashionably dressed people, but, if we have not got the spirit of God, it's no use. It might be compared to an engine without steam. We may have the best machinery under heaven, but we want more steam, as it were. We have done the things, which we should have left undone, and those which we should have done, we have neglected. Therefore let us be like those believers who were commended for their love and belief in God. Jesus said, 'suffer the little children to come unto Me.' Bring them to the church; we should all be here."

Rev. Mr. Anderson spoke of the different kinds of elections then, and concluded that part by saying that, if it were not for the elections of faith for the salvation of souls, the situation would be serious. "I want you to share in the anxiety," he continued, "and join in the praising of the Lord." "When Jesus was going on His journey, mentioned here, he did not need to call at Jacob's well, but He went out of His way to call there to meet this poor sinning woman, and she was made useful the very day she was converted. Now Jacobs well was there, and Jesus being weary with His long journey, sat down at the well; it was about the sixth hour, He was hungry, he was thirsty, he was tired and yet they spat upon him, but He is the child of the Virgin Mary. I believe it and I desire you not to doubt the Bible—don't you dare doubt the Bible."

"A man or woman, who takes his or her life, is a base coward. But even if a man or a woman should take his or her life, no person has a right to take a life, only those who gave it. But they cannot take the other life. Its what comes after. I believe in home rule, but yet I don't believe in any one church being the ruler. I believe in Jesus Christ being the only ruler, and I hope all of you will be earnest in this work. I am not here to play with you, but I am sincere and I hope you are. I would sooner see a soul saved and get a cup of cold water, than see one lost and be rich as any man. He that believeth not, is condemned, but he that believeth is not condemned, for there is no condemnation in Jesus Christ." So ended Mr. Anderson's interesting and instructive sermon.

MR. CHIPMAN REPORTS ON PROGRESS ON WORK OF SEWERAGE SYSTEM

Thinks it Would be Advisable to Close Down Construction of Pipe Sewers From Dec. 15th Until April 1st.

WORK ALREADY DONE

Mr. W. Chipman ,engineer on the work of construction of the sewerage system in the south end of the city, reported in a letter to Ald. Hicks, chairman of the Board of Works, and which was read at the meeting last evening, that Contractor Conroy had completed during the month of October, the pipe laying on Rink and Park streets, storm drains. He advised that a temporary outlet be excavated from the end of the pipe to Lake before the ground froze up, either by extra work by Contractor Conroy or by day labour.

The storm drain on Romaine street was laid from the river outlet to within a short distance of the G.T.R., the latter part of October; also the storm drain on Romaine street from Aylmer street westward. The work on the Romaine street sanitary sewer was commenced at Lock street about Nov. 1st, but I regret to state that only 94 feet were laid to Nov. 23rd, the date of my last report.

Although some of the 12 inch sewer pipes required for the deep sanitary sewer on Romaine street, from George street to Aylmer street have been in Peterborough since October 1-t, and all of them have been delivered since the last week in October, this work has not yet been commenced by the contractor, although he was notified to proceed on October 11th. In Mr. Chipman's opinion, none of this deep work would be commenced this year, and it would be advisable to close down construction on pipe sewers from December 15th until April 1st.

The work on the sewage pumping station was commenced during the last week in September, and at the date of last report received from Peterborough, the contractor had about 2 feet more to sink the concrete work. If no accident occurred to delay the work, and the weather was favourable the bottom should be placed in position on or before December 6th. When the bottom has been placed the leaks can be stopped and the interior walls and floors placed in position, provided the contractor will provide means of heating the interior

The orders for the valves and specials required to connect the pumping station with the sewers have been given, but the pumping machinery has not been ordered. It was a question whether it would be advisable to attempt to construct the superstructure this season or leave it until April.

The Belmont Minstrels' big show will be so different from any other minstrel performance that has ever been seen in the city that people will wonder how it can be done. These are things of the past in minstrels of to-day The Belmont Minstrels, although minstrel show, will border on musical comedy; no long waits; no big songs; but everything quick and snappy. Inspected Church Chimes In Hamilton And Woodstock

Rev. Canon Davidson returned home last night after spending the past few days in Toronto, Hamilton and Woodstock. He preached special sermons in St. Clement's church in North Toronto on Sunday and on Monday he visited Woodstock, where he inspected the chimes on the Anglican church in that city. The rector, Rev. E. G. Wallace, very kindly played them for him, and imparted a lot of valuable information regarding them. Yesterday Mr. Davidson visited Hamilton. Here Rev. D. R. Drummon, pastor of St. Paul's Presbyterian church, and Mr. Knox, chairman of the Board of Managers, showed him the chimes on the church and had them rung for half an hour in order that he might hear them from various parts of the city. Mr. Davidson speaks most highly of the very kind treatment he received at both Woodstock and Hamilton.

Says The Council Is Shirking Its Responsibility In Regard To Poor House.

In an interview with the Examiner Mr. D. W. Dumble, K. C., the City Magistrate, in regard to a live local question, namely, the building of a House of Refuge ,spoke as follows:

"Every Grand Jury and Judge for the past twenty years has condemned Peterborough for sending poor old people to gaol, instead of to a proper home. The Council is fiddling with the matter, and for some inexplicable reason will not face their responsibility in this regard. All counties have put up decent poor houses on a small farm, where the inmates could be employed in raising produce, vegetables, milk and butter for their own maintenance. The Protestant Home people had proposed that if the City Council will give $10,000, they will erect a poor house and maintain it. If the Council did this it would be illegal. It would be shirking their responsibility and putting it on a body that has no legal standing or authority to assume the duties of a municipality. The Protestant Home Board has no power to levy money, their organization being largely volunteer. As magistrate, I am sending to gaol men, in regard to whom, the Criminal Code says "that no aged or infirm person shall be convicted for vagrancy as a loose, idle or disorderly or vagrant in the County of which he has for the two years immediately preceding been a resident. "Our gaol has a lot of old people who year after year are kept there for the reason that if he didn't send them there they would be turned out in the streets to die. The Protestant Home cannot be compelled to take them, and they could not house them if they would. The time for dallying with this question is past. Let the Council accept its responsibility."

TEACHER'S NERVES

Teachers often have the reputation of being cross when the trouble is with the nerves rather than the disposition. Mr. A. Sutherland, Principal South Bar School, Sydney, N.S., writes: "I was nervous and worried, had indigestion and headache and other ills. Doctors failed me. You can depend on me to recommend Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Food for I believe it has entirely cured me." Tired brains and feeble nerves are soon restored by this celebrated food cure.

North Smith Friends Make Presentation To Mr. And Mrs. Northey On Eve Of Departure

HALL'S BRIDGE, NOV. 30.—On Thursday evening of last week the members and adherents of Wesley church, to the number of over sixty, invaded the beautiful home of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Northey, for the purpose of tendering to the an slight token of the respect and esteem in which they are held by their many friends of North Smith Wesley Methodist church, prior to their departure from their midst. Mr. and Mrs. Northey's removal from the neighbourhood leaves a vacancy that will be hard to fill, not only in the church, but in the community in which they have lived all their lives.

Mr. Northey always took an active interest in the welfare of society, that tended to make better citizens, hence their removal to the city of Peterborough is deeply regretted by a host of friends. They were tendered with the following address, accompanied by two chairs:

Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Northey—

Dear Friends,—We, your friends in connection with Wesley church, are assembled here to-night in the cause of good citizenship, to tender to you the kind regards we esteem you worthy of as a brother man.

It is with extreme regret that we have learned of your removal from our midst. Looking back as we do to-night, over the almost thirty-four years that you have been a member of Wesley church, and a class leader of th esame, our church has undergone many changes, and no doubt you have often been discouraged in the lack of interest taken by the members of your class.

But your presence in the house of God, and in the one seat for the ames number of years, has not been without its influence upon us, and not only as a class leader did you show your interest in the church, but in all the departments of church work, financially and other wise. And also, your presence at our board meetings, and business foresight, has been a source of inspiration to those of us who have to bear the burdens incidental to the success of a church.

And not only in connection with our church, did your good qualities show forth, but as a public citizen, for when this northern division of Smith was in need of men to represent it in the council board in support of local option, they found in you a man who was not afraid of public opinion, and not only that, but during your service to the public, we are glad to learn that your character was above reproach. And now, in conclusion, we desire to tender to yourself and Mrs. Northey, these two chairs, hoping that you will not look upon, or accept them for their intrinsic value, but as a very slight token of our good will and appreciation for the services you have rendered and that they may often prove a happy reminder of the pleasant times spent together in Wesley church. And may the Lord watch over us while we are absent from one another.

Trusting that the future of your lives may be both pleasant and profitable, socially and spiritually, and that we may be all kept faithful while here below, is the earnest prayer of your many friends in North Smith

Signed on behalf of the congregation

STEPHEN HARRISON,
A. B. NORTHEY,
W. J. PEARSON,
AARON DAY.

Mr. Northey made a suitable reply, thanking the members and adherents of the church for their kindness to himself and Mrs. Northey and that while they were absent in person, they would not be in spirit, for they never would forget the friends at Wesley.

The ladies having taken baskets laden with good things for the inner man, refreshments were served, and a very pleasant evening spent in social intercourse, music, games, etc., after which the company dispersed to their homes, well pleased with the evening's entertainment.

Case Of Hatton vs. The City Being Heard Before Judge Huycke To-day

The case of Mr. W. G. Hatton vs. the city of Peterborough to recover damages to the extent of five hundred dollars as a result of an accident to his horse, which Mr. Hatton claims was caused by the city obstructing the road on Concession street, is being heard to-day. Mr Hatton states in his claim that the city while building a sidewalk on Concession street, had the material piled up in such a manner as to obstruct the road. As a result the animal got scared and ran away, causing serious injury. The case is being heard before his Honour Judge Huycke. Court opened at ten this morning. Mr. Hatton was the first witness called, and his evidence was not concluded until the court adjourned at one o'clock. The firm of Hall, Hays and Hall is appearing for the city.

An Appreciation Of Rev. J. Bennett Anderson

Peterborough, Nov. 29.

Mr. Editor—Last evening I attended St. Luke's church, East City, and heard the Rev. J. Bennet Anderson preach. I want to say that the Anglican church has a man of rare abilities in the person of said preacher. He may well and truly be called the modern Luther. He throws his whole heart and soul into his sermons and speaks with a veritable tongue of fire. He preaches in the power and demonstration of the spirit, the doctrine of justification by faith alone, but not by the faith that is alone. It would be well for those who have been let astray by the pernicous teachings of the so called higher critics and Russellism to go and hear this fearless preacher who believes in, an unmutilated Bible, a real perdition for ungodly men, a real devil whose work is to deceive men, and a real heaven for penitent and regenerated sinners. If you can go and hear him, it will do you good.

Yours truly,
ONE WHO HEARD HIM.

Dr. Schaffner Uses Epithet "Cowards" and When Called on to Retract Opposition Members Take Refuge in Mr. Gauvreau's Remark—Member of Temiscouata Complies to Restore Peace of Assembly

Ottawa, Nov. 30. All hope of a division on the protracted debate on the address in reply to the speech from the throne last night was dispelled shortly before 11 o'clock, and a scene was enacted with culminated in an encounter between the two parties which recalled the famous contemps between Sir Wilfrid Laurier and Hon. George E. Foster two years ago.

The incident began when Sir Wilfrid had finished his oration defending the attitude of the administration on the naval question, which has been under fire since the opening of the debate. The Prime Minister was heard by a crowded house, and as soon as T. W. Crothers (Conservative, West Elgin) arose to continue, there was a general exodus on the part of Liberal members. The noise was great, and Mr. Speaker shouted "Order, order." No attention was paid to his remarks, and several Conservatives took up the cry, and in the confusion were heard such expressions as "Come back and take your medicine," and in the hubbub Mr. Speaker heard Dr. F. L. Schaffner (Conservative, Souris, Man.) use the word "cowards."

The Speaker at once called upon Dr. Schaffner to withdraw the expression. Speaker Marcil then intimated that an apology was due to the House.

Hon. George E. Foster: "What about Tiar' the other day?"

Cries of "Order, order," and "Apologize," filled the House, and Conservatives gave full vent to their lung power and shouted to the Speaker to have C. A. Gauvreau (Liberal, Temiscouata) apologize for saying that Mr. Monk lied.

Speaker Marcil appealed for order and Mr. Borden arose to say, amid the wildest kind of cheering on the part of his followers: "I respectfully suggest that the word 'coward' is no more offensive than the word 'liar.'"

This was followed by another burst of Opposition cheering, with a counter demonstration by the Liberals. Throughout the uproar Mr. Foster shouted in stentorian tones, "Make the other men apologize. That's the only fair thing."

The Speaker explained that the other day, when the Liberal member for Temiscouata used the expression "liar" he had not heard it. But, when he saw it in Hansard the following day, he called upon Mr. Gauvreau to withdraw, and that hon. gentleman had done so.

Mr. Borden, evincing unusual anger, pointed out that the expression used by the member for Temiscouata had been reported in Hansard, yet the Speaker had exacted no apology from him.

Mr. Foster: "Make him apologize."

This was followed by cries of "apologize" from the Conservative benches.

Sir Wilfrid stemmed the melee of voices for a moment. He pointed out that the question whether the member for Temiscouata should apologize or not could not be discussed at this time. "When an incident has passed on," he said, "it cannot be recalled. I am not prepared to say whether the member for Temiscouata should have been called upon to apologize or not."

Mr. Foster: "No, he is on that side."

Mr. Borden: "I am not prepared either to say whether an apology should be asked in either case, but it has been in one, and not in the other."

Mr. Foster: "The apology will be given before the House does business."

Sir Wilfrid Laurier interpreted that all men were fallible.

Cries of "apologize" continued, and Mr. Borden brought forth renewed cheering from his side of the House, when he shot his ultimatum at the Premier and Speaker:

"We may as well have this matter threshed out now."

An all night session seemed imminent.

The Opposition leader pointed out that no one in the House has asked for ruling in this case.

Mr. Foster: "Let us have equal rights, no prejudice."

Sir Wilfrid Laurier: "The incident cannot be recalled in the midst of the debate. We must proceed with the debate."

The Speaker reviewed his ruling and explained that he had not called upon Mr. Gauvreau to withdraw, only because he had not heard him using the expression, and he had heard Dr. Schaffner.

After more turmoil the Speaker suggested that, if the member for Temiscouata considered it his duty to the House, he hoped he would apologize.

Mr. Gauvreau first said that he could not apologize under the rules, but a moment later said that, in order to restore peace, he would utterly withdraw his expression and apologize to the member for Jacques Cartier. He added, amid laughter, "I won't ask him to go into the corridor to settle that."

Mr. Crothers' motion to adjourn then carried, and one of the most remarkable incidents of late years closed.

W. B. Northrup (Conservative, East Hastings), who resumed the debate on Tuesday, said it was time for Canada to stop and take stock of her national defence. He would liked to have seen the royal prerogative of control of the navy defences of the country retained. He regarded as dubious the Government's expression of satisfaction with the increase in imports and exports during the past year, and argued that this was no indication of prosperity. By taking the duty off coal, and rescinding the bounties on steel and iron, the volume of Canadian imports could largely be increased, but at the sacrifice of Nova Scotia collieries, and the stifling of the iron and steel industries.

He argued that the naval policy of the Government had brought about a weakened condition of defence. Since last year, by that policy, two warships had been taken out of the Imperial navy, 800 sailors had gone out of the service, and millions of dollars of Canadian money spent in vain.

E. W. Tobin (Richmond and Wolfe) produced three declarations from Mayor Tardif of Kingsley Falls, where the meeting was held; James Smith and J. B. Prefontaine, who were also at the meeting, bearing out the denial of Notary Begin of Richmond, Que., of the accusation of Mr. Monk that he stated from a public platform during the Drummond-Arthabuska by-election that the Canadian navy would be used to pound Great Britain.

Ralph Smith (Nanaimo), dealing with the speech made by Mr. Burrell, said that he, like his leader, was at variance with Premier McBride of British Columbia, spoken of as a probable leader of the Conservative party, because, on the arrival of the Rainbow at Victoria, Mr. McBride had declared that he was in accord with Laurier's naval policy. Clive Phillips Woolley, the president of the British Columbia branch of the Naval League, had expressed himself in similar tones.

Mr. Smith thought the people of Canada would remember that the Government had carried out the naval policy on lines approved by the whole House, whereas the Opposition had changed its policy every year and would likely do so again.

DOCTORS TELL HOW "CUTICURA" CURED SKIN DISEASES

One says, "I have Great Faith in Cuticura Remedies." Another, "They Always Bring Results."

"I wish to let you know of a couple of recent cures which I have made by the use of the Cuticura Remedies. Last August, Mr. ——— of this city came to my office, troubled with a severe skin eruption. At first I could not understand the nature of the case. I finally traced it to his occupation, as he was a painter and decorator. It was dermatitis in its worst form. It started with a slight eruption and would affect most parts of his body—thighs, elbows chest, back and abdomen—and would terminate in little pustules. The itching and burning was dreadful and he would almost tear his skin apart, trying to get relief. I recommended all the various treatments I could think of and he spent about fifteen dollars on prescriptions but nothing seemed to help him.

"In the meantime my wife who was continually suffering with a slight skin trouble and who had been trying different prescriptions and methods with my assistance, told me she was going to get some of the Cuticura Remedies. But as I did not know much about Cuticura at that time I was doubtful whether it would help her. Her skin would thicken, break and bleed, especially on the fingers, wrists and arms. I could do nothing to relieve her permanently. When she first applied the warm baths of Cuticura Soap and applications of Cuticura Ointment she saw a decided improvement and in a few days she was completely cured.

"I lost no time in recommending the Cuticura Remedies to Mr. ———, and this was two months ago. I told him to wash with warm baths of the Cuticura Soap and to apply the Cuticura Ointment grously. Believe me, from the very first day's use of the Cuticura Remedies he was greatly relieved and to-day he is completely cured through their use. I have great faith in the Cuticura Remedies and shall always have a good word for them now that I am convinced of their wonderful merits. (Signed) B. L. Whitehead, M.D., 108 Dartmouth St., Boston, Mass., July 22, 1910.

As though in confirmation of this most convincing statement, C. M. Fisher, M.D., Big Pool, Md., writes: "My face was afflicted with eczema in the year 1897. I used the Cuticura Remedies and was entirely cured. I am a practicing physician and very often prescribe Cuticura Remedies in cases of eczema, and they have cured where other formulas have failed. I am not in the habit of endorsing patent medicines, but when I find remedies possessing true merit, such as the Cuticura Remedies do, I am broad-minded enough to proclaim their virtues to the world. I have been practicing medicine for twenty years, and must say I find your Remedies A No. 1. I still find the Cuticura Remedies as good as ever. They always bring results."

WHAT ABOUT THE TARIFF?

Mr. Balfour Finds Himself With a Disagreement Within the Party—Perils of Home Rule and the Referendum Reform Is the Main Ground of Unionist Appeal—Every Man Is Hard at Work.

London, Nov. 30.—The politicians of all parties are straining every nerve to crowd into a few days the work which in ordinary elections is spread over weeks or months. Nearly all the heavy guns were in action yesterday.

Arthur J. Balfour, leader of the Opposition in the House of Commons, before a big meeting in Albert Hall, where he warmly supported the referendum, described the Government as puppets dancing to the tune of John Redmond and his American paymasters.

The issues are narrowing daily. The Conservatives make much of the menace of home rule. They proclaim that the plan of the Liberals for the reform of the House of Lords means a single chamber and put to the front their new policy of referendum.

An interesting factional cleavage has occurred in Balfour's party over tariff reform. The Spectator, which is the spokesman of the Unionist free traders, has proposed that the tariff reformers pledge themselves to submit the question to a referendum, if the party wins, is not being a leading issue of the campaign. The most ardent tariff reformers, led by The Morning Post, contend that it is the foremost principle of the party. "The Unionist party breaks into fragments," says The Post, "if a Unionist victory does not mean tariff reform."

Mr. Balfour last night announced his willingness to leave it to a referendum. In the meantime, the leaders are making every appeal to the independent vote, believing that it controls the issue.

The Irish Unionists sent a message of defiance of home rulers to Mr. Balfour's meeting, and deputations from the Nonconformist Unionist Association of England, and 600 ministers of non-Episcopal churches in Ireland have addressed Mr. Balfour in opposition to home rule.

The reading of the message from the Irish Unionist at Albert Hall caused much enthusiasm.

"In all solemnity," said the message, "we now declare that home rule will bring Ireland, not peace, but the sword. If an Irish Parliament is set up the Unionists of the south, allied with the men of Ulster, will not acknowledge its authority. They will neither obey its decrees nor pay its taxes."

Mr. Balfour pronounced strongly in favor of the referendum as the best method of settling deadlocks between the two Houses without requiring the reform of the House of Lords, and it could be carried into effect before the House of Lords was reformed. This he declared to be Lansdowne's plan.

He ended by declaring that the Cabinet was governed by its noisiest members, who were governed by John Redmond, who was governed by Patrick Ford. "Don't trust the puppets who are performing their parts on the stage," admonished Mr. Balfour. "Don't trust the Irish wirepuller. Don't trust the American paymaster, who calls for a tune. Trust alone the sound judgment and enlightened patriotism of the people of the country."

J. H. Seavern, who was member of Parliament for the Brixton division of Lambeth in 1908 and who was at one time a resident of Boston, has become the Liberal candidate in the same constituency against Davidson Dalziel, Unionist, once a resident of New York.

Lord Joicey, who was created a peer by the Liberals, has announced his defection from that party because of its failure to provide for the defence of the country, and for its alliance with the Socialists. It is stated that several other Liberal peers are tending in the same direction.

Severe Privation.

Fort William, Nov. 30. L. M. Keating, night operator at Oscar, a small town 130 miles west of here on the Grand Trunk Pacific, was found on Saturday at 12 o'clock by W. Lowry and Mark Chown about four miles from the station, sitting beside a small lake, with both feet frozen, and too weak to stand. He had not slept nor eaten for 94 hours. The rescuers carried him to the station, and a message was immediately sent to Fort William. A special engine was sent out.

It will not be known for a day or two yet whether amputation of the feet will be necessary.

Washington, Nov. 30.—A black picture of prosperity for the railroads unless they are allowed to raise their rates was painted before the Interstate Commerce Commission yesterday by C. C. McKay, chairman of the Trunk Line Association of New York, an organization of eastern carriers. He declared that the wages of thousands of employes and the whole railroad industry had been threatened by the involuntary reduction of rates.

Electrocuted in Bath Tub.

Milwaukee, Wis., Nov. 30.—Edward L. Uhrig, 28 years old, son of a wealthy coal dealer, was found dead in a bath tub in his home Monday night. He had been electrocuted by an electrically operated vibrator by which he was massaging his body.

Amputated His Own Hand.

Richmond, Va., Nov. 30.—Cutting off his own hand with a razor after it had been crushed in a corn shredder yesterday, J. Bruce Vaughan of Eureka Mills, Charlotte County, Va., calmly bandaged the stump, and calmly awaited the arrival of a surgeon to attend the injured member to the extent

Unless you treat your ailments in the right way, you can't expect to cure them. We'll buy a 50-cent bottle of Psychine (pronounced Si-keen) from your druggist and give it to you free to show you how effective is the right way.

It's not so long ago that the doctors bled a man to make him strong.

"Stuff a cold and starve a fever" is miles behind our to-day's knowledge of curative science, yet our fathers had it preached to them time and again.

You may not know it, but to-day there are just as ineffective methods of cure being preached and practised.

All because most people do not know the real cause of disease.

There are two kinds of corpuscles in the blood—red and white.

The red corpuscles contain nutrition, the white destroy disease germs.

If for any cause the white corpuscles become depleted and are not sufficiently strong to destroy the germs of disease, then disease controls the body.

That's the cause of disease.

They didn't know how or why in those days, they do to-day.

These herbs are contained in Psychine—they're responsible for the great results obtained from Psychine a third of a century ago.

They're responsible for the hundreds of thousands that Psychine has cured since that time.

It's because of these herbs that we have received hundreds of thousands of testimonials attesting to wonderful cures that Psychine has made.

And it's because of these very same herbs that we will buy within the next twelve months hundreds of thousands of 50-cent bottles of Psychine and give them away free to whomsoever sends us the coupon in this announcement.

We will undoubtedly buy and distribute in this manner, hundreds of thousands of these 50-cent bottles of Psychine.

And we do that to show our entire confidence in this wonderful preparation.

A confidence that has been based on our 30 years' experience with this splendid preparation with a full knowledge of the hundreds of thousands of cures it has made.

TO EXTEND RAILWAY

Order-in-Council Is Passed Authorizing an Extension of About Thirty Miles at a Cost of Nearly Half a Million Dollars—Work on Road Will Be Gone on With Without Delay, Says the Premier.

Toronto, Nov. 30.—"The Government yesterday passed an order-in-council providing for the building of the Temiskaming & Northern Ontario Railway from a point on the main line near Kelso or Porcupine. The distance will probably be 30 or 32 miles and the cost about $480,000. This work will be done under the powers given legislation last session and will be proceeded with without delay."

Chairman Englehart of the T. & N. O. Railway Commission said last night: "The action of the Government is all right. We have the land up there and this is another indication that we are going to take care of it. It is an extension which I have supported, but not only the Porcupine district, but the whole of the land up there, will be looked after, and we want to develop it all."

R. R. Gamey, M.P.P., spoke strongly yesterday morning of the need for the extension of the T. & N. O. now decided upon. "There can be no doubt whatever," he said, "that a railway is needed. Over two million dollars is invested already. The mines have to be equipped for operation and for shipping. Supplies have to be taken in. This means an expenditure of as much more. One concern refused an offer of a million and a half for their property, I am told. The Government will be fully justified in building a line to Porcupine without delay."

Beat Up Constable.

Port Hope, Nov. 30.—Night Constable Burns, while attempting to arrest four men at an early hour yesterday morning, received a severe beating. One of the assailants knocked him down, while another took his baton and pounded him over the head, inflicting several bad bruises. Two of the men have been arrested, and the case will come up as soon as the policeman has sufficiently recovered to appear against them.

Your Danger From Kidney Troubles

BEGINS WHEN YOUR BACK ACHES.

Backache is the first and the sure sign of kidney disease.

When the back aches or becomes weak it is a warning that the kidneys are affected in some way.

Next to the heart, the kidneys are, perhaps the most important organs in the body. It is no wonder then that if the kidneys are affected the whole system must be.

On the first sign of backache Doan's Kidney Pills should be taken. They go right to the seat of the trouble, heal the delicate membranes of the kidneys and make their action regular and natural."

Mr. E. J. Saulnier, Lake Annis, N.S., writes:—"I take a great deal of pleasure in telling you the benefit I have received from the use of Doan's Kidney Pills. I commenced using Doan's Kidney Pills and in a very short time I was right and fit again."

Women's Secrets

There is one man in the United States who has perhaps heard more women's secrets than any other man or woman in the country. These secrets are not secrets of guilt or shame, but the secrets of suffering, and they have been confided to Dr. R. V. Pierce in the hope and expectation of advice and help. That few of these women have been disappointed in their expectations is proved by the fact that ninety-eight per cent. of all women treated by Dr. Pierce have been absolutely and altogether cured. Such a record would be remarkable if the cases treated were numbered by hundreds only. But when that record applies to the treatment of more than half-a-million women, in a practice of over 40 years, it is phenomenal, and entitles Dr. Pierce to the gratitude accorded him by women, as the first of specialists in the treatment of women's diseases.

Every sick woman may consult Dr. Pierce by letter, absolutely without charge. All replies are mailed, sealed in perfectly plain envelopes, without any printing or advertising whatever, upon them. Write without fear or without fee, to World's Dispensary Medical Association, Dr. R. V. Pierce, Pres., Buffalo, N. Y.

Pain in Heart

"For two years I had pain in my heart, back and left side. Could not draw a deep breath or lie on left side, and any little exertion would cause palpitation. Under advice I took Dr. Miles' Heart Remedy and Nervine. I took about thirteen bottles, am in better health than I ever was, and have gained 14 pounds."

MRS. LILLIE THOMAS,
Upper Sandusky, Ohio.

For many years Dr. Miles' Heart Remedy has been very successful in the treatment of heart troubles, because of its tonic effect upon the heart nerves and muscles. Even in severe cases of long standing it has frequently prolonged life for many years after doctors had given up all hope, as proven by thousands of letters we have received from grateful people.

New Teams Are Expected In City Hockey League

There will, it is expected, be more than the usual number of local teams in the City League this year, even with the Stratheonas out of the running. In fact the withdrawal of the Commissioners leaves room for more teams than has been the case for some years, if the grade of hockey is not up to the very high notch that it has reached. The trouble has been that a couple of teams have corralled all the good material, and as a result had the edge of the others to such a considerable extent that the only interest in the League has centred in the race for first place. This year the conditions will be different. The teams promise to be more evenly matched and there will likely be a lively battle all through the season. Any club in the city that would like to enter is cordially invited to do so and to have representatives present at the annual meeting of the League, which will be held on Monday evening next at eight o'clock in the Oriental Hotel parlours.

A junior City League is also under discussion and the matter may be taken up at next Monday's meeting.

$50,000 Changed Hands On Saturday's Game

HAMILTON, NOV 29.—It is estimated that nearly $50,000 changed hands on the game. This constitutes a record for wagers on a Canadian sporting event, with the exception probably of the King's Plate race, and some of the other big stake events.

There was no Toronto money at 3 and 2 to 1 by Saturday. As the time for the battle drew closer the Toronto sports tightened up and by Saturday morning the odds narrowed down to 10-7. At the grounds 7 and 6 to 5 was about the best you could do, although a lot of money was laid even on Varsity doubling the score.

At the Royal Hotel alone bets amounting to nearly $15,000 were registered.

Pete Campbell Slated For Quarter Back On Next Year's Varsity Team

TORONTO, NOV. 29.—Now that this year's honours are all in the safe, the question is, what material is there in the halls of learning of which to make a championship aggregation for next year? And it looks very much as though the stuff were right up at the little red schoolhouse now.

On the back division, brave John Maynard will be the king pin. To back him up, he will have Elliott Greene, and Elliott was the mainstay of the R. M. C. team last year; and Billy Mackenzie of this year's second team. Mackenzie threatens to be the question of next year's outfit, as Maynard was of this. He is a grand side stepper; a good catcher, and a fair punt. He has weight and strength, and requires only a bit of drilling.

Al Ramsay, captain of the intermediate university team, is a good player. Heady, steady, a good punt, a sure catch, of good physique and a strong runner. Bas. Frith, of the seconds, is also good. He is a very fast runner, but is not quite sure enough in handling the oval.

Pete Campbell, at quarter, will be every bit as good at the position as Billy Foulds was, and that is the highest tribute you can pay any quarter.

The two most important wing positions, outside and inside, will be ably filled. At right outside, Bob Thompson will perform regularly. On the left side, Mac. Dawson, who is a brilliant tackler and a very fast runner, should make a hit. Clark and Grass are two trained inside wing men. Middle wings will probably be guarded by McDougall and German, and these players are real good men. For scrimmage, Cory, Carroll and Ferris are available. Sifton is capable of filling any of these positions on the forward division acceptably.

This team will average some three or four pounds heavier than this year's champions. They will have a great running, passing combination, very like this year's aggregation, but will not hold quite as strong a hand of kicking halves.

The wing line will be heavier and very fast, faster at following down under punts than the champions have been.

McDougal and Dawson are exceptionally speedy players.

It looks like a fine, well-balanced fourteen to represent the students on the field, and if the boys return, they will have another great team, and under Harry Griffiths' coaching and John Maynard's leadership, should again bring the honours in 1911.

THE SCHOOLBOY GAME TOURNAMENT AT Y. M. C. A.

The second series of the School Boys' Game Tournament took place Tuesday afternoon and was very much enjoyed. It is for the partner championship of the department. The fight for first place is a good one. Matthews and Knapman chasing hard, Long and Heaslip. Heaslip was winner in the singles. The following is the standing of the first four teams.

Long-Heaslip, won 6, lost 2.
Matthews-Knapman, won 6, lost 2.
Hamilton-Monro, won 3, lost 5.
Long-Anderson, won 3, lost 5.

Next tournament will be held on Tuesday, Dec. 6th. There are twelve teams in the race.

Scouts to-night, 7 p.m. All new members will be received by Mr. Hodges, and necessary instructions given, for their tenderfoot examination.

TORONTO TO HAVE NEW BALL TEAM FOR 1911

President J. J. McCaffery of the Toronto Baseball Club, promises that this city will be represented by an almost entirely new team in the Eastern League next year. Joe Kelley has signed a contract to manage the team, while two other players have already signed up. Mr. McCaffery would not divulge the identity of these men.

"J. J. M." is of the opinion that the Eastern circuit will look more like a major league next year than ever before. There are many who will agree with him in this. President James says that it will take a great deal more tact and diplomacy, as well as hard work, to keep a club up near the surface in the future, and he predicts a very keen race in 1911. With Stallings at Buffalo that city will be dangerous.

The Eastern League meeting will be held in New York on Monday, Dec. 12, the day before the National League gathering. McCaffery is threatened with quinsy at present and asserts that he will not go near the metropolis for the annual meeting if he feels unfit. Kelley would represent the club alone in that case.

LIFE CONVICT TO WED THE GIRL WHO WAITED

Special to The Examiner.

Topeka, Nov. 30.—Devotion to the man she loved through eight years though all that time he was serving a life sentence in the Kansas penitentiary, will be rewarded when James Dalton is pardoned soon. He will marry Leona Taylor immediately on his release. His story is a strange one.

Because he loved Miss Taylor and would do her slightest bidding he was sentenced for life for complicity in a murder. While he committed no murder and did not commit any crime deserving a penitentiary sentence, still, in the eyes of the law, Dalton was ready to kill if it had been necessary to persuade his own safety, and he was sent to prison.

Governor Stubbs has been importuned to grant a pardon to Dalton many times but he has refused. Owing to the circumstances surrounding the case the Governor has ordered a special investigation. Dalton has been offered a position in Topeka and as soon as the Governor completes his investigation parole papers will be issued.

In 1907 Dalton lived in Nemaha County and was a clerk in a hardware store. When business was light he husked corn for the farmers. He went to a husking bee and met Laura Taylor. She found the red ear of corn. Dalton also found one and claimed the kiss.

There were numerous visits at the Taylor home thereafter, and the next Spring James Dalton and Laura Taylor were engaged. One day, as Dalton was visiting his fiancee, Thomas Taylor, the girl's brother, drove up to the house. He was accompanied by a man named Royal. Both were fugitives from justice. The two men went into the house and were hidden by Taylor's parents in a closet when officers came for them. Mrs. Taylor was ill and the officers were refused admission. They left to get a search warrant.

It was necessary for the two men to get out of the country. Both were strangers there, as Taylor had been at home only a few times since he was a boy. Dalton knew the country well and the two fugitives asked him to drive them into Nebraska, twenty miles away. At first Dalton refused, but Laura Taylor begged him, for her sake, to help her brother get away.

Dalton yielded to the supplication of his sweetheart, and the three left in a buggy. The officers returned, gave chase and the three men were captured half way to the Nebraska line. They were taken to Marysville and locked up to wait for officers from another State to take Taylor and Royal.

Taylor suggested that they break jail. Dalton was persuaded that this was the easiest way out of his difficulty. Taylor and Royal sawed the jail bars and sent Dalton ahead. He walked to the edge of the town and waited. When they came up running they told Dalton to get out of the country, and vanished.

It later developed that the jailor had been killed by a blow on the head. Dalton went to Colorado and wrote to his sweetheart. She told him not to come back. Dalton enlisted in Company K. of the Fifteenth Infantry and went to Cuba and later to the Phillippines as a member of Company L. of the Fourth Infantry. He was in the Phillippines thirty months before returning to this country. He was honourably discharged at San Antonio, but was at once arrested for the murder of the Marysville jailor. Neither Taylor nor Royal has ever been apprehended.

Dalton was taken back to Marysville, and, while he was guilty only of a technical offence, that of jail breaking, he had escaped at the same time as the others when the murder was committed, and he was found guilty of murder and sentenced to life imprisonment.

After he reached the prison Dalton found there an old army friend, Lieutenant Asa L. Singleton, under whom Dalton had served throughout his army experience. Dalton became stenographer to Singleton, who was the Bertillon expert at the prison. Singleton and many other friends of Dalton who lived in Nemaha County have often urged the Governors of Kansas to pardon Dalton who has served eight years in prison. They are now about to succeed and Dalton will soon be released.

GREAT HEROISM SHOWN IN RESCUING CONSUMPTIVES FROM BURNING HOSPITAL

Special Wire to the Examiner.

TORONTO, DEC. 1.—There were instances of great heroism on the part of the nurses, attendants, and patients of the Free Hospital for Consumptives at Weston this morning, when, at 4 o'clock, their place took fire and was burned to the ground.

Forty patients, in the last stages were in the institution, some of them absolutely helpless and had to be carried down stairs. The rescuers went back again and again through the smoke, till everybody was out. The nearest brigade station is three miles away. The loss will be one hundred thousand dollars.

BOTH PARTIES CLAIM SIR WILFRID LAURIER AS THEIR SUPPORTER

Canadian Premier's Name is Often Heard by Speakers on Both Sides in British Election Campaign---Balfour's Change in Tariff Reform Has Taken Wind Out of Liberals' Sails.

Special wire to The Examiner:

LONDON, ENG., DEC. 1.—With the first pollings within two days' time, the election campaign is getting more strenuous every hour. The candidates and their supporters are holding meetings in every available building and at every possible corner, at every conceivable time. Hon. John Burns showed himself still very popular with the working classes of London this morning in his addresses to the grimy workmen of the night shifts from the foundries and factories. If loyalty to Burns meant loyalty to the government, they would carry London by an overwhelming majority. In their speeches last night the government leaders practically admitted that Balfour's charge on the tariff reform had really taken considerable wind from their sails. The Liberal tactics now is much of a sarcastic round-up of the Tories for deserting their platform last year. It is almost beyond question, however, that Redmond, O'Connor and their following are more solid for the government than they were owing to the threatening attitude of the Ulster people. This all complicates the situation and makes it anybody's election. From a Canadian standpoint it is interesting to note how frequently the campaigners use the name of Sir Wilfrid Laurier in their speeches. Both sides claim him as their supporter, the Unionists on the score of imperialism, and the Liberals as a friend of home rule.

Man With Cholera Escaped
The Health Officers

Examiner Special.

TORONTO, DEC. 1.—Despite the vigilance of the Canadian Immigration and Health officers, who held the Steamer Royal George in cholera quarantine for some days, it looks as if a patient infected with this terrible disease landed at Quebec, entrained, passed through Canada a thousand miles or so and entered Michigan at Sault Ste Marie. His name is Jenschke, a Russian, and he is now quarantined in Wisconsin.

Nothing In It.

OTTAWA, DEC. 1.—The authorities here have made enquiries at Quebec, Montreal, and the Soo, regarding the story that a man with cholera passed through Canada and they say that there is nothing in it. A man with a name something similar is still detained at Grosse Isle.

Massacre In Roumania
Many Jews Are Killed

Mr. J. Goldberg, the ladies' tailor, George street, has received a Jewish paper, published in New York, giving the details of a horrible massacre of Jews in Roumania, which took place early Sunday morning last. The Roumanians suddenly commenced to murder the defenceless Jews in a small town of seven thousand inhabitants. Thirty people were killed outright, a hundred more were badly injured and one hundred houses and stores owned by the Jews, broken into, and pillaged. Even the children were not spared, the little ones being ruthlessly put to death by the bloodthirsty mob.

Presentation To Mr. W. L. Richardson
By Pupils Of King Edward School

On Tuesday afternoon the pupils and teachers of King Edward School made a presentation to their retiring principal, Mr. W. L. Richardson, who has been promoted to the principal ship of the Queen Alexandra Sch ool. In a few well chosen remarks Mr. F. E. Kerr, vice-Principal of the school, expressed his regret at the removal of Mr. Richardson from the King Edward School, but congratulated him on his promotion. On behalf of the pupils the presentation was made by Harry Rew, it consisting of a handsome reading lamp. When Mr. Richardson rose to reply, he was greeted with the singing by the pupils of "He's a Jolly Good Fellow." He thanked his associates and students for their kind thoughtfulness and assured them of his deep appreciation of their handsome gift. Mr. Richardson commenced his duties as principal of the Queen Alexandra school this morning.

SPACE FOR REPENTANCE.

The introduction of Mr Gilbert, the newly-elected Nationalist member for Drummond and Arthabaska, to the House of Commons a day or two ago, was unprecedented in Canadian Parliamentary proceedings. There was not a sound or applause, such as always vociferously proceeds from political friends of a member elected during a recess and introduced during a session. This attitude in respect of Mr. Gilbert was both consistent and inconsistent on the part of the members. It was consistent with the Liberal members, who in Mr. Gilbert recognized the embodiment of hostility to the Liberal government's naval policy and hostility to the idea of Canada's duty to the empire, and even of blatant and aggressive hostility to the Mother Country and to British connection. The Liberal party recognized that the slightest degree of approval of Mr Gilbert such as might be dictated by personal respect or respect for the will of even a misguided and hoodwinked electorate, was inadmissible. They recognized in Mr Gilbert the temporary triumph of a disintegrating element, whose expressed aim was against the integrity of Confederation and Imperial unity.

The attitude of the Conservative members, their chilling silence of reception of Mr. Gilbert, the "Nationalist" members, was inconsistent with their previous attitude. The Conservative party, represented by prominent members, sympathized with the empire-wrecking campaign, to which Mr. Gilbert owes his election; even official members of the party and others high in place in its ranks, wired congratulations upon the victory of Mr Gilbert the victory over Canadian unity of citizenship, the victory of a schismatic campaign against Imperial and National integrity, material and moral. In this regard, the reception of Mr. Gilbert was inconsistent and inconsistent with the whole course, on the naval question, of the Conservative Opposition, who boxed the political and tactical compass completely, even stealing the policy of the Nationalists as a welcome contribution to the success of the anything-to-beat Laurier policy. The Conservative downing down of Mr. Gilbert, the "Nationalist" ally in effect of the Conservative party in parliament was inconsistent because Mr Borden's ammunition in his last stand against the navy his duplicate amendment of Mr. Monk's "Nationalist" amendment was filched from Mr. Henri Bourassa's cartridge box.

But there is still space for repentance; it is not too late for the Conservative leader and his followers to adopt the stand, they should have taken at the beginning. Instead of taking the "Nationalist" empire-wreckers to their bosoms, they might well have repudiated them and their works, might have regarded them as the common enemy, as they are. On both parties, of every national aspiration of Canadian unity and imperial unity that should appeal to every loyal and patriotic Canadian and subject of the empire. They might have endorsed the principle embodied in the naval bill, the principle which was adopted, unanimously, by parliament, on March 29th, 1909, and adopted by Parliament, by an overwhelming majority on March 10th, 1910. They might well have taken this course, because the naval policy has become a fact, logically subject to as little disturbance as any of the fixed policies of the country. At any rate the Canadian naval policy will never be abandoned in favour of the "Nationalist" policy of do-nothing at i-mash-everything. If the Conservative party had endorsed or accepted this policy for the sake of the tremendous interests involved, they would have contributed a loyal share to crushing the latter day "Nationalism" and all that it stands for. That would have been more patriotic than a practical alliance with the "Nationalists" for the sake of being towed into power by cooperation with an element, whose policy is not a thing for any patriotic Canadian to be proud of, and whose help will not be a source of pride to a great political party. Such a course would have been safer; for as things stand, and portend, Mr Borden, in adopting the "Nationalist" propaganda even negatively and by default of opposition, is warming a viper in his bosom, that will sting him to the heart if he ever reaches power with the "Nationalist" incident as a stepping stone. If he desires to gain power, he can reach it by some watchier path, that that marked out by a reactionary faction whose aim is the reduction of Canada to a chaos of national elements, and a by-word and a hissing to the empire and the world at large. According to Conservative contentions, the naval policy of the Liberal government is not, except for present party purposes, one of its worst crimes, nor one furnishing the greatest justification for its dismissal from office. The Conservative party, has a chance to rehabilitate itself. It might do much worse than to adopt the Liberal policy of the navy, and thus assist in putting a quietness upon nipping in the bud the nation-splitting "Nationalist" propaganda. If it reaches power, by virtue of a more patriotic policy, it will have done so, by some better way than by climbing to it over the ruins of Canadian national unity and repudiation of, and ostracism from, the empire. There is still space for repentance.

A TRIPLE CONSPIRACY.

(Toronto Star)

They are making a great fuss in the Old Land because Americans and Canadians subscribed to Mr. Redmond's Home Rule Fund during his recent visit to this continent. The Unionists have attempted to make an election issue out of the circumstance. Mr. Balfour said at Nottingham that the Government were "attempting to destroy the constitution in obedience to the will of American subscribers." The Redmond fund has been referred to as "the Buffalo fund," and those who subscribed it have been termed "traitors." The London Globe has not hesitated to declare that the money was obtained "from the open enemies of the British Empire," and that "it was subscribed in the belief that it will be used to do the Empire the greatest possible amount of harm."

Thus, the reader is introduced to two great conspiracies: (1) The "conspiracy" of Americans and Canadians to destroy the British constitution, and (2) the conspiracy of the Unionists to make it appear that the aforesaid "conspiracy" really exists. Along comes the London Chronicle, however, with a partial list of Canadian subscribers to the Redmond fund, Canada having contributed about one-third of the $75,000 secured by the Irish leader. And this list shows admirably how foolish has been the Unionist claim that the "bagful" was furnished by traitors and by enemies of the Empire, for those who helped to fill the bag included such prominent Liberals as Sir Wilfrid Laurier, Hon Chas. Murphy, Hon. Robert Jaffray, and Mr. H. H. Dewart, and such well-known Conservatives as Hon J. J. Foy.

The Chronicle's answer must have been somewhat of a poser for the Unionist orators, but this fact should not be allowed to obscure the third great conspiracy, for which the Chronicle itself is responsible. Nothing like it has been launched since the days of the Gunpowder Plot, which, in some respects, it resembled. For it is not only designed to blow Mr R. L. Borden out of the House of Commons, but it would would blow some members of Provincial Legislatures into it and even hoist one fortunate gentleman into the office of Lieutenant-Governor. The conspiracy, in all its completeness, is revealed by the following extracts from the Chronicle's list of subscribers to the Redmond "bagful":

Emmanuel Devlin, K.C., B.A., M. A., B.C.L., Member of the Dominion Parliament, Lieutenant-Governor of Quebec.

Thomas Long, Member of the Legislature for the Province of Ontario.

The Hon. Charles Joseph Doherty, D.C.L., LL.D., K.C., M.P., Leader of the Conservative party in the Dominion Parliament.

Byron Edmund Walker, D.C.L., LL.D., C.V.O.

The Hon. Charles Ramsay Devlin, M.P., Minister of Colonization, Mines and Fisheries for the Province of Quebec.

The Hon. John C. Kane, M.P., Member of the Executive Council of the Province of Quebec.

The Hon. Duncan McLean Marshall, M.P., Minister of Agriculture and Provincial Secretary for the Province of Alberta.

It is surely interesting to learn that Emanuel Devlin is Lieutenant-Governor of Quebec, that W. M. Martin, M.P., is a member of the Saskatchewan Assembly, that Thomas Long of Toronto, has taken a flier into the Provincial House, that Chas. Doherty replaces Mr. Borden, and that the President of the Bank of Commerce is no longer "Sir." Equally amusing is the haste with which various Provincial Ministers are dubbed "M.P." Canadian papers not infrequently prove themselves uninformed as to affairs in the Old Land, but the press of Great Britain has also its moments of weakness when discussing things Canadian.

STILL BACK OF THE BOGS.

(Toronto World)

Imagine Toronto Orangemen subscribing $50,000 to raise and arm regiments to defend themselves from paying any taxes imposed by the constituted government, and a parallel is created with the situation which is said to exist in Belfast. In politics Belfast lives in the past. It is almost a generation ago since Lord Randolph Churchill raised the cry, "Ulster will fight, and Ulster will be right." Belfast is just able to bring itself to the stage of Lord Randolph's development, which his son has long since outgrown. Belfast is one of the most progressive communities in the world commercially and industrially, but in politics, in philosophy and religion Belfast is still at the back of the bogs.

Multiform Conservative Wobbling On Conservative Naval Question

It did not require the telling speech of the Minister of Customs in the House of Commons last night to convince the people of Canada that the Conservative party had once again turned upon itself in regard to the Naval issue. That was already plain; but Mr. Paterson hammered home the point, and a very essential point it is, that if a catastrophe was confronting the Empire a year ago, and it was necessity to give a contribution of many millions to Great Britain, that catastrophe might be at least a year nearer, and yet the Conservative party had thrown the contribution proposal to the winds.

Mr. Paterson was as eloquent and persuasive as ever, but one point which he did not emphasize sufficiently was the fact that all through this controversy the position of the Conservative party has been one in which the tail has wagged the dog instead of the dog wagging the tail.

The record of Parliament is perfectly clear on this. When in March 1909, the Conservative party joined hands with the Government in agreeing to the joint resolution that it was the duty of Canada to undertake the duty of national defence and which pledged the House to sanction any legitimate expenditure needed for the creation of a Canadian Naval service, there was no thought then of a referendum, a plebiscite or any consultation of the people.

It remained for Mr. Clarence Jameson, the Conservative M.P. for Digby, N.S. to first introduce that proposition to Parliament. That was done on January 12, 1910; and it was the first occasion upon which the tail wagged the dog.

Since then, however, Mr. Bourassa and his allies have stolen Mr. Jameson's idea and now, through Mr. Monk, have come forward as the originators of the "consult the people" plan.

Therein appears to be a case of another tail wagging the same dog.

What Mr. Borden and his followers seem to disregard entirely is the public record. They seem to imagine that the memory of the public is like a schoolboy's slate on which mistakes can be wiped out by the mere passing of a sponge. They forget, however, that the people remember some things, and in their ostrich-like habit of striving to find some new policy for every occasion they eliminate it to their consideration the chief points in the record.

Today we are told that there is no necessity for a navy; that there is no emergency; that the conditions will be met by the passage of a meaningless paragraph, expressing our loyalty to King and Empire; that there is no hurry, although since 1909 new conditions have been forced upon Canada; and that we should do nothing till the people are consulted.

What then, becomes of the clamour of 1909 and 1910 for "speedy" aid to the Empire?

What becomes of the theory that the salvation of the Empire depends upon a united fleet?

What becomes of the demand for the contributions?

The Opposition may reply that the emergency has passed; but that does not relieve them from the dilemma. It is by no action of theirs that conditions in Europe have so changed that the German peril, predicted for 1912, has been postponed. The may say that the naval policy of the Government does not go so far as they desired it to go in 1909 or in January of 1910.

But it is impossible for them to extricate themselves from the position, wherein the spring of this year they were urging a contribution and an Imperial navy that now they are taking the attitude that Canada should do nothing, pending first consultation with the British admiralty, and secondly, with the people of Canada.

They forget, however, that the Dominion Government has consulted with the British Government, ad that its naval policy is the result of that consultation.

Like the Bourbons, who could forget nothing and could learn nothing they forget to remember that the naval bill of last session is a solemn fulfilment of the resolution of March 29, 1909, and that it having been deliberately entered upon as a contract with the Imperial government it cannot now be cancelled.

Can it be possible that the abandonment of the contribution idea can be due to a recollection of this passage from the speech of one G. E. Foster, in the House of Commons, on March 29, 1909.

The first and greatest objection which I have to a fixed money contribution is that it bears the aspect of hiring somebody else to do what we ourselves ought to do; as though a man, the father of a family, in lusty health and strength should pay his neighbour something per month for looking after the safety and welfare of his home, instead of doing that duty himself. That seems to me, when you work it out, to be a basic objection to that form of aid. It goes further than that. Suppose you contribute this year your sum, and next year your equal sum, and thereafter year by year. After ten or twelve or twenty or thirty years you will have paid out an immense amount of money. You will have been protected in the meantime, but in Canada itself there will be no roots struck; there will be no residue left; there will be no preparation of the soil or beginning of the growth of the product."

Is this another case of the tail wagging the dog?

Reviewing the whole debate, so far as it has gone, any unprejudiced observer must confess that the honours are with the Government.

How else should it be when the Opposition boxes every point of the political compass and changes its course to suit every varying wind of the political sea?

SCHOOL CONCERT A GREAT SUCCESS

Enjoyable Affair in South Harvey With a Large Attendance

Special to The Examiner.

SOUTH HARVEY, NOV. 30. The school concert held on Friday evening was the event of last week. In spite of the unfavourable weather it was well attended, the immediate vicinity being well represented, and quite a number from even such distances as Buckhorn, Rockcroft and Barry's Green.

The musical selections, both vocal and instrumental, given by the Simpson Bros. of Rockcroft, were particularly fine, and were highly appreciated by the entire audience.

Quite a number of the young men have gone to their winter work in the lumber camps, among the departed are Messrs. H. Smith, H. Stevenson, J. Atkinson, B. Atkinson, F. Esson and Esson.

B. Minot, Esq., who, for one week, occupied the responsible position of cook in Mr. Crosswell's lumber camp has returned to his home here. He states that the reason for his brief sojourn in the wilderness was that his bread was of such an excellent quality and the men were afflicted with such abnormal appetites, that, although he toiled strenuously for twenty-one hours in the day it was beyond even his power to supply the demand.

Mrs. A. Thompson is spending a few days visiting friends in Peterborough.

Mrs. Smith and Miss Annie Smith were the guests of Mrs. Coons on Monday afternoon.

Mr George Weir spent the afternoon and evening at the home of Mr. J. Stevenson a week ago Sunday.

The Young Women's Mission Band of the Presbyterian Church met at the home of Miss J. A. Weir Tuesday afternoon.

Pro. Hockeyists Are Expected By Managers To Beat Up Friends

MONTREAL, NOV. 30.—Art Ross, the Montreal pro. hockeyist, in his plea for more salary as a player, tells something about the "inside game" played by professionals. He says in a letter to the Herald:

"Contrary to the amateur, the pro. plays for the benefit of the speculator, gets his full salary (sometimes), and has no further interest in the welfare of the club. He is required by the promoters for one purpose only, that of filling the coffers of the few fortunates.

"What chance has an official to stop foul play or deliberate dirty work, when players are actually instructed by their executive officers to go out and 'get' so-and-so. Not only has this been done many times in the dressing room, but I have actually heard officials of certain clubs give instructions from the sides of the Arena to "get so-and-so," "Put so-and-so out of business" and in other words, 'disable' such and such a player.

"This is one of the greatest elements of danger the pro. player has to contend with, and who gives these orders if it is not the men promoting the clubs, the owners? Should the player disobey these orders he is put down as "yellow" showing the 'white feather,' etc., which natu rally depreciates the value of his ser vices in the estimation of his employer.

"The amateur is spared the pleasant task of going out on the ice loaded with free hand to 'crack over the head' a certain good player, perhaps a very good friend."

PROSPECTS BRIGHT FOR A GOOD JUNIOR O.H.A. TEAM

The prospects for the Peterborough Junior O. H. A. team are very bright and the committee who has charge of the Juniors are decidedly enthusiastic over the outlook, especially over the amount of material there seems to be in sight. The committee held a meeting last night at the Examiner Office, and then called upon Dr. Wightman, whom they induced to become the fifth member of the committee.

Plans for the season were talked over and a list of the available players arranged. It was decided to engage the services of a coach for the youngsters and the club has been fortunate in being able to obtain a gentleman who has had a wide experience in professional and amateur hockey to take charge of the coaching. The Colts will start in practising just as soon as the weatherman gives the word.

Lajoie Will Never Play In The Minor Leagues Will Quit The Game First

"How many years more has Larry Lajoie in major league baseball?" propounded an old fan the other day. That's a pretty tough question to answer when you come to consider what a remarkable career is that of Lajoie.

One of the best years in Larry's baseball history was the one which ended last month. This season has surely been a great one for the famous Frenchman. Counting out men who have played in but a few games, Lajoie is second in batting and second by only one point. He is credited with an average of .384, which is surely a wonder for a man who has been in baseball as long as Lajoie, and it is also to his credit that he made more hits last season than any other man.

Lajoie won't ever go to the minors, that is a certainty. "How long will he play in the big leagues?" is a poser, but it seems almost a cinch that he has a few years left in him, anyway. Larry is among the few players who started with the American League in its earliest days, are still playing with the American League and still playing good ball. Lajoie joined the Athletics in 1901, and since then his career has been one of glory.

He won't go over to the minors—because Lajoie says so. When the time comes that he is unable to keep up the pace, he will retire from the game altogether, and that, Larry says, is final and absolute.

Lajoie is only thirty-five years old—there are lots of fellows that old, and older, who are still playing good ball and are likely to continue doing so. What's more, he has always taken care of himself. Just outside of Cleveland Larry owns the finest eleven acres of farm land that a ball player ever drove a plough over, and when he is through with baseball it will be back to the soil for the batting king of them all.

Old Father Time, who, if we are to credit the reports of quite a number of people, has finally landed a K. O. wallop on the Larry of the National League—Hans Wagner—doesn't seem able to reach Lajoie. Following is the complete record of Larry's most remarkable performances during the period he has played baseball. Look it over and see if you don't think that Larry's has been one of baseball's greatest careers:

Year.	G.	AB.	R.	H.	Av.
1897	120	545	107	198	.363
1898	147	610	113	200	.328
1899	72	308	70	117	.379
1900	102	451	95	158	.348
1901	131	548	145	220	.422
1902	87	352	81	129	.376
1903	126	488	90	173	.355
1904	140	554	92	211	.391
1905	65	244	29	82	.329
1906	152	602	88	214	.355
1907	137	509	53	152	.299
1908	137	581	77	168	.289
1909	128	469	58	152	.324
1910	150	591	92	227	.384

In 1908 Larry was under the .300 mark by a few points, and the year before that he was under by one point. And, while compared with the rest of his records, those two years may look like mighty bad ones for Napoleon, it must not be forgotten that there is many and many a man in big league baseball to-day who would barter his soul for a batting average of .280 or .290.

EASY MONEY FOR MORAN

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL., NOV. 30.—Owen Moran will soon begin pulling in the "easy money" from his victory over Bat Nelson last Saturday. The English fighter to-day is en route to New York, where he has a week's theatrical engagement. Following this Moran will sail for England, where he will appear in the London music halls.

Manager Harvey is insisting that Moran pass all offers to fight again until Ad Wolgast is drawn into match. He believes, however, the proposition of Wolgast to wait until May is far fetched, and will endeavour to arrange for an earlier date.

Nelson will leave here the last of the week for his ranch in New Mexico.

WRESTLING

(Toronto Star.)

Tom Flanagan has more queer ideas in his head than a water melon has seeds. Last night he spent two bones on a trip to Hamilton, carrying a thousand simoleons with him. He fussed around Hamilton Armouries, where Geo. Hackenschmidt, the Russian Lion, was toying with Rory O'Moore, the Irish champion, and when Hack's manager made his famous "$1,000 that I throw any three men in an hour" challenge Thomas, of Toronto, separated his wad from his jeans and cried, "Huh, the chee-ikis in London" or words to that effect. Anyway, Tom made the Hack crowd scatter and admit they hadn't a "thou" eelskins handy, but they invited Tom to let go the double Nelson he had on the wait and give them a chance to "make good." The Irishman turned it over to Billy of the Clan Carroll, and there it lies, awaiting the Hack coin.

Well, Yankee Rogers is one, and De Rias, the French Swiss, is said to be another, but the other is said to be none the less than Jack Johnson.

The Big Smoke?

Yep! the Big Black!

Flanagan does not say anything, but Johnson is coming to town in a few days to see Flanagan, and this may be the secret of the visit.

What chance would Johnson have? Frankly, he wouldn't have much if experience counts. He is a big, powerful fellow, and the ease with which he pinned Jeffries arms to his sides and shoved him around at Reno on July 4 was an eye-opener, but beyond some mauling around during his training he has not done any wrestling. In training he threw all his partners all over the room.

"While I have not named Johnson as one of the three, it wouldn't be out of the way," said Flanagan to-day. "It would take Hackenschmidt ten minutes to catch Johnson and bring him to the mat, and if it takes him another five to put him down, surely Rogers and DeRias could last the other 45 between them. I'll get three to beat Hack if they are to be found in America.

Flangan wouldn't say where he would pull the match, but it is shrewdly suspected that it would be here.

Hackensmidt threw Moore in Hamilton in 14 minutes, and repeated in five minutes.

DIRECTORS MET

There was a meeting of the Fair directors held last night, with Mr. R. H. Leary, president in the chair. They discussed the idea of holding the winter horse races and decided to hold these later on, but did not definitely decide the date. They also spoke of the horse show proposed to be held in the armouries, but no steps were taken. A meeting will be held in the near future for the purpose of arriving at the date of the horse races.

PRESENTATION TO MR. J. W. KELLY

By the Teachers and Pupils of East Ward School Yesterday

Yesterday afternoon the teachers and pupils of the East Ward school assembled in Principal Kelly's room and made him a presentation, on the occasion of his resignation to become principal of the King Edward school. On behalf of the scholars and staff he was presented with a handsome club bag as a token of the high esteem in which he is held by them. Mr. Kelly in replying expressed his appreciation of their splendid gift and thanked them most heartily for their kind thoughtfulness. Rev. Dr. Langfeldt and Rev. J. Bennett Anderson were also present and voiced the regret felt at Mr. Kelly's departure, but congratulated him on his well earned position.

"Pneumonia"

Pneumonia is nothing more or less than "Lung Fever," or as it used to be called, "Inflammation of the Lungs" and the results come entirely from a local source such as taking a violent cold.

There is more or less difficulty in breathing; a cough, at first dry, but soon accompanied by raising a thick, sticky, rusty-colored matter, composed of a mixture of phlegm and blood.

There is only one way to prevent Pneumonia, and that is to cure the cold just as soon as it appears. Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup will do this quickly and effectively.

Mrs. G. W. Bowman, Pattulle, Ont., writes: "Three years ago I caught a cold which ended in a severe attack of Pneumonia. Since that time, at the beginning of each winter, I seem to catch cold very easily. I have been so hoarse that I was unable to speak loud enough to be heard across the room. Last winter, however, a friend advised me to try Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, saying it had helped her. I bought a bottle and before it was half used I was completely cured. I also find it a good medicine for the children when they have colds."

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup is put up in a yellow wrapper; three pine trees the trade mark; the price 25 cents.

Referendum Effective?

London, Dec. 1.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—The Unionists are convinced that Balfour's announcement, that should the Government be displaced, tariff reform would be submitted to a referendum, has greatly enhanced their prospects of victory, if the anger of the Liberal press, about what they describe as "another white flag surrendered" is any confirmation of this. Undoubtedly so far it has been very angry and very sarcastic about "dropping the principal plank of the Unionist platform."

"We've got 'em on the run," is the official ministerial view, but it is admitted on all hands that Mr. Balfour's approval of J. L. Garvin's suggestion is effective as Lansdowne's resolutions for reform of the Lords, without which there would have been little prospect of a Unionist victory. The issue now lies between the Government's abolition of the Lords' veto and Lansdowne's proposals.

The city's new gamble is betting on the Government's majority. Yesterday their estimate, which ten days ago was 120, fell to 40, but recovered to 60, or 65. Dealers are anxious to have it understood that the rally is due to "covering" by bears, not to purchases by Government supporters. The rise in consols is also claimed as heralding at least a check to radical finance. In Lloyd's premiums against defeat of the Government rose to 20 guineas.

He Was In Agony When a Friend Gave Him a Box. Now He Recommends Them to Everybody.

Newcastle, N.B., Nov. 30.—(Special)—In these cold fall days when the chill winds chrystalize the uric acid in the blood and cause the pangs of Rheumatism and Sciatica to bring sleepless nights to many a home, a man's best friend is he who can tell his neighbour of a sure cure for his tortures. Such a friend is Wm. F. Black of this place. He suffered from Sciatica and lame back. He was so bad that he could not lace his boots or turn in bed. Dodd's Kidney Pills cured him and he wants all his neighbours to know of the cure.

"Yes," Mr. Black says, in an interview, "I was so bad with Sciatica and Lame Back that I couldn't lace my shoes or turn in bed, when a friend gave me about a third of a box of Dodd's Kidney Pills. I started taking them without much faith in their curative powers, and found them all they were recommended.

Dodd's Kidney Pills are no faith cure. They're a simple but sure cure for diseased kidneys.

Mrs. W. A. Logan will receive at 14 Murray street, on Friday and Saturday of this week.

WHY SLEEP IS NECESSARY
During sleep Nature restores the cells and tissues wasted by the activities of life. Without sleep mental bankruptcy is quick and certain. Mrs. J. Batcher, 440 Hunter street, Peterborough, Ont., writes: "I can say for a certainty that Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Food is a splendid medicine for females attending the marvel. It built up my sleep wonderfully and assisted me to sleep well and rest."

and good hopes of others coming in, in the near future. The payment has been most creditable to the subscribers. Canon Davidson presented his report of his visit to Woodstock and Hamilton. The Woodstock bells he said, were installed by Taylor & Sons, and the Hamilton bells by Meneely Co., of Troy, N. Y. Canon Davidson stated that the effect in both places was good. The quality, he said, was far better than the expectation, and the chimes gave the most delightful pleasure to the citizens. He also stated that he found it impossible to say that one set of bells was better than the other, owing to them being differently constructed and quite different in tone and weight. The Woodstock bells are heavier than the Hamilton ones. Though the former had only ten bells. He also gave the result of many enquiries made at both places. The people in Hamilton were emphatic that eleven bells were necessary for a variety of tunes. He could not say, however, that one set was better than another; perhaps the Woodstock bells were of slightly heavier calibre, as Hamilton had eleven bells. The eleven bells were, however, an improvement over the ten bells.

The granting of the contract between the tenders of Taylor and Co., of Loughborough, Eng., and Meneely & Co. of Troy, N.Y., as a help to the solution, it was pointed out that the Meneeley chime was considerably more expensive and yet a smaller chime than the English chime. The Meneeley chime weighed 16,000 lbs., and cost $6,000, while the Taylor and Co's. chime weighed 14,000 lbs., and cost $5,600.

The decision was finally given in favour of Taylor and Sons' offer.

The largest bell weighs 3,000 lbs., being three times the size of the present St. John's bell, and then graduated down to 350 lbs. This, compared with the Woodstock bells, would leave their largest bell 2,500 lbs., and the largest bell of the Hamilton chimes would be 2,100 lbs., and the Petrolea, by Meneely would also be 2,100 lbs. Peterborough will, accordingly, have one of the heaviest and richest chimes in Ontario. The only possible exception being that at St. James' Cathedral, Toronto, and the weight of these chimes is not known; it is also an old chime. It has been rendered possible for Peterborough to have the best, by the magnificent support of the Peterborough citizens generally. Peterborough is unique in the immense number of subscribers to the project, and the effect of this will be that the whole body of citizens will take a personal interest in the chimes, and will have a personal share in its benefits which would, otherwise, be impossible. The other chimes have been purchased and placed by individual citizens or by a congregation.

While the fund at present is not quite sufficient for the purchase of the chimes, the committee felt that the majority of the people desired action in order that the chimes might be installed early next summer, and that the generosity of both the subscribers and non-subscribers could be depended upon to make up the amount lacking. Had the order been further deferred they could not be obtained until next autumn. The placing of the order will render it barely possible and not certain, to have the chimes installed before Coronation or Dominion Day next year. A cablegram was sent this morning to Taylor and Sons, instructing them of the acceptance of their offer which the committee considered a very liberal and advantageous one. The whole matter may be considered to be settled in a thoroughly satisfactory manner.

It may also be stated that the Hamilton chimes weighs 9,000 lbs., and cost $5,000, and the Woodstock chimes weigh 10,000 lbs., and cost $4,000 0.Meneeley & Co. put in the Hamilton chimes and Taylor & Sons the Woodstock bells

ANOTHER "THOMAS" IN BRANDON

Manitoba Town is Worked in Same Manner as Lindsay

Brandon, Man., Dec. 2.—A cleverly worked swindle for apparently small gains has been worked here. A Frenchman, giving the name of J. U. Riopel, C.E., arrived here recently, representing himself as of the "inland revenue department of mines," and said he was to superintend the rebuilding of the insane asylum, of which, he alleged, the Dominion Government was guaranteeing the bonds. He bought a million feet of lumber, contracted for a number of engines and apparatus, and also a residence, paying with checks on the Bank d'Hochelaga at Montreal.

Riopel was welcomed, wined and dined, but one man, wiring the Bank d'Hochelaga, was answered "Checks no good. Beware of this man."

Riopel, who claimed Sir Frederick Borden for his father-in-law, cannot be found. He probably is ahead by small loans and entertainments.

A Canadian Pope.

Ottawa, Dec. 2.—A person in close touch with the highest officials of the Roman Catholic Church in Canada says that influences are now at work looking to the creation of a Canadian cardinal, with the ultimate end in view of securing for him the highest office of the church—namely, that of Supreme Pontiff.

It is stated that the man in view is Monsignor Bruchesi of Montreal. Three cardinals, who are members of the council charged with the election of a new Pope, was present at the Eucharistic Congress in Montreal last September. It is stated that Monsignor Bruchesi's relations with them were of the most cordial and intimate character.

Last Boat of Season.

Montreal, Dec. 2.—With her rigging loaded down with snow, the steamer Bornu of the Elder, Dempster Line, left port yesterday morning, the last vessel of the season to leave. She was escorted down the channel by the Government steamer Lady Grey.

BALFOUR SAYS TARIFF REFORM IS STILL IN UNIONIST PLATFORM

Asquith Calls the Referendum a Caricature—Balfour's Speech of Nov. 29 Has Divided His Party and Left a Weak Spot for His Opponents.

London, Dec. 2.—There is a possibility of an unlooked for result in the attempt of A. J. Balfour, the Opposition leader, to remove tariff reform from the immediate fields of politics. The question looms larger than ever in the campaign to-day, inasmuch that Mr. Balfour himself in a speech at Reading, was fain to explain that his party had not altered its view on this subject, and that tariff reform was still a chief plank in the party's constructive policy; but, he explained, the Unionists need to obtain the formal and the explicit consent of the people thereto. The policy of referendum, he said, was consistent with the true idea of popular government.

The fact is that Mr. Balfour's pronouncement Nov. 29, that he was willing to submit tariff reform to a referendum, has rather sundered than knit his party and supplied the Liberals with another effective argument against tariff reform, namely, that Mr. Balfour has been compelled to sidetrack it.

The interest in the speeches last night centered in Premier Asquith's reply to the Opposition leader. This was delivered at a great gathering at Wolverhampton. The Premier said:

"We are living in times of rapid movement, when it is a relief to wake any morning and not find some fresh part of the constitution reconstructed."

He described Mr. Balfour's turnabout face on the question of the reform of the House of Lords and tariff reform as unique—almost indecent. He said he could not imagine a greater caricature of the referendum than in putting a few abstract questions to the people without concrete embodiment of their proposals. If anyone but a sane and responsible statesman had contemplated such a scheme, he would be called a madman.

After a study of the workingmen of the referendum in foreign countries, the premier said he had arrived at the conclusion that it had proved a most unsatisfactory and disappointing method of ascertaining public opinion.

Conservatives Back Monk After Their Own Amendment On The Navy Was Lost

Ottawa, Dec. 2.—After a debate lasting nine days, the first division of the present Parliamentary session took place about two o'clock yesterday morning.

The first question submitted was Mr. Borden's amendment to that of Mr. Monk, regretting that the Government had given no indication of its intention of submitting the naval question to the people.

The vote was: Liberals 130, Conservatives 70.

The second division occurred immediately afterwards, on Monk's amendment to refer the whole question of participation in imperial armament to a plebiscite. The Conservatives voted for the Monk amendment, with the exception of Mr. Foster, who had left the chamber, and Alphonse Verville (Lib.). Col. Sam Hughes also voted with the Government on the Monk amendment. The vote was: Conservatives 67, Liberals 130.

Those who did not vote included: Chisholm (Huron), Sharpe (Lisgar), Macdonnel, Foster, Bristol, Wallace and Clare.

Hon. A. B. Aylesworth will conclude the debate to-day with a reference to the award of The Hague Tribunal.

The House rose at 2.30 a.m.

Hon. Mr. Foster was the chief Conservative speaker yesterday and he was replied to by E. M. Macdonald (Liberal, Pictou, N.S.).

Hon. Geo. E. Foster (North Toronto), after the orders of the day had been called, took up the thread-worn debate on the address. He quickly disclosed his intention of scoring the Minister of Marine and Fisheries. Discussing Mr. Brodeur's speech, the member for North Toronto said that the Minister had deprecated racial and religious appeals, expressed the hope that they would soon cease.

"So far as that statement is concerned," said Mr. Foster, "it is correct in spirit and right in theory. But how in practice have my hon. friends opposite realized the theory and ideals enunciated?" He was prepared to agree with the principle, and "once and for all put away from the politics of this country all these unworthy and damaging methods of political campaigns."

The member for North Toronto then presented to the House a Liberal campaign pamphlet, in French, which was used in the election of 1900. This pamphlet did not contain a word about one single question of policy. From the beginning to the end it was an appeal to the race instincts and religious instincts of the Province of Quebec. He read a speech by Sir Wilfrid Laurier himself, in which he had said the English-speaking people were being incited to vote against the Prime Minister because he was a French-Canadian.

The House became turbulent during this portion of Mr. Foster's speech. He had been reading headlines from the pamphlet, and Mr. Brodeur interjected the remark that if Mr. Foster went far enough he might find some article from Conservative newspapers—The Mail and The News.

C. A. Wilson (Laval) asked Mr. Foster if a French-Canadian member of Parliament, for example, had the right to inform his people if they were being deceived and vilified.

Discussing the naval question, Mr. Foster said he stood by the original resolution passed by the House of Commons.

"I stand for the whole resolution. Mind, gentlemen stand for only part of the resolution. I demand that the whole resolution be loyally adhered to." The Government had not carried out the terms of the resolution. He was still in favor of an emergency contribution.

Ralph Smith (Nanaimo) said the resolution did not demand an emergency contribution.

In conclusion he said: "To-day we are in a humiliating position. To-day we no longer hold up our heads, and the reason is because Parliament has foisted upon the people, instead of the pure article, a counterfeit, which will give no aid to the Empire and no defence to the country itself. If my right hon. friend desires to settle all this confusion into which he has plunged the country, there is a simple way by which he can do it. Vote this amendment, take your supply, then dissolve this Parliament and appeal to the people."

E. M. Macdonald (Pictou, N.S.), who replied to Mr. Foster in the evening, devoted practically his entire speech to an arraignment of what he considered a complete volte face on the part of the Opposition in respect to the naval question. He affirmed, amid Liberal cheers, that already the Conservatives throughout the country are beginning to take exception to the course being pursued by the leaders of party in the House. In Toronto last night a member of the Borden Club had taken exception to the policy adopted by the party, and had openly declared that, had he been in Drummond-Arthabaska, he would have voted for the candidate of the Laurier Government.

The member for Pictou in warm terms denounced the doctrines of the Nationalist element in Quebec, declaring that, if their will prevailed, the development of Canada would be retarded. They aimed, he said, at creating a party which would be in a position to make such demands upon whatever party might be in power as would prevent the development of the Dominion along broad national lines.

These were the people to whom the loyal Opposition in the House were pandering. Had not Mr. Monk moved an amendment to the address, there would not have been an amendment from the leader of the Opposition, whose amendment was moved in the hope of taking in all the elements opposed to the naval policy of the Government.

The standing committees of the committees of the Commons yesterday morning met and organized for the session. The chairmen chosen are largely those of last year. Railways and canals, Hugh Guthrie; banking and commerce, A. H. Miller; public accounts, A. B. Warburton; marine and fisheries, J. H. Sinclair; privileges and elections, William German; private bills, J. A. Elliott; standing orders, George W. McBrady; debates, H. Gervais; mines and minerals, James Conmee; forests and waterways, Hon. Clifford Sifton; agriculture, M. S. Schell.

In the Senate yesterday Sir Mackenzie Bowell called attention to the fact that there were three vacancies in the Senate, one from Quebec, one from Nova Scotia and one from Prince Edward Island. He suggested that in filling them the Government might select men who were not already in the House of Commons. This would enable the Government to avoid the awkward situation which might follow the opening of constituencies. The Senate adjourned until Jan. 11.

Cruise Delayed.

Halifax, Dec. 2.—It was expected that the Canadian cruiser Niobe would leave this month on a cruise for the West Indies, possibly with the H. M. S. Cornwallis, now in port here, and scheduled to leave on Dec. 15, but it was announced yesterday that the Niobe will probably not leave on the cruise until the early part of February.

DIAZ AGAIN RULER.

President of Republic Takes Office For the Eighth Term.

Mexico City, Dec. 2.—"It is very gratifying to me to say that my heart is full of faith in the progress of the people, who, like the Mexican, has thrown how to conquer by its own efforts a place among the lover- of toil, after having proved its valor in patriotic defence of country, and that never as to-day could I declare that Mexico belongs definitely to the group of new nations of assured stability, because against the firm guarantee of peace which we possess, no influence tending toward its dissolution can now or ever shall be able to prevail.

"As to the relations between Mexico and the United States and other friendly nations, never have they been more cordial.

The above is the authorized message of President Diaz to all nations on the day of his inauguration for the eighth time as chief executive of the Mexican nation, given expression through the medium of the Associated Press.

Peaceably and seemingly as a happy termination of the turmoil through which the nation has just passed, the ceremonies attending the taking of the oaths by General Diaz and Ramon Corral, recently re-elected President and Vice-President, were conducted yesterday.

There was no discordant note and if the occasion was shorn of brilliant features of former years by reason of recent disturbance, there was no lack of dignified ceremonial.

Notwithstanding a realization that the possibility of any attempt by foes of the Diaz administration to interfere with yesterday's inauguration was remote, there was a feeling of relief apparent when the event was concluded.

There will be no change in the personnel of the Cabinet. In accordance with custom, each Minister submitted his resignation, but was asked to retain his portfolio.

King George as Arbitrator.

London, Dec. 2.—King George, as arbitrator, yesterday received the counter cases in the Alsop claims dispute between the United States and Chile, as presented to the Foreign Office last summer by U. S. Ambassador Reid and Chilean Minister Cana. It is expected that His Majesty will render his decision within a month.

The United States claims something over $1,500,000 from Chile in satisfaction of money advanced to the Bolivian Government in 1874, in exchange for concessions in Arica. Before the agreement was fulfilled Arica passed to Chile in war. Chile subsequently agreed to assume the obligation of Bolivia to American concessionaires. The matter, however, has never been settled, and after prolonged negotiations, was submitted to the arbitration of King George.

THE WAITING-MAID AT THE INN

A Short Story

I had lost my way in this wild Irish country, an abhorrent waste to me looming full of bogs and mountains, for I was as hungry as a hunter. I acknowledged that in another mood I might have found something to admire in the immense glooming mystery of the mountains and the miles of bogland pools lit up by flaming scarlet streamers from the wild evening sky. But now I had rather see a cold sirloin than the finest landscapes, and drunk a flagon of ale than love at Beauty's eyes, although I am not a cold fellow where the sex is concerned.

I had come out at last upon the miserablest village, a squalid collection of huts crouching to the wet earth as though they feared a blow.

There was not even the meanest house of public entertainment in the place, and I will confess that my empty stomach turned my temper sour. Anyhow, I swore at the place and the people as I began to mount the hill, which is a thing I would not have done except fasting, for the poor wretches were not to blame for their poverty.

The hill was a steep one, and I dismounted and walked by Sancho's side. It is but truth that I was as much grieved for him as for myself when I saw that we were like to go supperless, for we had ridden far that day, and I was always one to love my horse like a brother. We were trudging along in the blackness of trees at another time I could have liked the splendour beyond them of the scarlet West filled with flying fire when I heard behind me the patter of bare feet in the dust.

"May it please your Honour," said a voice.

I felt in my pocket for a coin, but he had no such purpose. I turned about and saw the shining eyes under a falling mane of black hair of the lad to whom I had spoken in the village. I had noted his wide jocular mouth, and had commented to myself that in spite of their rags and starvation these people carried light hearts.

"May it please your Honour, you'll get a lodging for the night at the top of the hill, and the best of entertainment. The house is kept by the Widow L'Estrange."

He was gone like a wild thing before I could thank him. I flung a handful of coins upon his track, and blaming myself for the roughness of my speech a little while later I went on with my arm across Sancho's neck, comforting him with the tidings that he was within reach of a bed and a manger of oats.

At the top of the hill we came out again upon a bare tract of bog and mountains. There was not a habitation in sight except one, and I saw that at some distance, beyond a long avenue of trees, and since there was no other, conjectured that it must be the one of which the boy had informed me.

It is a country of topsy-turvies, and since I have come into it I have learnt to be surprised at nothing. Besides which, my friendship with Gilbert L'Estrange in Paris had taught me something. Remembering Gilbert it struck me that this was his country and the name the same as that of my hostess for the night. But then, since they run in clans in this country, that was to be expected.

The place looked poor enough at the first sight of it, although the house, backed by trees, appeared important at this distance. But the entrance gates swung from their hinges. The lodge was empty and a ruin, so twas as well the gates were open. Part of the domain wall lay scattered in great stones by the roadway. The house might have been deserted to judge by its entrance.

I gathered Sancho's bridle-rein about my arm and walked up the dreary avenue to the house. Presently I came out clear of the trees and saw it more plainly—a long, low house, with wings, facing the blood-red sunset and with every window-pane of it that was not broken, on fire with the reflection. There was an Italian balustrading before the house, most of it on its side. The steps that led down to an ancient orchard in front were covered with lichen and broken. Vases and urns and statues had in many instances shared the same fate. Some house of gentlefolk, I thought to myself, which being deserted by its ruined owners, had fallen on evil days, and was used now as a house of entertainment for the passing traveller. That anyone should desire to sojourn in these wilds I did not believe.

I led my horse up to the door-steps, and as I did so a very old serving man came out and stood in the sunset. A couple of dogs by his side gave feeble tongue as I approached. They were old hounds on tottering legs with dropping heads and half-blind eyes.

The old man was as pitiful. He looked in my direction, but it was plain that he saw me, if at all, dimly, for the grey film of disease was over his eyeballs.

"What may your Honour be pleased to want?" he asked.

"Is this the house of the widow L'Estrange?" I asked in my turn.

"That is my mistress's name," he replied.

"I am a traveller here," I said, "and I and my horse are hungry. Can you give me food and a lodging for the night?"

"Madam will not turn your Honour away," he answered, "though the place is not what it has been."

I was amused at the old fellow's pride, but could only suppose that he had descended to the service of the hostelry from, perhaps, the ancient owners of the house.

"Is there anyone to take my horse?" I asked.

"If your Honour will come this way."

He descended the steps seeming to grope a little as he went, and having led me around the corner of the house, and to a stable-yard fit to take troop he... he led Patsy. An urchin, so like him who had directed me that I thought he must be a younger brother, came and took Sancho.

"Give him a feed of oats and a comfortable bed," I said, with some misgiving, for the place looked parched. "But first rub him down and let him have a warm drink."

The urchin pulled at his wild forelock.

"You can trust him, your Honour," said the old fellow. "What Patsy doesn't know about horses isn't worth knowing."

The urchin grinned all over, and led away Sancho, rubbing his neck and making a soft hissing sound for him that gave me assurance of his knowledge of a horse.

"The sight has got rather bad with me," the old fellow went on as he returned to the house. "We were looking for someone else, and I thought your Honour might be he."

"If you give people entertainment," I returned, "you will doubtless always be looking for someone else."

He made no answer but seemed a little puzzled.

As we entered the great hall I saw the prettiest waiting-maid I had ever seen in all my life coming down the stairs towards me. She was like a serving-lass in a comedy rather than anything to be found in this wild country, yet she wore a dignity and innocence which there would have been missing. It was indeed but her dress that provoked the comparison for she wore a mob cap upon her dark curling hair, and her gown of flowered cotton was so daintily bunched that a fine lady might have envied it. Also the minx had set a patch by her scarlet lips, and its presence there were provocative if it were not that there was something in her air which forbade a freedom.

"Is it Molly or Kate," asked the old fellow lifting his head to listen as the blind dogs lifted theirs.

"It is I, Terry," answered the girl, and she had the delicious accent which they speak of as "The Brogue," and withal her voice had the sound of falling waters. "And this gentleman?"

"Asks a lodging for the night," said I.

"You are heartily welcome," she replied. "Take the gentleman to the Blue Room, Terry. I will in form Madam L'Estrange."

"For the man coming over the hill, Terry," she said. "You know Madam will grudge nothing to a stranger."

The room was spacious and clean, and through its open windows came a smell of the sea. Before leaving me, the old man, who still grumbled to himself, set a light to the fire and lit two candles in tall old silver candlesticks that stood either side of a couch-shaped glass on the dressing-table.

The room was hung with a blue and silver material which doubtless gave it its name. I lifted a fold of it. It was old damask worn thin and with many holes in it. Carpet there was none, and as I drew the curtains across the windows I noticed that some panes were gone and the empty spaces had been filled in with paper. The bed was a canopied one, great enough for half-a-dozen persons. The linen looked inviting, the bed softness itself. But the crockery common and chipped, and the chairs untrustworthy. Indeed, the few articles of furniture the room contained were crippled. What matter! I should sleep well to-night. The place was fit for a king to a tired man, and I was that.

As I went downstairs, I encountered again the pretty waiting maid. She looked at me modestly and I thought her glance approved me. I had put on my pearl-gray suit which I carried in my knapsack in case I encountered gentlefolk. I hardly knew why I should wear it now, except in deference to the past consideration of the mansion. The maid would have passed me but I arrested her.

"How long," I asked, "has this house been open for the convenience of travellers?"

She looked at me I thought in amazement, and I feared she might not understand my English manner of speaking.

"A lad in the village," I went on speaking slowly and distinctly, "sent me here for a house of entertainment. I can see the house must have come down in the world since it takes guests for payment. You are the waiting-maid? And your name?"

The oddest shadows and lights passed over her face, pride, merriment, demure shyness. I was so confused by her charming aspect under all, that I did not think to wonder what provoked them.

"I am the waiting-maid," she said, "and my name is Phyllis."

"Tell me, Phyllis," I said, as much by way of prolonging the conversation as anything else. "I have a friend, a captain in the Irish Regiment of the French Army. His name is the same as your mistress's. He is Captain Gilbert L'Estrange."

"'Tis a common name among the L'Estrange," she said, with another bewildering change of expression.

"You know where his house is?"

"Alas, Sir, in ruins," she answered, and a sudden misfortune flashed in her eyes. "As you know, he took the losing side in the quarrel. The L'Estranges have always taken the losing side. He has lost everything. If he were to come back to-morrow he would come back to a heritage of ruins."

"He is high in favour at the French Court," I said, "and very handsome. They talk of his marrying an heiress. He might come back and restore the ruins."

"Heaven grant it," she said, and then blushed deply.

"Excuse me, Sir," she went on hurriedly. "I forget that I am but a poor waiting-maid. The L'Estranges are a great family, and there is hardly one in the country that would not die for them. That is the door of Madam's drawing-room. You will find Madam and her daughter ready to welcome you."

She was gone and when the place was clear of her presence I felt as though a fragrance of roses had gone with her. I turned away slowly and found the old man she had called Terry now in a suit of faded livery awaiting me by the drawing-room door. He wore the strange air of patience of the blind, but he announced me with dignity.

Then I found myself within the screen that protected the door, and going down a long stately room panelled in gold and white to where at the other end an elderly lady with her hand over a cushion stood awaiting me.

This room also spoke eloquently of poverty, but of a gracious and noble poverty, and the lady herself was as proud a figure as ever I have seen.

"You are very welcome, Sir," she said, "to what poor hospitality Castle L'Estrange can afford you. Will you not take a seat by the fire? My daughter Lettice, Sir Willoughby Danvers."

A younger lady who had sat retired with an embroidery frame that at first had screened her from my observation, came forward now and bowed. They were certainly the prettiest pair this mother and daughter. Sir Anthony Watteau painted nothing prettier; but something flashed in the brilliant dark eyes of each which is not in the eyes of the Court painter's ladies something of pride and spirit which made their beauty a thing more imperishable.

Gentlewomen I could not doubt and I remembered what Gilbert had said to me that one found the breeding in the most unexpected place since this unhappy country had always been in upheavals.

They received me with the air of queens.

I confess I had a whimsical thought of how I should ever dare pay them for their hospitality to myself and my horse; but doubtless if parents had brought them to the straits of entertaining the passer-by it had also obliged their delicacy to receive his gold and silver.

Presently we went into dinner, the elder lady having accepted my arm with the proudest air of doing me an honour, and the younger lady on my other side.

I had been living from inn to inn lately and the delicacy of the table delighted me. Everything was exquisite of its kind, although the silver was thin and the napery much darned.

The dinner too was excellent, though of a plainer kind than the Worcester dishes were used to hold; and the wine was as good as ever I tasted. But that I expected, having been told how much commerce with smugglers these islanders had in the old days, and how much of the spoils yet remained.

But if it had been worse I had not known it, for Phyllis served it to me, and I was thinking more of the sweetness of her hands and the fragrance her presence seemed to bring with it, whenever she stood by me than of my dinner. And while I talked to Madam L'Estrange and her daughter as though I had been at Court, my real thoughts were busy with Phyllis, so that at times I made random answers whereat the ladies' fine thin brows would be raised till I saw my mistake and was covered with confusion.

That night I dreamt of King Cophetua and wondered if the Beggar Maid were as sweet as Phyllis and one not of his own country.

And the next day although I had intended to ride on, and was indeed expected at the hospitable house of the Lord Claremorris, I stayed and day after day I stayed, alleging that the country interested me, while all the time I knew I stayed for Phyllis's sake.

Certainly their hospitality was of . . . rder such as I had never met at . . . time, yet I know most of the best . . . tel'ries of Europe. I blushed afterwards to think of the patience with which Madam and Mistress Lettice endured me.

Old Terry seemed after the first to take some interest in me, and found for my use guns and fishing rods which had belonged, but kept as though someone loved them. So that I was abroad most of the day, and but troubled my hostess of evenings. And those evening hours were pleasant even when I saw little or Phyllis.

Madam and her daughter played and sang to me; or I held Madam's wools across my hands while she wound them, and there grew between us a certain gentle intimacy which was delightful to a man long a wanderer as I had been.

I sought out that lad of the village who had directed me to Castle L'Estrange to accompany me in my fishings and shooting expeditions, for I felt I owed him a debt of gratitude. He proved to be the brother of Patsy who tended my Sancho; and the first time he caught sight of me he bent swiftly with upraised arms as though to avoid a blow; but afterwards when I mentioned that I was pleased with my entertainment he grinned and muttered a blessing in which I thought I caught Phyllis's name.

At last a day dawned on which there seemed to be some commotion in the house. I could not tell what it was only that it was something which I seemed to be pushed outside of; and faith I had taken kindly to the intimacy of the house, and felt somewhat a-cold because everyone seemed too absorbed to think of me. I fished as usual, and noticed that even my ragged lad carried a proud and exhilarated air.

That evening at supper Madam fluttered out a speech of how excellent the fishing was ten miles away, and then she and Mistress Lettice blushed and looked upon their plates. And when I said something about its being time I should go on to my Lord Claremorris' house their eyes looked as though they sought forgiveness for a wound they must inflict.

The next morning I was early astir. The morning was so beautiful that it seemed a pity to sleep, yet I rose because the shadow of my departure hindered my slumbers.

In the hall I met with Phyllis, carrying a heavily-laden tray into the sunny room where we breakfasted. I took it from her and carried it to the table and set it down.

"Phyllis" I said "I ride after breakfast." She changed colour but said nothing.

"Madam is tired of me." I went on with a little bitterness. "I suppose it is the privilege of an innkeeper to be tired of custom in this strange country where fine ladies keep the inns."

"Madam is most unwilling for you to go," she answered with her eyes on the ground. "Believe me, Sir, there is a reason. And there is one thing I implore of you, Sir, which is, not to offer Madam any money for your entertainment."

"Why," I cried half in a rage; "it is a very Bedlam of a country. What stays at an inn and pay nothing."

"I should have told you before," she said. "It was Conroy MacHale's trick upon you to send you to the proudest house in the country, if the poorest, for an inn."

"And I have been forcing myself upon Madam's hospitality all this time." I muttered, dumfounded. "I will kill the rascal."

She lifted the most beautiful blue eyes to me.

"Oh, Sir," she said. "The hospitality of the L'Estranges is free and unforced. Madam loved to receive you. She is now only covered with confusion because she has had to seem inhospitable. You have been a pleasant guest."

Then I threw everything to the winds. "If this was loving beneath me, then who could be my equal."

"I go, Phyllis," I said, "but I shall

When You Feel Cross

DR. CHASE'S KIDNEY-LIVER PILLS

And Are Easily Worried and Irritated, Chances Are That the Liver is Not Right and You Need

Life is too short to be cross and grouchy. You not only make yourself miserable, but also those about you.

Don't blame others. Blame yourself for not keeping the liver right.

When healthy and active the liver filters the poisonous bile from the blood and passes it into the intestines, where it aids the process of digestion and keeps the bowels regular.

But when the liver balks the whole system becomes clogged with a mass of fermenting food, which gives rise to gas on the stomach, belching of wind, pains about the heart, and a multitude of annoying symptoms which accompany indigestion and constipation.

There is nothing in the world which will more promptly afford you relief than Dr. Chase's Kidney and Liver Pills. This statement is true. A trial will convince you. This medicine acts definitely and directly on the liver and bowels and cleanses the whole digestive and excretory system.

Mr. Theo. Bedard, Lac aux Sables, Portneuf county, Que., writes: "I have found Dr. Chase's Kidney and Liver Pills the best treatment obtainable for indigestion and impure blood. They cured me of indigestion, from which I suffered for four years."

"This certificate is given without solicitation, so that others may not waste their money buying medicines of no value when they can get Dr. Chase's Kidney and Liver Pills, which I am convinced are the best."

One A W. Chase's Kidney and Liver Pills, one pill a dose, 25 cents a box, at all dealers; or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

PURIFIED HIS BLOOD

Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills Healed Mr. Wilson's Sores

When the sewers of the body—bowels, kidneys and skin ducts—get clogged up, the blood quickly becomes impure and frequently sores break out over the body. The way to heal them, as Mr. Richard Wilson, who lives near London, Ont., found, is to purify the blood. He writes:

"For some time I had been in a low, depressed condition. My appetite left me and I soon began to suffer from indigestion. Quite a number of small sores and blotches formed all over my skin. I tried medicine for the blood and used many kinds of ointments, but without satisfactory results. What was wanted was a thorough cleansing of the blood, and I looked about in vain for some medicine that would accomplish this.

At last Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills were brought to my notice, and they are one of the most wonderful medicines I have ever known. My blood was purified in a very short time, sores healed up, my indigestion vanished. They always have a place in my home and are looked upon as the family remedy."

Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills cleanse the system thoroughly. Sold by all dealers at 25c a box.

HAD KIDNEY TROUBLE.

COULD NOT CROSS THE FLOOR PAIN WAS SO GREAT.

Miss Hazel Hess, Winchester Springs, Ont., writes:—"I was troubled with my kidneys for five years. They were so bad, at times, I could not cross the floor for the pain. The doctor could not do me any good and a friend advised me to use Doan's Kidney Pills. I bought six boxes and now I have been cured for over four years. I will recommend them to every sufferer."

No woman can be strong and healthy unless the kidneys are well. When the kidneys are ill, the whole body is ill, for the poisons which the kidneys ought to filter out of the blood are left in the system. Then how important it must be to see to it that this system of sewerage be not clogged up.

Doan's Kidney Pills are a purely vegetable medicine, realizing quick, permanent relief, without any after ill effects. A medicine that will absolutely cure backache and all forms of kidney and bladder trouble.

Doan's Kidney Pills are 50c. per box or 3 for $1.25, at all dealers or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

If ordering direct specify "Doan's."

A BRITISH SQUADRON TO SOUTH AMERICA

May Make a Three Months Cruise to Improve Commercial Relations

An official announcement is expected in London that Prince Louis of Battenberg, who is one of the keenest and most popular officers in the British Navy, is to go to the Admiralty as Second Sea Lord. It was he who suggested the idea that the Fourth Cruiser Squadron should make a three months' cruise along the South American seaboard.

The squadron, which consists of the "Leviathan" and three fine cruisers of the "County" class, has assembled under the command of Rear Admiral Farquhar. The British Admiralty realizes to the full the importance of keeping in touch with the big navy development among the South American republics, which have already done much for British shipbuilding. The squadron will make visits to Brazilian and Argentine ports, and the officers will, of course, make themselves pleasant at social gatherings. Not only shipbuilding, but commercial relations, have entered into the calculations of the Government.

WILL PERSIA GO?

The Germans Believe that the Shah's Kingdom Will Shortly be Divided Between Britain and Russia

Unusual attention has been directed to Great Britain's note to Persia, which is interpreted in Germany as foreshadowing the partition of that ancient kingdom between Britain and Russia. The disappearance of a independent Persia is looked upon here as a grave international event, which will affect Germany and Turkey. Turkey in particular is believed to be interested, because the Mohammedan settlement of solidarity has been greatly strengthened under the new regime, and the appearance of Russian and Britis.. soldiers on the eastern frontier of the Ottoman Empire cannot but have a deep influence on the political status of Turkey.

There is no doubt that at least two members of the Triple Alliance are becoming restive when they see how the world is being divided up whilst they are left out in the cold. Morocco has practically become a French protectorate during the last decade; Korea, a Japanese province; Manchuria has been shared by Russia and Japan; and now it is believed that the day of Persia has arrived. There is no intention of claiming any political influence there, but it is feared that economic interests will be affected, especially those of Germany, whose Bagdad railway is intended to terminate at the Persian Gulf. In Vienna, Professor Vambery expresses the opinion that in spite of assurances of a complete understanding between London and St. Petersburg, nobody in Persia thinks that the two countries can work together on the present lines. The Russians have occupied the north of Persia with 5,000 or 6,000 men. Britain went from the south with only 100 men and then retired. As far as the Persians themselves are concerned, they look upon the two Powers with entirely different feelings. Britain is still considered a liberal Power, wishing well to Persia, and only forced into a hostile attitude by Russian intrigue. Russia, on the other hand, is regarded quite differently. The Persian hates the Russian from the bottom of his heart, while he looks upon the Englishman as his friend and protector. England, he thinks, will not risk her prestige in Persia.

FINLAND'S EXPENSES

The Czar's Government Has Cut Down the Educational Estimates

In the Finnish Budget, as recently confirmed by the Czar Nicholas, a number of estimates for economic, educational, and sanitary purposes have been struck out. The educational estimates include subsidies to the communes for elementary and Sloyd schools, grants for adult schools, kindergartens, summer colonies for poor children, feeding and clothing poor school children, libraries, etc. Estimates for a sanatorium for consumptives in Osterbothnia, new lecture rooms for the University, the completion of roads in Lapland, already begun, and the widening of the Saima Canal, have also been brought down.

On the other hand, an increase has been made in the salaries of Governors, and in those of Senators in the Economic Department. In addition a sum of $25,872 is set aside for Press censors, one of whom is to be stationed in each town, and whose work was to begin from October 1.

DUCHESS LECTURED

The Career of Saint Evremond Discussed by a Titled Litterateur

The Duchess of Sutherland, sister of the Countess of Warwick, has appeared as a literary lecturer at the Edinburgh Philosophical Institution. She took as her subject Saint Evremond, the 17th century soldier, satirist, philosopher, and man of the world, who spent fifty years of his career in France, and the subsequent forty in exile in Great Britain. The Duchess said that Saint Evremond was a star in the cultured circles of two countries, but he had been little remembered by posterity at large. If his spirit of criticism was acute, he had a catholic appreciation of all that was best in philosophy and literature, and without doubt, he was tremendously attractive to his distinguished and adventurous comrades. She gave an interesting sketch of the part filled by Saint Evremond in English Court and literary life till he found a resting place in Poets' Corner at Westminster.

THE WAITING-MAID AT THE INN

return. I shall come back and claim you. Why, I love you to distraction."

"A poor waiting-maid," she stammered.

"The Queen of all women," I answered.

"I shall speak to Madam before I go. I am a man of honour, and my name is well-known in Devon. You will be the loveliest Lady Danvers who has ever ruled at the Manor House."

"Let me confess," she said, as I held her in my arms.

"Nothing but that you love me," I cried in a rapture.

There was a sudden commotion outside and the door was flung violently open. A young man wearing riding dress rushed into the room, and to my fury caught Phyllis in his arms and kissed her and lifted her as high as the ceiling before setting her down.

"Why, Phyllida," he cried, "little Phyllida, I have arrived before my time. And how are Madam my Mother, and Lettice? And—who is this gentleman?"

The blood was in my eyes yet I fancied I knew the voice.

"It is Sir—" began Phyllis, but got no further for the young man took my hand in a friendly grasp.

"Why, Danvers! who would have thought of seeing you here, under my Mother's roof? Let me welcome you."

Then said Phyllis clinging to his arm

"I was just explaining to Sir Willoughby Danvers. That imp of mischief Cormey MacHale sent him here for an inn. And since old Terry was too blind to wait I played Waiting-Maid. I was most anxious that everything should be done in order because I knew he was your friend, Gilbert. He has become ours while he has been our guest."

"More than that," I said soberly, "for I have fallen in love with Phyllida."

"And you shall have her with my blessing," cried Gilbert wringing my hand.

Then the mother was in the room and Lettice on her heels and old Terry looking wistfully through the chinks of the door, and the blind dogs sniffing and whining; and Patsy MacHale and that rascal Cormy, pressing above the shoulders and under the arms of the others.

Her Face and Body Were Litterly Covered With "BOILS."

Burdock Blood Bitters Cured Them.

Mrs. John H. King, Johnston, N.B., writes:—"Last summer I was very much troubled with boils, and my face and body were literally covered with them. A friend advised me to take Burdock Blood Bitters. I got three bottles, and before I had taken all the first one my boils began to go away. I had just taken a few doses out of the last one when they all disappeared. My husband has also used Burdock Blood Bitters with much benefit."

Boils in themselves are not a danger, the trouble, but still, at the same time, are very painful. They are caused solely by bad blood, and to get rid of them it is necessary to put the blood in good condition, and for this purpose there is nothing to equal that old and tried remedy, Burdock Blood Bitters.

BABY LOST TWO DAYS IS CHASED BY WOLVES

Special to The Examiner.

SELIGMAN, MO., NOV. 26.—After wandering in the forests near the Missouri-Arkansas line for two days and nights and being tracked by wolves, Earle Crisman, the three-year-old son of J. A. Crisman, a farmer of near Avoca, was restored to his parents.

The baby was clad only with a thin suit of underclothing and a short gingham dress to protect its little body from the severe cold. The child had no food or water while he was toddling aimlessly about in the wild tract of country.

On several occasions the youngster's tracks were discovered, together with the tracks of wolves, and then the trail was lost. The parents were frantic, in the belief that their baby had fallen an easy prey to the beasts, who seemed to be following him like little Red Riding-hood.

The parents and their friends had about despaired of ever finding the baby alive when searchers discovered him in a cluster of thorns alongside the road.

The little wanderer was almost dead from exposure and starvation.

MARCONI WORKING ON AN AEROPLANE

One That Will Carry Wireless Apparatus of Sufficient Strength to Be Useful

The inventor of the wireless telegraph is endeavoring to perfect an aeroplane that will rise directly from any spot and that will carry wireless apparatus of sufficient strength to send messages in a satisfactory manner.

Mr. Marconi explained his views in an interview recently, emphasizing the value of the adaptation of the wireless to an aeroplane in peace or war, and stating that he would probably fly himself in connection with his experiments.

"I am now working on an aeroplane for a syndicate in which I am interested," he said. "Important experiments have been made already with the machine, which at present is housed near London.

"It is a monoplane, and in general design does not depart materially from existing types. When completed, however, it will contain what in my view is to be the best wireless plant of the present nature, in addition to several new features.

"But the best of them, I hope, will be my system whereby the machine will be able to fly from any position in this connection I can only say that we are making an interesting series of experiments with propellers and other parts designed to give a sharp upward thrust or lift, and that I am very hopeful of the result.

"The installation of effective wireless apparatus does not present any very grave difficulties with the right on any machine."

In existing types of aeroplanes the whole of the pilot's attention has apparently to be concentrated on the machine itself. Unless and until this is adjusted it will be necessary to carry an additional passenger to operate the wireless instruments installed on any machine."

"Imagine," he said, "the pilot poised in his machine in view of the enemy's position.

"By the aid of the wireless installation he would be able not only to transmit his observations immediately to headquarters, but without leaving his post."

Mr. Marconi has the true scientist's disdain for danger, if necessary to his work.

"Provided I can evolve a suitable machine," he said, "provided some third party pleases, I shall not hesitate to come to the air myself. I consider that the toll the air has already taken merely emphasizes the need for taking every possible precaution against accidents."

STUDENTS of the Supernatural Are Interested in the So-Called Communications from the Spirit of Professor William James

Dr. James H. Hyslop.

WHETHER Professor William James, who passed from this life last August, has sent a message from the undiscovered bourne is the question which is again raised by the latest communication alleged to have been received from his spirit.

The medium of his supposed spiritual manifestation is a young woman of Washington, who believes she is to be inspired to write a book descriptive of his experiences in the vale beyond mortal ken. With her there is no doubt that the often repeated inquiry, "Has Professor James been heard from?" has been answered in the affirmative.

As yet her assertion may not convince the sceptic, but so insistent is she in her theory that she is in touch with the mind of the noted psychologist that she is making preparations for the receipt of more messages from him which she believes are sent in waves through the interstellar spaces.

It would seem, however, from the communication given by the feminine medium that the soul of the savant is undergoing inconvenience and is being deprived of special privileges in the spirit world by reason of the importunities of those whom he loved on earth who seek to know from him of his life beyond. He is not yet prepared to give much concerning the present state, because of his difficulties in becoming attuned with the sphere of mortals from which he has so recently gone.

William James, professor of mental science at Harvard University and for many years the close friend of the late Dr. Richard Hodgson, secretary of the American branch of the Society for Psychical Research, departed this life on August 28 last. He was in correspondence with numerous delvers in psychic lore, including Dr. James H. Hyslop, secretary of the Society for Psychical Research, of New York, who has been an investigator of spiritism for years.

After the death of Dr. Hodgson and also of Professor Myers, of England, many efforts were made to communicate with them, and in these Dr. Hyslop and Professor James took an active interest.

The mediumship of Mrs. Leonora E. Piper was employed by Dr. Hyslop and others to obtain reputed communications from Dr. Hodgson, in which it was believed he had at least established his identity.

The Myers tests in England were not especially successful, and the medium was unable to give the contents of a letter left by the scientist with the understanding that if he could he would from the vale of the unknown attempt to reproduce it. The efforts of Mrs. Piper and of other mediums did not in any way represent the actual contents of this missive.

It is stated on the authority of a member of the society in Boston that Professor James before his death left in some secret repository, known only to a few intimates and carefully sealed, a letter the words of which he might, if he could, attempt to communicate to some inhabitant of earth.

Dr. Hyslop even has no knowledge of any such missive, and it is problematical, indeed, whether it will ever come to light. In the meantime the secretary of the American Society for Psychical Research, as far as he has been able, has made incidental and unsuccessful attempts to communicate with the spirit of the Harvard psychologist through mediums. All that has been considered so far on this subject is focussed upon Professor Hyslop, and it is believed by those who have given the subject study that the most satisfactory communications from Professor James, if any do come, will be intended for him. If any messages alleged to be from Professor James come to him, however, Dr. Hyslop will first seek elaborate and convincing proofs of the identity of the communicator before he gives them serious consideration.

Did Not Know Him.

The young woman who believes she is en rapport with the impulses which come from the spirit of Professor James does not at this time wish to have her name made public. She had for six months before the death of the scientist been sending accounts of some of her psychical experiences to Professor Hyslop. She did not know Professor James and had, indeed, never read any of his writings. The first message purporting to come from him which she obtained was on Tuesday, August 30, only four days after his death, and within an hour after she had expressed the opinion to some residents of Boston that he had not been dead long enough to pierce the veil.

She avers, therefore, that it came as a great surprise to her suddenly to become conscious that his spirit desired to communicate through her hand. She had had some experience in so-called automatic or spirit writing. The practitioners of this art believe that the souls of the departed control the arm and fingers of the writers and cause them to transcribe thoughts of spirits. The Society for Psychical Research has some of these supposed messages from the Harvard psychologist which have been sent by the young woman. She is in no sense a professional medium and merely submits the communications in the hope that they may throw light on the mysteries of the future state. The first leaf of so-called James manuscript, marked as revealed on August 30, near Boston, is as follows:—

"I'm William James. Tell Hyslop to be patient and I will know more soon. I can't send him much as yet, but will when I can. For the present I can only help you. I want you to write a work on the mysteries of the next life. There is a tremendous unfolding of these matters that will soon be given to the world. I want you to help prepare people for it.

"Death is awesome but a wonderful emancipation. I did not realize what a burden the flesh trammels were till I laid them aside. Before, I believed there was such a thing as immortality. Now, I know that it is real—and our vision is now like the view from mountains where before I dwelt in the valleys. Hyslop knows some of the things I wanted to find out. I know some of them now, but the mysteries of the spiritual world are still a tremendous complex, and I feel but a babe in knowledge here, but will learn by absorption what I need to know and will tell you what I am allowed to tell. It is not possible or advisable to unfold all of the mysteries of this life to those still on the mortal plane. Law rules here as well as there and we must obey the law.

"Goodby. I will help you all I can when I know more and have learned better how to transmit my thoughts to the living."

This communication is similar in many respects to one received at a séance where there was a professional medium which was held on Monday, September 5, at eight o'clock in the evening, at Harwichport, Mass. Several spiritualists were present. It was as follows that the spirit of Professor James is said to have spoken on that occasion:—

"I am at peace, peace * * * with myself and all mankind. I have awakened to life far beyond my highest conception while a denizen of earth. Tell my brothers that I will communicate a message through this instrument that will prove my individuality when I can manifest more clearly than at this time. I did not realize how difficult it would be to manifest from this plane of life to the mortal plane.

"There is much for me to learn and many conditions to overcome."

Additional communications came to the amateur medium on the following night, September 7, and in her manuscript she has begun with the words, "I'm Will James," and then has carefully marked out the abbreviation, as though she considered it undignified, and has used the name "William." As a matter of fact, although it is known to few, the eminent scholar had often referred to himself as "Will" in addressing his intimates, and in communications supposed to be from Mrs. Leonora E. Piper.

Dr. Hodgson there are references to "Will James." Thus, with well considered strokes of the pen the young woman elided what might be considered in some quarters as a mark of authenticity, and indeed, it is one of the few things in the whole manuscript which has any direct bearing on the identity of the spirit alleged to be communicating.

The Second Message.

This is the second message in full:—

"Boston, Mass., September 7, 1910, 8 P. M.

"I'm Will [William] James. Yes, I am much obliged to you for writing for me again. Why didn't you write on Sunday as you planned to do? I was longing to send a message through you then.

"There are so many others who want to talk to you that I find them hard to manage. Your mother wants to talk to you, but can't do much as yet. She watches over you much of the time. Your father transmits impulses to you and guiding instincts, but cannot get into the way of transmitting direct verbal messages to any extent. I tell you this that you may better appreciate the difficulties connected with communications between the two worlds. Even I with all my training (in this line) find it hard myself.

"My friends are awaiting for a revelation from me. They look on me as one cut loose from all trammels, but I am not. Will people never learn from biological analogies that life is progressive and developmental? As the germ of vitality assimilates matter so as to develop its physical form, so the soul takes into the next life only the germ of its spiritual life, and this is more or less encysted by the thought veils or robes of the earth life woven by the minds of one's self and others. This I intimated to you the other day. This while the capacity for developing a tree may be in the seed, yet the actual growth of the tree from the seed is helped or hindered more or less by adventitious conditions. For this reason the dead need your prayers as well as the living.

"I wish you could take from me a biplasmic revelation to the world. It is so wonderful here to see the unfolding of that which on the earthly plane seemed fraught with impenetrable mystery. You had a dawning glimpse of the truth in what you wrote on the glandular evolution of human faculties. Men who fostered the powers of spiritual insight till the faculty for using them has nearly atrophied.

"Keep on with your listening to hear the voice of God speak to you direct or through spirits such as I, who seek only the enlightenment of the world. Your night of waiting has been long, tho' though it has been by the starlight of many inspirations. By and by you will find that as you ascend in spiritual life the apparent stars that light the way will reveal themselves as suns whose sizes and brilliancy will far surpass the light of the sun which you see with your mortal eyes.

"Tell Hyslop to keep up his faith though his night of waiting for illumination may also seem long. When the fuller light comes the gulf that hides the spiritual from the material world will be bridged and those who are fitted to understand will be endowed with a knowledge far transcending that of the present.

"Goodby. Thanks for your time and attention."

Pages after pages in the same strain are given. The language does not seem to Professor Hyslop to suggest that of the departed psychologist. It may be that the individuality of the medium has influenced it to a large degree, if such a communication could come from the source from which it purports to be derived.

The Test.

Again, on September 12, a message is sent for Dr. Hyslop that he wait and that he place no confidence in the "letter test," which is characterized as "foolish," as "any one who is in the proper mood can get the gist of it from the living subliminal if not the conscious thought."

"Sound," communicates the supposed shade, "is the mere vulgar manifestation of the vibrations of thought. Those whose spiritual intelligence is properly developed can dispense with sounds. Words are the silent manifestations of the forms of sound, but they also can be dispensed with in the transmission of thoughts, and as the mental force and intelligence become more sublimated they, too, can be dispensed with. The effort to transmit thoughts to my fellow workers is causing me more trouble and loss of spiritual privileges than they realize. To try to harness seemingly limitless concepts within the petty confines of words intelligible to mortal mind is no mean task, I assure you.

"It is one reason why there are no more revelations from the spiritual to the material world. I beg to rise to the higher, more joyous, planes, but am fettered by the claims made by those who love me. Tell those who love me to let go. The new life is so full and wonderful that I am not ready to tell all about it, for I cannot comprehend it all myself as yet. When I do I will try to send a full illumination to those who are ready to receive it.

"The mysteries of ages is not death, but is the unseen life of the spirit ordinarily hidden from one's dulled senses on earth. Marvellous is this stage of existence, where life is wrought out in the light and the ethereal essence of the divine life and light is manifested throughout our whole being. These are things that cannot be explained fully in phrases intelligible to the human understanding.

"The spiritual eye and soul of man and the spiritual ear alone comprehend the beauty and development processes of this life. Eye hath not seen nor ear heard the glories that can be revealed in man after death has stripped the fleshly fetters from his prisoned spiritual senses.

"The process of spiritual evolution, however, is not accomplisht all at once, nor is it the same with all. For some the spiritual punishment or purgation of a reincarnation, oftentimes many times repeated, is necessary. If men realized this they would expend more effort to develop their dormant spiritual forces and rise above the plane of selfish material enjoyment. The creative force of their spirits is incessantly active to endower thoughts and things with power for good or the not good—there is no middle ground—which become a help or a hindrance to man when death separates him from his body, for these thought forms cling to him like a garment, and if evil they become vampires to devour his soul."

It will be observed that in the foregoing paragraph the supposed spirit for the first time uses the reformed orthography of the word "accomplisht." He was one of the founders of the Simplified Spelling Board endowed by Mr. Andrew Carnegie in 1906, and was connected with it until the time of his death. He does not appear, however, to have made any extensive use of the new style in his writings.

One of the most rapid of his alleged communications was delivered while the young woman was on a train, on September 20, at nine minutes to three o'clock in the afternoon, on her way to New York. It is brief and at first polished in its phraseology. This was Message V., as reported:—

"William James. Yes, Miss ——, you may well be surprised that I write so soon again, but I want you to say more for me that I may be free.

"Hyslop is thinking of your communications (from me). They have interested him, so tell him this as a supplement.

"Just as involvement of spirit in flesh is a marvellous, prolonged and intricate process, so is the evolvement of the spirit from the body and its earth conditions. The path leading out of the labyrinth is as long as the path leading into it. For this reason the spirit must work out its more or less gradual emancipation from the labyrinthian earth conditions."

"His last communication, delivered 5 October 18, begins with an expression of regret that he could not arrive sooner and again complains of being disturbed by the effort to communicate at the stage and promises more details of the state beyond when all things are in readiness.

"Individuals who earnestly seek it," declares the message, "will receive the light which will unfold on the hidden path of spiritual development, bringing them into fellowship and communion with all that is best in the universe of God. They who will not seek this for themselves must remain in the twilight."

Professor Hyslop fails to find in the added communications anything which suggests the style of Professor James while writing here on earth.

Some idea as to the differences in the mode of expression of living savant and shade may be gained from the following quotation from Professor James, which appeared in Professor Thompson's "Problems of the Life After Death," which was largely a symposium. In this the eminent Harvard psychologist wrote:—

"When the physiologist who thinks that his science cuts off all hopes of immortality pronounces the phrase 'Thought is a function of the brain' he thinks of no matter just as he thinks when he says 'Steam is a function of the steam kettle,' 'Light is a function of the electric circuit,' 'Power is the function of the rushing waterfall.' In these latter cases the several material objects have the function of inwardly creating or engendering their effects and their functions may be called a productive function. Just so he thinks that it must be with the brain.

"But in the world of physical nature productive function of this sort is not the only kind of function with which we are familiar. We have the permissive or releasing function and we have a transmissive function. The keys of the organ have only a transmissive function. They open successively the various pipes and let the wind in the air chest escape in various ways. The voices of the various pipes are constituted by the columns trembling as they emerge. But the air is not engendered in the organ.

"My thesis now is that when we think of the law that thought is a function of the brain we are entitled to consider also permissive of transmissive function."

One of the characteristics of the style of Professor James was its force and clearness. He would in life have scarcely used the involved language which is employed in these alleged communications. The rhetoric and nomenclature of spiritualism, somewhat tinctured with the vocabulary of Christian Science, have developed little since the early days of the practice. The communications with the references to earth planes and spirit planes are couched in the same mysterious jargon which has been in vogue since the days of the Fox sisters. Spiritualists and mediums have insisted that this is the proper form for the spirits to use in addressing mortals here below, and the formulae have become set with the lapse of time.

Hundreds of communications are said to have been received from Professor James from circles of spiritualists all over the country, all expressing the same inability to communicate and promising light yet to come. The burden of this psychic song is "The time is not yet."

Seeking the Light.

Professor Hyslop said, in speaking of the somewhat lengthy communications purporting to come from the spirit world, that the question was whether one who could make such use of the word forms used in this world might not give more details.

He is planning to make extensive researches, with no professional mediums in his effort, to come into communication with Professor James, a proceeding which he could undertake with thoroughness had he any funds available for that purpose. He receives no salary from the society, and railroad fares and other expenses, besides the payment of stenographers to take records, cause the quest of the spirit world to be more or less expensive.

"Communications so far," said he, "are of no value because there have been no proofs of the identity of the entity or spirit, if there be such, which is making them. Such writings as those which have been submitted by the young woman in Washington seem to be such as many another well educated person may have written.

"Professor James was a well known man, yet at the same time there are undoubtedly many incidents in his life which are known to few which might serve as a basis for his identification. The proper identification of a spirit is no easy task under such conditions. In some cases it has, in my opinion, been done, and I would consider that an existence after death has been demonstrated. In order to establish definitely whether the spirit of Professor James is actually in front many mediums with cross references from one to another communication it will be necessary to have readings.

"There are many things to be considered. The communications from the spirit will perhaps be affected by the mind of the control and the mind of the medium. In some cases, however, I have known mannerisms and expressions to survive such transmission. It may be, although I do not profess to believe it, that the spirit of Professor James in space is able to make an impression upon attuned intellects at once.

"The difficulties of spirits in communication with mortals through various mediums must be very great. In the case of the young woman from Washington it might be that some impulse from the spirit of Professor James had come to her, thus causing her to put down in her own words such communications as she offers. A bell is struck by a stick and the bell vibrates with its own tone, yet it has from an outside source received the impulse."

Professor Hyslop points out the absurdities advanced by professional mediums and by untrained observers which often causes psychical science to be discredited. He believes, however, that in time to at hand when many mysteries will be pushed with as much energy and enthusiasm as researches are made in the domain of mechanical science.

ANNUAL DISTRICT MEETINGS TO BE HELD AT WARSAW

Warsaw Football Club Holds Successful Affair—Arrangements Are Being Made for the Rink—New Stage Driver on the Road Now.

WARSAW, NOV. 29.—The regular meetings of the East Peterboro Farmers' Institute for 1910 will be held in the Town Hall on Dec. 12 as follows—commencing at 1.30 o'clock p.m.:

Chairman's address—Vice-President E. Hawthorne; address—C. J. McKellican of Norwood, "The Farmers' Horse"; address—Anson Groh, Preston, "Farm Forestry or Soil Problems"; address—H. C. Duff, "The Principles of Breeding." The afternoon meeting of the Women's Institute will be held over Mr. Choates' store at two o'clock, when Mrs. Woeland will give an address.

Evening meeting at 7.30 o'clock. Chairman's address; address—Mr. McKellican, "The Relation of the Agricultural College to the Farmer"; address—Mrs. W. Woeland, Toronto, "Poultry Raising as a Business for Women"; address—Mr. Groh, "The Stairway of Success"; address—H. C. Duff, "Co-operative Poultry Circles." A good vocal and instrumental programme will be interspersed with the addresses.

Mr. Groh has demonstrated how a very ordinary farm can be made a money-maker to its owner at the sam etime that the fertility is being increased and improvements made. Mr. Groh has given close attention to farm forestry, a subject of importance to Ontario farmers. He has kept a daily individual milk record of his herd for eleven years. His experience in building silos, stables, walls and tanks with cement and in the use of gasoline engines, renders his instruction on these lines of special value to farmers.

Mrs. Woeland has taken a deep interest in Women's Institute work in Forest, Ont., and has materially assisted in the extension of the work throughout the county of Lambton. She is intensely interested in all matters which pertain to the home, and her addresses have been much appreciated. Institute officers and members may be assured that Mrs. Woeland will have messages which will be of benefit. Farmers and others are invited and expecte dto attend these meetings.

Success attended the efforts of the Warsaw Football Club on Friday evening, when they held their annual assembly. It was a pleasurable success to the friends of the club and a profitable success to the members. The profits of the event will go to liquidate a debt incurred through heavy expense during last season's games. Though the weather was inclement and the roads in bad shape there were guests from Havelock, Norwood, Lakefield, Apsley, and Peterborough who would not be deterred from attending. The music was furnished by Mr. R. J. Derry and orchestra, and Mr. A. Moore was Master of Ceremonies. Mr. C. Bowen, the local caterer, supplied the refreshments.

Mr. Ernest Carvette, having purchased the stage outfit of Mr. John Newell, commenced on the route between here and the city last week.

The contract of caretaking of the skating rink has been awarded by the committee to Messrs. John S. Selkirk and Hilliard Darling. During the past two years this work has been done gratis by the management in order that the rink could be a success. It is felt that since the material and appliances for maintaining the rink are on the grounds that the affair should be self-sustaining. It is the intention of the management to still keep the prices of tickets at the extremely low prices o flast year in the hope that none may be denied the pleasures to be dervied from the use of this playground. It is only with the hearty co-operation of all that this may be done.

Mr. S. Chown, Ladysmith, Ont., spent a week with his sister, Mrs. S. R. Payne.

The total weight is 11,000 pounds, the largest bell being 3,600 pounds. They are to be known as the people's chimes, as the cost $6,000, was contributed by citizens generally of all creeds. They will be placed in the tower of St. John's, Lutheran Church, the oldest in the city, which from its lofty site has for seventy-five years dominated the outlook over the city.

Moved the Fence.

Orillia, Dec. 2.—Several employes of the Grand Trunk Railway were arrested yesterday morning on the charge of trespassing on property belonging to the town, while warrants were issued for P. J. Lynch, superintendent at Allandale, and two others in the same connection.

The railway three years ago endeavored to get control of the strip of land owned by the town lying between the old Northern Railway and the main line, but the town authorities refused to agree, and ordered the railway to keep off the land. Mr. Lynch has made every effort since his appointment to gain control of the land in question, and three times recently, it is alleged, the line fence has been torn down and moved in on the town's property, the authorities promptly moving it out to the original line. Yesterday it was again moved, with the result that arrests were made and warrants issued as stated.

The defence will offer its opening statement to-day.

A distinguished company of British naval officers and American residents in London were invited to meet the visitors, the guests including Admiral Sir Edward Hobart Seymour, Admiral Sir Arthur Knyvet Wilson and Sir John and Lady Lister-Kaye.

McIntosh at Kingston.

Kingston, Dec. 2.—Edward E. McIntosh, wanted in Toronto by the provincial police, was here this week. Henry O'Brien, clerk at the Randolph Hotel, says he was at the hotel on Wednesday to call for his mail. Not having been seen since, it is supposed he was given the tip that a warrant was issued for him, and skipped out. It is supposed he crossed the border. O'Brien recognized McIntosh by a cut in a paper. McIntosh did not stay at the hotel, and it is believed he was boarding at a private house. The police of the city and county are looking for him.

Spoiled the Sport.

Ottawa, Dec. 2.—Humane Inspector Laflamme got wind of what was to have been one of the biggest cocking mains ever pulled off within his district on Wednesday night and raided a barn on the Gatineau Road, about three miles out of Hull. The sports, who were mainly men from Ottawa and Hull, got wind of the inspector's intended visit, however, and managed to get away with their birds before he arrived. He estimates that sixty birds were to be used.

French Displacing English.

Sherbrooke, Dec. 2.—The French-speaking population is increasing and the English-speaking decreasing in the eastern townships. This was shown very conclusively at Bedford, when the school commissioners of the townships sold three buildings, that had formerly been used as English-speaking schools, because there were no scholars. The English-speaking farmers are selling out to the French and going west.

Plunder Was Plentiful.

Chicago, Dec. 2.—Four men, who have been arrested by Chicago police within the last two days, yesterday confessed that they were guilty of participating in over one hundred hold-ups in this city in the last four months. Each told his story independently of the others, and they coincided except as to several special instances, which fact was explained by one of them, who said: "Why, to tell the truth, I have held up so many of 'em I forget some of the details."

At one time this man boasted he had eight watches and said he took so much plunder from his victims he and his partners in crime could not dispose of it as fast as they got it, and had to "lay off work" for a while to do so.

HAMILTON WOMAN GETS A QUARTER MILLION VERDICT AN IMPORTANT DECISION

Privy Council Makes Award That Has Tremendous Effect Upon Bearing of Married Women's Property Act.

THE BANK MUST PAY

Examiner Special.

TORONTO, DEC. 2.—What surely has a tremendous effect on the bearing of married women's property act of Canada, was the decision of the Privy Council this morning in the case of Mrs. Jane Jacques Stuart, of Hamilton, against the Bank of Montreal, by which the bank must pay Mrs. Stuart a quarter of a million dollars. The point decided was that a married woman could not be held liable on a guarantee given by her as security for the debt of the husband. The Bank took over the valuable property of Mrs. Stuart some time ago on a guarantee given by her of substance liability in connection with the Maritime Sulphite Co. The Privy Council's decision means the value of the property must now be returned to her.

This interesting feature will commence in the Examiner to-morrow and will be given in daily instalments until completed. GRAND TRUNK PACIFIC DINING CARS

The volume of business which has offered on the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway since their passenger service was put into effect last July, has necessitated the early increase of equipment, and the Canada Car Co. have turned out for the Grand Trunk Pacific three new dining cars, which are models of elegance and beauty.

The exterior length of the car is 82 feet, and the length of the dining room 32 feet 6 inches, the balance of the interior of the car being taken up by the modern kitchen, refrigerators, and pantry. They are mounted on standard six wheel trucks. The platforms are of steel and the vestibule of the Pullman type. They are equipped with high-speed quick-action Westing House air brakes. The interior of the car is finished in plain and figured mahogany with a harmony of colours that is pleasing to the eye. The cars are heated by steam and lighted with electric light.

The dining-room accommodates thirty people at one sitting. The floors are covered with handsome carpets, of an exclusive design, and with a pattern conforming to the general colour scheme of the interior. These cars are equipped with all the improvements and safety appliances that are known to modern skill and are the handsomest dining cars that have been turned out from Canadian shops.

They will leave for the West in a day or two, and will be objects of interest as well as supplying comfort to Western travellers, and will be an addition to the already well-known service that is being operated by the Grand Trunk Pacific in Western Canada.

ON THE EVE OF FIRST POLLING BOTH PARTIES CONFIDENT OF THE RESULTS

Special Wire to The Examiner.

LONDON, ENG., DEC. 2.—'Tis the eve before the first polling and all through Great Britain and Ireland is waging a most strenuous election campaign, although in some districts elections will not take place for two weeks yet. To-night all the big Liberal papers here are expressing the strongest hopes in the returns of to-morrow, calling attention to many changes in Balfour's policy, as evidence of the weak Unionist cause. On the other hand the Tory thunderers are hailing the first day of battle as certain of bringing victory for their cause. The first blood was drawn to-day, at the nominations, in fifteen of which there were acclamations, eleven Unionist and four Radicals. The Unionists include Joseph Chamberlain, of Birmingham, Leader A. J. Balfour, in London east, and George Wyndham, an ex-Cabinet Minister, from Liverpool. The Liberals had unexpected and easy gain in South Manchester, where the Unionist candidates arrived too late to file their nomination, having mistaken the hour, and Harmsworth, Liberal, was declared elected. To-morrow there will be seventy pollings in districts so scattered that they will probably give a good index of feeling throughout Britain. In the last election 36 of these were held by Liberals, 26 by Unionists, and 4 by Labourites, all with majorities so small that they may be reversed to-morrow.

VETERAN COLPORTEUR WELL KNOWN IN CITY HURLS SOME HOT SHOT AT THE UNITED STATES OFFICIALS

The following from the Toronto Star refers to Mr George Buskin, the veteran colporteur, who visits Peterborough each year and who has a large number of friends in this city who will be interested in reading of his experience:

"I thought it well to visit Rochester, N.Y., and see my children for a few days, but at Black Rock, N. Y., I was held by the United States Emigration officers there, and after what I term an insolent investigation for an hour or more, I was required to enter into a bond not to be chargeable to the United States, in order to proceed, which I esteemed a piece of impertinence, and refused to do so. It was to no purpose that I showed to them my credentials of Christian integrity."

This is a complaint filed with the Dominion Government of Mr. George Buskin, the aged agent and missionary of the International Evangelical and Colportage Mission. The complaint was filed for Mr. Buskin by his counsel, J. R. Rouf, K.C. He claims that his client was turned back at Black Rock, being refused permission to go on a visit to his daughter at Rochester, N.Y. Mr. Buskin declined to sign a bond that he would not become a charge upon the people of the United States.

The Secretary of State has notified Mr. Buskin that the matter has been placed in the hands of the British Ambassador at Washington for investigation, and that as soon as a reply from the powers at Washington is received it will be forwarded to him.

Mr. Buskin maintains an agency of the Mission in Rochester, and when questioned by the authorities at Black Rock, is said to have exhibited to them several bank books, showing his financial standing. He further states in his complaint to the Government:

"I was put out with a statement of rejection as an undesirable. That is the statement of the United States Government officials. With all their professed liberty and enlightenment, they will receive some genteel demons in my stead. I was not permitted to walk on their ground to look after what I supposed I had left behind at their office, but held a prisoner on the cars. I suppose if the Lord Jesus had come to them in His lowly garb, as in days past, they would have dealt the same with him. Such conduct would disgrace a lot of Indians. However, I will send the account to the Ottwa and British Governments that one cannot walk God's earth without such tyrannical domineering dictation."

WAITED SEVEN DAYS TO CATCH A THIEF

HAMILTON, ONT. DEC. 2.—Two policemen at 3.30 this morning, hiding in F. A. Green's restaurant on King street east, heard a thief breaking in. The thief after switching on the electric lights saw the officers and made a dash for liberty, but was captured outside by another officer. He proved to be John Pennell and at the police court this morning he was remanded for sentence. It developed that the officers had been hiding in the restaurant for the last seven nights awaiting for the thief's advent.

Old Man 86 Years Of Age Was Found Dead In His Lonely Cottage

George Wells, for over sixty years a resident of Hastings, was found dead in his little cabin, near the wharf, by Mr. John Armstrong on Thursday of last week.

Mr. Armstrong had stopped at the door of the cabin on Tuesday, and finding the old man in bed, put on a fire for him. He called on Wednesday but could not open the door so went away, and finding the place still shut on Thursday, forced the door open and found the old man lying on his bed with his hands folded across his breast, as though he had slept peacefully away.

George Wells, or "Yankee George" as he was called, was an American by birth, and it is believed a member of the Wells family who founded the Wells-Fargo Express Co., his home originally being in the neighbourhood of Ogdensburg, N.Y. He was a carpenter by trade and had worked a great deal for the late Major Howard, whose sons cared for the old man, "who was over 86 years of age," during the last few years refusing to leave the village or go to the house of refuge in Cobourg, despite several attempts of the authorities to send him there.

Boys Must Stop Sliding And Snow-balling In City

Chief Thompson, of the Police Department, has received several complaints from Murray street citizens regarding the condition of the sidewalk on the hill at the Central school. The boys have been using the sidewalk as a sliding place, rendering it so slippery that the people find it difficult to walk on it. He herewith gives the boys warning to stop the practice at once. If they continue other steps will be taken to stop them.

Attention might also be called to the snowballing. The boys, in the following of this practice, have hit several citizens and broken several windows. This is a general practice all over the city. Both of the above mentioned offences are breaches of the city by-laws, and action will be taken at once to enforce them.

Stomach Held In Place By A Wire Fence

ST. LOUIS, NOV. 26.—Joseph Maccaroni and Thomas Rooney, patients at the City Hospital, have just undergone a rare and delicate operation, which demonstrates the latest ideas in the development of surgical science. Maccaroni is forty years old. Several weeks ago he suffered an ugly fracture of the left ankle, four inches above the ankle joint, which refused to respond to the ordinary treatment for such injuries. The patient appeared to be doomed to become a cripple for life, until the surgeons determined to try the efficacy of an invention recently utilized with success by Dr. Lane, of London.

This invention is an appliance consisting of three thin steel plates, which, screwed to the bones above and below the fracture, form a perfect support for the injured limb, and allow of its free movement. The operation was performed and the surgeons say Maccaroni will be able to leave the hospital in two weeks.

The operation on Rooney was more delicate. He was recovering from an operation performed several weeks ago for an abscess of the stomach, when the surgeons discovered the stomach had forced its way through the abdominal walls.

The surgeons reopened the wound, forced the stomach back into its normal position and wove five feet of fine steel wire into a mesh, which they fastened to the membranes of the abdominal wall, forming a fence to retain the stomach in its place. The patient has entirely recovered from the operation and the surgeons declare he will feel no ill effects from the "fence" when the wound is healed.

RURAL TELEPHONES

Bound Volume Sent Free on Request

In connection with the growth of rural telephone companies throughout the Dominion, a new book has recently appeared on the market which will be of special interest to many of our readers.

This book, bound in stiff, cloth-covered binding, contains over a hundred profusely illustrated pages of comprehensive information, carefully indexed into seven chapters.

"How to Build Rural Telephone Lines" deals with the complete story of the telephone, mutual and stock company organization, line survey and construction, the installation of the instruments, the material required, the instrument itself and the government regulations on the subject. Each and every one of these subjects is dealt with fully and at length.

With this book in hand, anyone who can follow printed instructions, can handle the complete organization and construction of a rural telephone company, from start to finish. Notwithstanding its cost, the Northern Electric will send this book free, but only on request and when the name of this paper is mentioned. We would advise all of our readers who are in any degree interested in the subject of rural telephones, to write for it.

WEDDING BELLS

MANN—BELL.

A pretty wedding was solemnized at "The Pines," Bridgenorth, the home of Mrs. Wm. Bell on Wednesday, Nov. 30th, at 6 o'clock, when their only daughter, Mary Edna Delene became the charming bride of Mr. Garbutt Mann, youngest son of the late James Hull Mann. The ceremony was conducted by Rev. Mr. Crookshanks in the presence of many relatives and friends.

The bride entered the drawing room on the arm of her father to the strains of Mendelssohn's wedding march, played by Miss Pauline Udy. The bride was becomingly attired in a beautiful gown of ivory silk permo resilda, seeded with pearls, and with touches of hand pointed lace and embroidery. The long veil fell gracefully over her shoulders and she carried a shower bouquet of cream roses and ferns. She was unattended.

After the ceremony the guests proceeded to a spacious dining room, where a dainty breakfast was served.

The bride's going away gown was of crushed violet directoria giallette, with hat to match and a fur-lined coat. The groom's gift to the bride was a beautiful gold watch and chain. She received many useful presents of silverware, cut glass and china, besides a number of cheques.

Later Mr. and Mrs. Mann left for their home, "Oakwood farm" amid showers of confetti and good wishes.

Mrs. Mann will be at home to her friends after Dec. 15th.

OTHER CASE STANDS

Larry Killorne, hotelkeeper, of Havelock, was sentenced to four months in the county gaol by Magistrate Edmison for the illicit sale of liquor on October the twelfth. His Worship gave judgment at noon today and the charge preferred against Killorne for selling liquor in September will stand adjourned. The evidence in this case was concluded a week ago Thursday and was of such a complicated character that Magistrate Edmison reserved judgment. The chief witnesses for the prosecution in this case were detectives in the employ of the Ontario License Department. Mr. G. N. Gordon appeared for the accused and the prosecution was conducted by Mr. J. H. Burnham. There was no option of a fine as this was Killorne's second offence.

GRAND TRUNK RAILWAY SYSTEM

Toronto November 23rd, 1910.

In the month of August this year no less than 84 steamers arrived at Prince Rupert, B.C., in September, 92 and in October 84. A total of 273 steamers calling at this new port in three months is the measure of the business up to date.

The last reports from Western Canada regarding the progress on the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway announce that the grading, fencing, telegraph lines and track laying has been completed on the Yorkton branch running north of Melville, the distance being 25 1-2 miles.

Track laying has also been completed into Canora, a distance of four miles from Yorkton, and the end of this extension.

On the Melville to Regina branch, a distance of 25 miles, the track laying, fencing and telegraph line has been completed to Belcarres, and from that point to Regina is now under construction, also 90 miles of the branch from Regina towards the boundary are now under construction.

On the Battleford branch, a distance of 48 miles, approximately 45 per cent. of the total grading has been completed.

The grading on the Prince Albert branch now under construction from a point west of Watrous on the main line is 85 per completed, and track laying has been started.

On the Calgary branch, the track is laid to mile 47, and fence completed to same point. The grade north of Red Deer is now ready for track laying.

On the Melville, Canora branch, reports show that the soil is very rich with no sloughs in the entire distance. The district is well settled and has every evidence of prosperity.

At Yorkton the town has already appointed a publicity commissioner, and some rapid development is looked for.

Canora has five hotels, two banks and is a busy grain shipping place. It is claimed that 1,000,000 bushels of grain were shipped from this point last year.

BAND CONCERT

There will undoubtedly be a big crowd at the band concert in the market hall to-night. A magnificent programme has been arranged for the occasion, featured by a violin solo, by Miss Julia Choate, and a cornet solo by Sergt. Hughes. The band's selections are all new and will include the grand patriotic fantasia, "Under the British Flag."

NICE WORDS FOR GRAND TRUNK PACIFIC

A member of a party who journeyed into the Peace River District last July and August, and travelled over the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway between Winnipeg and Edmonton, writes to the company as follows: "I desire to congratulate the Grand Trunk Pacific on its excellent service, and I want to go on record as saying that no matter which way one views it, your line has certainly delivered the goods. Our party thought it nothing short of marvellous that in two years' time a railroad should be running as only the G. T. P. runs. The cuisine was go enjoyable as the smooth-running road-bed.

REAPING THE WHIRLWIND.

Canada is now reaping the whirlwind from the wind sowed by the "Nationalist" demagogues and those Conservative members of parliament who joined them in Drummond and Arthabaska. The "Nationalists" preached treason, hostility to British connection and a general doctrine of Canadian national disintegration, destruction of the harmony of Canadian citizenship, and hostility to Imperial unity. Members of the Conservative party were in the work, without a word of reproof from Mr. Borden, leader of the Conservative party, but with the consent, and aproval of silence on his part, for the petty purpose of gaining a petty party advantage, in embarassing his opponents. The Examiner pointed out at the time of the election, and everybody could see, that the "Nationalist" propaganda would lead to disastrous results, if unopposed, not to speak of being tacitly approved. Such a campaign tends to lead and has already led to disunity of Canadian citizenship, bickerings, bitterness and a racial or creed hostility that threaten to engross the attention of the people and divert it from the duties of citizenship, in undivided devotion to developing the resources of Canada and building up a country strong in united citizenship and a common aim in all things that tend to national greatness. We see the result in parliament, where the representatives of the people, instead of soberly and serously devoting themselves to the business of the country, are arrayed in hostile camps: at each other's throats, quarrelling, fighting, squabbling and in a word creating the condition of discord and strife, that is but a type of what will prevail through the whole country if the dragon's teeth seed sowed in Drummond and Arthabaska is allowed to grow and mature, if both the great parties do not unite to crush the monster in its infancy. In a moment the whole work of conciliation and harmonizing of our diverse elements, done by successive statesmen, has been undone or will have been undone, unless our great party leaders, the leaders of public opinion, the guardians of national interest, act unitedly to stay the plague.

WOBBLING.

The disease of political wobbling is catching. The Conservative leader in Canada has caught the fever from the Conservative leader in Great Britain, or vice-versa. The attitude of Mr. Borden and Mr. Balfour respectively on the naval question and tariff reform suggest the saterical lines of Dryden on a certain British statesman with variation to suit the circumstances.

Stiff in opinions, always in the wrong.
Was everything by turns and nothing long,
But in the course of one revolving moon.
Chemist, fiddler, statesman and buffoon.

Both have boxed the political compass all round the circle. Both have settled down to the true "Tory" position of a century or two ago, negation of the principle of responsible government, with an ultra-Radical pendent—consult the people on great public questions, constitutionally placed upon the responsibility of representative men. Mr. Balfour shirks responsibility in respect of the tariff reform policy of his party, and meanly turns it over to the people. Neither has the courage of his convictions; neither has courage to assume responsibility for the policy they adopt. These attitudes are neither logical nor consistent. When did Conservatism trouble its soul with considerations of the supremacy, or even right, of the people in deciding political policy? All measures of popular enfranchisement, all measures intended to extend the scope of popular rights have always been bitterly opposed by Toryism. The essence of Toryism is absolutism, and in demanding a plebiscite, to settle great political questions, instead of the good old constitutional way, both leaders have thrown the foundation principles of their party to the winds, and adopted the most flagrant opportunism. But they are true to another darling principle of their party—the divine right of office—anything to beat Asquith and Laurier. There could not be any more humiliating attitude for both the great political leaders, Mr. Balfour and Mr. Borden. Instead of taking a firm stand, planting a resolute foot upon their policy and electing to sink or swim with it—as Laurier is doing in reward to his naval policy—they twist, turn, tergiversate, placate, abnegate in the manner of the most expert political acrobats. Courage is the first essential of statesmanship—equivalent to standing by what is considered right. The principle of expediency on great questions of principle has a very small place in the armoury of a statesman.

LOOK AFTER ONTARIO.

This year Ontario has not made a very good showing at the big Chicago stock show. This province was, in the way of prize winning, sixth in horses, sixth in cattle, fourth in sheep and ninth in swine. Ontario did much better than that in the days of the old effete "Grit" government, when this province took the plums of the judging ring in Chicago. In the matter of agriculture, in its widest acceptance, we have not made much progress, and experts tell us that our soil does not yield more than half of what it might yield. Though results depend largely upon the farmer himself the government can do a great deal, and it is plain that the present government is in the same class as the framer as to results—is not doing more than half of what it might do to help improve the output of our farms. Ontario is naturally adapted to be the banner province of the Dominion. We may complain of the competition of the western provinces, but if we wake up and improve our opportunities we can laugh at the west and go our own flourishing way rejoicing. If the Whitney Government had done as much to settle and build up agricultural Ontario as the Dominion Government has done to open up and people its lands in the West there would be a different story to tell. The Ontario Government should be able to furnish an answer to the question, "Why go to the West?" We have here at home not only millions of a - that might double their crop capacity, but millions of acres of virgin unsettled, unoccupied lands suggesting for tillage. We have a correspondent writing of the agricultural resources of New Ontario thus:

I have travelled over four townships around Cochrane, and I think there is just as good land here as a man will find any place. A man can get 160 acres for $10, and then it is his own. Then he has the timber, which, after paying for cutting and drawing, will leave him a balance of $2.00 per cord. The pulp is not the only thing that a man has to depend upon. He will always find plenty of road work on the roads which the government is putting all through the country. He will get $1.50 per day and board, which will bring him about $40 per month. It is about seven years since I came to this country, and I can say that I always found plenty of work. A settler has every chance, if he has a mind to get along.

It is the duty of the government to provide the settlers. The Ontario Government can't expect the Dominion Government to do its work. The latter owns the lands of the West, and is doing its duty in respect of them. Ontario owns its lands, and the Ontario Government is called upon to do its duty in respect of them. If it had done its duty there would have been a large increase of the farming population as well as farm production of Ontario. There would have been less depletion of Ontario population in the interests of the building up of the West.

MR. BORDEN VERSUS MR. BORDEN.

Mr. Borden, leader of the Conservative Opposition, has a chameleon record on the Canadian naval question. He is on record for all of these, but the two following will do for a sample of lightning-change opinions:

(Mr. R. L. Borden in the House of Commons on March 29, 1909)

I am entirely of opinion in the first place that the propore line upon which we should proceed in that regard IS THE LINE OF HAVING A CANADIAN NAVAL FORCE OF OUR OWN. I entirely believe in that. The other experiment has been tried as between Australia and the mother country, and it has not worked satisfactorily in any respect. In Great Britain the contribution has perhaps been regarded as rather unsatisfactory. In Australia it failed in the end to meet with the approval of the people that Great Britain felt restrained to ask Australia that the field of operations of the squadron should be extended to the China and Indian seas, and when the operations of that squadron were so extended the Australians felt that the contribution which they had been making for some years past was not really being used to give that protection to Australia that her interest demanded, so that the policy of Australia at the present time is to build up a flotilla of submarines and torpedo boats which in case of war would co-operate with the armed cruisers and battleships of the British navy. It was pointed out in discussing this question that Australia in providing a force of that kind would provide a force which it would be very difficult, if not impossible, for Great Britain to send across the seas, and that in thus protecting themselves they were providing the best possible force for the protection of the empire.

Mr. R. L. Borden in the House of Commons, Nov. 24, 1910.

While I respect the opinions of able and intelligent men who disagree with me, I cannot see that it is the proper position to maintain the naval supremacy of this empire by a series of disunited navies, not under one central control. We may be of the different minds as to whether Canada should contribute to the defence of the empire outside of her own territory, but if we once make up our minds that Canada is to so contribute to the naval defence of this empire, then it seems to me absolutely sure and beyond argument that the naval supremacy of the empire can only be upheld BY ONE GREAT NAVAL FORCE UNDER ONE GREAT CENTRAL CONTROL. That is my proposal, that is one reason why it seems to me the naval proposals of the government are useless and could not be carried out effectually.

SECOND DAY OF THE FARMERS' INSTITUTE MEETINGS WAS MARKED BY FINE ADDRESSES

Successful Meetings Were Held at Lakefield Yesterday Which Were Largely Attended---Subjects Were of Prime Importance and Interest to the Farmers of the District.

The second day of the regular winter meetings of the Farmers' Institute of West Peterborough was marked by enthusiastic gatherings. The town hall at Lakefield was the place of the meetings for the second day and while the attendance in the afternoon was not exceedingly large, yet an animated session was held which could not fail but be a source of help and instruction to the body of representative farmers present.

The afternoon session opened about two-thirty, with Mr. J. H. Garbutt presiding. Mr. Wm. Collins, the secretary-treasurer, was also on the platform. In a few suitable words the chairman introduced Mr. Ellis, of the "Farm and Dairy" staff, who addressed the gathering first.

Mr. Ellis wished them to understand that he was talking like one farmer to another. At his home in Nova Scotia he had heard there was no place like Ontario. It was the experience of other men he wished to speak of.

There are greater chances for investment in farming land than in any other. There are excellent advantages in drainage.

He also spoke of pure bred sires and of the immense profits which will accrue in wise investment in pure-bred stock. The value of good seed was also taken up by the speaker. Underdrainage, purebred stock and good seeding are three of the most important elements in the farmers' affairs.

Rotation of Crops.

Mr. Anson Groh, of Preston, was next introduced. His address was on the "Systematic Rotation of Crops." "The subject alone," said Mr. Groh, "suggests system." Very often if you change the man you will change everything. If a man will get to work and systematize his farm work he will greatly improve his farm. One of the first things he must inquire is, what is his farm for? Has it a definite object? It must be stock-raising, cattle feeding or grain-growing or something with an end in view. Many farmers are not aiming at anything in particular.

First, what is your farm fitted for and what are you fitted for? By systematizing the work you will save yourself much unnecessary expense. On every farm, whether it be dairying or cattle-raising be sure you know what you are aiming at. Everything must work together and you must get acquainted with your resources. If you are going to have good cows you must feed them well and also increase the fertility of your soil. A plan must be arranged whereby the things can be made to work together for the object of saving unnecessary time and waste and labour.

Nature will often help a farmer if he studies his environment. The farmer and Nature often help each other. Mr. Groh told the story of his efforts in making a successful farm, one of the first things is to fill the soil with organic matter.

Nitrogen is excellent as it is an organic matter and if it is lacking your soil might just as well be considered as useless. If that organic matter consists of leagumes then it will be more advantageous. Use clovers in your soil.

If we want to build up the fertility of the land organic matter must be prevalent. Warmth, air and moisture arerequired and it will germinate.

If your land has these requirements you will get a full crop. Anything that decays in your land is producing moisture. We want a system that puts more in the soil than it takes out.

We are improving the quality of our food by growing legumes which increase the fertility of the soil.

The best kind of crops to grow were dwelt on at some length by the speaker. The system that you must work out for the fertilizing of the soil calls for legumes, clover and so on. It is practically a systematic three-cornered system with the three requirements in proper proportions.

Alfalfa A Great Feed.

A cow, when fed with silage, will use an enormous amount of silage. Alfalfa is much ahead of clover in value and will give nearly double as rich a crop. Alfalfa will eventually revolutionize farming more than anything else advocated today. It will be a great help to the farmer Get a good field of alfalfa and you have a great source of increase. If farming is such a terrible thing to make a living at, what is the use of trying to cultivate stony ground and irregular land as many farmers do, when they can use it as alfalfa land? Clovers and alfalfas are away ahead of everything as they produce you what you want in the soil. These two growths also help to kill weeds more than anything else. To kill weeds is a great factor in the agricultural world today.

Mr. Groh's address was intently listened to and at its conclusion he was heartily applauded. At this juncture Mr. Collins, the secretary, urged those who had not renewed their subscription to do so at once and also advised them to subscribe to the two farmers' journals, the "Weekly Sun" and the "Canadian Farm" as they were splendid periodicals for the farmers.

Principles of Breeding.

Mr. H. C. Duff, B.S.A., of Norwood, was next introduced and spoke briefly on the "Principles of Breeding."

Who Would Force A Man To Pay A License For Advertising His Business?

Peterborough, Ont., Dec 1st, 1910.

To the Editor of The Examiner

Dear Sir,—For the sake of humanity and for the benefit of the public, please publish this letter in a prominent place in your paper.

The climax has come at last. Our clever City Council has demonstrated the fact that Municipal Government by Commission will eventuary become necessary. At their last meeting, one worthy councillor passed a motion that the owners of illuminated signs be forced to pay a license for the use of same, and in consequence the City Engineer served everybody today with a notice to that effect. Now, in the eyes of God and man, is there any high court judge, with a good, clear intellect, that would sustain any municipality in forcing a private individual to pay license for advertising his business? The answer is no, and as Mr. D. W. Dumble said, they shirk their duties to the poor and aged to while away their time at equipping the Public Library for the benefit of the better classes and furnishing them with all kinds of luxury and comfort, while the poor and aged go about starving, and when they are caught asking for alms or food, they are sent to jail under the guise of vagrants, as there is no other place for them, and now at their last meeting they bring up that unrepentableand erratic by-law which is worse than the dog by-law, or buying eggs by the pound. Again, I would say, it is time for a change of government, when a body of men displays lack of good judgment in such matters as the purchase of the Auburn and the Burleigh Falls powers, and the building of a suitable poor huse, paving our streets and such things that are needed before libraries. Were the people to rise up in arms and impose a license of ten dollars ($10.00) for councillmen and twenty-five dollars ($25.00) for mayor to hold office, you would hear the cry then, and how quickly the street were levelled up to the crossing as soon as four of the aldermen and mayor purchased automobiles. The city's money was spent in the right place that time, because it was to their interest to do so, but when it is to somebody else's interest they are not so willing. I would advise the electors to be more particular in their choice of candidates for this coming election and see if we can't elect a few men with a good, clear intellect and get rid of such men with such erratic ideas, as they are only holding the others back.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, for the space, I will close by saying, I am one who suffers.

Mrs. Wm. Gibbs, 767 George street, has returned from Pittsburg, where she had been called by the serious accident to her brother, which resulted in his death on Sunday night.

Annual Meeting Of The City Hockey League

All clubs in the city wishing to join the City Hockey League are invited to have representatives present at the annual meeting of the organization which will be held on Monday night next, in the parlours of the Oriental Hotel. It is expected that teams from the Mercantile and Church Leagues will come into the City League this season and indications point to a successful year. The West Ends and T. A. S. are the only old members of the League left, but there are plenty of new teams in sight to take the places of those who dropped out. It is highly important, however, that there should be a big attendance at the annual meeting.

Plenty Material For Peterborough O.H.A. Teams

There is plenty of material in Peterborough this winter for two good O.H.A. teams and the officers of the Peterborough Hockey Club are delighted with the prospects. Since last winter a number of new players have located in Peterborough and there should be no difficulty in selecting a good intermediate seven as well as a strong junior team. Among the new men in town are Fred Kelley, a right wing player from Ingersoll, Sorel, a wing man from Milton, Reynolds a defence player from Tranton, Stuart, a forward who has played junior and intermediate O.H.A. for Barrie, Bond, the well known Cobourg defence player, Ross, who captained the Midland Junior O.H.A. team, the two Lalondes, one from Cornwall and the other from Smith's Falls and other promising material. Of last year's team Derocher, Ray, Dobson, Glover, Hefferman, McMillan and Weatherstone are still in the city, the only absentees from last winter being Allan Campbell, Roy McDougall and Jack Seymour. Hefferman and Reynolds, both defence men, are still eligible for the junior team and will be a great source of strength to the Colts.

Gotch-Hackenschmidt Match May Take Place In Montreal

MONTREAL, DEC. 1.—George Kennedy, the Montreal wrestling promoter, leaves for Chicago to-morrow on business connected with the wrestling game.

While he is West he will endeavour to get from Frank Gotch some definite assurance of his return to the mat to defend his championship laurels—for Gotch still fights shy of making any definite statement on the matter.

If Gotch finally consents to come back, Kennedy will make an effort to get the final match pulled off in Montreal at the Arena.

Who Gotch's competitor would be, is, of course, not yet decided, but Mr. Kennedy confidently expects that Hackenschmidt will eliminate all aspirants for the title now held by the Humboldt farmer.

A match between Hack and Gotch on Canadian soil under the British flag would about even up for the match in Chicago two years ago, when those who saw the game did not hesitate to accuse Gotch and his friends of taking every mean advantage possible.

It is figured that if the match can be brought to Montreal Sohmer Park would be altogether too small for it.

Towards the middle of April, however, which would be about the time the match will be due, the ice would all be out of the Arena, and the big rink could hold comfortably from eight to ten thousand people.

Negro Champion Laughs At Yarns Of Allege.. Nervous Breakdown

Examiner Special.

CHICAGO, DEC. 2.—"Someone has been kidding the country," was all that Jack Johnson had to say yesterday regarding his recent alleged nervous breakdown.

The heavyweight champion with his retinue drew up at the home lot yesterday morning after a long tour through the east, hobnobbing with the elite, shaking down the iron men in copious fashion, and mingling at brief intervals with the highbrows decorating the judiciary benches in the municipalities in the east.

If Johnson is really sick, he himself is not aware of it, and so far as he can see there are no apparent signs of ailment. Jack himself is authority for the statement that life continues to be one long, sweet song in spite of the undiversified humdrum of the show business.

The giant pugilist also chuckled into the discard the erroneous yarns of the tiring of the life on the road. To back up the statement, the champion sallied forth with an elaborate account of a tour which he has now laid out, to open about the first week in January.

Nothing in Fight Game.

The fight game is not receiving a great deal of the title-holder's attention. Nothing in view and nothing to do is the way Johnson expressed the situation, but added that he was ready at all times to hook up with the right man with the right purse. The offer to fight, presumably Joe Jeanette, in Paris, is still pigeon-holed for future reference. In all probability it will be accepted, but Johnson is in no hurry to clinch a date so long as the show business promises to keep the cup of plenty filled to overflowing.

While at home Johnson will devote his time to a bit of light training, and is also on the lookout for a flier into the managerial game. The champ has under his wing at present Walter Monahan, the lad who helped in his training for the Jeffries fight, and Johnson apparently has a hunch that his side partner bears the earmarks of a champion.

Will Back Monahan.

He is anxious to match him with any available candidate, and will back his protege with some perfectly good coin. Monahan bears somewhat of a classy reputation about 'Frisco, and has dangling from his belt several scalps nipped from pugilistic aspirants. He counts among his triumphs his bout with Charley Miller, Frank Kruger, Lou Taylor and a host of others.

Johnson will take to the roadwork this morning. The customary jaunt through the parks will be enjoyed, and the champion proposes to keep up this procedure as long as he decorates the home landscape. It will be the first roadwork here since his preparations for the Jeffries battle, and about the only good workout he has had since the fight.

"HUBBY" TOO THIN

Special to The Examiner.

WILKESBARRE, PA., NOV. 26.—John Dedenus, of Fairview, is six feet three inches in height. His contour is that of a lead pencil. His wife left him after one week of married life, saying: "You are too thin".

Dedenus besought Alderman Donohue's intercession.

"When we walked out together," Mrs. Dedenus said to the Alderman, "I looked like a stepladder against the side of a twenty-storey building. Whenever I wanted to talk to him I had to raise my voice or he couldn't hear me. He is so thin that I lived in constant fear that he would fall down and cut himself."

The Alderman persuaded Mrs. Dedenus to go back for another trial of six months.

SCARCITY OF SERVANTS

The Examiner on Tuesday night stated that an Eglishman by the name of Wm. Dickers, accompanied by his wife and a young girl were coming to Canada, and would reach Peterborough about the ninth or tenth of December. It stated that the young woman was anxious to secure employment as a domestic. Mr. Howson informed the Examiner this morning that he could not go to bed that night for the reason that he was kept busy answering the telephone from persons wanting to get this girl. Enquiries to no end kept pouring in, and some women even called at Mr. Howson's house in an effort to secure her. But she has already been placed in a good home at Springville. This is an evidence of the scarcity of domestics and also of the widespread circulation of the Examiner.

A BILIOUS HEADACHE

Bile in the blood is poison and causes pain. Mrs. Thomas Covert, Highland Grove, Ont., writes: "For years I suffered with biliousness, stomach trouble and terrible headaches. Having used Dr. Chase's Kidney and Liver Pills will say unhesitatingly that this is the most effective treatment obtainable for these troubles."

TORONTO CUSTOMS

The Toronto News splashes across all the columns of its front page, this legend. "Toronto customs for twelve months exceed a million a month—increase for year $2,000,000." Yet Toronto weeps over the humiliation of having a "Grit" government in power, and does its best to replace it with a Conservative Government, which, when it had a chance, never gave the Toronto newspapers a chance to soil the face of their display type with ink to gloat over the increase of cusoms duties, the measure of the prosperity of the people, of the activity of trade.

"WOMEN TO WIN" SAYS FORBES-ROBERTSON

Famous English Actor Believes That Suffrage Will Come in Five Years at the Most.

HIS REASONS

CHICAGO, NOV. 26.—"Suffrage for women may come in two years," said Forbes-Robertson, "or it may be postponed for five years. But it will assuredly come.

"Woman has her own place in the scheme of life—a place that she has never been called upon to fill with such imperative voice as at present. Men must do the great work of exploration and adventure, accomplish the vast engineering projects and the other achievements proper to their physical nature, and we give them our full meed of admiration for it; but to woman belongs in a sufficient measure the safeguarding of the more domestic interests. She has her place in the household; her authority, her duty, and in the present plan of the world, as we see every day, it is necessary that that sphere be extended. She must look after the welfare of the children, the conduct of the schools, of the hospitals, the prisons, morality and hygiene. The right of suffrage will permit her to do this work and will bring her to distinction.

"Conditions are different here, as universal suffrage, in the accepted sense, prevails and the question of votes for women is much less acute than in England. Still the time will come when it will be necessary to concede the suffrage to women here also."

THE EVENING CHIT-CHAT
By Ruth Cameron

"THERE, I know she'll never forgive me, but I just couldn't help giving her a piece of my mind."

The lady who spoke had just said all she thought — and in the heat and abandon of the moment, a good deal more, I suspect — about a certain cult to which one of her dearest friends was deeply devoted.

She had been impolite.

She had been undignified.

She had hurt her good friend deep, deep down where hurts are powerfully apt to fester instead of healing.

But she had had the exquisite pleasure of giving away a piece of her mind.

Wonder if it paid?

Looks to me like a very big price to pay.

I should think you might call that being "generous to a fault"—that is, being willing to give away a piece of one's mind at such a cost.

And what a lot of people are generous that way.

I was talking just the other day to a clever girl who has somehow failed to receive the advancement in her business career that one would expect from her unusual brains and ability.

The talk turned on this delicate subject.

"I'll tell you just what I think it is," she said frankly. "You know I never could be smooth-tongued and hypocritical like some folks, and even when people were above me I never could keep from giving them a piece of my mind once in awhile.

Lucky she was clever. If she hadn't been her propensity would doubtless have cost her her position as well as her advancement.

Of course there come to all of us once in awhile these uncontrollable fits of generosity when we feel that we simply must give someone a piece of our minds.

To most generous impulses it is well to yield before a cold-blooded second thought has time to annihilate them.

But as to this kind of generosity— well it seems to me it is good to remember when one is attacked this way, that blessed as it is to give away things, most of us have need of all our brains for the business of living and can't afford to give away a piece of our minds, however small.

CANADA AND ITS HISTORY OF LOYALTY AND SELF SACRIFICE

Patriotic Lecture by Lt.-Col. MacQueen, of Toronto, Before The Canadian Club, of Peterborough, Last Night, Was an Eloquent and Inspiring Effort.

Eminently suitable to the auspices under which it was given was the historical address upon "Canada," before the Canadian Club of Peterborough at its dinner in the Hotel National by Lt.-Col. MacQueen of Toronto, last night. Lt. Col. MacQueen proved an eloquent, entertaining speaker, with a firm and comprehensive grasp of his subject and the ability to bring vividly before the minds of his auditors the scenes or the incidents he was describing. His lecture was a sketch or rather a series of sketches of the most important incidents in Canadian history from its discovery to the present day, was presented in a most delightful form, inasmuch as it teemed with graphic word pictures and was interspersed with appropriate songs of a patriotic nature by Messrs W. McIlroy and H. W. Morphet.

Dr. Cameron, the president of the Canadian Club, presided, and after a delightful repast served in excellent fashion, had received careful attention, introduced the speaker of the evening. Before doing so, however, he called attention to the desirability of the Club increasing its membership. There were, he said, some one hundred and fifty members, about the same number as last year, and he felt that there should be at least one hundred more. If each member present would try to induce another to join the desired result would be attained without any difficulty.

He had great pleasure in introducing Lt. Col. MacQueen, whose object should appeal to everyone who called himself a Canadian.

Lt.-Col. MacQueen prefaced his address with the remark that he was glad to have the honour of appearing before the Canadian Club of Peterborough and especially of lecturing upon a subject so near and dear to him, offering for his text Kipling's Recessional. Canada was a young country, yet she was a great and growing country, and the speaker contrasted the present conditions with those existing before the white man came. Riches and gold, however, did not constitute a nation, it was her people, good or bad, that counted. The history of Canada was a great and noble one, one grand, glorious history of loyalty, devotion and self-sacrifice.

The speaker commenced his lecture proper by dealing with the discovery of Canada, referring to the visit of Erickson in 1001, of John Cabot in 1497, and his son, Sebastian, the following year, of the Portuguese in 1502, of the first French expedition in 1514, and finally of the exploration of Jacques Cartier in 1535, when he visited the sites of Quebec and Montreal.

Lt.-Col. MacQueen passed on to deal with the next important period in Canadian history, the struggle between the French and English, in America, for supremacy, which culminated in the capture of Quebec. After giving the causes and the incidents leading up to the final struggle the speaker gave a graphic description of the brilliant capture of Quebec, by General Wolfe. "When the British flag was hoisted over the citadel of Quebec for God and the right," remarked Lt.-Col. MacQueen amid great applause, "it went up to stay, and we English Canadians and French Canadians alike will keep it there."

Mr. McIlroy sang with great spirit and effect "Rule Britannia" at this point, his number being strikingly appropriate as an echo of the speaker's remarks.

After the Fall of Quebec.

The dissension between the English and French residents of Canada after the English victory was next referred to. So badly were the two races divided that the people of the United States thought that they had only to say the word and they would find the Canadians throwing off the allegiance of Great Britain. They discovered their mistake in 1775, when they tried to capture Canada, and the speaker gave the details of this war before passing on to deal with the war of 1812, 1813 and 1814, the important battles of which he described in a most interesting manner. He touched upon the rebellion of 1837 and then passed on to the part Canada had taken in 1853 at the time of the Indian mutiny, when the Old Hundredth Regiment had been raised. The Fenian Raid of 1866, when Canada placed 40,000 men in the field in two weeks, ready to defend the Land of the Maple, was referred to, and the forming of the confederation of the Dominion in 1867, the reference to which was marked by the singing of "The Maple Leaf" by Mr. H. W. Morphet, in splendid style.

Lt.-Col. McQueen then dealt with the Northwest rebellion and then with the South African war, pointing out the brilliant showing that had been made by the Canadian forces in South Africa. He did not claim that the British won because the Canadians helped them, but it was a fact that wherever the Canadians were, there victory was also. The gallant charge of the Canadians at Paardeburg, as described by Conan Doyle, was pictured by the speaker.

Mr. Morphet rendered the favourite song of the war period, "Heroes and Gentlemen" with a vim and effect that were wholly pleasing.

Lt.-Col. MacQueen concluded his most able address by giving his impressions of Canada as she is to-day, illustrating his references by descriptions of a journey throughout the land of the Maple. At the conclusion of his remarks a most hearty vote of thanks was passed to the speaker of the evening, on motion of Dr. Morrison and Mr. S. R. Armstrong.

Mr. R. J. Devey was the accompanist of the evening presiding at the piano in his usual efficient manner. During the repast the gathering was entertained by many splendid selections from a "Victrola" very kindly loaned for the occasion by the Greene Music Company.

"CALL OF THE WILD"

During the past few years those theatrical pessimists who bewailed the fact that the American drama of the good old days was a thing of the past, have received a severe shock by the instantaneous successes which have been scored by plays, essentially of the American soil, such as "Arizona," "The Virginian," "Call of the Wild." It is a peculiar fact, also, that the scenes of these great successes are laid upon the frontier of our land, in the days of the adobe hut and the handy "shootin' iron." As a trinity, they may be classified as "Border dramas"; individually, they differ widely, and it is doubtful if ever there was told, upon the stage, a purer, sweeter story of a strong man's devotion to a beautiful woman than in "Call of the Wild." Louis Evan Shipman's realistic play, in which Franklin Woodruff will be seen at the Grand on Tuesday next, Dec. 6.

The story deals with the conquest of the Northwest by the United States troops. Living in that section is John Ermine, a young white man who was raised from infancy by a friendly Indian tribe, and whose only education had been received from a white recluse known to the Indians as Crooked Bear. Ermine is induced to join the Scouts of the United States army, his decision to go out into the world, being influenced by his hope of finding the original of a "sun picture," or photograph, which he had found while roaming through the wilds.

Ermine reports to the United States troops just in time to save a wagon train from destruction by stealing through the lines of attacking Sioux and bringing a rescuing party of cavalry to the scene. He then meets the original of the "sun picture"—Katherine, the daughter of Maj. Sarles, the commandant of the post to which he voluntarily has assigned himself. He declares his love for the girl, but she tells him that marriage with him is impossible at least, she thinks it is at the time, but the subsequent events bring to her a change of heart.

The drama "The Call of the Wild" is founded upon the stirring book by Frederic Remington, "John Ermine of the Yellowstone," than whom no more vivid writer upon topics pertaining to western life ever put pen to paper. All of the characters are clearly and forcibly drawn, the atmosphere of the early military post stands out in bold relief, and the combination of virile play, excellent cast and complete scenic investiture is one which is equalled very seldom.

East City Young Man Advertises For A Wife

The Examiner has always preached the doctrine that Peterborough people should patronize home industries in everything. Therefore, it was with a feeling of indignation that the advertisement given below was read in the columns of the Toronto Star. The man who goes out of Peterborough to look for a helpmate doesn't deserve a good wife and probably won't get her.

The advertisement in question reads as follows:

A young gentleman, aged 22, wishes to correspond with a young lady aged about 23, view to matrimony, must be industrious, neat, tidy and faithful in all she does. English preferred; a good worker; would like to correspond right away, and will exchange photos; none but the right kind need apply. Apply — James street, Peterborough.

QUESTION FOR ALL TIME AND FOR ALL MEN

Rev. R. Pogue, at Special Meeting at St. Paul's, Deals With the Problem "What Shall I Do Then With Jesus Who is Called Christ?"

AN IMPRESSIVE SERMON

The service at St. Paul's church last evening was attended by the largest crowd of the week. The people have been turning out as they have not done before to any such effort, and many are speaking of definite blessing received.

Mr. Pogue spoke last night on Pilate's question: "What shall I do then with Jesus, who is called Christ?" He said that the man had not lived who had not Pilate's question to ask and answer. It is a question for all time and all men. The alternatives which presented themselves to Pilate that day in the Judgment Hall have presented themselves to men ever since—Barabbas or Christ? — the world or Christ?—heaven or hell? Pilate had to answer this question without the full knowledge of who Christ was. When we answer it, it is with the light of nineteen centuries streaming upon His Divine face. Pilate's doom was awful. But of how much sorer punishment must we be thought worthy, if, with our additional light we reject Him. Ours is the greater sin; hence ours will be the greater condemnation. Everything depends upon what you do with Christ. Your salvation from sin's guilt, your acceptance or rejection before God, depend altogether upon your answer to this question. "He that believeth on the Son is not condemned, but he that believeth not is condemned already, because he hath not believed on the only begotten Son of God." The rejection of Christ is the greatest sin man can commit, for it is the rejection of the greatest manifestation of love that God could give. And it is a sin for which there is no forgiveness. Only by accepting Christ is a holy life possible. Most men want to do right, want to keep their garments "unspotted from the world." But, how? is the problem which they cannot solve. Jesus Christ is the only answer to the question. There is power in the blood, there is power in the life of Christ. Just as the power of the rising life of Spring throws off all the dead leaves that have been clinging to the trees throughout the long winter so the power of the life of Christ within the heart throws off all the dead leaves of habit and of a foul and sinful life. What will you do with Christ? You can let Him stand at the door of your heart without a word of recognition; or you can positively reject Him; or you may accept Him into your heart and life. If you accept Him you will become a child of God. "To as many as received Him to them gave He power to become the sons of God." If you do not accept Him, then there is another question that I should like to ask: "What will Christ do with you?" When Christ quits His mediatorial throne and ascends the throne of judgment, what will He do with you?

Mr. Mulligan sang two solos last night with power and great effect. He will sing at to-night's meeting also. There will be a special service for girls held this afternoon at 4.30, and an evangelistic service for boys at 7.15.

RESULTING IN MUCH GOOD

Revival Services at Mark Street Church Attracting Many

The address given by Rev. R. H. Whiteside Wednesday was listened to with very deep interest, many regarding it as one of the most effective talks given by this talented evangelist in connection with the series of meetings now being held in the Mark street church.

His theme was "The Sold Birthright," taken from Heb., 12:16, in the elaboration of which the folly and sin of much present day bargaining and temporising was made to appear.

In closing his remarks he earnestly called upon men and women in the name of God, to use their brains and not allow themselves to be robbed of their God-given heritage.

As on former nights, there were a number of decisions registered.

Two most beautiful duets were rendered during the service by Mr. Thornton and Miss Callander.

On Friday night Mr. Thornton is expected to assist again in song with the male quartette, of which he is a member.

Special music will be heard to-night.

At Mark street church to-night, Evangelist Whiteside will speak especially to men, continuing the line of conversion began last Sunday afternoon. The women are cordially invited to this service and the congregation will doubtless be a large one.

The Orphans male quartette will be present and will render some choice selections.

FREE LIBRARIES

Are Being Given by Farm and Dairy to Country Schools and Farmers' Clubs

There is on display in the large shoe store window of Robert Neil's store, George street, a specimen library which is being offered by Farm and Dairy, the agricultural paper published at Peterborough, in return for a club of 25 new subscribers to this enterprising paper. The library contains between 70 and 75 bound volumes of fiction and standard works by well known authors. The books are encased in a nice stained wooden case, and present a very attractive appearance. Several of the rural schools in Peterbrough county are taking up the matter of securing one of these free libraries. A selection of over 150 books is offered to the school securing a library, and every school in Peterborough County would do well to put themselves in touch with the Circulation Department of Farm and Dairy, in order that they may avail themselves of this most liberal offer.

PITY THE BABIES

All babies whose mothers do not know about Dr. Chase's Ointment are truly to be pitied. They are sure to have skin troubles of one kind or another such as chafing, skin irritation, scald head, milk rash or baby eczema and nothing can bring them comfort so quickly as Dr. Chase's Ointment. It stops itching promptly and heals the skin beautifully.

OBITUARY

EDWARD HOLMES.

The death occurred at three o'clock this morning at the residence of his daughter, Mrs. H. Hanwell, 308 Mark street, of Edward Holmes. The deceased had only been ill two days, having suffered a paralytic stroke. He was 69 years of age and was born in London, England. He had been out in this country about four years, but during that time had been home on a visit. He leaves to mourn his loss two daughters, Mrs. H. Hanwell, of this city, and Mrs. Holleman of London, Eng.

The funeral will take place on Monday afternoon at half past two, from 308 Mark street, to the Little Lake cemetery.

MRS. THOS. ELLIOTT.

After many years of suffering Mary Laing, relict of the late Thos. Elliott, and one of the best known and most highly respected residents of Cavan, passed away at 3 o'clock this morning at her home, Lot 19, Concession 8, Cavan Township. The deceased was sixty-three years of age and had been a resident of Cavan for the past thirty five years. She had a very large circle of friends who will regret to learn of her demise.

She is survived by five sons, Bert, of Saskatchewan; Lorne of Winnipeg; Payson of Manitoba, and Bruce and Fred at home. Her death is mourned also by three brothers and five sisters, William and Alexander Laing of North Monaghan; James Laing of Otonabee; Mrs. David Bateer, Cavan; Mrs. Goodfellow and Miss Margaret Laing, North Monaghan; Mrs. W. L. McKenzie of Winnipeg; and Mrs. Robertson, Park street, city.

The funeral will take place on Monday afternoon at 1.30 o'clock to Fraserville cemetery.

Death of Mrs. Bitts.

The many friends of Mrs. Florence Bitts, of 1801 West 45th street, sympathize with her in the irreparable loss of her mother, Mrs. Agnes Bitts, aged forty-five years, who died after a short illness, Friday, November 18, at 1 o'clock a.m. The funeral took place Saturday morning at 8.30 o'clock from St. Patrick's church, with high mass and the interment was in Calvary cemetery. By the death of her mother, Miss Bitts is the sole survivor of the family, she first having loss of her brother, then the father died, and at last the angel of death severed the strong ties which bound her to her dear mother.

What Lrl Hicks Says Of The December Weather

A regular storm period is central on the 1st, being in progress from the westward as December comes in. Low barometer and storms of rain and snow will traverse central to eastern sections on the 1st, 2nd and 3rd, followed closely by anti-storm conditions from the northwest—that is by rising barometer, high, northerly winds, and very much colder. General cold will prevail over most parts of the country from about the 3rd to 8th. A seismic period, beginning in November is central on December 1st, extending to the 4th.

A reactionary storm period is central on the 6th, 7th and 8th. This period will lead directly up to the beginning of Earth's winter solstice, combined with a Mercury period. Threatening weather with rain and snow will be general at this time, merging into the storm period next following.

A regular storm period extends from the 10th to the 15th, being central on the 12th. This period is exactly coincident with the annual December crisis of magnetic perturbations. The disturbed compass, volcanic unrest and seismic trouble are all natural results of astronomical conditions at this time. The barometer will fluctuate and fall to low readings, and storms of rain, with probable thunder southward, will appear in the west early in the period, and for a long series of days following, rain storms, turning to snow, sleet and blizzards will sweep over most parts of the sea and land in this and other countries. For three or four days before and after the 16th, look for much seismic trouble, with volcanic eruptions, and dangerous tidal waves at diagonal extremes of both the northern and southern hemispheres.

A reactionary storm period falls on the 16th, 17th and 18th, at the centre of the Mercury period. Winter gales and blizzards from the preceding period will run into this period, making a stormy spell on sea and land for many days. Navigation on the north Atlantic Ocean will be perilous through all this part of December. Note this forecast.

A regular storm period covers the 21st to 27th, central on the 24th. This period is at the centre of December solstice, and it will bring to a marked degree midwinter storms of rain, sleet and blizzards. Vigilance on land and sea will avert suffering and save life and property at this and other December storm periods. Snow, high north-west gales and a great cold wave will be in sight to most parts, on or close to Christmas.

A reactionary storm period covers the last three days of the month and year. This period will bring change to warmer, falling barometer and renewed rain and snow. A seismic period extends three to four days on either side of the 31st. Hence seismic reoprts will be natural any time from December 28th to January 3, 1911.

The Trent Canal And Its Many Vessels

The annual reoprt of the Department of Marine and Fisheries, which has just been issued, gives some very interesting information regarding the navigation interests of the country. Departmental blue books, as a rule, are looked upon as very dry reading; at the same time, they contain very valuable records. For instance, if a person were to ask another the tonnage of a certain boat that plys on the local waters, it is doubtful if he could get off-hand the correct information. Or, how many persons know the number of registered crafts on the Trent Canal? Very few. Yet, if one were to take the annual report of the Department of Marine and Fisheries, or rather the supplement thereto, that refers to steamboat inspection, and go away back somewhere and sit down and peruse its contents, this information would be easily found.

As a matter of fact, there are 53 registered vessels on the Trent Canal. This includes all vessels propelled by steam of more than 5 tons burden. It does not include the countless little gasoline yachts that play havoc with the patience of the lock masters. Fifty-three steam crafts is certainly quite a fleet for these waters, and if formed in single column would make quite an imposing procession.

The Otonabee of Peterborough, is the largest craft plying on the Trent Canal, having a tonnage of 136, and being licensed to carry 444 passengers. The Stony Lake comes next, being licensed to carry 272 passengers. The Islay of Orillia, and the Empress of Young's Point come next in order. The Islay is permitted to carry 240 passengers, the Empress 224.

The full list of vessels and their tonnage is as follows:

THE VILLAGE BAND NOT PASSING AWAY

The village band is not becoming extinct—not in Bobcaygeon in any event, if one were to judge from reading a recent issue of the Bobcaygeon Independent. An item in that widely read journal says:

"A fine new Slide Trombone and Clarionet were in the window of Hamilton's store this week, the trombone having been purchased by Mr. Lloyd Hamilton, and the Clarionet by Mr. Cliff. Beck. Messrs. Wm. Lyle, A. Sleby and Geo. Turner have each purchased cornets. When the members of the Band are purchasing their own instruments, it shows interest in the work, and a likelihood of perseverance and progress. Mr. Brooks, the Bandmaster, is giving a large share of his time to the brinning out of a good band.

They intend giving a concert in the Town Hall on Monday, Dec. 26. It is the intention of the Band to give a good programme, lots of laughing, good music, singing, etc. After the concert, Mr. Brooks, the Bandmaster, intends to make a change in the Band and start a course of musical instruction from the blackboard up, so as to be prepared for next summer, and be able to turn out with about twenty soloists."

This is, undoubtedly, a fine spirit that is being displayed by the members of the above mentioned musical organizations. The average citizen of a city or large town, who is accustomed to hearing fine music in the park or on the street, never realized the great difficulties experienced by villagers in keeping together a brass band, as compared to the comparatively easy task a city has in this respect.

A city band has a large stock to draw from; it has, as a rule, the prestige and financial advantage of being identified with a military organization; it has a wide, and as a matter of fact, a remunerative line of engagements open to it, and is assisted as well by substantial civic grants. But the village band, the delight of the small boy, the comfort of the various church societies, and the pride of the municipality, has to exist under much less favourable circumstances. The village band is supposed to turn out at any old time, on any old occasion, and invariably without remuneration at that. No wonder, then, that there are fewer village bands in this district, than there were some years ago. The village band, is, as a rule, supplied with instruments by many of the members providing their own, and the rest thereafter being purchased by money earned by the band, which, in the case of a city organization, would go into a take the pockets of the players themselves. The Village Band is then spared to give its services gratuitously to every Sunday School Picnic, Firemen's meeting, social, or go any hero-worshipping occasion that may arise. In addition to this, the village band is expected to reel off an up-to-date programme on the village green once a week at least. By and by some town or city band advertises for a B flat cornet player, or a slide trombone artist, and the Village Bandmaster gets up some fine morning to find that one of his best men has gone away. Then Mr. Bandmaster commences a break in some new material, and the same process is gone through again. The Village Band, which struggles along for an existence is in many cases, a nursery for city bands.

It is to be hoped the Bobcaygeon Band will flourish. It deserves to.

Acres of Diamonds

(By Russell H. Conwell)

The following is a lecture by Russell H. Conwell, Clergyman, platform orator, Pastor of the Baptist Temple, Philadelphia, since 1882, and President of the Temple College; born in South Worthington, Mass., February 15th, 1843, the most famous of his series of popular lectures, delivered on many platforms:

Ladies and Gentlemen,—The title of this lecture originated away back in 1869. When going down the Tigris River, we hired a guide from Bagdad to show us down to the Arabian Gulf. That guide whom we employed resembled the barbers we find in America. That is, he resembled the barbers in certain mental characteristics. He thought it was not only his duty to guide us down the river, but also to entertain us with stories, many of them I have forgotten, and I am glad I have. But there was one which I recall to-night. The guide grew irritable over my lack of appreciation and as he led my camel by the halter he introduced his story by saying: "This is a tale I reserve for my particular friends". So I then gave him my close attention. He told me that there once lived near the shore of the River Indus, toward which we were then travelling, an ancient Persian by the name of Al Hafed. He said that Al Hafed owned a large farm, with orchards, grain fields, and gardens; that he had money at interest, had a beautiful wife and lovely children, and was a wealthy and contented man. Contented because he was wealthy, and wealthy because he was contented.

One day there visited this old Persian farmer one of those ancient Buddist priests, one of the wise men of the East, who sat down by the fireside and told the old farmer how this world was made. He told him that this world was once a great bank of fog, and that the Almighty thrust His finger into this bank of fog, and began slowly to move his finger around, increased the speed of his finger until he whirled this bank of fog into a solid ball of fire, and as it went rolling through the universe, burning its way through other banks of fog, it condensed the moisture, until it fell in floods of rain upon the heated surface of the world, and cooled the outward crust, threw up the mountains, and the hills and the valleys of this wonderful world of ours.

"And," said the old priest, "if this internal melted mass burst forth and cooled very quickly it became granite, if it cooled more slowly, it became copper; if it cooled less quickly, silver, less quickly, gold, and after gold, diamonds, were made." Said the old priest, "a diamond is a congealed drop of sunlight." This statement is literally true.

And the old priest said another very curious thing. He said that a diamond was the last and the highest of God's mineral creations, as a woman is the last and highest of God's animal creations. That is the reason, I suppose, why the two have such a liking for each other.

The old priest told Al Hafed if he had a diamond the size of his thumb he could purchase a dozen farms like his. "And," said the priest, "if you had a handful of diamonds, you could purchase the country, and if you had a mine of diamonds you could purchase kingdoms, and place your children upon thrones, through the influence of your great wealth."

Al Hafed heard all about the diamonds that night, and went to bed a poor man. He wanted a whole mine of diamonds. Early in the morning he sought the priest and awoke him. Well, I know by experience, that a priest is very cross when awakened early in the morning.

Al Hafed said: "Will you tell me where I can find diamonds?" The priest said, "Diamonds?" What do you want of diamonds?" Said Al Hafed: "I want to be immensely rich." "Well," said the priest, if you want diamonds, all you have to do is to go and find them, and then you will have them." "But," said Al Hafed "I don't know where to go." "If you will find a river that runs over the white sands, between high mountains in those white sands you will always find diamonds," answered the priest. "But," asked Al Hafed, do you believe there is such a river?" Plenty of them; all you have to do is just to go where they are. Well, said Al Hafed, "I will go." So he sold his farm, collected his money that was at interest, left his family in charge of a neighbour, and away he went in search of diamonds. He began his search, very properly to my mind, at the Mountains of the Moon," afterwards he came around into Palestine, and then wandered on into Europe. At last, when his money was all gone and he was in a rags and poverty and wretchedness, he stood on the shore at Barcelona, in Spain, when a great tidal wave swept through the pillars of Hercules, and the poor, starving, afflicted stranger could not resist the awful temptation to cast himself into that incoming tide, and he sank beneath its foaming crust, never to rise in this life again.

When the old guide had told me that story, he stopped the camel I was riding upon, and went back to arrange the baggage on another camel and I had an opportunity to muse over his story. And I asked myself this question: "Why did this old guide reserve this story for his particular friends?" But when he came back and took up the camel's halter once more I found that was the first story I ever heard wherein the hero was killed in the first chapter. For he went on into the second chapter just as though there had been no break.

Said he: "The man who purchased Al Hafed's farm led his camel out into the garden to drink and as the animal put his nose into the shallow water of the garden brook Al Hafed's successor noticed a curious flash of light from the white sands of the stream. Reaching in he pulled out a black stone, containing a strange eye of light. He took it into the house, as a strange pebble and putting it on the mantle that covered the central fire went his way and forgot all about it.

"But not long after that that same old priest came to visit Al Hafed's successor. The moment he opened the door he noticed the flash of light. He rushed to the mantle and said: "Here is a diamond! Here is a diamond! Has Al Hafed returned?" "Oh, no, Al Hafed has not returned, and we have not heard from him since he went away, and that is not a diamond. It is nothing but a stone we found in our garden." "But, said the priest, I know a diamond when I see it. I tell you that is a diamond. Then, altogether, they rushed out into the garden. They stirred up the white sands with their fingers and there came up others more beautiful, more valuable gems than the first. Thus, said the guide, and friends it is historically true—was discovered the diamond mines of Golconda, the most valuable diamond mines in the history of the ancient world.

Well, when the guide had added the second chapter to his story, he took off his Turkish cap and swung it in the air to call my special attention to the moral; those Arab guides always have morals to their stories, though the stories are not always moral. He said to me, had Al Hafed remained at home and dug in his own cellar, or underneath his own wheat fields, instead of wretchedness, starvation, poverty and death in a strange land, he would have had "Acres of Diamonds."

"Acres of Diamonds," for every acre of that old farm, yes, every shovelful, afterwards revealed the gems which since have decorated the crowns of monarchs.

When the guide had added the moral to his story I saw why he reserved it for his particular friends. But I might tell him I could see it. It was that mean old Arab's way of going around a thing, like a lawyer, and saying indirectly, what he didn't have to say directly; "that in his private opinion there was a certain young man travelling down the Tigris River, who might better be at home, in America." (Laughter). I told him his story reminded me of one you all know it. I told him that a man in California, in 1847, owned a ranch there. He heard that they had discovered gold in Southern California, though they had not. And he sold his farm to Colonel Sutton, who put a mill on the little stream below the house. One day his little girl gathered some of the sand in her hands from the raceway and brought it into the house and while she was sifting it through her fingers a visitor noticed the first shining scales of real gold. Acres and acres of gold. I was introduced a few years ago while in California to the one-third owner of the farm and he was then receiving one hundred and twenty dollars in gold for every fifteen minutes of his life, sleeping or waking. You and I would enjoy an income like that, now that we have no income tax.

Professor Agassiz, the great geologist of Harvard University, that magnificent scholar, told us at the summer school of mineralogy that there once lived in Pennsylvania a man who owned a farm, and he did with his farm just what I should do if I had a farm in Pennsylvania. He sold it. (Applause). But, before he sold it he decided to secure employment, collecting coal oil. He wrote to his cousin in Canada that he would like to go into that business. His cousin wrote back to him: "I cannot engage you, because you don't understand the oil business." "Then," said he, "I will understand it, and with commendable zeal he set himself at the study of the whole theory of the oil subject. He began at the second day of God's creation. He found that there was once another sun that shone on this world, and that then there were immense forests of vegetation. He found that the other sun was put out and that this world, after a time, fell into the wake of the present sun. It was then locked in blocks of ice. Then there rose mighty icebergs that human imagination cannot grasp, and as these mountains of ice did ride those stormy seas, they beat down the original vegetation, they planed down the hills, toppled over the mountains, and everywhere buried the original vegetation, which has since been turned by chemical action to the primitative beds of coal, and, in connection with which only is found coal oil in paying quantities. So he found out where oil originated. He studied it until he knew what it looked like, what it smelled like, how to refine it, and where to sell it. Now, said he to his cousin, in a letter, I know all about the oil business, from the second day of God's creation to the present time. His cousin replied to him: Come on, so he sold his farm in Pennsylvania for $833, even money, no cents.

After he had gone from the farm the farmer, who had purchased his place, went out to arrange for watering the cattle and he found that the previous owner had already arranged for that matter. There was a stream running down the hillside, back of the barn, and across that stream from bank to bank, the previous owner had put in a plank, edgewise, at a slight angle, for the purpose of throwing over to one side of the brook a dreadful looking scum through which the cattle would not put their noses. Thus that man who had gone to Canada, and who had studied all about the oil business had been himself damming back for twenty-three years a flood of coal oil, which the state geologist said in 1870 was worth to our state a hundred million dollars. A hundred millions! The city of Titusville boldly stands on that farm now, and yet, though he knew all about the theory, he sold the farm for $833. Again, I say, no sense. (Applause.)

I need another illustration; I find it in Massachusetts. The young man went down to Yale College and studied mines and mining, and became such an adept at mineralogy that during his senior year in the Sheffield school they paid him as a tutor fifteen dollars a week for the spare time in which he taught. When he graduated they raised his pay to forty-five dollars a week, and offered him a professorship. As soon as they did that he went home to his mother. If they had raised his salary to fifteen dollars and sixty cents then he would have stayed. I won't work for forty-five dollars a week; the idea of a man with a brain like mine, working for forty-five dollars a week. Let us go to California and stake out gold and silver and copper claims and be rich. Said his mother, "now, Charley, it is just as well to be happy as of be rich.

Yes, said he, it is just as well to be rich and happy, too. (Applause). They were both right about it, and as he was the only son and she was a widow, of course, he had his way. They always do. So they sold out in Massachusetts, and went not to California, but to Wisconsin, and there he entered the employ of the Superior Copper Mining Co., at fifteen dollars a week again. But with the promise that he should have an interest in any mine he should discover for the Company. I don't believe he ever discovered a mine there, still I have often felt when I mentioned this fact in Northern Wisconsin, that he might be in the audience and feel mad at the way I speak about it. Still here is the fact and it seems unfortunate to be in the way of a good illustration. But I don't believe he ever discovered any other mines. Yet I don't know any thing about that end of the line; I know that he had scarcely gone from Massachusetts before the farmer who had purchased the farm was bringing a large basket of potatoes in through the gateway. You know in Massachusetts our farms are most entirely stone wall. (Applause.) Hence the basket hugged very close in the gate and he dragged it on one side, then on the other, and as he was pulling that basket through the gateway the farmer noticed in the upper and outer corner of that stone wall, next to the gate, a block of native silver, eight inches square, and the professorship of mines, mining and mineralogy who would not work for forty-five dollars a week because he knew so much about the subject when he sold that homestead sat on that very stone to make the bargain. He was born on that very farm and they told me he had gone by that piece of silver and rubbed it with his sleeve until it reflected his countenance, and seemed to say to him—here, take me; here is a hundred thousand dollars right down in the rocks, just for the taking; but he wouldn't take it. This was near Newbury Port, Mass. He wouldn't believe in silver at home, he said there is no silver in Newburyport. It is all away off; well, I don't know where. But somewhere else, and he was a professor of mineralogy. I don't know of anything I would better enjoy in taking the whole time than telling of the blunders like this which I have heard that "Professors" have made. I say that I would enjoy it. But after all there is another side to the question, for the more I think about it the more I would like to know what he is doing in Wisconsin. I don't believe he has found any mines, but I can tell you what I do believe is the case: I think he sits out there by his fireside to-night and his friends are gathered around him and he is saying to them something like this: "Do you know that man Conwell, who lives in Philadelphia. Oh, yes, I have heard of him.

The Chocolates that are Different

There is no such thing as "Chocolates Made Fresh Every Hour". Any dealer, who claims to sell Chocolates an hour after they are made, either mis-states the facts or knows nothing about bon-bon or chocolate making.

All chocolate creams, when first made, are hard, and must be kept at least a fortnight before they become soft again.

Neilson's Chocolates are always matured for at least a month. This maturing brings the centers of the chocolates back to their original creamy state—and allows the delicious fruit centers to blend perfectly with the cream.

"Cherries in Maraschino, Chocolate Dipped" are as different as they are delicious. A plump French cherry in Maraschino, surrounded by a melting cream, enclosed in a globe of indescribably rich chocolate.

Neilson's Chocolates come in 33 different packages—containing something different and delightful for every "sweet tooth".

If you are unable to obtain Neilson's Chocolates in your vicinity send 50c. and we will send you a special package of the most delicious assorted Chocolates you ever ate.

"I HAD ONE OF MY RAGING HEADACHES

When I First Used "Fruit-a-tives"

MR. PITT

SHANLY, ONT. SEPT. 5th, 1910.

You certainly have the Greatest Discovered Headache Cure in the world. Before "Fruit-a-tives" came before the public, I suffered tortures from headaches, caused mostly from stomach disorders. I tried many different remedies without any relief.

One of your travellers called on me shortly after you started selling "Fruit-a-tives", and on that day I had one of my raging headache, and had my head almost in a raw sore from external applications. I hated to see any person coming into the store (I am a general store keeper at the above address and have been in the same store 25 years) much less a commercial traveller, and I told him, very curtly, that I had a headache and "want none of his Patent medicine", but he very good-naturedly offered me a sample of "Fruit-a-tives", and insisted on my trying them. I did so, with what I would call amazing results. They completely cured me and since then (nearly six years ago) it is only necessary for me to take one occasionally to preserve me in my present good health. I was 65 years old yesterday.

You are at liberty to publish this letter and my photo, if you think it would induce some others to use your splendid remedy. (Signed) WM. PITT.

"Fruit-a-tives" cures Headaches because it is the greatest blood purifying medicine in the world. "Fruit-a-tives" is also the only remedy made of fruit juices. Dealers everywhere sell "Fruit-a-tives" at 50c a box, 6 for $2.50 or trial size, 25c. If your dealer does not handle "Fruit-a-tives", send to Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa, enclosing regular retail price.

THE FAMILY HEARTH

TOO LATE

Yes! thou art fair, and I had loved
If we in earlier hours had met,
But ere toward me thy beauty moved
The sun of Love's brief day had set.

Though I may watch thy opening bloom,
And its rare promise gladly see,
'Twill not procrastinate my doom;
The ripened fruit is not for me.

Yet, had I shared thy course of years,
And young as Hope beheld thy charms,
The love that only now endears
Perhaps had given thee to my arms.

Vain, vain regret! Another day
Will kiss the buds of younger flowers,
But ne'er will evening turn away
From love untimelier than ours.
—William James Linton, in All Story Magazine.

BE TACTFUL AND WELL DRESSED

There is a tactlessness in dress that is almost as inexcusable, and can as nearly often wreck a woman's chances of happiness, as tactlessness of speech. This, perhaps, is somewhat of an exaggeration, but there is enough truth in it to warrant women giving it their attention.

We all know how ill at ease a woman is who is not suitably gowned. If, unfortunately, she has chosen a high neck gown when other women are clad in low neck ones, she has reached the most acute stage of discomfort. If she clothes herself in a tailor-made when the occasion calls for an afternoon frock, she is still uncomfortable, but not so absolutely wretched as in the first instance.

The woman of small income should, therefore, have in her wardrobe several simple gowns that will suit every occasion rather than one or two extremely handsome ones. It seems that the plain coat and skirt is the form of attire for which the largest number of occasions exist just now. And a good looking tailor suit is absolutely essential if a woman wishes to be well dressed. They can be had with good lines and of a smart cut in nearly all the shops, but one should be careful not to select one that is overtrimmed.

A simple theatre frock of some light, attractive color, slightly round at the neck and with the short sleeve, is also a very necessary garment. Then if one possesses a black crepe de chine dinner gown, low in the neck, with lace or net sleeves, one has the three essential garments in a woman's wardrobe, and one can always feel that one is in no danger of finding oneself without a suitable frock for any occasion.

ABOUT BATHS

"What about the cold bath?" Don't take it unless you have a superabundance of vigor. The cold bath is altogether too strenuous for the average woman. Another black mark against the icy dip is that it is not cleansing. If your hands are grimy you never think of washing them in cold water. Indeed, no. You call for hot water and soap, and in a trice your blackened hands are white as milk. The body, to be clean, must be washed in the same way.

If you are such a sleepy-head in the morning that you need to be shocked into wakefulness dash cold water over the face and neck and follow this up by a rub down and out of a tubful of [illegible] water. Sixty drops of the benzoin to a tub of water is sufficient. Such a bath will stimulate the skin to a reasonable degree and send you down to breakfast as bright as a dollar.

The salt sponge bath should be patronized by every woman with a pimply skin. Salty water is a good skin tonic and improves the action of torpid pores. A Chicago skin specialist tells his patients to fill a bowl with cool water and then throw in a big handful of sea salt. A vigorous sponging of the body follows with a bath mitten. Use plenty of friction, as this encourages the skin to throw off impurities, which is exactly the results we are striving for. After several of these baths, you will be considerably nearer your goal—a clear skin.

The soda bath will appeal to the woman burdened with flesh, as it has a way of taking off the extra pounds of flesh in the twinkling of an eye, so to speak. This bath is easily made. Just throw a small handful of cooking soda into a tubful of hot water and after sitting down in it throw a sheet over the top of the tub, leaving a hole for your head. Steam yourself in this improvised Turkish bath for twelve minutes, and then sponge off with aromatic vinegar, as I don't want you to take cold. Try my reducing bath and see if you don't like it.

If you feel tired and "don't care" just take an alcohol rub. In ten minutes you won't know there is such a thing as worry. These alcohol rubs are much used in hospitals when the nurses desire to stimulate and refresh those patients who are worn out with suffering. This is an economical bath, as it isn't necessary to use undiluted alcohol. Two tablespoonfuls of alcohol to two quarts of cold water will suffice. Dip a cloth in this pungent liquid and pass it gently up and down the spine, as this is the nerve centre. Do not wring out the cloth after dipping it in the alcoholic water, but press it dripping wet, to the backbone.

A REST ROOM

A room the woman of the house calls the "rest room" is papered in soft gray and has green hangings. The furniture is light oak with green sofa pillows here and there and the big sofa is upholstered in green. The window shades are dark enough to subdue the light. Thus the room is in most admirable taste and soothes the nerves. When the woman of the house is tired she runs to the rest room for a few minutes and gets her mental balance.

DICTATES OF FASHION

The gown in one piece which fastens up front or back is an excellent style.

Stripes of many kinds are exploited and especially among the sheer chiffons, gauzes, etc., there are fascinating things in stripe designs.

The all-gold or silver laces will be used on handsome dressy afternoon and evening frocks in conjunction with black, white or ecru maline laces.

Grays and mauves will continue to be largely worn and according to leading dressmakers there is a strong tendency to a revival of greens of all shades and blue of dark Saxe tints.

Soft moire costumes and gowns of corded silk and satin charmeuse are to be largely worn. Afternoon dresses of fon, voile, and thin silks, though velvets and velveteens will be prominent for street wear.

Fringes are once more making a bid for popularity and are used a good deal upon the French model frocks, but it is doubtful whether they will find any general acceptance, for when they have been brought forward before women have firmly refused them.

The printed chiffons of all kinds are beautiful. Persian effects have it is said, had their day so far as the ultra fastidious are concerned, but one finds them among all the new materials and sees them in many of the new imported models.

The newest thing in overblouses, or jumpers to use the common name, is of chiffon embroidered in beads of mingled bright colors, a somewhat barbaric color scheme, but effective in small quantity.

FOR THE HOUSEKEEPER

Try mixing flour and water for thickening with a fork instead of the usual spoon. It is less likely to turn lumpy.

When gas mantles are blackened, they can be cleared by sprinkling with salt, when flame is turned low; turn light full for a minute and repeat until clear.

Rust on steel can be removed by rubbing sweet oil well into the surface. Let it stand two days; then rub the steel with unslaked lime, until surface is clean.

To heat furniture put damp thirsty cloths over the upholstered parts and beat until it is black with dust; then turn to other side. Continue with fresh cloths until no more dust shows.

As house-cleaning time approaches do not forget the use of dampened cloths in furniture cleaning. Dust is easily removed in this way without streaking woodwork or filling lungs.

Iodine stains on woodwork should be removed at once, as they make an ugly spot. Soak up with blotting paper, then rub the spot with a soft cloth moistened in turpentine.

When using marking ink to put initials, etc., on linen, do your work first with an ordinary lead pencil, and then use the marking ink over this work. The pencil will prevent the ink from spreading and giving the linen a blurred appearance.

The smell of paint may be taken away by placing in the room and setting in the centre of it a pan of lighted charcoal on which have been thrown some juniper berries. Leave this in the room for a day and a night, when the smell of paint will be gone.

An ordinately fitted glass stopper, which not only restricts the evaporation of alcohol from the bottle, should be fitted with great care, or causing a gin sling or a julep to taste like the ill-smelling concoction that a short time ago made the stopper cork so costly required.

To keep [illegible] from shrinking soak a month [illegible] and water, equal quantities of each. Rub them once in three months with boiled linseed oil. Put on very little, rub it in well with a rag and polish with a piece of silk. Oilcloths will last for years if kept in this way.

Learn to know what damp means—especially when used upon polished woodwork. Think it means wet and you will be rewriting valuable information as "rubbish." Dip a cloth in hot water, wring it as hard as you can, then shake it in the air, and it should have about the right amount of moisture.

Feather beds and pillows sometimes have an unpleasant odor after being put away for a time. Set them on a clothesline in the sun and air them for two or three days and then give them a thorough drying before a clear fire. If this is not successful empty the pillows, have the ticks washed and the feathers thoroughly purified.

THE CORONATION ❁ NOBLE PLAYERS ❁ CUNARD LEVIATHAN PLANNED

TELLS PEERESSES DRESSES TO WEAR

Gowns and Robes for Coronation Ceremonies Must Be of Approved Pattern.

AIDS IRISH INDUSTRIES

Lace and Veil Used by Queen Mary Will Be Produced Exclusively In Emerald Isle.

(Special Dispatch.)
London, Saturday.

To obviate all uncertainty among noblewomen as to the gowns and robes they must wear at the coronation next June correct costume models now are displayed in the offices of the Earl Marshal, 44 Cleveland Row, St. James. This course of instruction has set aside the belief held by many peeresses that colored evening dresses with the robes attached to the shoulders could be worn. The costume approved is exactly the same as that which was in evidence at the coronation of the late King Edward. There is an underdress of white satin, chiffon or lace, while the bodice and train are of ruby velvet bordered with ermine. The robe hangs from the shoulders, with a minniver cape bordered with the precise number of ermine purple allotted to each rank.

COMPLAIN OF HEAVY COSTUME.

Those who imagine that all is happiness and joy for the wearer of this costume may stand corrected by the evidence of those who know. At the coronation of the late King Edward many women complained exceedingly of the great warmth, especially on a midsummer day, of the two folds of velvet and the ermine cape. It had been anticipated that a modification in the style of costume would be allowed next June, but hopes to this end now have been shattered.

There is one feature of the peeresses' robes which change will not affect. This has to do with the beautiful embroideries covering the overgown, which attracted so much attention at the last coronation. The embroidery as a rule took the form of armorial bearings, wreath and mottoes worked in colored colors, and in many instances ornamented with jewels. This feature is expected next year.

Thanks to Queen Mary's example, the Irish lace industry anticipates a great boom from the coronation. It is announced that she has decided that all the lace used in her coronation robes is to be of Irish manufacture, while the magnificent veil which will fall from her crown will be of Irish needlepoint. As a result of this decision it is figured that Irish laces will have a place in the robes of the peeresses.

PEERS RECEIVED REWARDS.

In connection with the coming ceremonies students of history have noted that the great nobles who acted in mental capacities at old time coronations did not go unrewarded. For instance, it is recorded that at the coronation of Queen Mary, Charles, Duke of Norfolk, as Earl Marshal, laid claim to the Queen's horse and palfrey, "with all their costly furniture;" Henry, Earl of Arundel, as chief butler, possessed himself of the "Queen's best cuppe and all the wyne in pypes and hogsheddes and pipe all the pottes and cuppes in the office after dyner."

"The chief officer of the larder, Lord Abergavenny, claimed for his services all the "brawne, mustard, veales, venysons, hydd, &c., remaynes after dyner," while the Lord Chamberlain, the Earl of Oxford, got as his claim for the bed, bedclothes and hangings used by the Queen the night preceding the coronation.

DYNAMITE SHIP BLOWN UP AT SEA

Ketch Laden with Explosive Was Damaged in Collision and Destroyed to Prevent Danger.

(Special Dispatch.)
London, Saturday.

Many Cork, Yarmouth way are wondering under how that the Dutch ketch Mary, which was desperately damaged in a collision with the fishing smack Freyder on a voyage from Antwerp, has been blown up. Condemned by the customs officials, the mystery had been lying in Yarmouth Harbor for a week. She was a source of grave anxiety owing to the fact that she contained seventeen tons of dynamite enough to blow up half of the city of London—and all this had been concealed "cargo" by importers.

Permission having been given Major Cooper-Key, of the Home Office, to blow up the stricken craft, the Mystery was towed out to sea a distance of twelve miles from Yarmouth, a spot free from passing boats being chosen. Mr. John Bennett, editor of the Yarmouth Times, contracted to blow the ketch to pieces, contracting shots with detonators. When the explosion took place a column of water was sent 150 feet in height and the concussion was felt for miles around, many people believing that a German warship had fired a broadside. Mr. Bennett and his assistants were taken on board the ketch by the tug Lord Alverstone, and left the vessel after a fuse about 100 feet long had been fired. As the latter was fizzing & fast speed, one noticed a boat from the Mystery which a great crowd of people, followed by a tug, was towing. Apart from the excitement which this caused, the explosion was a great success, and the Mystery was blown to atoms.

Mr. Bennett has received the thanks of the Board of Trade for his services in connection with the blowing up of the Mystery, which was desperately dangerous, as the ketch was loaded with explosives.

Lady Headfort, as Lady Teazle, Makes Big Success in Amateur Theatricals

"THE SCREEN SCENE" IN "THE SCHOOL FOR SCANDAL" WHICH THE MARCHIONESS OF HEADFORT ORGANISED AT KELLS
(SIR ANTHONY WELDON (AS SIR PETER TEAZLE) ✦ THE MARCHIONESS OF HEADFORT (AS LADY TEAZLE) ✦ LORD FARNHAM (AS CHARLES SURFACE) ✦ MR MAXWELL ARNOTT AS JOSEPH SURFACE)

Produces Sheridan's Old Time Comedy at Kells and Wins High Praise.

AMERICANS IN FRONT RANK AS HOSTESSES

(Special Dispatch.)
London, Saturday.

There has been quite a run of amateur theatricals lately, but none seems to have been so successful as those arranged by the Marchioness of Headfort at Kells, which, according to the Onlooker, were an unqualified success. The amateur cast played "The School for Scandal" in a style that few professionals could have bettered, Lady Headfort making a delightful Lady Teasle. Her costumes had evidently been most carefully thought out and proved most becoming, while artistic instinct and real dramatic skill characterised her reading of the part. The famous screen scene gave all the principals an opportunity for clever comedy. Sir Anthony Weldon's keen sense of humor standing him in good stead as old Sir Peter Teasle. Lord Farnham, as Joseph Surface, was at his best in singing the "Toast Song," and Lord Frederick Conyngham distinguished himself as Sir Harry Bumper.

American hostesses continue to maintain the lead in all the entertaining that is going on in London, and those who are able to appreciate the American woman as a hostess believe that under her guidance there soon will be a revival of the old time salons, where "lions," drawn from the ranks of society, the arts, the professions, and indeed all walks of life, will once more play an important part in the society of their time.

MRS. FRENCH VANDERBILT'S PLANS.

Lady Cheylesmore, one of the leading Anglo-American hostesses in London, has returned to her beautiful house at Prince's Gate, after spending the autumn in Scotland, where she has been entertaining a series of parties. Her sister, Mrs. French Vanderbilt, is not expected back till the beginning of the year, but will do some entertaining during the winter.

Lady Bateman, too, has now settled at No. 49 Grosvenor Square, which Lord Bateman has taken for a term from Lady Miller. It is a fine house for entertaining on a large scale, and Lady Bateman has already given some dinner parties and means to do a great deal in that way now that she has such a fine house, even if only a temporary one, in London.

The Countess of Granard has been staying in Ireland lately and has been among the guests at Castle Macgarrett, in County Mayo, where Lord and Lady Oranmore and Browne have been entertained this autumn. Later Lord and Lady Granard will be settled for the winter in their London residence, Forbes House, where Lady Granard will do a good deal of official entertaining before leaving town again for the Christmas holidays.

MRS. ALMERIC PAGET'S ILLNESS.

Mrs. Almeric Paget, whose health has been very unsatisfactory for the last year, is a source of a deal of anxiety to her friends. Since her return to London she has been very ill and doctors have been in constant attendance. As it is quite out of the question for her to spend the winter in England she is leaving shortly with her children for Egypt and will be away for six months.

Americans play a prominent part, too, in the shires, where the hunting season is now in full swing. Daisy Hall, which was let last year to Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Phipps, has now been taken by Mr. Henry Payne Whitney, perhaps the best known of American sportsmen in England. His mounts are the envy of the field, for Mr. Whitney is a fine judge of horses, and the question of price never stops him. Mr. Whitney has considerable sporting interests in England nowadays, for in addition to hunting and polo he has one of the best racing establishments at Newmarket, and he rents the fine Hobbs Moore every season for grouse shooting.

RISE AGAINST THE UNINVITED GUEST

(Special Dispatch.)
London, Saturday.

One of the greatest annoyances which the London hostess experiences every season is the uninvited guest. At a concert or dance to which a couple of hundred people have been invited it is the easiest thing in the world for the uninvited, provided they be well dressed, to gain entry. Nor is it possible for the hostess always to tell whether a face that she does not recognise may not belong to one of a party brought by one of her guests.

To try to stop the annoyance, to say nothing of the danger of the uninvited guest being a modern Robert Macaire, a well known hostess who is giving a dance at a big London hotel not only begs her friends on the invitations sent them to bring their cards when they come, but presses the matter home by having her request printed as an advertisement in the public press.

"Some time ago I had my eyes opened to this scandalous practice in a most unpleasant fashion," she said in an interview. "I had occasion to give a dance at a London hotel to which I invited two hundred and thirty guests. I had very carefully checked these figures before the dance began, yet before it was half way through the manager of the hotel informed me that there were already more than four hundred people in the rooms. As you can imagine, my purse, as well as my feelings, suffered very heavily on this occasion.

"Last year I heard of two women—no one seemed personally acquainted with them—who had attended uninvited practically every dance or function of the season. Consequently I have been driven to adopt precautions which have become absolutely necessary for the exclusion of these people. The hotel management has promised to have three men at my disposal whose duty it will be to take the name and address of every person who comes without an invitation card."

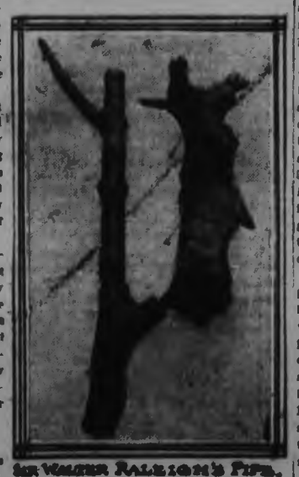
RALEIGH'S PIPE NOW FOR SALE

Gallant Sir Walter Took His Last Whiff from It Before Dying on Block.

(Special Dispatch.)
London, Saturday.

Collectors of historical objects have been interested in the pipe smoked by Sir Walter Raleigh just before he was put to death. It was exhibited at the London Guildhall about forty-eight years ago and was accompanied by a parchment roll which attested its genuineness. It has been offered for sale by the present owner, Mr. Horace G. Blundell, of Chiswick.

The pipe, which is of the long stemmed variety, is made from branches. The two bowls, which show examples of good carving, are interchangeable. It is still just as serviceable as it was in the days when Sir Walter's gallantry failed to keep him from the headsman's block.



SIR WALTER RALEIGH'S PIPE.

"Bishop Andrews, otherwise Dean of Westminster, who administered the last sacrament to Sir Walter on the scaffold, was presented with this pipe by the condemned man just before his death," explained Mr. Blundell. "From this churchman it passed into the hands of the Cavers, of Maidstone, Surrey. From the latter family it was obtained by the Glovers, of Croydon, and then passed to the family of Bryants, who for years had their seat near Reigate. My grandfather married the widow of one of the Bryants, and eventually the pipe came into my hands."

PEARL NECKLACES BRING HIGH PRICES

(Special Dispatch.)
Paris, Saturday.

A sale of jewels at the Hotel Drouot which has been attracting considerable attention in Paris concluded today with a general total of 1,236,445f. ($247,289). The most important item of to-day's sale was a necklace of fifty-one large white pearls, weighing 356 grains, the estimated value of which was 70f,000f. ($14,000). It was bought by Mons. Boubine for 200,700f. ($40,140). Another necklace of fifty-seven pearls, weighing 672 grains, valued at 114,000f. ($22,800), was bought by Mons. Pinson for 150,500f. ($30,100).

50,000 TON SHIP IS DECIDED UPON

Cunard Line Will Have Vessel 885 Feet in Length, with a Speed of Twenty-Three Knots.

(Special Dispatch.)
London, Saturday.

Announcement has been made by the Cunard Steamship Company that it has decided to build a 50,000 ton steamship. The plans, which have been approved by Lloyd's, call for a vessel 885 feet in length and with a breadth of 95 feet 6 inches.

Messrs. Swan, Hunter & Wigham Richardson, of Wallsend on Tyne, and Messrs. John Brown & Co., of Clydebank, who were the builders of the Mauretania and the Lusitania respectively, are estimating the cost, which is expected to approximate nearly $10,000,000.

The dimensions of the proposed vessel will exceed the length of the Mauretania by 122 feet, her breadth by 7 feet 6 inches and tonnage by 18,000 tons. All other records in point of tonnage and size will also be eclipsed, for the vessel will have an advantage on the White Star Olympic of 5,000 tons, and will exceed by 1,000 tons the Hamburg-American steamship now building in the Vulcan Yard, at Stettin. As regards length the plans are more conservative, but give a margin of 3 feet 6 inches over that of the White Star vessel.

Speed has dot been overlooked and the proposed vessel will steam twenty-three knots on a draught of thirty-four feet, which is three knots faster than the Olympic. She will be propelled by turbines operating quadruple screws, and will resemble the Cunard flyers in that she will have four funnels and two pole masts. Her double bottom will be so arranged that she will be able to carry oil fuel should the company at any time decide upon that method.

Needless to say the vessel will be fitted up on a liberal scale. She will have a stage for theatrical purposes. Accommodation will be provided for 600 first class passengers, 740 second class and 1,400 third class—a total of 2,740, exclusive of the crew.

CROSS ON GIRL'S ARM.

(Special Dispatch.)
Dublin, Saturday.

An unusual story comes from the Convent of St. Louis, in County Mayo. Sleeping at the Convent is a thirteen-year-old girl who is a great favorite with the nuns because of her docile, affectionate nature.

One night one of the Sisters heard the child screaming, and on being asked what was the trouble she said she had had a frightful dream in which she saw Christ on the cross and a soldier driving a spear into his side.

In the morning, however, the child complained of a pain in her wrist and arm. On examination there was plainly seen a red cross with the letters "I. H. S." marked on her forearm. A few days later there appeared above the cross and surrounded by a scroll the letters "I. N. R. I." After a week or another day or two there appeared a crown of thorns, and then a chalice, surmounted by a Host, sending forth radiations in red, and last of all a flower design, in the centre of which was written the word "Life."

Abrupt Change by Japan of Foreigners' Status in Corea Arouses British Ire

Promises That Europeans' Rights Will Be Respected Thought of Little Account in View of Solemn Pledges Broken.

MAY PREVENT RENEWAL OF THE ALLIANCE

(Special Correspondence.)
Paris, Nov. 1, 1910.

More light, or more mystery, is shed upon the "voluntary" character of the surrender of Corea's sovereignty to Japan by the declaration of a Russian newspaper that it has indisputable authority for the statement that neither the nominal Emperor nor his father affixed the imperial seal to the articles of abdication.

According to this authority, when the Emperor, who had been kept in total ignorance of the step that had been determined upon by Japan, was asked to sign the agreement drawn up for the annexation he refused, saying he could not decide so momentous a question as the surrender of the throne of his ancestors without consulting with his father, whose abdication was forced by the Japanese in 1907.

Then, the report runs, the erstwhile Emperor was sent for. He stubbornly refused to affix the imperial seal to an agreement which was to announce to the world the political death of his country. Thereupon the Prime Minister, Yi Wan Yong, affixed the seal to the document at the instance of General Viscount Terauchi, the Japanese Resident General, who has since been officially designated Governor General of Japan's new dominion.

Play as Corea Barred.

Just now Japanese officialdom seems to be peculiarly sensitive with regard to everything appertaining to the land that was Corea. Kawakami, the famous Japanese actor, has learned this to his discomfiture and monetary loss.

Kawakami has spent a good many thousand yen in preparing for the production of a play entitled "The King of Chosen" at his theatre in Osaka. The central figure is a mythical young King of Chosen, who is brought to Japan for education, and proceeds, as even kings may do, to fall in love with a teahouse girl. The Osaka police authorities have forbidden the production of the play on the ground that "it is deemed inadvisable to place anything on the stage relating to Corea at the present time."

Kawakami and his journalistic friends, who have taken up the cudgels in his behalf, are at a loss to find valid excuse for this official inhibition. They insist that the play's purpose is to demonstrate the friendliness that exists between Japanese and Coreans, and they intimate that officialdom is giving itself over to an orgy of nightmare over the whole Corea business.

Point to Broken Treaties.

The serio-comic side of Corean annexation refuses to [illegible] itself in the background. British publicists, in this part of the world as in England, are busily inquiring whether the British Foreign Office has given its approval and indorsement of the action of the government of Japan in summarily declaring null and void the treaties made by Corea with other nations, in face of the fact that Japan had specifically pledged herself to see that those treaties were maintained and respected.

On November 22, 1905, Japan announced to the Powers that in order to put an end "once and for all" to what she termed the "dangerous situation" of permitting Corea to exercise the right of an independent nation in making treaties with other nations she had assumed control of Corean foreign relations. Japan at the same time made this solemn declaration to the Powers:—

The imperial government declare that in assuming charge of the foreign relations of Corea and undertaking the duty of watching over the execution of the existing treaties of that country they will see that those treaties are maintained and respected, and they also engage not to prejudice in any way the legitimate commercial and industrial interests of those Powers in Corea."

Repudiates Extraterritoriality.

The essence of the treaties which Japan thus solemnly pledged herself to maintain is extraterritorial protection of foreign interests. This guarantee Japan has now repudiated. The Japan Chronicle, the ablest English paper published in the Far East, says of it:—

"There can be no moral justification of the action Japan has thought fit to take in this matter. All that can be offered in excuse is that other Powers have on occasion failed to keep their engagements when they were inconvenient. It is true there have been such cases, but no Power ever broke a pledge or failed to carry into effect its voluntary guarantees or promises without suffering in its future diplomatic arrangements. It may be that not a single Power will make a protest against the annexation of Corea or the extinguishment of the foreign rights which Japan guaranteed, but the incident, coming at the very threshold of the revision of the treaties with Japan, will inevitably have a marked effect on the course of those negotiations."

When extraterritoriality was abolished in Japan it was done only after treaty agreement with the Powers, the rights of whose nationals would be affected by the change. Foreigners who had property or other rights in Japan were given five years' notice of the change, and had, in consequence, ample opportunity either to dispose of their interests or to adjust themselves to the change. In the case of Corea no such period of preparation is provided. The blow came without official warning.

With regard to the protection of the interests of foreigners, guaranteed by Japan's treaties, now extended to cover Corea, it is only provided that these shall apply "so far as practicable" and "so far as conditions permit"—the extent of the applicability being, manifestly, determined by the Japanese government itself.

The recently established Japanese courts in Chosen have been much criticised by foreigners resident in that new Japanese dominion, and by Japanese themselves. It has frequently been pointed out by Japanese publicists that among the men appointed to the Corean judiciary there are many whose ability is a doubtful quantity and that the system which makes the judges dependent upon interpreters of questionable capacity and character is bad.

In the Anglo-Japanese alliance Great Britain recognized Japan's right to take such measures as she desired for the "guidance, control and protection" of Corea, but with an important proviso. This was:—"Provided always that such measures are not contrary to the principles of equal opportunities for the commerce and industry of all nations."

British critics point out that Japan's annexation proclamation not only sweeps away the Corean treaties, but assures only a limited equality of opportunity for ten years. The ten year concession — pronounced "voluntary" by the official press of Japan, but asserted by Englishmen to be a concession wrung from Japan by the British Foreign Office—is confined to import and export duties and to tonnage dues.

Subject to Japan's Treaties.

For the rest foreigners and their trade will be subject to the Japanese treaties, now extended to Corea, but only "so far as practicable" and "so far as conditions permit." As one English writer puts it:—"These reservations are disquieting. Until their exact meaning is established the whole status of foreigners and their rights must depend on the unfettered discretion of the Japanese. In this way their 'equality of opportunity' with the Japanese at the ports may prove—as it has proved in Manchuria—a barren privilege. By our treaty with Corea, for example, we are guaranteed especially against all 'additional taxes and excise and transit dues,' and by the operation of the most favored nation clause against differential treatment in other respects, such as railway rates and industrial concessions. Nothing of this now survives. The result may be—and the Manchurian precedent brings the prospect very disagreeably within the field of probabilities—that the tariff equality on the coast will be defeated by effective inequalities in the interior."

In the light of these conditions the British Foreign Office is charged with giving away British rights. Quite naturally, I think, the Englishmen who find their rights thus given away are strengthened in their idea that the alliance is a decidedly one sided affair, by which Japan has gained everything, and at mighty cost to British interests and British prestige.

London, Saturday.

Many expressions of regret have followed the report that "Now then, Smith!" one of the heroes of the Messina earthquake, has been drowned at Bunbury, in West Australia. When the Italian city was swept by disaster Smith was a seaman aboard the steamship Afonwen, then lying in port there. With his captain and two of the crew he hurried into the city to aid in rescuing help. Thousands lay buried in the wreckage and many buildings which had not fallen were swaying and tottering.

The party of four saw a family at the windows of the top floor of one of these structures. Its impending collapse threatened their destruction, and fire below had cut off escape. The rescuers succeeded in throwing a rope to the upper windows, where it was made fast.

"Now then, Smith!" shouted the captain, and the Welsh salterman scaled the tottering structure. First he brought down one of the women of the family, making trip after trip up the rope until he had carried all to safety. He came back to find a civic welcome awaiting him in Cardiff. A mass meeting was held to greet him and the great audience insisted on a speech from the embarrassed hero. But Smith had to be dragged out of his chair, and after rubbing his chin for some time stammered:—

"All I have to say is to thank you, ladies and gentlemen."

The speech was brief, but a formal ovation could not have made a greater hit. King Edward at that time personally desired to hand "Now then, Smith!" as every one called him, a medal for bravery. Before this could be arranged, however, the modest Welshman was off on another cruise, and the decoration had to be forwarded to him.

Papal Decree Makes It Unlawful for Clerics to Engage in Worldly Affairs.

Rome Hears Rumor That Government Will Abolish Article Making Catholicism State Religion.

(Special Dispatch.)

Rome, Saturday.—Fifteen thousand priests and bishops of the United States have been apprised of the terms of the Pontifical decree, which affects them as well as all the other clergy and the religious orders of the Catholic Church. In it the Pope lays down a series of very severe rules regarding their participation in business affairs of all kinds. They are strictly forbidden to take an active part in financial enterprises, even in those which have a charitable scope, or to lend their names or influence to any business speculation.

This decree is to be embodied in a new code of the canon law, which will be published at the end of the next year, but it goes into force immediately with the beginning of 1911.

The new regulations for the official visits of bishops to Rome go into force in the year 1914. This law is fixed for all bishops of America, North and South. All of them will then be obliged to furnish the most elaborate report to the Consistorial Congregation regarding their dioceses.

It is rumored that early in the new year the Italian government will propose the abolition of the article of the constitution which proclaims the Catholic Church as the religion of the State.

UNIVERSITIES IN CHINA NO RIVALS

Large Fields for That at Hong Kong and for Lord William Cecil's Project.

THE SAME GENERAL AIM

Paris, Nov. 1, 1910.

That there is, and should be, no clashing of interests between the new Hong Kong University, of which he is the founder, and the United Universities' scheme for a great university for China, of which Lord William Cecil is special sponsor, is the conviction of Sir Frederick Lugard, Governor of Hong Kong, who is in Pekin on his way back to his post from England, where he has been spending some months.

"The two projects," explained Sir Frederick in discussing the subject at the British Legation, where he is the guest of Hon. W. G. Max Muller, the British Chargé d'Affaires, "are separate and distinct, but they have the same general aim—to contribute to the cause of higher education in China. There is room for both, need for both.

"While much has been done and is being done to promote Western education in this great empire, with its vast multitude of people, there has as yet been established no institution deserving the title of 'university' in its highest sense. The time has come when the excellent work done by the educational institutions now in existence should be supplemented by the establishment of real universities which will enable Chinese students to obtain here in their own land that higher education which only the few are now able to obtain by spending a number of years abroad, too often at the questionable cost of becoming denationalised.

"It is the aim of the Hong Kong University to fill this need at the south, and the same desire is the inspiration of Lord William Cecil's project for the Wu-Han section, the centre of China.

"The two projects, though having the same general aims, differ in some very material respects. Lord William's project is essentially missionary in its character, while the Hong Kong University may be called secular in contradistinction to a religious institution. Ours will, however, aim as distinctly at character building, the difference being more in methods of administration than in the principles underlying the education to be given, for these, as I see it, are essentially the same.

"We have in the great southern section naturally tributary to Hong Kong many millions of people, and it is for these primarily that we are building. With the present methods of communication Hankow is further away from Hong Kong than London is from New York, and the institution projected for Hankow has a great field of its own.

"As you doubtless know, we have already made substantial beginning at Hong Kong. To Sir Hormusji Mody, one of our foremost Parsee merchants, we are indebted for the buildings, which he is constructing at his own cost. The foundation stone was laid last March.

"We have received most substantial support from the Chinese. The Viceroy of Canton subscribed £10,000 and issued a manifesto which has brought us contributions from other Chinese running to a total of hundreds of thousands of taels. The British firm of Butterfield & Swire, with its allied firms, has contributed £40,000."

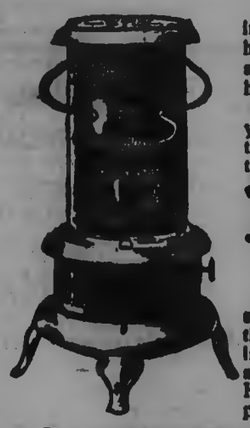
Fresh Air in Winter



In winter, it is hard to get fresh air in certain rooms. Some rooms in a house are usually colder than others, and if you open the windows it is hard again to heat the room properly.

If you keep the windows closed you don't get fresh air; if you keep them open you cannot quickly reheat the room. The solves the difficulty. You can leave the windows in a room open all day in winter, and when you close them apply a match to a Perfection Oil Heater and heat the room to any temperature you desire in a few minutes.

PERFECTION SMOKELESS OIL HEATER

Absolutely smokeless and odorless

The Perfection Oil Heater is finished in japan or nickel. It burns for nine hours. It has a cool handle and a damper top. It has an automatic-locking flame spreader, which prevents the wick from being turned high enough to smoke, and is easy to remove and drop back so that the wick can be quickly cleaned. An indicator always shows amount of oil in the font.

The filler-cap does not need to be screwed down. It is put in like a cork in a bottle, and is attached to the font by a chain.

The burner body or gallery cannot become wedged, because of a new device in construction, and consequently, it can always be easily unscrewed in an instant for rewicking. The Perfection Oil Heater is strong, durable, well made, built for service, yet light and ornamental.

FAMOUS ELEPHANT KILLED BY POISON

Special to The Examiner.

New York, Nov. 26.—Queen, the trick elephant who for fifty years or more has amused circus crowds throughout the country, is dead. She signed her death decree when, in blind fury, she trampled out the life of Robert Schiel, her keeper, and 600 grains of cyanide, administered in apples and bran in an animal farm at Mallory and Communipaw avenues, Jersey City, ended her earthly troubles.

Queen had always been regarded as a tractable beast, and her owner, Frank Robbins, considered her as one of the cleverest animals in the business. She could sit on her haunches, stand on her head, and so readily and willingly did she obey every command that her keeper always insisted she had almost human understanding. Her cash value was estimated at $5,000; but her owner said that, before the tragedy, he would not have sold her for twice that sum.

WENT TO HER DOOM ACTING

A crowd of four hundred witnessed Queen's end. When the animal was being led from her stall and saw the large crowd she thought that it was a circus performance and began going through her tricks. First, she sat on her haunches, then extended a huge foot in greeting to one of the spectators, and waved objects with her trunk.

At the last moment it was found that the poison had been mislaid. A messenger was sent downtown, and returned in a short time with a dose of 600 grains which would be enough to kill a regiment of men.

Queen was performing her tricks while the apples and bran were being prepared. It was first feared that, on account of her sagacity, she would suspect that something was wrong, when she saw the large crowd; but she placidly trotted up to one of the attendants and, without suspicion, took one of the proffered apples. She ate it greedily and one after another followed. Then she was given the bran.

The minutes went by and the huge pachyderm showed no effects of the poison, although she had been given all of the 600 grains. Finally, as the watchers began to fear that even that huge dose was insufficient, she began to totter. Then she swayed from side to side and finally dropped to her knees. But it was only for a second. Trumpeting wildly, she staggered to her feet, only to fall again.

DIES AFTER STRUGGLE

Five times this was repeated. When she fell for the sixth time the poison had had its full effect and she did not rise. Instead, she stiffened out in a state of coma and died. Death came twenty-three minutes after the poison was administered.

It was eighty-seven years ago, according to the best information her owner was able to obtain, that Queen was born in the jungles of India. She was young when captured and brought to this country. A circus owner was quick to note her unusual cleverness and bought her. His opinion was justified by the rapidity with which she learned even the most difficult tricks, and for a half century the big beast had been a favorite everywhere she was exhibited. She was always gentle and tractable, and the killing of Schiel was a big surprise to her owner.

Schiel was a new keeper. At Queen's regular dinner time he went into her cage without having given her her usual allowance of hay.

As the animal came up to him and stuck out her trunk for her food Schiel attacked her with a pitchfork and tried to drive her back to a corner of her cage. This aroused the big animal's fury and she swung at him with her trunk. The blow felled Schiel and, before other attendants, who heard his frightened screams for help, could reach him, his life had been crushed out under four ponderous feet. That sealed Queen's fate, and, much against his will, Robbins consented to the execution.

MANY ATTEND EXECUTION

Members of the S.P.C.A. from all parts of New Jersey, many of the city officials, and Keeper "Bill" Snyder of Central Park, attended the execution.

Queen stood 8 feet 7 inches at the shoulders and weighed 7,650 pounds. Since the tragedy a new keeper had been in charge of her. She resumed her placid ways and the keeper, even in that short time had become so attached to her that he said he could not stand seeing her killed.

MYSTERY GROWS IN THE DOUBLE KILLING

Examiner Special.

TRENTON, N.J., NOV. 26.—New and strange developments rivetted interest to-day on the self-confessed slayer of the Rev. Amsi L. Armstrong and his wife, who were shot to death in their home at Dutch Neck.

The aged minister is known to have left a rich estate. His farm was one of the best in this part of the State and he was interested in a bank. The will makes John Sears, his half-breed slayer, a large beneficiary, according to well-posted relatives. Why the old minister had so much concern for the poor mulatto is a mystery that remains to be solved.

But greater than that, although they may be directly connected, is the mystery of Sears's parentage. The youth who killed two in cold blood has boasted that his father is a Philadelphia millionaire, a white man; and widely known. Old residents of Dutch Neck say that the boy was given to the minister to care for by his father. The minister is also said to have received a large sum of money for the youth, to be handed over to him when the parson was no longer able to look after him.

PARSON'S WIFE FEARED SLAYER

The mystery of the parson's concern for the mulatto boy is deepened by the fact that a year ago he had been warned against him. It is said that Mrs. Armstrong had long been fearful of Sears, and that she always kept a revolver under her pillow at night. A revolver was found in Mrs. Armstrong's bed after the tragedy.

The news that a large part of the minister's fortune goes to his slayer comes from relatives of the victim. They say that when the will is opened their statements that Sears will get a large part of the wealth it disposes of will be borne out. This will is in a safe deposit valut at the Cranbury Bank, of which the minister was a director.

Whether the identity of the half-breed's wealthy father will ever be disclosed is uncertain. County Prosecutor Crowley refused to tell whether it had been revealed to him or not, but it is suspected that he knows not only the name of the father, but of other white relatives, all of whom are high up in Philadelphia society.

MOTHER HELD IN TRAGEDY

To-day the mother is held in the tragedy, and it may be that she will reveal the mystery of the slayer's parentage.

It was the lure of wealth—his father's and that promised him by the old dominie—which led Sears to the killing. A quarrel, in which the slayer says Mr. Armstrong hit him on the head with a cane, only precipitated the tragedy.

It is known that the Rev. Mr. Armstrong had several times told Sears in the presence of others that when he died Sears would get a share of the estate. Sears's confession bears out the belief that he became impatient for the money, and letting his impatience get the better of his judgment he decided upon the crime.

A sight of the bodies of his benefactors lying cold in death dragged the terrible secret from Sears. He had remained cool until then, but his nerve gave way when confronted with the corpses and he shrieked: "Take me away! Take me away! This is killing me. I will tell you everything!"

Sears told how he entered the house with his shotgun, first shot the woman as she came toward him and then turned the weapon upon the aged minister and killde him. In an attempt to hide his crime he hid the minister's watch. In his confession made to Prosecutor Crossley and Chief Hiner he revealed the hiding spot. Securely shackled, he was taken to the scene of the double murder and dramatically led his keepers to the woodshed and there, in the spot indicated by him, the timepiece was found. Many residents of Dutch Neck recognized it to-day as the property of the Rev. Mr. Armstrong.

Golden Text—Let him that thinketh he standeth take heed lest he fall. 1st Cor. x.; 12.

Verse 31. Is it, or not, usual for a company, or a cause, to be scattered when the leader is taken away? Give some examples.

Did the writer in Zec. xiii.: 7, from which Jesus quotes, have Jesus in mind at the time he wrote, and does Jesus mean to imply that he did? Give your reasons.

Why is not the flock to be blamed for scattering when the wolf is upon them, and the shepherd has been smitten?

Verses 33-35—Why would it have been better, or worse for Peter, or the cause of God, if in view of subsequent events, he had not made this strong declaration of loyalty to Jesus?

Regardless of what the future may develop, ought we, in the present, with unshaken confidence, to make an eternal covenant of loyalty to God, with full expectation of keeping it? Give your reasons.

In the obtainment of technical, or intellectual knowledge, mistakes are absolutely unavoidable, why therefore, does not the same rule obtain in acquiring moral courage, knowledge, or conduct?

Which man is more likely to be true to God, and why, one who is confident from his warm love to God that he will be faithful to Him in the future, or the one who is timid and fearful that he will be unfaithful?

denial, from his heart, what moral spiritual, or psychological, did this truly earnest Peter deny the Christ that a few hours, at most, before he said he would die for?

Was Peter's denial moral cowardice or policy a suddenly formed plan of campaign to defeat the enemy?

If Peter's denial was not a real denial, fro mhis heart, what moral blame would you attach to it?

Verse 71—When a lie has been told whether "white" or "black," what are the chances that more lies will be necessary to back it up?

Describe the nature of each of Peter's three lies, and show how they illustrate that those who start at wrong-doing invariably get "worse and worse?"

When a man has to curse and swear to back up his statement, it it ,or not, prima facie evidence that he is lying?

Verse 75—What is the value of warning, or good advice, when we know it will be disregarded?

What is the moral difference between the sin of Judas and that of Peter?

What evils, or good results, have followed from Peter's sin? (This question must be answered in writing by members of the club.)

Is the world and the church better or worse because of Peter's denying Jesus?

KIPLING AS A SCHOOLBOY.

Interesting Recollections of a "Queer Little Undersized Lad."

Schoolboy memories of a queer little lad who afterwards was Rudyard Kipling were told in Chicago the other day by Capt. Arthur St. John, retired officer of the English army, world traveler, and leader in the movement to reform English prisons. Capt. St. John is in the United States as a delegate from England to the International Prison Congress in Washington.

"It was in 1878 or 1879 that I first remember Kipling," said St. John. "I was then in the upper forms of the United Service school, Westward Ho, which is on the north Devon coast. A queer little under-sized lad he was then, perhaps 13 years old. I remember him distinctly and knew him as well as an older boy in a large school usually knows his juniors. Kipling's fondness for long words made him noticeable. The older boys knew him as the 'little fellow who knew the meaning of long words.' He would give little information if you asked him what the words meant; he was afraid of being jollied. For all that, he was not a chap who could care for his own rights very well.

"I remember particularly that the older boys would order the lad to eat worms or dirt or something as delicate. He would pretend to obey and would go through the form of eating the worm assigned to him. I don't know whether he did it or not. We older boys know him also as 'the little fellow who would eat worms.' For all his apparent yielding I never felt that the subserviency went very deep. He would apparently yield because he was unable to do otherwise. We felt, however, that below the surface his spirit was his own.

"Of course, he was never good at any form of athletics. Although Westward Ho is situated on the ocean, I do not remember that Kipling was ever a good swimmer. He was undersized and too near-sighted for the sports. His story 'Stalky and Co.' was written about Westward Ho. Of course the story is not a correct portrayal of the school life. There used to be a story that Kipling dared not meet his schoolmates after writing the story.

"The same things are said of his Anglo-Indian stories. I was born in Jolander in the Punjab region, and later served with my regiment in India, among other places. The officers attached to the Indian service resented the life which Indian officers lead in the stories. The whisky and women features I refer to. Still, all who know Indian life know that he interpreted the Indian character well, and most English officers are fond of the straight Indian stories.

A Mysterious Official.

John Paget Mellor, king's proctor, is said to be the most mysterious official in England. He gets a salary of $10,000 a year and has an assistant proctor at $5,000 and a staff of clerks to help him. The king's proctor is supposed to inquire into every undefended divorce suit, and for this purpose he can call on the detective staff of Scotland Yard. His activities add much to the difficulties of divorce in the kingdom, though the great expense of securing a decree is perhaps even a greater obstacle.

¶ Because it will travel from 25 to 35 miles on one gallon of gasoline

¶ Because it is built of vanadium steel, the best material that money can buy

¶ Because it has more power per pound of load than any car built

¶ Because it will climb any hill on high gear that any other car will, and many hills that many of them cannot climb.

¶ Because it has larger tires and cubic inches of air space in them per pound of load than any other car.

¶ Because it will travel more miles on one set of tires than any other car.

¶ Because it has an automatic cooling and an automatic oiling system, doing away with all gears and pumps for this purpose, thus ensuring simplicity and eliminating many troubles.

¶ Because the whole car is the simplest that brains can build

¶ Because it is built by a man who has never designed a failure, therefore you have no chances to take.

¶ Because Henry Ford has capital enough to buy and pay spot cash (and he does it) for enough material to build 25000 cars at one time (one year's output) and thus save one third the cost.

A MISTAKE IN THE MAN.

It Was Embarrassing, but It Turned Out Well.

By EDGAR P. YARDLEY.

[Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.]

One summer I alighted from a stage at the entrance of a hotel beside a New Hampshire lake. There were several persons sitting on the porch, and one, a young girl, arose and advanced with a happy smile to meet me. If there is one thing I have always prided myself on it is keeping my equipoise when people tipsak to me whom I don't remember. I had no idea who the girl was, but did not propose to betray my ignorance. She put out her hand and put up her lips. Not to give her the expected kiss would have been a rudeness.

That was about as sweet a kiss as I ever enjoyed. Whether it was because her lips had a peculiar flavor to them, whether it was that it was unexpected or whether there was a natural predisposition in me for that particular girl I don't know. I only know that the softness of rose leaves is nothing to the exquisite sensation I experienced in the pressure of those lips.

"LOOKED ME SQUARE IN THE FACE."

Of course I was not so stupid as to speak first. I gave her that privilege and waited for a cue.

"What brought you so early?" were her first words.

"I found I could get away earlier than I expected."

"How did you leave Katherine?"

"Very well."

"Why, she hasn't recovered, has she?"

"I mean she's doing very well."

"Oh!"

"I think I'll go in and register, getting rid of the satchel at the same time. I'll be with you in one moment."

Entering the office, I found a clerk and asked if Miss —— I stumbled on the name.

"Miss Ellison?" supplied the clerk.

"Did she say anything about a room for me?"

"Yes, but she didn't expect you on this train. However, I can take care of you."

While we were talking I was running my eye back over registered names until I came to "Mrs. Montgomery Ellison, Miss Edith Ellison, Detroit." I didn't know a soul in Detroit, so I was now quite sure the young lady had mistaken me for some one else. I must let her down easy. It occurred to me that to put my name on the hotel register might betray the situation, so, the clerk turning to inspect his key rack, I left him without doing so and walked toward the door.

"Mr. Wardwell!" he called.

I turned.

"You have not registered."

"I will do so presently." And I walked out on to the porch and joined Miss Ellison.

My next move was to discover what relationship Mr. Wardwell bore to her. It was to be supposed that he was her lover, but I was not certain.

"You've changed a little since I saw you," she said.

"Do you think so? Let me see—how long is it?"

"Two years last month."

I wished to ask where we were when we parted and, above all, whether we were lovers. How could I frame a question to get this information without making a break?

"I'll bet you can't remember your last words." I said playfully, "on the day I left you."

"I can," she said—"'don't forget the candy.'"

"What a memory!"

"It was delicious. I almost made myself sick."

I was puzzled. Candy is sweet, but I fancied the last words of a young girl to her lover before parting for two years would have more depth to them.

"Well," I said, making another attempt to draw her out, "do you feel just the same as when we parted?"

"About what?"

"The most important thing you can think of."

"The most important thing I can think of?" she said musingly. "Oh, I know! No, indeed I don't feel the same about what was the most important thing to me at that time."

"Any change there?"

"Where?"

"Why, in what you have just mentioned."

"Yes, indeed! What was it we were talking about? Oh, yes! I'm so glad to see you that I can't think of anything else."

"Well, about this change of heart?"

"Change of heart?"

"Yes. Weren't you saying you've had a change of heart?"

"No! What put that into your head?"

"Oh, tell me about that most important thing to you!"

"The most important thing when you left; not now. Well, I was to have a new dress, and I was in a great quandary as to whether I'd have it made up with large or small sleeves. You know, then they had been wearing small sleeves so long that there was sure to be a change very soon."

I gave an impatient grunt. I was not getting on. Here was I playing the part of another not knowing whether that other was cousin, uncle, brother or lover. The situation was distressing.

"Do you mean to tell me," I said, "that your heart has had no emotional upheavals since I last parted with you?"

She turned and looked me square in the face. "Emotional upheaval!" she repeated. "Aren't those words both too big to be put together?"

"What I mean is does your heart occupy the same position it occupied two years ago, or has it changed?"

"You remember that position was equivocal."

"I understand that perfectly well, but an equivocal position may become a settled one."

"Well, then, I don't mind telling you that the position is settled. My mind is made up."

I was getting deeper in the mire rather than getting out of it. Every moment I dreaded lest I would be called upon to make some appalling statement that would give me away. I had taken a kiss from a stranger I had no right to take, and now I was piling up the sin by endeavoring to extract from that stranger her heart's secret. Nevertheless I plunged on.

"Well, what is the result?"

"That things are the same as they were before anything happened."

I was getting red in the face. Though the air was delightfully cool, I took out my handkerchief and stopped my face. Having lost my countenance, I began to fancy all kinds of unpleasant happenings. Another train might come in and bring that real Wardwell. I remembered that in committing the highest type of folly before starting there were two things I might only distinguish apart; I did the first.

"I'm disappointed," said Miss Ellison.

"Disappointed! Why?" I asked.

"I don't believe you are glad to see me a bit."

"How can you say that? I was never so happy in my life."

My tones belied my words. It was never more miserable.

"You seem to be bored rather than happy."

This was said with an expression of disappointment.

"Would you entertain me better bored," I said, "if every pain, which I felt you if you were under certain conditions, known only to me?"

"And one other."

Another mistake.

"Are on average of two pains an hour it natural that I should want to know how those conditions now stand?"

In my agitation I had changed positions so often that my chair now faced the ladies sitting on the other end of the piazza. One of them gave me a bow or half a bow, as though fearful of not being recognized. Her face was familiar to me. I knew that I was acquainted with her, but I couldn't place her. I was also sitting with my back to the direction from which a stage was approaching. I heard the creak of wheels, but was too intent upon other matters to heed it. It stopped before the door. I turned in time to see a man who very much resembled myself coming up the steps. He stopped and stared at me. I stared at him. Miss Ellison burst into a laugh.

"Frank," she said, giving him a duplicate of the kiss she had given me, "this is Mr. Edwards. He came an hour ago, and I mistook him for you. Had not Mrs. Gordon, who knows him, told me when he went in to register who he is I should have continued to be deceived."

She looked at me and burst into another laugh. If I looked as I felt I must have resembled a man who had been tarred and feathered, ridden on a rail and then keelhauled. My legs would scarcely support me.

Then she kindly came to my rescue. The real Mr. Wardwell went inside to register, and Miss Ellison bade me be seated and said:

"Don't be troubled. It was my mistake, and you were led into it very naturally. Mr. Wardwell is my half brother. When I saw him last I was meditating accepting an offer of marriage. I declined it"—

"Thank God!"

"And this is the explanation," she continued, with a smile, "of what I was saying to you. But what is the 'thank God' for?" turning away her face and continuing the smile.

"For two things—first, that you declined the offer and, secondly, that Mr. Wardwell is your half brother instead of your lover."

"This is quite too much," she said, rising, "for an hour's acquaintance. You should speak to Mrs. Gordon."

I left that hotel engaged.

A Mole's Nest.

Among common animals few have been less studied in their life history than the mole. Mr. Lionel H. Adams says that under the "fortress" which the mole constructs above the surface of the ground will always be found a series of tunnels running out beneath the adjacent field. A curious feature almost invariably found in a perpendicular run penetrating about a foot below the bottom of the nest and then turning upward to meet another run. A mole is never found in his nest, although it may yet be warm from his body when opened (guided by smell and hearing, a mole frequently locates the nest of a partridge or pheasant above his run and, penetrating it from below, eats the eggs. The adult mole is practically blind, but there are embryonic indications that the power of sight in the race has deteriorated.

A Japanese Peculiarity.

"When a Japanese servant is rebuked or scolded," says a traveler, "he must smile like a Cheshire cat. The etiquette in smiles is very misleading at first. I often used to think that Taki, my Hizaka 'boy,' meant to be impertinent when he insisted on smiling when I was angry at him. But when he told me of the death of his little child with a burst of laughter I knew that this was only one of the curious details of etiquette in this topsy turvy land."

Diseases Of the Skin

Dr. Chase's Ointment

Cold, damp weather brings out eczema and salt rheum. Many who are subject to these ailments do not suffer except during the changeable weather of fall and spring.

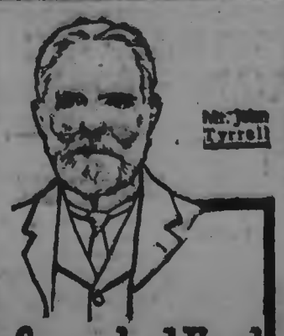
The annoying itching and the disfiguring blotches on the skin make this trouble almost unbearable to those who are not familiar with the soothing, healing influence of Dr Chase's Ointment.

Relief comes almost as soon as this ointment is applied. Gradually the irritation disappears, the sores are healed up and the skin is left soft, smooth and natural.

There is no form of eczema or eczema spreading skin disease, chronic. For this reason the use of the ointment should be persistent until the cure is complete.

Mrs. John J. Boggs, Linwood, Antigonish county, N.S., writes: "I want to say what Dr. Chase's Ointment has proved a great blessing to me. I had salt rheum on one hand, and could not get it healed up. The itching was most distressing at times. Two boxes of Dr. Chase's Ointment has cured me completely, and I gladly recommend it to every sufferer."

In every home there is a demand for Dr. Chase's Ointment. It is particularly useful where there are children. Chafing and skin irritation are relieved at once. Obstinate wounds are readily healed. Baby eczema and all forms of unnatural or irritated skin are soon cured by this soothing healing ointment. 60 cents a box, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.



Mr. John Tyrrell

Scratched Until I Tore The Flesh

"It was in the latter end of the year 1908 that a nasty itch came through my skin, and I scratched it until I tore the flesh. I tried several ointments to no effect. I went to a skin hospital. They advised me to go to the ——— Hospital, but I refused. I could not sleep with the constant itch. I was that way until on or about the month of January. One day I chanced to see in the papers a case like mine, but I gave it no credence. At last I said, 'I will try the Cuticura Remedies.' With the first wash and Cuticura Ointment I used, I found their effects. I got one box of the Ointment more, and in less than one week the skin was all right, and left no traces after it. I have not had a return of the same since, and I shall always praise the Cuticura Remedies as being the means of my cure."

(Signed) JOHN TYRRELL,

In a further letter Mr. Tyrrell adds: "The first appearance of my skin complaint was a burning itch which I tore and left my body, legs and arms one mass of sores. It caused sleepless nights, but now I can sleep as well as ever."

Life Insurance

Many a father is going to mortgage the house in town or the farm in the country this Fall that the son may go to college. Possibly that "rainy day" fund is going to be drawn upon for this purpose. I have enough faith in Canadian youth to believe in such investments. The son intends to pay back to his father every cent just as soon as he gets into business for himself. With but an exception now and then, he will—If He Lives. It is the latter point I want to emphasize. Life is not a certainty. A glance at any college catalogue will show the asterisk in the list of students and the word "deceased" at the bottom of the page. Frequently there is added to the loss of the son, the Loss of the Cost of His Education. The latter may mean the loss of the home. One of the legitimate uses of life insurance, it seems to me, is to take care of just such cases. The cost of life insurance for the son is very slight, because he is young and a good risk. It adds but little to the financial burden. In return it gives full protection to the parent, and in later years—after college debts are paid—it safeguards the home which the son sets up for himself. No son who can get insurance has the right to mortgage his father's or his mother's future happiness when there is such a good way to avoid it. One word more, young man. Be sure that your insurance is in a well established, responsible company.

Some one has said, "The true value of a life assurance policy must be gauged by the security of the protection given; if it proves to be a good investment, all the better; when both are shown, there is nothing on earth to equal it."

The security of the protection afforded by the SUN LIFE OF CANADA needs no comment, and the profits paid—let the actual results tell their own forceful story.

HATTIE LEBLANC FACES HER TRIAL FOR MURDER

Girl Found Under Bed in Employer's Room After He Had Been Killed is on Trial---Her Story is a Strange One

BOSTON, NOV. 28.—On Monday Hattie Le Blanc faced a jury charged with the killing of Clarence F. Glover a year ago.

For the first time in the history of the Commonwealth the trial of a capital case is being heard by a single Justice. Heretofore there have been two presiding Justices. In this instance only one member of the Superior bench will preside. The Justice chosen to conduct this trial is Judge Daniel Webster Bond, of Waltham.

It is expected that the trial will be one of the longest of its kind in the history of the State. Interest in it is great. The court house officials are preparing to handle throngs.

Hattie Le Blanc will be defended by Attorneys Melvin M. Johnson and A. Parley Brewer. District Attorney Higgins will prosecute. Attorney Johnson has said nothing about the approaching trial further than to announce his readiness to begin.

During her confinement in the East Cambridge Jail little Miss Le Blanc has been a model prisoner. She has improved much in health and general appearance. She has learned to speak English, as have her two sisters, and the three are expected to be able to testify in English rather than through an interpreter.

GLOVER SLAIN IN LAUNDRY

Glover was shot and killed in his laundry at Waltham on the evening of November 20, 1909. Three days later, Hattie Le Blanc was found under the bed in the guest chamber of the Glover home. She was arrested, locked up in the East Cambridge Jail, and afterward indicted for the crime charged against her by the Grand Jury.

In the meantime the will of Glover was found and read. It bequeathed everything to Mrs. Glover and his brother Seymour, who had been associated with him in the laundry. Four brothers were cut off. The four brothers—Arthur, Albert, Norman, and William—contested the will.

The hearing of the will contest was held in the Probate Court at East Cambridge. It was one of the most sensational trials of its kind ever held. Most of the time it resembled a murder hearing rather than a will contest. The four brothers took the stand and told that Glover had said that life with his wife was hell and that he feared being killed at any time.

Mrs. Glover testified, her testimony taking many days. From her the whole story of her husband's death was drawn, but she denied that she had anything whatever to do with it. She denied ever buying a revolver, and declared that she did not know that Hattie Le Blanc was hidden under the bed in her home.

GIRL ACCUSES MRS. GLOVER

Mrs. Glover said that the relations between her and her husband were very pleasant, with the exception of one week in March, when her husband had been paying too much attention to Hattie Le Blanc. She told of an incident when Hattie Le Blanc showed that she was jealous of the attention that Glover paid to his wife.

It was expected that Hattie Le Blanc would testify at the will hearing, as she said in court that she was willing, but her lawyer refused to give his consent. Hattie's two sisters have the most sensational testimony in the case. Irene swore that Hattie made these statements to her:

"I did not kill Clarence F. Glover."

"Mrs. Lillian M. Glover killed him."

"Mrs. Glover knew that I was in the house the three days and nights that I was hiding from the police."

"I had supper one evening with Mrs. Glover."

"Mrs. Glover made me hide under the bed. I had to do just as she told me."

A young woman who was for a time a fellow prisoner with Hattie Le Blanc and is an unusually close observer, has written for this newspaper a graphic story of the every-day life of the seventeen-year-old French girl. With rare facility of expression this young woman has told how Hattie queens it over all of the other prisoners and, is buoyed with the hope that her trial is only needed to set her free.

THE PRISONER'S STORY

If there is a morose or melancholy side to little Hattie Le Blanc's character she has kept it admirably concealed, for among the forty women prisoners imprisoned with her, her smile is the brightest, her step the quickest and her attitude the most contented. When she emerges from her cell in the morning there are no haggard looks to tell of broken rest. Her eyes flash and sparkle, her cheeks glow with color and her "good morning" is of the cheeriest. She seems endowed with superabundant vitality and fairly bubbles over with the exhilarating fulness of life.

There is never a word of questioning or grumbling when her work is assigned to her in the laundry each morning. She invariably examines each article, and always chooses the prettiest to start the day's task with. As each piece is finished she holds it from her, and whether it is a dainty waist or fine skirt she admires it to her heart's content.

With the matron she is docile and obedient. With most of her fellow prisoners she is reserved and aloof, acting the part of one whom fate has unkindly placed among them. In spite of her youth her self-poise is the admiration of all that come in contact with her.

With all her buoyancy her worst enemies could never say that she is noisy or vulgar. Sometimes during the recreation hour she will walk up and down the yard, her arm thrown in girlish fashion around a chosen companion's waist, talking in a low voice inaudible to the busy listeners who surround her. When the weather is inclement and the prisoners are not allowed in the yard, Hattie will stand for a half hour at a time in the doorway of the laundry inhaling the air and gazing dreamily at the little piece of sky over the yard. At these times she is never disturbed. She makes her own solitude, and in some way makes others respect it.

Within this little girl the love of music amounts to almost a passion. When her quick ear detects one of her companions singing out of time, the culprit is treated to a lightning flash of Hattie's blue eyes, which plainly show both her annoyance and displeasure.

SERMON FROM SHAKESPEARE

(Copr. 1909, by Bradley-Garretson Co. Ltd.).

O, good old man, how well in thee appears
The constant service of the antique world,
When service sweat for duty, not for meed.
As You Like It, Act II., Sc. 3.

It is a common complaint that the age of faithful servants is no more. Constantly the good old times, when servants were servants in the highest sense of the word, are recalled. Each age seems to think that immediately preceding it was a species of golden age when men-servants and maid-servants thought more of their master's welfare than the reward they were to receive for their services. The complaint is an old one. Here is Shakespeare, three hundred years ago, writing as though there was an ancient world in which ideal conditions of service existed. So will it no doubt be to the end of time. The eye of the present sees existing weaknesses and defects, and for its own uses frequently takes the isolated and rare cases of the past and generalizes on them.

From the point of view of faithful service the world as a whole is better in the twentieth century than it was in the sixteenth or earlier. There is continuous growth. If this were not the case society would fall to pieces. Amiel truly remarks: "Ten righteous men would have saved Sodom, but thousands and thousands of good homely folk are needed to preserve a people from corruption and decay." The good homely folk, like Adam, the faithful servant in "As You Like It," still exist, and are the salt of the earth.

All men are servants, servants of their God, their king, their country, or their fellow-men. To forget this is to make men tyrants and loafers. Duty is urging every man to be a faithful worker. The very word duty is significant. It means something due—a debt owed some being. Duty is threefold in its nature. There are natural duties—duties owed parents, children, or one's self; legal duties, duties owed society; moral duties, duties owed the Infinite. The truly dutiful man is the one who combines all three as a guide to conduct. Old Adam was a splendid example of the dutiful man. Shakespeare has produced no more excellent character. In his duty towards himself Adam had saved five hundred crowns to be his foster-nurse in old age; in his duty towards God he had kept his body pure; in his duty towards society he had ever been a faithful servant, and in his old age he was ready to sacrifice all from a sense of duty towards the son of his master. He still felt himself his master's debtor. The tender care the father had bestowed on him was remembered. He had been clothed and fed by a kindly master from infancy. He had attained old age without having to take thought for food or raiment. He had been well rewarded for his service and he was not ungrateful.

Adam evidently had had a good master. Therein is the secret of good service. If men are suspicious of their employees, tyrannical over them, only seeking to get as much profit as possible out of them, they must expect cause for suspicion and occasion for the exercise of tyranny.

A good master makes good servants; a good master is a good servant himself. There are factories and estates from which it would be difficult to drive the employees. When the slaves were freed in the South thousands remained faithful to the old masters who had tenderly watched over them.

Many men live as though they had no duties. They dream of gigantic tasks to be performed while they neglect the work that lies at hand. It would be well for such men to take to heart the words: "To do my duty in that estate of life unto which it shall please God to call me." There is no position in life so humble that the voice of duty cannot reach, none so lofty that should not heed it. When a king rules as though the eye of the Divine were upon him his people cannot but be happy. The hedger and ditcher should likewise have an ideal before him in his work. What was it made the sculptors of ancient Greece so great? A sense of duty towards their gods and their art. Perfection was their aim, and every line and curve was chiseled with the feeling that the eye of an Apollo or an Athene was upon them. What made the art of Michael Angelo and Raphael so enduring? Their overwhelming sense of duty to God and man. They worked not for meed but from a stern sense of the greatness of their mission. Shakespeare, Milton, Tennyson, Browning, Emerson, all achieved greatness by seeing their duty and promptly doing it. The time-servers in literature and art have had but an ephemeral existence.

The voice of duty is "the polestar of a wandering humanity." It solves the most difficult problems of life. The only truly independent and free man is the one who heeds it. Friends, property, life itself, often tyrannize over the soul. At duty's voice a man can sacrifice all earthly possessions, and like the martyrs of old rejoice in the act. Modern society, with its freedom, has been erected on the graves of men and women who have heeded the voice of duty, often to their temporal loss, always to their eternal glory.

LOST A BIG FORTUNE IN HIS SPECULATIONS

The Duke of Sutherland's Uncle ran into Debt to the Extent of $400,000

The Duke of Sutherland has just offered to make his uncle, Lord Ronald Sutherland Gower, a provisional allowance of $25,000 per annum, and Lord Ronald, who has lost his entire fortune, has been compelled to accept his nephew's generous offer.

Lord Ronald's ruin is said to have been brought about by Mr. Frank Shackleton, brother of Sir Ernest Shackleton, the popular and gallant Antarctic explorer. Mr. Frank Shackleton was at one time connected with the Dublin Herald. He resigned his position at the same time as Sir Arthur Vicars, the Ulster King-at-Arms, owing to the Dublin jewel scandal. Between them they were responsible for the custody of the jewels, the disappearance of which is still surrounded by a good deal of mystery. With Mr. Shackleton Lord Ronald embarked on a number of wild-cat schemes, and Lord Ronald, who is not a business man, appears to have signed everything he was asked to put his pen to. Shackleton became bankrupt last August for the sum of $400,000, one claim alone against him amounting to $100,000. His ruin involved Lord Ronald, who has now been forced to sell Hammerfield, a beautiful place in Kent, upon which he had spent much money.

Lord Ronald has long been a distinguished figure in Upper Bohemia. He is an author, artist and sculptor, and was at one time a member of Parliament. Some years ago he adopted a brilliant young journalist, Mr. Frank Hird, as his son, and had intended to leave him the place in Kent. Many years ago Lord Ronald started a crusade against top hats. He has never worn one in his life and it is certainly true that except for business and official purposes and great social functions, the silk hat is far less worn than it was.

SUBMARINE TESTS FOR BRITISH NAVY

Admiralty Experiments in Various Ways to Determine the Utility of Submerged Craft

An important experiment—one of a series made with the object of ascertaining accurately the effect of gunfire on submarines under war conditions and the risks to which they are exposed from mines—was made at Portsmouth recently.

The vessel which has been chosen by the Admiralty to be sacrificed in the interest of these experiments is the ill-fated A 1, in which eleven lives were lost when she sank off the Isle of Wight six years ago.

The first phase of the experiments was to ascertain the effect on the vessel should her periscope be shot away. For this purpose the A 1 was merged, showing only her periscope, she was fired at from a gunboat. The marksmanship of the gunners appears to have been somewhat at fault, for, so far as can be ascertained, the small hooded lens, which to all intents and purposes is the eye of the submarine, was undamaged.

So determined are the Admiralty authorities to preserve secrecy that the craft was towed back to harbor under cover of darkness.

The second phase of the experiments consisted of towing the vessel up the Portsmouth Harbor near the Vernon Torpedo School, and there, when her hull was just awash, a powerful submarine mine was exploded by electricity a short distance away.

The effect on the hull of the craft is a secret guarded with the utmost care, but it is understood that the damage is surprisingly small.

The A 1 is to be subjected to further experiments later.

Though one of the earliest types of submarines in the navy the "A" class is still largely used for experimental purposes, and with the Holland type, which are older vessels, would be of great value in coastal and harbor defence work. Their chief failing is their small radius of action.

Not long ago one of the Holland boats was flooded in dry dock at Portsmouth to ascertain the effect of salt water on the batteries, and from it the Admiralty learned the terrible dangers of chlorine gas.

HAS NOT SLEPT FOR SEVEN LONG YEARS

A Budapest Woman Has No Inclination to Get Out of the Sleepless State

Budapest, Oct. 8.—Medical men here are deeply interested in the remarkable case of a woman who has not slept for seven years.

Frau Bertha Hejemes, who is married and has a little girl of ten, began her long vigil one night when a gipsy woman attempted to kidnap the child. Since then she has not been able to go to sleep; neither has she had any inclination to do so.

She is in excellent health, and has never had a day's illness, but as soon as she endeavors to lie down she is seized with a violent nervous agitation, which compels her to sit up again.

The woman declares she is quite content in her sleepless state, as with the whole twenty-four hours to herself she is able to perform all her household duties as well as to do a great deal of reading.

A curious fact is that since the beginning of her insomnia she has developed a great taste and ability for study, and has learned three languages.

Frau Hejemes is now thirty-eight years old, and it is because of late she has been subject to irrepressible fits of yawning that she has at last consulted a medical man about her condition.

SPREAD OF DENTISTRY

"See here," explained the angry man as he entered the walking-stick emporium; "I bought this cane here last week."

"Yes, I believe you did, sir," rejoined the proprietor calmly; "what's wrong with it?"

"You said the handle was genuine ivory, and I find it is artificial," said the irate party.

"That may be true," said the dealer, "but it is no fault of mine. I import all my ivory from Africa, and the only explanation I can give is that the elephant may have had false tusks."

CONDEMNATORY EVIDENCE

A minister's wife was busy repairing clothes when a neighbor called. After some general gossip the visitor idly inspecting the miscellaneous contents of a button basket, remarked: "You seem to be unusually well supplied with buttons of all kinds. Why, there's one like my husband had on his last winter's suit."

"Indeed!" said the minister's wife with a smile. "Well, all these buttons were found on the collection plate, and I thought I might as well make use of them. What! Must you go? Well, good-bye, come again soon."

THEY NOW OWN ALL THE POWER

By purchasing the water power from Mr. S. R. Leggott, the Dickson Co. of Peterborough, now own the entire water power in Lakefield, says the Lakefield News. The deal was put through last week and ended what might have resulted in serious complications. Mr. Leggott, who some time ago, purchased the old Griffin planing mill and water power, decided to build a new power house for his electric light plant, and last week commenced blasting out the old tail race of the water power. The Dickson Co. objected to the proceedings, and on Friday sent men up from Peterborough to stop the work, and to use force if necessary. The men saw how things were and refused to work, which was a lucky thing for them, as a large number of men in the village were ready to back Mr. Leggott up with any assistance he might require. Peaceful negotiations were then commenced, with the result that Mr. Leggott sold his water power and mill to the Dickson Co. for a good figure.

WILL STEAL NO MORE CHICKENS

Mr. James Falls, South Verulam, who makes raising vegetables and poultry a specialty, has been missing some of his chickens. So being some what of a sport, he set one of these Gee-wiz spring rat traps at the foot of a tree, where the chickens roost, says the Bobcaygeon Independent. He fastened a bit of chain to the trap, and stapled it to a tree. Next morning to his surprise Mr. Trap has disappeared, the staple being pulled out of the tree. This excited the old gentleman, and so he set out another. Next morning it was still there, nobody had taken it. Mr. Falls had to leave for a few days deer hunting back north, so gave instructions to his son William to keep an eye on the trap while he was away. The other morning, sure enough there was something doing, and on going over, there was a big silver grey owl, with a trap on each foot. It was exactly two weeks since the first trap disappeared. William has Mr. Owl still living and he is a dandy.

AT RATE OF $800 PER ACRE

(Lindsay Watchman-Warder.)

In the arbitration proceedings of Samuel Broad, of Chesterton against the Township of Mariposa, His Honour Judge Harding has made his award, giving the plaintiff $400.00 for one half acre of land expropriated for a gravel pit and ordered the Township to pay all the costs of the proceedings, including the solicitors' costs and arbitrator's fees.

The action arose out of the township of Mariposa expropriating one half an acre of land and a right of way into it, for the purpose of a gravel pit, and they offered Mr. Broad $200, which he refused to accept and there was an arbitration then which awarded him $400, and which award was set aside by McLaughlin, Peel, Fulton & Stinson, who acted for Mr. Broad, and a new arbitration proceedings was taken, which was held before His Honour Judge Harding as a sole arbitrator, with the result that Mr. Broad now gets $400 and his costs.

McLaughlin, Peel, Fulton and Stinson acted for Mr. Broad throughout, and Stewart & O'Connor for the township.

Caught a Heavy Cold.

It Left Him with a Hacking Cough.

Mr. J. E. Millerchip, 1280 Second Ave. East, Vancouver, B.C., writes:—"About six weeks ago I had the misfortune to catch a heavy cold which left me with a hacking cough, and every time I would get a little more cold the hacking cough would become a long spitting fit. It kept on getting worse and I kept on spending money buying different cough remedies until a friend asked me if I had ever tried Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup. I told him I was willing to try anything. I thought it could cure, but on the second day bought two bottles. Before half the first one was used my cough began to get much better, and by the time I had used a bottle and a half my cough was gone. I am keeping the other half bottle as some day I should cough again but I am quite sure I have a positive cure. I am convinced Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup is all that could have a cough or throat irritation of any kind."

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup is put up in a yellow wrapper; three pine trees the trade mark; price 25 cents.

OBSERVATIONS IN GENERAL

The citizens of Oshawa have organized with a view to booming the town. They have adopted the motto: "A City Charter by 1914".

The Opposition at Ottawa has started the session with a new lot of whips. They should have more crack to them, and the Opposition ought to do some better shopping, and have a more classy gait than has prevailed of late years, says the Bobcaygeon Independent.

Patients admitted since Aug. 18..	88
Number of Typhoids admitted....	26
Number of deaths from Typhoid ..	5
Deaths from other causes	3
Births..	1

It will be observed that more than half the number of patients were cases of typhoid.

Rev. Dr. Storey, the popular pastor of the Methodist Church, Cobourg, and formerly pastor of the George Street Methodist Church, Peterborough, has accepted an invitation from the Cambridge Street Methodist church, Lindsay, to become their pastor for next Conference year. Rev. Dr. Storey is completing the fourth year of a successful pastorate in Cobourg.

Rev. J. P. Wilson, the present pastor of the Lindsay Church, goes to Napanee, to succeed Rev. W. H. Hanley, President of the Bay of Quinte Conference, who goes to the First Methodist church at Picton.

A son of Mr. George Conquhoare, who lives at Moore's Bridge, heard a commotion in the chicken coop one evening last week, and upon investigating he found a large Hawk on the roost with the hens, says the Bancroft Times. He had chased the hens into the coop and had been unable to find his way out. He had made a meal off one of Mr. Conquhoare's chickens just the evening before, but the second trip proved disastrous, and instead of regaling himself upon stuffed chicken, a taxidermist filled him up with excelsior or some other preservative.

Under the heading "Some Family" the Bobcaygeon Independent says: Mr. Gardiner Nichols is a gentleman who would give Theodore Roosevelt the delight of his life as to the raising of a family. Mr. Nichols has now 42 grandchildren and a few of his own children yet unmarried.

Mr. D. Murray, a well known Lindsay G.T.R. engineer on the way-freight has been promoted to engineer on the Port Hope-Toronto express.

Mr. Murray succeeds Mr. Geo. Williams who made his last trip yesterday, and commenced this morning to draw his pension, as he has reached the age limit, 65 years. Engineer Murray's many friends will be pleased to learn of his promotion. He will in all probability reside in Toronto.

A RE-UNION OF CAVAN BLAZERS

The Editor of the Millbrook Reporter says:

It has been suggested to us that a reunion of Cavan and Millbrook Old Boys next summer, would be well thought of by the home guard, and especially by the many sons and daughters of the district now far or near in other lands and climes. We have thought it well therefore, at this early date to set the ball rolling, and if possible get the opinion of all interested in the proposition. There are many under the Stars and Stripes and on the prairies of the West or on the sunny Pacific, and in all parts of the province who would, we are sure, gladly enter into the spirit of the scheme, and we should be glad to hear from them in the matter. All suggestions and communications will be published in the Reporter, and if it is thought advisable to go on with the idea a strong local committee will be selected, and out-of-town Old Boys would also doubtless organize for the home-coming. Winnipeg and Edmonton, Vancouver and Victoria, Chicago, and New York, Toronto and Montreal would all gather together good contingents we are sure, to make the old town and country side alive in the happy by-gone days.

Everything is yet open as to the idea, the time, the form of engagement, etc., and we hope to have the suggestion from local and outside Old Boys at the earliest opportunity, for if 1911 is to be the date, the start should be made and plans laid at an early date—Ed. Reporter.

A GOOD OLD TIME REVIVAL

A correspondent to the Tweed News, from Eldorado, Hastings County, gives a glowing account of a revival that is taking place in that neighbourhood. The correspondent says:

Such a revival of religion as has not occurred on this circuit in many years is now in progress at Eldorado. The "Ten Days' Meeting" is characterized by overwhelming spiritual power. More than fifty persons have bowed at the altar and among them old men of eighty years. Men have put their work aside and are driving teams and large vehicles to the cottage meetings in the afternoon and the church at night. The large double parlours above the new store were opened on Tuesday afternoon of this week for the cottage meeting, and on Wednesday afternoon the parlours of the Temperance House were flung open by Mrs. Harry Jones and the house that once trembled with blasphemy was filled with prayer and the praise of God. This great meeting follows from most successful anniversaries, viz., Eldorado, Union, Blair's and McCoy's at each of which churches the congregations made their offerings larger than asked for by the pastor. Twenty-eight young men met the pastor at nine o'clock on Sabbath morning for prayer and testimony. The Board has voted an advance of $150.00 on salary, making the minister's stipend $850.00, and at the last business meeting $230.00 was put on the plates. Surely God is here.

CAMBRIDGE, MASS., DEC. 3.—More sensational evidence concerning the relations of Hattie Leblanc, the Canadian girl and the wife of Glover, whom Hattie is alleged to have murdered, were brought out this morning and the case did not go to the jury, as was expected. Mrs. Glover being recalled to the stand for the fourth time, again flatly denied any knowledge of crime or events that led to it. Hundreds of people ,including Canadians, who came from Cape Breton to assist the girl, were unable to get into the court room. A verdict may possibly be reached to-night.

THERE IS A DANGER IN THE CRY OF CANADA FOR THE CANADIANS

Remarked Prof. P. G. C. Campbell of Queen's University in his Reply to the Toast to "Canada" at Queen's Alumni Dinner Last Evening---Brilliant Assembly of Graduates and Ladies at Hotel National---An Eloquent Flow of Oration.

Marked by a splendid array of eloquence and an unusually large attendance, the second annual dinner of the Central Ontario Alumni Association of Queen's University, was held last evening at the Hotel National. The occasion was graced with the presence of Prof. P. P. C. Campbell, Prof. Laird and Prof. A. P. Knight, M.A., M.D., of Queen's University, and their remarks were followed with intense interest. It was with a feeling of deep regret that the president, Mr. E. L. Goodwill, announced the inability of Principal Gordon to be present on account of illness. He trusted that his recovery would be speedy. The dining hall of the Hotel National never looked more attractive than it did last evening. It was most artistically arranged with flags and bunting and chief among the decorations were the Queen's colours, of red, blue and yellow, and a banner across the centre of the room, lettered in gold and bearing the words, "Queen's University." This combined with the pretty gowns of the ladies, contrasted with the sombre evening suits of the gentlemen, lent colour and attractiveness to the brilliant assembly. The repast was one of unusual excellence and but another tribute to the high class cuisine of the National under the capable management of Mr. Denison.

The graduates of sister universities, many of whom were from outside points, were accompanied by their wives. Those present were:

Mr. E. L. Goodwill, Dr. A. P. Knight, Prof. P. G. C Campbell, Prof. Laird, Hon. J. R. Stratton, M.P., Judge Huycke, Mr. D. W. Dumble, K.C., Rev. D. W. Best, Mr. W. H. Collier, Mrs. J. R. J. Pettit,

The Toast List.

The toast to the "King" was proposed by the president, Mr. E. L. Goodwill, in the usual manner by the singing of the National Anthem. The next toast was that to "Canada," and coupled with it were the names of Prof. Campbell, of Queen's University and Hon. J. R Stratton, M.P.

Prof. Campbell on rising to respond was greeted with applause. It was the first time, he said, that he had the opportunity of meeting with the Queen's Alumni of the Central Ontario Association. Queen's felt, he remarked, a great trilogy, composed of graduates, undergraduates and professors. The toast to "Canada" filled all Canadians, whether Canadian by birth or by adoption, with pride when was realized the greatness of our Dominion. Canada was beginning to realize its nationality, but the danger was that we should make success, the standard in life. A young man was spoken to recently about entering the ministry, but his reply was that there was no money in it. That was the danger. "We read in our papers, "Canada for the Canadians," he stated, "but we see positions in our militia, in our Universities, in our mercantile and manufacturing concerns, invariably filled with Englishmen. If Canada had adopted the policy of shutting out people years ago we would have had no progress. Australia learned her mistake when she said, "Australia for the Australians" and in Australia it resulted in stagnation. Now, English newspapers were advertising both Australia and Canada. The speaker was afraid the cry, "Canada for the Canadians" would grow in the wrong direction. No country was so constituted that it could supply all its needs. Canada was a part of a great empire and he believed that each part should produce and annufacture what was most suitable for it. It was free trade within thecountry and preference everywhere else. A nation that lived for itself never prospected." If we don't feel proud of being Canadians we won't amount to anything, but that should not be the whole thing. The University was of some importance in this respect. The University was turning out our statesmen and our honest lawyers.

Queen's University.

With the Queen's College yell and their university song, the toast to Queen's was heartily drank and ably responded to by Prof. Laird and Dr. Knight. Prof. Laird was the first to reply. He was sorry that Principal Gordon was not able to be present. He stated that Principal Gordon was keenly disappointed at not being able to come, and he was told to inform the graduates that he deeply regretted his inability to be present. Prof. Laird said he was delighted to see the graduates of sister universities present, and he added that as he moved up and down the country seeking aid for Queen's he was delighted with the cordial support received from the graduates of Toronto and McGill.

Regarding the health of Queen's University Prof. Laird said that he was pleased to say that it was good. Queen's had its ills and troubles, but if it worked according to ideals of loyalty and truth there was bound to be progress. During the past year there had been twelve new appointments to the faculty. Queen's was in the midst of a great expansion.

POLLING TO-DAY

Special Wire to the Examiner.

LONDON, DEC. 3.—It would seem that all motor cars, cabs and other conveyances in the United Kingdom were to-day gathered in 70 constituencies where polling is taking place to-day. The system of heats by which the British election race is run, permits of concentration of forces to much greater extent than in Canada, and all leaders and every legal influence it at work to-day among the voters of the ridings scattered in the various parts of Great Britain. It is felt by all concerned that the results to-day will be an index of the complete returns. Last year these seats were held as follows: Liberals, 36; Labourites, 8; Unionists, 26. The question is, will the Liberal-Labourites coalition gain or lose in the election to-day. As the costituencies are scattered considerably it will likely be very late before the full returns of to-day are in. The betting to-day by brokers, who may be regarded as strictly impartial politicians, was 3-1 that the Government would have a majority, but that doesn't mean a working majority. All Canadians in the fight are having a hard time of it. Every one of them, on which ever side they stand for, are having their grit, stamina, and resourcefulness tested to the utmost.

In St. Pancras Joseph Martin, the redoubtable British Columbian politician, has been accused by his opponent of talking around organized mobs of supporters to break up Unionist meetings.

LONDON, ENG., DEC. 3.—Further nominations to-day brought the total number by acclamation in the elections up to fifty-five, making the standing of parties this afternoon so far: Liberals, 16; Nationalist, 5; Unionist, 34. Late to-day the election gamblers were betting even money that the Unionists would gain twenty seats, which would give the Nationalists complete control of the new cabinet. John Redmond is among the Nationalists, unopposed.

BIG SUM IS PLACED IN THE ESTIMATES FOR CANAL WORK

Main Estimates for the Next Fiscal Year Presented to House of Commons Yesterday---Total Amount Upon Parliament Will Have to Vote is $138,863,200.

Ottawa, Dec. 2.—The main estimates for the next fiscal year were presented to the Commons to-day. The total amount which Parliament is asked to vote, on both revenue and capital accounts, is $138,863,200 an increase of $9,035,575 over the total vote of last session. Supplementary estimates later in session may, as usual, increase this amount several millions, but, in any event, with the revenue steadily increasing at the rate of over one million dollars per month the Government is still assured of an income for next year that will considerably more than keep pace with the growing expenditure. Of the total amount asked $38,18[illegible] is on capital account, including [illegible]ty-seven millions for the National Transcontinental Railway, two millions for the Quebec bridge, two and a quarter millions for the Trent Canal, and a million for the St. Lawrence Ship channel. On consolidated fund account the vote is $100,674,627, an increase of $5,096,715 over the current year. The principal items of increase are: Census, $1,000,000; railways and canals (collection of revenue), $630,754; postoffice, $626,080; naval service $135,000; public debt, including sinking funds, $980,525; ocean and river service, $638,000.

AN APPEAL FOR CAST-OFF CLOTHING AND POOR RELIEF FUND MADE TO THE CITIZENS

Editor of The Examiner:

With your kind permission I would like to announce that the Salvation Army is organizing a systematic relief work among the poor classes during the ensuing winter, and to make an appeal to the citizens for cast off clothing, shoes, etc. We have in this city an efficient band of workers, the League of Mercy, who not only are willing to look after the poor, but also spend considerable time in sewing and mending. It has been the pleasure of the citizens during past winters to cooperate in this work by sending cast off clothing, shoes, etc., and I am assured it is only necessary to issue this appeal to enlist the same hearty response again this season.

In connection with this relief work I am also desirous of organizing a Poor Relief Fund, and I am confident there are many charitably-disposed citizens who will be willing to assist in this connection. All donations to this fund will be kept separate from our general funds, and will be used conscientiously and carefully in the alleviation of the deserving poor of this city during the winter days.

Donations in cash as well as orders for groceries, flour, fuel, meat, boots and shoes, or other serviceable goods, will be acknowledged by mail.

Thanking you for your insertion of this appeal.

Respectfully yours,
ENSIGN J. H. MERRETT,
320 King street Commanding Officer.

ALFRED MEAKINS IS CHARGED WITH THEFT OF BOTTLES OF GIN

Alfred Meakins was arraigned in the Police Court this morning on a charge of breaking into Alex. Elliott's store on Nov. 24th, and taking therefrom a half dozen bottles of gin. He would not elect as to how he would be tried, so he was remanded for six days. He will appear next Friday, December 9th.

Harry Waters was charged with vagrancy. He pleaded guilty of the charge and was given five months on the hill. He had previously asked to be given three months.

A Smith Township farmer was charged with violating the blacklist law. He pleaded guilty. The prisoner told the court that his two hired men supplied him with the liquor. Judgment was reserved for a week.

Splendid Array Of 'Xmas Gifts Offered At Kent's Store

Mr. W. J. Kent, who recently took over the drug business of Mr. H. S. Macdonald, is showing a beautiful array of Chirstmas goods that would make most desirable presents for the coming season of gifts giving. With the recent improvements that have been made to this store it has been made possible to attractively display these new goods and Mr. Kent has not failed to show his splendid line of Christmas novelties to the best advantage. A visit to this up-to-date store should settle the question as to what would make an appropriate Christmas gift. If the holiday shopper is in doubt the matter can easily be decided by dropping into Mr. Kent's store. A choice array of fine ebony ware is in stock and anything in the line of military brushes, hair and clothes brushes can be supplied at prices to suit every person, and in shapes that will suit the most fastidious. Also manicure sets are here shown and for those who like a box of candy for Christmas, this is the place where the choicest can be procured. Mr. Kent handles Ramsay's chocolates of Montreal, and Reynolds' of Toronto.

Artist Evangelist Is Proud Of Local Children

Last evening there was a good attendance at the Gospel Hall, when it had been announced as Review night and the children turned out en masse. Mr. Adam McMurdo, the artist evangelist, had the programme well arranged. The service began with hearty singing, followed by special recitations. William Millar and Charles Hewson sang "How in the Grave He Lay," and Sarah Millar recited "The Fate of the Spring Poem" and sang "I Must Have the Saviour With Me," while Frank and Charles Hewson rendered a Christmas carol; little Agnes and Mary Walker sang sweetly "'Tis a True and Faithful Saying." The prizes were awarded to Mary Hewson, Sarah Millar, Roy Anderson, Reta Quibell, Wallace Quilligan, Charles Telford, Agnes and Mary Walker. Valuable assistance was rendered by Messrs. Binnie and Keller, in deciding the merits of the children. Robert McMurdo gave an appropriate talk on Sunday School work. Adam McMurdo who has just come from the Children's meetings in New York and the South, expressed his delight with the children for their intelligence and good behaviour, which speaks well for the parents of Peterborough.

THE PEOPLE'S CHIMES.

The People's Chimes are on the way to an accomplished fact, and this circumstance gives cause for the rejoicing which the bells, themselves voice in anticipation. While the chimes in themselves represent delightful things, they are more valuable as the embodiment of the liberality, public spirit ,and unity of citizenship that has brought them into existence. They will swing for ages to the joyful songs of St. John's, and from their high vantage point, will ring out over the whole city in tones of eloquent harmony, the story of the sweeter and higher harmony of brothers dwelling together in unity, as well as "call the living and mourn the dead." As often as their brazen throats release the sounds of rejoicing or mourning or chime, in herald voices, the Christmas gift, or other great event, the people will listen to the voices of their own chimes, and realize that, prosaic life, takes on a poetic charm. To hundreds of our people their resonant boom will come as an echo from the homeland, borne like the bells themselves, across a thousand leagues of sea—

Those evening bells! those evening bells!
How many a tale their music tells,
Of love and home, and that sweet time
When first I heard their soothing chime.

The bells will ring out a message and sense of peace and soothing. They will soften hearts and chide the rising enmity against our neighbours: they will pour a little perfume of poesy into our hard, every-day lives: they will bind neighbour to neighbour, in one common sympathy for all can say, "our bells are ringing." We welcome the people's chimes in this regard, for the one great need is unity and harmony of citizenship.

THE CANADIAN CLUB.

The Canadian Club is an important and potent agency in the field of higher literary and general culture, and broader patriotism. The local club has only a membership of 180. it should have double or treble that number. It bands together our best citizens, with the aim of fostering a warmer national spirit, implied in widening the knowledge of ourselves, our institutions, our resources, our duties, and our responsibilities. At stated periods they cultivate the social and fraternal spirit by banquets, at which the piece de resistance is an address by some Canadian who brings a message of cheer and injunction, thus bringing its members in contact with the makers of our history, widening their outlook, and giving them higher ambitions and directer aims. These speakers are drawn from all points of Canada, and are, apart from their literary, social ,and oratorical influence, effective in bringing the widely separated citizens of our far-flung Dominion into personal and constitutional contact. Canada is spread across a continent, widely divided as to its component parts by physical and geographical obstacles. We are apt to be narrow in our lives and parochial in our outlook if we plough the lone furrow, and it is the object and function of the Canadian Club to correct the dangers of isolation, and to bring about a greater unity of sentiment and purpose amongst our widely separated people. The Club has had many eminent men from the central parts of the Dominion, and it might be regarded as practical and practicable to suggest that the session of parliament which brings together our representative men from all over the country to Ottawa for several months, might be utilized. Among the members especially, from the West, are many men of outstanding ability. Most of these men, during the parliamentary recess, are impossible, on account of distance. Ottawa is in easy reach and some of these men might be secured to speak before the local Club. The West is a young giant coming into his own. We want to keep in touch with our western brothers, who will, in a few years, become an important, if not dominating influence in our national life. Next in point to the old Greek's, injunction, "know thyself," is the importance of knowing each other. To help on in this direction is one of the chief results, if not functions, of the Canadian Club.

ABOUT OURSELVES.

The following from the Toronto News merits a little study, and appreciation, as tending to show that the city beautiful has more than aesthetic—it has a practical value:

The civic spirit is awake in many United States cities. The Grand Rapids Board of Trade has a Municipal Affairs committee of 100 men representing every trade, business and profession. In a recent campaign for pure water the members of this committee were instrumental in having no less than 30,000 individuals personally solicited for votes. The committee's motto is: "The city which is the most attractive, as best governed and the most decent in which to live, will lead and it will get factories." Grand Rapids believes in "idealizing business and in capitalizing ideals." The youths and boys of the city are enlisted in the movement by being taught the ethics of civic beautification. In some cities the schools utilize text books on the subject.

The enlisting of the young in taking an interest in "the ethics of city beautification" is beginning at the right point: at the time of life when tastes are being formed and principles developed. Unfortunately in Peterborough, the cult of the beautiful is confined to too few, though thanks to the work of the Horticultural Society in some directions, the number is growing larger. There is a continual extension of the desire for beautiful, neat, tidy and attractive homes.

But so far, this desire and the action to which it gives impulse, is too individualistic. There is not yet enough of communal interest; too little appreciation of the importance of a general movement, and the necessity of harmonizing generality of cooperation.

There are three important truths compacted into one sentence of the above quoted article, which is important enough to be given special prominence:

"Th city which is the most attractive, the best governed, and the most decent in which to live, will lead; and it will get factories."

Here we have a fine blending of the ideal and the practical. One of the chief things that give importance to a city is population. It is that which gives value to property. New citizens mean new homes, and new homes demand sites on which to place them.

If we get population we must have the means provided for competently maintaining them. We must have employment for labour and capital. We must provide the conditions that attract capital and make its employment profitable in this age cheap power, of which we have not a superabundance; good sites, of which we have plenty; and good transportation facilities ,of which we have enough to make us superior to most of our competitors.

Then we must make the city a pleasant place to live in: we must not have the pleasure of life, too much spoiled by high taxes. To avoid this we must have good city government, and this we cannot have till the people realize that under the Canadian system the citizens have the privilege of governing themselves; that they can have just as good or bad government as they themselves provide. If they are indifferent and careless in the choice of the trustees they appoint to manage their business, they will probably get indifferent service. We want a governing body that takes its duties seriously, that seeks to know its duty, and does it; and is made to feel that if it doesn't do it, its services will be dispensed with.

Can we get such a governing body, with the people so indifferent as they have been in the matter of representation, and as they seem to be now? Here we are within a month of our municipal elections, and is there the slightest evidence that the people are taking the slightest interest in chosing the men who are the next year, and some of them for the next four also, to manage their business, to levy taxes, to collect taxes, and to spend them in the most economical and effective way in the public interest?

Cannot the people see that they are standing in their own light; neglecting to provide for their good government by their indifference to municipal matters. The people by their votes elect representatives, but they do not select them. They have to vote if they vote at all, for candidates that are self-selected. No effort is made to see if the best men available are brought out.

This is unbusiness-like; and business, either public or private, done in Appeq si 'sauuim aqu-sa-ainqun ue dolce. A man proposes to open up, say, a large dry goods business that will employ a large number of hands. How does he get them? Does he wait till a few days before he will open his doors, and go out on the street and pick up his future employees at random? Or does he accept the first dozen that offers, without inquiring as to their fitness or without any guarantee that they will be able to give him satisfactory service? Yet that is about the way the people select their representatives; and then when big tax bills come in, they pay, swear a little or much, and in a day or two forget about it; and then blindly blunder along another year without taking any thought of how they can improve the conditions they grumble at.

Everybody knows that city government under the present system of hap-hazard selection or rather, blind election with no continuity in office and no continuity of policy or practice, is unsatisfactory; but things may be a little better, with the arrangement to continue half the board of aldermen elected in the future for two years. But will that concentrate any more attention on candidates? Will that arouse the people to take a more direct and active interest in the manner in which they are governed? We boast of government by the people, but when the people take no interest in electing trustees, beyond voting perfunctorily once a year, we have not so much self government as government by absence.

Many places in the United States have found government by commission a wholesome thing and Guelph and St. Catharines are considering it. United States cities have found it good to have three or five commissioners, elected for three year terms, and paid a salary, to give their exclusive services to the city. They have found that they have civic business better done, get better value for the money spent and have altogether better conditions.

Besides, electing three commissioners and a mayor, who would have three year terms, would tend to wake the people of Peterborough up. Public attention would be concentrated on these three or four men, and the fact that they were hired servants would lead the people to be more critical, more exacting and more careful, in selection. There is a natural chivalry in men. They reason that if men, as under the present system, serve them for nothing, they cannot consistently be blamed if their services correspond to their remuneration. As a rule in this world, in the way of wages and service, they are worth just what we pay for them.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Sam Hughes still holds the record as the only simon pure loyalist. He is the only member of the Conservative Opposition, who refused to vote for the "Nationalist" amendment to the motion to adopt the address in reply.

The Toronto Star every year compiles a fat fund to be used to fill the stockings of those children to whom Santa Claus is only a beautiful and unavailable abstraction, to whom he never comes except by such means. That is the true Christmas spirit. Christmas and all it means, come in lowly guise to the lowly; come as a friend to the friendless, and its agents are those who name His name. We should all remember those who are only remembered, not only at Christmas time, but all the time: by poverty, deprivation, sorrow, sickness, need, and other adversities.

The Canadian Navy In Relation To Question Of Canadian Autonomy

The following is an extract from the speech of Sir Wilfrid Laurier in the course of the debate on the address, Nov. 29:

Henceforth the naval policy of the government, a policy which I thought at one time would have the support of all Canadians—I am sorry I made a mistake; I presumed too much on the patriotism of these hon. gentlemen on the other side—will be attacked in Quebec and all the other provinces on the basis of the same resolution, (appeal to the people.) In Quebec the policy will be attacked, as it has been attacked by the hon. gentlemen from Jacques Cartier and his friends, on the ground that it is an imperial policy; in Ontario and the other English-speaking provinces it will be attacked on the ground that it is a separatist measure. The government will be attacked from the right; it will be attacked from the left. But the object will be the same—the destruction of the government. There will not be a treaty of alliance—there is none. But, should these tactics succeed and the government be defeated, both the parties sitting there will be at the table falling upon each other's necks, kissing, embracing and hugging each other in the very ecstacy of delight that at last the government has been defeated. That would be a jolly time; to be followed, however, by a jolly row. For the time would come to divide the spoils, to form a government, to define a policy and to determine whether the Tory lion was to swallow the Nationalist lamb, or the Nationalist lamb to swallow the Tory lion. My hon. friend opposite is already beginning to endure the punishment which will follow his course. That punishment is indicated in the altered tone of the Nationalist press toward him. It has been to the credit of my hon. friend that, hitherto, he has had the honour of the insults of the Nationalist press. Henceforth he will have the insult of the Nationalist praise.

Such is the position we have to deal with at the present time. Let me, therefore, examine the two amendments which have been presented. These amendments (to refer naval policy to the people), are a very lame and impotent conclusion to the violent language with which our policy has been attacked both in Quebec and in the other provinces. If that policy needed justification for its strength its wisdom, its opportuneness, it would be found in the fulmeness of the amendments that have been proposed. If my hon. friend from Jacques Cartier (Mr. Monk) were convinced that this policy is the first step to conscription, that it is going to tear children from their mothers and is going to send Canadians upon all the seas of the world, to be disembowelled by a German shell, or killed by a Russian bullet or Japanese shot, would his proposal be simply to refer such a monstrous policy to the people? No, he would say: Down with such a policy; we will oppose it; we will never submit to it. If the leader of the Opposition (Mr. R. L. Borden) were satisfied, as he has alleged on the floor of this House, and as his friends have alleged here and elsewhere, that this policy is not only ill-advised, but that it is dangerous, that it is a step leading to conscription, would he and his friends be content to send that question to the people to pronounce upon it? Would not they denounce and oppose such a policy?

My hon. friend from East Grey (Mr. Sproule) in the speech which he delivered, which was very temperate in tone ,and to which I listened with great interest, gave to the House a long list of our delinquencies—and according to the hon. gentleman they are many, indeed. One of them was the policy which we introduced in 1898 for the building of a railway to the Yukon. My hon. friend forgot to say that it was not the policy of his party to leave that question to the people, they combatted it and succeeded in killing it in the Senate. When in 1903 we introduced a measure for the building of the Transcontinental railway, although the question had never been brought before the attention of the country, still the opposition did not attack that Bill simply by stating that the question should be referred to the people; my hon. friend and his friends attacked the policy from the first, they opposed that railway from the moment it was introduced. The amendments I have quoted to the House asking that an appeal should be made to the people before the policy is proceeded with are simply subterfuge to escape responsibility. Hon. gentlemen know know that if there is, in some sections of the country, a sentiment of hostility to that policy, caused by its not being known as it shall be known in a few years, there are on the other side many sections of the community amongst us the best informed of the whole population of the country who are in favour of it, and therefore they take this middle course of not attacking it outright themselves, but asking to have it referred to the people so that they may afterwards form their opinion not on their own consciences, but upon the consciences of the electors.

Let me go further and deeper into this question. Gentlemen on the opposite side of the House, as I know from past experience, have not the same opinion that I have on the autonomy of the young nations of the British Empire. I remember that my hon. friend from North Toronto (Mr. Foster) on a previous occasion said that we had heard too much of autonomy in this House. I have heard the same remark made elsewhere, that we give too much attention to autonomy. I answer my hon. friend from Toronto, I take the ground here, that the very basis on which the British Empire rests, the very basis upon which alone it can be maintained, is the autonomy of all its component parts. When the early Canadian reformers asked for this country the privilege of being administered by responsible government, they builded better than they knew. It was they who laid the foundation upon which the British empire now rests. Conceive if you can what would be the condition to-day of Canada, of Australia, of New Zealand, of South Africa, if these countries had continued to be governed before before from the Downing street under a centralized government. Does any one believe that Canada would have reached, under such a system the position she now occupies, covering a whole continent, with a population of 8,000,000, with a revenue of $100,000,000 and a trade of $700,000,000 and more, the home of a people of different origin, happy and contented? Does any one believe that Australia would have attained the position which it has now attained, in which it is becoming stronger every day, and becoming the leading nation in the southern Pacific ocean? Does any one believe that New Zealand could have reached the position it has, or that the greatest wonder which I have seen accomplished under British institutions, that is the unification of South Africa, would have been carried out successfully. This is the basis upon which Empire rests. Every nation within it — and I hope in saying so, I do not shock my hon. friend from Victoria (Mr. Hughes) who I notice always takes exception when we speak of Canada as a nation. I am sure he will not complain any more in view of the amendment of my hon. friend the leader of the opposition in which he uses this very expression:

We beg to assure Your Excellency of the unalterable attachment and devotion of the people of Canada to the British Crown and of their desire and intention to fulfil all its responsibilities devolving upon this country as one of the nations of the empire.

MY FREE TRIAL TREATMENT MAY CURE YOU

Kingston, Ont., June 6th, 1909.

Dear Mr. Currah,—I feel so very much better after using the 10 days' treatment of ORANGE LILY you sent me. I feel eager to send that I will not require any more. In fact, I feel entirely well, and it is now a month since I stopped using the treatment. (Signed) F. W. T.

Letters to the above are not more recent, though, of course, such cases are not of long standing. Most women who have suffered for any length of time will require to use ORANGE LILY longer than the Trial Treatment in order to effect a complete cure, but in every case they will be pleasantly benefited. Further, the benefit will be permanent whether they continue to use ORANGE LILY or not. It is not opium, bromide, and does not contain any alcohol or other stimulant. It is an applied treatment, and acts directly on the suffering organs. In all cases of women's disorders, these organs are congested to a greater or less extent, and congestion, just as healthy and normal action, means health. It simply (Illegible) problem, and the result is always the same, a step towards better health and complete cure.

Every woman suffering should prove its great qualities. I will send a month of ORANGE LILY for $1.00, about one-third the usual price. Any lady who will send me her address, MRS. FRANCES E. CURRAH, WINDSOR, ONT. 19

SPEECH NIGHT AT LADIES' LITERARY SOCIETY LAST NIGHT WAS A GREAT SUCCESS

Novel Programme Proved Very Enjoyable---Some Clever Impromptu Speeches Were Given and the Judges Compliment the Society.

The success that has attended the Ladies' Literary Society of the St. Peter's T.A.S., during the new regime was again in evidence last night when a well-pleased audience listened to the "Speech Night" programme. Many very clever speeches were delivered, and it was only after lengthy deliberation the judges came to a decision. Eventually Miss Florence Hurley was declared the winner. Miss H. Kane, vice-pres. of the Society, occupied the chair, and during the evening the following contributed to the musical part of the programme: Miss Kathleen McCarthy, Miss Evelyn Doris, Miss Ethel Jays, Master Dick Coughlin, Miss Addie Doris, Miss Marion Gotman, Miss L. Hurley. Little Master Coughlin's songs were the event of the evening.

The judges, Messrs. L. M. Hayes, K.C., W. J. O'Brien and Rev. Father McColl, made their decision in favour of Miss Florence Hurley. Miss Hurley spoke very well to the point on "Canada and her Resources." She spoke in part as follows: "The Twentieth century belong to Canada." This prediction of Sir Wilfrid Laurier seems likely to have a larger fulfilment than even Canadians themselves realize.

Canada at the present time stands where England stood in what history calls the golden age of Queen Elizabeth. England at that time was on the threshhold of her future. Canada is in a similar position to-day. Her population is about equal to Elizabethan England. Her mental attitude is similar—that of a great awakening of consciousness of new strength, an exuberance of energy biting on the bit to win the race; a mellowed memory of hard won battles against tremendous odds in the past—for the future a golden vision opening on vistas too far to follow. They dreamed pretty big in the days of Elizabeth, but their dreams more than came true. They are dreaming pretty big in Canada to-day, but it is hard to foresee the future when a nation the size of all Europe is setting on the career of her world history. A few years ago such a claim as the Premier's would be largely regarded as an after dinner effusion, but things were moving in this Canada of ours, and we were beginning to see our possibilities as a nation. We no longer looked to the Empire for assistance. Europe looked to us now, and we would be ready when needed. Canada's natural resources were almost unlimited. The developed coal area was 97,000 square miles. Her output in 1908 was almost 8,000,000 tons. The iron ore of the Dominion has a wide range geographically and geologically, from Vancouver to Cape Breton. Canada ranked third in the list of gold mining countries, being only surpassed by Australia and the Transvaal. Northern Canada is world famed for its inexhaustible pulp wood. The Canadian harvest is the richest in the world. In 1908 our exports of wheat from the Canadian west brought a revenue of 4,000,000 dollars. Few realized the immense area of the Dominion. No king from William the Conquerer to Napoleon ever ruled over a territory as Canada is heir to. In conclusion, said Miss Hurley, although we may not be gifted with prophetic vision, it is safe to say that when the history of Canada comes to be written, it will not be the record of a slaughter field, with contending armies battling for the mastery, but it will be an account of the most wonderful of all movements, the most wonderful experiment in democracy the world has ever known. (Aplause.)

Others who made excellent speeches included Miss M. McGrath, who spoke on the evils arising from a multiplicity of clubs. Too many clubs were bad for men as well as for women, because they drew people away from the home, which was the best club. The three great relations of a man or woman are: 1st, his or her relation to God; 2nd, the family; 3rd, to society. The club goer neglects the first two, or most important, and gives all his time to amusement. Home becomes distasteful. Women's club greatest evil. Woman's chief glory is the home, and that is neglected for the club. She did not condemn clubs absolutely. Some clubs were helpful, for instance a club like the Ladies' Literary, which gave them rational recreation, so that they went back to their home duties with renewed vigour. Clubs in moderation, for most things, were beneficial, but when the club usurped the place of th home it became an abuse.

Miss Holland had an interesting subject in the political crisis in England, which she treated remarkably well. She outlined briefly the British Constitution—the King, Lords and Comons, and whilst maintaining the necessity of a revising charter—because the voice of the people was not always th voice of God—she exposed the absurdity of the House of Lords as as present constituted. Liberal legislation was certain to be rejected by the Upper House, whereas the Tory party could pass all their bills as a matter of course. The remedy was a second chamber so constituted that the real will of the people should prevail.

"The Ideal Woman" was well treated by Miss Eugenie Picard. Her ideal woman, she told us, was the woman who was always a woman, for, to use Gladstone's words, "woman is most perfect when most womanly." Woamn is not a lesser man or a greater man—she is not a man at all—she is ever a woman. When she loses her individuality—forgets that she is a woman—she loses her power and influence, becomin gthe sorry double of the proper man.

Man's work is to fashion the world, woman's to maintain the moral standard by which his work must be judged. The ideal woman should be an ideal home maker, for "the hand that rocks the cradle rules the world." The ideal woman's horizon is not necessarily bounded by the confines of her kitchen. She should be able to take a healthy interest in the things that make for culture and rational amusement and intelligent social intercourse.

In making the decision, Mr. L. M. Hayes congratulated all the speakers on their very effective addresses. It would, he remarked amidst laughter, require the eloquence of a Cicero to do thm justice. Their addresses wer wll thought out, eloquently delivered with many elocutionary graces, and he was sure they would all agree they were very clever and instructiv. They must, of course, make allowance for the nervousness that always accompanis a maiden speech, but he was afraid their friends of the evening spoke like old campaigners (laughter) Miss Murley's subject was one that touched all their hearts, and with not little pride. They would ever regard the Motherland with filial affection, but at the same time they were now and always would be Canadians first of all. For the other speakers he had nothing but praise, and for the Society sincere wishes for its unlimited success. Looking back at the beginning of the Total Abstinence Society how few dreamed it would become such a magnificent success and he hoped that like the men's branch the Ladies' Literary would grow and prosper until it was the biggest and best of its kind on the continent. (Applause).

Rev. Father Casey on behalf of the Society, moved the vote of thanks to the judges of the evening. They appreciated their kindly condescension in coming to these meetings, and the encouragement of their presence would spur the Society on to renewed efforts. Criticism, not credit, was usually the lot of the person who worked for the people be it ever so insignificantly,—criticism they were not averse to, but sometimes they misjudged even their motives. That being so the kindly recognition of the gentlemen who acted as judges was all the greater and more helpful, and on behalf of the Society he tendered them his grateful thanks.

The vote of thanks was suitably seconded by Miss Florence O'Connor.

Mr. W. J. O'Brien briefly replied. Theirs was a delicate task, he said, but they had tried to be impartial, and to one and all he offered his congratulations. The evening was certainly both enjoyable and profitable. The T.A.S. had developed along many lines,—Athletic, Ornamental, Social, and Literary. He confessed he had devoted more time to other aspects of its activity, but at the same time he gladly yielded the palm to the Ladies' Literary. It was a pity the men did not avail themselves of its advantages. It was only by meetings such as this they would acquire fluency in speech and correctness in delivery. Constant practice alone overcame the feeble efforts and embarrassment of the maiden effort. The Ladies' Literary was the people's university. Too many when they left school, said good-bye to books for evermore. He remembered in the old days at Murray Street, the air of genuine relief associated with the breaking up of school. When they crossed the threshold of the school the last time they had written bread and clear on their foreheads: "No more books, thank Heaven I'm through with education. I'll bother no more with these things." And when they broke their slates across their knees and kicked their Spellers over Mr. Johnson's wood-shed they felt somewhat like the slave who has snapped the chains. The Society aimed at counteracting this tendency. It endeavoured to interest its members in all that made for true enjoyment and the uplifting of the race. It cultivated a taste for the beautiful in music, literature, oratory, and all the five arts, and therefore he sincerely hoped it would attain the success it so richly deserved.

Rev. Father McColl also thanked the Society for its warm vote of thanks. He was sure that he and his fellow judges were very pleased to be with them, because they counted on spending an enjoyable evening. As for himself he would not miss one of these metings for a good deal. He complimented the various speakers very highly and said that he and his fellow adjudicators found it hard to choose the winner. The programme was an excellent one, and he should again congratulate Father Casey and the executive upon their success. There was one very forcible sentence in Miss Holland's address. She told them the voice of the people was not always the voice of God. This was undoubtedly true, and otherwise lay the danger of unrestrained democracy. There is a right democracy and a wrong democracy, and when they were told the Catholic Church was opposed to democracy let them understand it was the false democracy she combatted,—the democracy that mistrusts monarchs, that has known the above divine, the democracy that was without God and without any reference to God or Eternal Justice. Such a democracy was a tyranny. Their's was a something superior to the will of the people,—a something that was superior to all rulers and all law. That was the Law of Eternal Right and Justice. The temporal power is not excluded from the observance of this law, and a Christian state should be governed by religion, that is, it should be guided and influenced by the Divine Ideal Right and Wrong. Miss Picard mentioned as one of the characteristics of the ideal woman that she should be able to take an active, intelligent interest in intellectual topics. This was nothing new. It was the reformation first started the theory that woman was man's intellectual inferior. In Catholic days all the avenues of higher education were open to women. In the middle ages they were professors, lawyers, doctors—one of the Popes appointed a woman a professor of Canon law in the Roman University. In those days, as Mr. Asquith said the other day in England, the University was not confined to the rich. It was brains,—not wealth—that counted. The Church was no rejector of persons, poor and peasant were equal in her eyes, and she gave equal chances to both. Let those who say she is the foe of democracy think on that. In conclusion he congratulated the Society on its success and said this year was the best they had since its inception.

LOST HIS CHANCE.

Mr. Borden, Conservative leader in Parliament, has lost his chance to take a large and patriotic stand on the "Nationalist" question in relation to the Canadian naval policy; and his followers have lost an opportunity of ranging themselves behind a leader who could show that the tremendous national interests involved in promoting national harmony held a larger place in his mind than snatching a doubtful petty party advantage. Mr. Borden and his followers have indignantly repudiated the suggestion that he and his party were in alliance with the "Nationalists" with the idea of embarassing the Government. But these denials lose all their force when we find Mr. Borden and his Conservative followers voting solidly for the amendment of Mr. Monk, to the address in reply—Mr. Monk, the parliamentary head and front of the "Nationalist" movement.

Mr. Borden has lost his chance. If he had taken the bold, the manly stand and said to his followers:

"I ask you to follow me in a stand I intend to take. I am opposed to the naval policy of the Government, but I am more, and more bitterly and unalterably, opposed to the incendiary "Nationalist" movement, which, under cover of hostility to the naval idea, conducts a campaign of disintegration, disloyalty, and treason, to both Canadian and Imperial interests, and of the disruption of the harmony of citizenship which our great statesmen have wrought for since Confederation. I intend to, and ask you to, support the naval policy, not on its merits, but as against a movement which threatens to do this country more injury than hostile fleets bombarding our shores; not that I hate the navy less, but I love less even the colour of alliance with a movement disastrous to the highest Canadian and Imperial interests. I believe that I and my followers will stand higher in the esteem of all patriotic Canadians, if we ourselves show the higher patriotism, that stands rather for country than for party."

If Mr. Borden had taken this stand; if he had said something like this, though in the more eloquent and forcible style he is capable of using, he would have been infinitely stronger in the country than he is to-day. He would have been a much more dangerous opponent to the government than he is to-day and will be henceforth. He would have commended himself to the respect of the people as a true patriot, who was big enough for the sake of the national welfare, to forego a present party advantage for the sake of principle. He would have strengthened anew the waning allegiance of his followers, who would prefer to follow through fire and flood a manly leader, to following one who has made the great Conservative party a mere tail to the "Nationalist" kite. Verily, Mr. Borden has lost his chance.

MR. BALFOUR AND THE REFERENDUM.

(Toronto World.)

If any adventurous prophet had foretold two years ago that the Conservative party would within that time have immolated hereditary privilege on the altar of political necessity and proposed the introduction of the referendum into British politics, he would have been derided out of countenance. Yet this has been done under stress of a public sentiment where-

JOS. J. DUFFUS

of it is the best assurance. Some Canadian commentators, unfriendly for inexplicable reasons, to the progress of democracy in the United Kingdom, profess to see in this new departure superb generalship on the part of Mr. Balfour. If the sacrifice of principle to expediency be the test, the claim may be allowed. The World would rather regard it as a desperate effort to avoid electoral defeat.

But looking more narrowly into the proposal by which Mr. Balfour hopes to becloud the real issue, it is evident enough that the Liberal grievance would not be in the least relieved. Unable to sustain the extravagant contention that the permanent Conservative majority in the house of lords possesses the right to compel a general election, under penalty of acquiescing in its action the Conservative leader exchanges it for power to compel a referendum. The World has no objection to the principle of referendum, although it recognises the force of the contention that it cannot but impair the sense of parliamentary responsibility. But the point of Mr. Balfour's proposal is that while he endows the house of lords with this power when a Liberal government is in office, he makes no provision for a referendum when the political complexion of both houses happens to be Conservative.

The Education Act passed by a Conservative government had no electoral mandate behind it and was strongly antagonistic to Nonconformist sentiment. It led to the passive resistance movement, and although emphatically condemned by the electors at the general election of 1906, still remains on the statute books without amendment. An act just as contrary to the convictions of a majority of the electorate might be passed under Mr. Balfour's referendum proposals, and the Liberal minority in the house of commons would be powerless to resist its enactment for popular ratification. That contradicts the true function of the referendum principle, and reveals the enemy side of this piece of political trickery just as the pledge to submit tariff reform to the electors is a diplomatic dodge to secure the support of Protonist free traders. Mr. Balfour's latest move is as rank an exhibition of political opportunism as was ever offered for public consumption.

REVIVAL SERVICES AT MARK ST. CHURCH

The service last night at Mark St. church was of the nature of a blessed climax to the interesting series that have been held during the week.

The evangelist's sermon was an exceedingly searching appeal, based upon the words found in John 5, 40: "Ye will not come unto Me that ye might have life" and a large number of seekers entered the inquiry room, where the spirit of God did indeed mark wonders. Mr. Whiteside will conclude his work here to-morrow night when, it may be safely said, many will hear his parting counsels with sincere regrets that his engagements will not permit of a longer stay.

The order of services for the day will be:

Prayer in the basement of the church at 10 o'clock.

At 11 o'clock an illustrated sermon especially adapted to children.

A general evangelistic service in the afternoon at 3 o'clock.

Closing service of the series in the evening.

The weekly choir practice was held last week at Mr. H. Little's.

Messrs. W. Carvith and H. Little make occasional trips north this fall.

HE KNOWS WHAT FIXED HIM UP

Dodd's Kidney Pills Cured S. D. Vickar's Lumbago

He suffered three years, but the Great Canadian Kidney Remedy made short work of his trouble.

Edenbridge, Sask., Dec. 2.—(Special.)—"It was one box of Dodd's Kidney Pills that fixed me up." This is the cheerful answer Mr. Sam. D. Vickar is giving his inquiring neighbours in this district. Everybody around here knows that for three years he has been suffering from Lumbago. Now he's strong and well again.

"My Lumbago developed from a cold," Mr. Vickar goes on to say. "My head would ache. I was always tired and nervous. I had a bitter taste in my mouth in the morning, was troubled with dizzy spells and was always thirsty. The doctor told me I had Lumbago, but did not help me very much. Dodd's Kidney Pills cured me."

DANCER IN THE CITY OF CANADA FOR THE CANADIANS

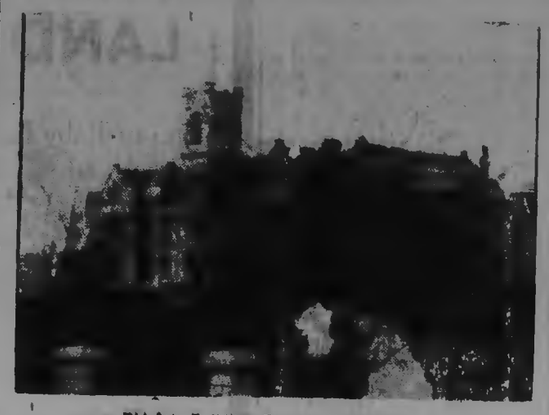
Prof. Laird compared the progress of the present day with that of twelve years ago. 1064 students registered during the present session. The impression that Queen's has made on the country will never wear away. Queen's had a strong, undeniable growing place in Canadian life. If democracy was to become a living power, it must be enlightened. The Universities must be clear in their judgment of the problems of to-day, and Queen's has tried at all times to be equal to these problems.

Dr. Knight.

In responding to the toast, Dr. Knight said that he felt a great deal of pleasure in being present. As a graduate of Queen's in Arts and o.

QUEEN'S ALUMNI DINNER



Old Arts Building, Queen's University.

Medicine at Toronto, though Victoria, he was glad to meet the graduates of both universities. Dr. Knight referred during the course of his remarks to a course which neither Toronto nor Queen's offered. It was a course in public and individual health. He believed the health of the individual was one of the most important things and one in which there ought to be instruction. He spoke of the alarming death rate among infants in Ontario during the past year, and he believed that in educating the students on the public health in the universities, it would have some influence on the death rate.

Dr. Knight compared the average lengths of life in different centuries, and pointed out that in the last three hundred years the length of life had almost doubled, and this was largely due to the work of medical men. He urged that if people would pay more attention to the rules of health, there would be less contagious diseases. There should be a standard home and that standard house should be a sanitary one.

Sister Universities.

The toast, "Sister Universities" was ably proposed by Mr. E. J. Reid and very eloquently responded to by Mr. D. W. Dumble, K.C., on behalf of Toronto University. Rev. H. J. Keith for McGill, His Honour Judge Hoyeke for Victoria, Rev. J. R. Webb for McMaster and Dr. Cameron for Trinity.

Hon. J. R. Stratton, M.P.

Hon. Mr. Stratton in responding to the toast to Canada, said that he was not aware that he was to speak for Canada until a few minutes previous to the proposing of the toast. On entering the room, he said, he was at once struck with the refinement and culture of the gathering. He did not have the opportunity in his earlier days to have a University education, but a few years ago when he was in the legislature he was always pleased to give assistance to Queen's University, and the member who now represents Kingston at Ottawa, and who was in the legislature, was always most ready to assist Queen's. Mr. Stratton was pleased to see a large representation of graduates present. He understood there were thirty-five graduates of Queen's in the County of Peterborough, and thirty-five in the County of Victoria. Of these in Peterborough there were a number in the schools of the city one lawyer, and until a short while ago, one minister, but Montreal claimed him. The speaker referred to Rev. J. G. Potter.

Canada was a land, about which it would take a Canadian a long time to speak. Canada was a growing country and one great in extent and rich in fertility. So long as a man was able to work there was a livelihood for him in this country. One of the arches at the coronation of the late King Edward was, "Canada, the granary of the world." The motto was fully appreciated when one realized the vastness and wealth of the land in New Ontario and the Northwest. Prof. Campbell has remarked that the revenue of the country was increasing and also the expenditure. "If I had my way," remarked Mr. Stratton, "I would have the expenditure even greater." There were about twenty universities in the Dominion, and the speaker stated that the University was just as necessary as the Public school. It was essential that the youth of the country should have education. Canada needed men who were capable. Canada was proud of her government so of the past two hundred years, and Canada produced some great men. There was alleged crookedness in governments, but that, the speaker concluded, was even to be found sometimes in the ministry.

Our Graduates

The toast to "Our Graduates" was proposed by Rev. D. W. Best, of Beaverton and ably responded to by Mr. Richard Lees, M.A.

This very enjoyable evening was concluded by the singing of the national anthem.

The beautiful decorations were the work of Messrs. J. J. Turner and Sons, and while dinner was being served, a Victrola loaned by the J. M. Greene Music Co. furnished music.

Christ came to bring peace on earth and goodwill to men. There is nothing that produces more strife and crime than the liquor traffic.

"The Worlds Women's Christian Temperance Union is now an accomplished fact, and unions have already been planted by Mrs. Leavitt, the round-the-world temperance missionary, in the Sandwich Islands, Australia, New Zealand, Japan, and probably China. The first petitions sent out by the World's W. C. T. U. to be signed by all nations, asking the different Governments of the world to refuse the sanction of the law to the drink traffic and Opium Trade are being numerously signed, and certainly must have their effect.

Germany has over 100,000 men pledged to abolish the traffic. France possesses a strong aggressive anti-alcoholic party in the Chamber of Deputies. Norway is largely under local option and the consumption of liquor has dropped from 20 litres to 2. Forty daily papers in this country stand for total abstinence. Sweden has 77 dailies on the anti-alcoholic platform. New Zealand will soon be dry, by Act of Parliament, while Australian sentiment is also far advanced against the traffic. Even Great Britain has reduced her liquor bill, first by £12,000,000, later by £6,000,000, while 25,000,000 people in the United States live in prohibition territory.

Canada.

In Canada, Prince Edward Island was dry, New Brunswick largely so, Quebec has 664 dry parishes, Ontario 410, as against 506 in the wet list, while throughout the eWst sentiment against the trade makes licenses difficult to secure.

What Does This Mean?

It is the result of the arousing of individual conscience to the sense of personal responsibility. There are 1,000 funeral processions each day in America and Europe, due to drink. The world maintains a standing army of 1,800,000 drunkards. In nation building, laws must be in harmony with the law of God, wealth must be conserved, the wealth producing power of manhood must be maintained, debumanizing agents must be abolished, and anything that prevents men from receiving the benefit of Christ's sacrifice removed.

"My, but these art works do run into money," remarked a passenger. "When I was in Chicago I saw a little painting, about a foot square, that was held at $500. If I had a million of money you'd never catch me paying $500 for a painting like that."

"That's the way you talk," spoke up a bashful traveller, "but I'll guarantee that you have paid four times as much money for a painting not a tenth part as big."

"What me?"

"Yes, you."

"What kind of a painting?"

"The one at the end of your nose."

—American Issue.

"I like to go to church."

"Why?"

"Well, it's comforting to see one man keep so many women quiet for an hour."

THE WEATHER

—The temperature went down to one degree below zero last night, for the first time this winter. By daybreak it had risen to 10 above. This is about three weeks earlier than last year, but not unusually early compared with the average year.

LAST OF SERIES OF BAND CONCERTS WAS SUCCESS

The last in the series of popular band concerts, until after the New Year, under the auspices of the 57th Regimental Band was held last night in the Market Hall, and proved an artistic success. The attendance was large and enthusiastic, the playing of the band and the work of the assisting artist calling forth rounds of applause. The concerts have been thoroughly appreciated by the people of Peterborough, and Mr. Gliddon and the members of the band deserve thanks and congratulations upon the enjoyable programmes they have rendered during the series.

Last night's concert was fully up to the standard of excellence established in the list of concerts. Nearly all the numbers of the band were new and all were enjoyable and rendered in a masterly manner. Miss Julia Choate was the soloist for the evening, and her violin solo "Fantasia Appasionetta," by Vieux Temps was magnificently played, the audience insisting upon an encore, to which she responded with a mazurka equally well executed.

Band Serjt. Walter Hughes contributed a cornet solo "Sing Me to Sleep," with splendid technique and enjoyable effect.

The numbers by the band included Auber's beautiful overture "Masaniello," a new march, "Boy Scouts," Kerry Mills' new intermezzo "Marguerita," a medley of Harry Lauder songs, and a double number, very catchy in it style, consisting of Kerry Mill-' "Valley Flower," and Arthur Pryor's "Artful Arti". The feature of the numbers by the band, however, was the selection "Under the British Flag," a patriotic fantasia on the songs and dances of Great Britain and her colonies, a beautiful number that was grandly played by the band. The selection opens with the National Anthem, and follows with the English song, "The Dashing White Sergeant," the Irish song, "I'm the Boy for Bewitching Them," the Welsh song, "Fair Cambria," the Scotch song "Here's a Health to Ane I Lo' Best", (clarionet solo by Bandsman Barnes, with vocal accompaniment), "Canada's national song "The Maple Leaf," and the French Canadian song, "Vive La Canadienne." Hong Kong is represented by the Chinese flower song, "Mo-lee-wha" and Burmah by its national air "Kayah Than". The Maud Song and a Hindustani air speak for East India and Australia's national song, "There's a Land Where Summer Skies" is next in order. South Africa's contribution to the number consists of the song "Isle of Beauty" (cornet solo by Sergeant Hughes, with vocal accompaniment) and a Kaffir dance, while New Zealand's national air "God Defend New Zealand" follows. The grand selection is brought to a close with a sailors' dance, horn-pipe, and finally, with "Rule Britannia."

Graduating Exercises Of Nicholls' Hospital Were Held Last Evening

A MUSICAL PROGRAMME

The graduating exercises of the classes of 1909 and 1910 of the Nicholls Hospital took place in the Assembly Hall of the Collegiate last night. A fine program was given and tended to brighten the events of the evening. The members of the graduating class of 1909 are: Miss Ethel Davidson, Miss Charlotte L. Smith and Miss Lillian Walter. The graduating class of 1910 are: Miss Julia M. Hill, Miss Pansy E. Roberts, Miss Della I. McGill, Miss Elsie McD Willison, Miss Annie E. Allen and Miss Luna P. Kennedy.

Mr. Richard Hall presided, and made a short address, after which he introduced Rev. Canon J. C. Davidson, who made a very eloquent and appropriate address to the nurses. Among the more important of his remarks were the following: "I warmly congratulate you upon your success, and upon the advantages of having a hospital like the Nicholls. Regarding this much appreciated work, you have a talent, with which you can reflect credit upon yourselves and the old city and hospital with pride. In order to make a success of your work, you must be courageous, and don't be afraid to follow the paths of duty. The world wants people of your walk of life, who have made up their minds that whatever comes they will do their duty. Make up your minds that you are not going to be afraid, it is the one who has conquered, who looks up and not down. And there has been proof that those who follow the paths of duty need not be afraid. Although you do not have much pleasure nor get much money in the end of an undertaking, go anyway. The only ones who are worth anything are those who put forward the ideas of duty. You should always stand by patients and minister to them, when ministers are not there. People may often benefit hereafter from the efforts of your words. You should urge them to see the light of God, and in so doing, if you can get them in that frame of mind, you have got them in a position where both the doctor's efforts and your own will have a more beneficial effect. And only insofar as you brighten them in this way, will your work be successful. I know much about your profession. I often visit patients after you have left them, and I am glad to say that I have heard them express their gladness at having you with them. Seek glory and common place, and you will come near the greatest minister who came to this earth."

Dr. R. W. Bruce Smith, Superintendent of Hospitals and Charities Toronto said: "I am glad to note that Peterborough is not an exception to the fact that the larger portion of the audience is composed of ladies. If it were not for the ladies, there would be few hospitals in Ontario. I note an item on the programme to the effect that during the last fifteen years the Nicholls Hospital has been conducted without expense to the city of Peterborough. In other cities the people have been enthused in the Hospitals so that every person takes a personal interest in them. If we look at other towns and cities, somewhat similar in commercial importance to Peterborough, such as Guelph, Belleville and so on, we see that Belleville contributes $1,300 to $1,500 per year to the hospitals, Stratford contributes $1,000, Berlin $12,000, Waterloo $12,000, Galt $1,000, County of Waterloo, $1,500 and so on. Of course I am not mentioning these figures in a fault finding mood but simple to let you see what you have. I have rejoiced to see the prosperity of the Nicholls Hospital since its doors were first opened. We have 75 hospitals in Ontario now, and only a few years ago, there were only nine. The hospital spirit is not a new spirit; it is as old as man. Its influence is increasing instead of lessening as the years go on. It marks the advance of Christian thought. That the success of the Nicholls Hospital is assured was never more assured than now, is quite evident."

"We are here to join in congratulating the young ladies. It is my pleasure to rejoice with you to-night. The duty of a nurse to her patients is as old and well defined as the profession itself. The nurse has always the responsibility of performing certain important things. She finds a constant action of these things. A nurse should always be steady and firm, as the patient looks to the nurse as a child looks to its mother."

"A nurse has several duties. She should have an intelligence of the sick's condition. She should always execute the physician's orders faithfully. She should be cautious and vigilant. If she is not, the result may be worse than the wrong medicine. Every nurse should preserve a moral status. She should lead a clean and upright life. Every graduated nurse should guard her acts. No nurse should do injustice to a sister nurse, every nurse owes to herself self preservation. She should be in a physical condition to withstand the strain. Without health she is no longer the nurse she was. Then I say, hold high the torch of hope. Cheerfulness has prevented more disease than antiseptics. Let your cheerfulness be associated with a love for doing. The art of being kind is all the great world needs, and a sense of duty well and faithfully done."

Miss Helen Davies, then favoured the audience with a much appreciated vocal solo, after which H. G. Park, D. Paul rendered a very pleasing violin solo, which drew forth great applause from the enthusiastic audience.

The next item of the proceedings was the presentation of the bandaging prize to the winners in the classes of 1909 and 1910. The winner for 1909 was Miss Ethel Davidson and the winner for 1910 was Miss Della I. McGill. The presentation was made by Dr. E. V. Frederick.

The affirmation and conferring of diplomas came next. The presentation was made by Mr. Hall. Then came the presentation of the medals. The nurses got up on the platform and the matron, Miss Delemater pinned the medals on. She also made a short speech in which she expressed her thanks to the nurses and to the medical staff. After this a little flower boy and girl appeared on the scene with an armful of beautiful flowers and distributed them around among the nurses and kept carrying them in, until they had given each nurse an armful of bouquets.

The next number on the programme was a vocal solo by Miss Maud Butler, of Toronto. This number was much appreciated and an encore was demanded.

The valedictory address to the class of 1909 was then read and was as follows:

Mr. Chairman, Ladies and Gentlemen.—Upon me has fallen the honour of speaking this evening for my class, but as there are two classes graduating, and I represent the smaller of three nurses, I shall make my remarks as brief as possible.

I want for a few moments to look back over our three years of work in the Nicholls Hospital. We entered in 1907, filled with ambition and in happy ignorance of the struggle which lay before us, a struggle, the severity of which only those who have gone through it, can understand.

During those three years 1,680 patients passed through the Hospital. They represented operations, major and minor, typhoid fever, nervous diseases and nearly all the other ailments which fall to the lot of man.

In connection with these cases, it was the duty of the Hospital staff to carry out as faithfully as possible the doctors' orders, and we think that the large number of complete recoveries stand as a testimonial to the skill of our medical men and the competency of our nursing staff.

We wish to-night to convey to our superintendent, Miss De La Matter and our Asst.-Supt., Miss McGregor, our grateful thanks for the kind and ready help they have always given to us in our many difficulties. It was under their capable direction that we worked our way from probationers to head nurses. And now, that we have reached our goal and are to-night receiving our diplomas, it is with great regret that we say farewell to the old hospital, for there many warm friendships have been formed among both the staff and the patients. And there, also, we have learned many lessons that we will carry with us through our lives.

Our patients might be divided into two classes—those who bravely endured pain and sorrow—whom we all felt was a privilege to know, who cheerily faced the troubles that had fallen on them. And the other class who needed to be sustained and helped through their sufferings.

And again, we want to thank our doctors and older nurses for the kindly help they always gave us in our difficult cases, and for the patient, cheerful example they always set us.

During the three years many improvements were made in the hospital. Miss De La Matter has worked unceasingly to add to the comfort of both patients and nurses, and we would like to take this opportunity of thanking her for the many comforts she added to the nurses' quarters, and Mr. Richard Hall and the Board of Trustees for the ready support they gave her in the matter.

As for our doctors and all they have done to assist in our studies, we can find no words to express our thanks. The many hours they have spent in the lecture room, their patient instruction in the wards, their kindness and courtesy to us during the three years, I cannot convey to them, as we would wish, our thanks.

But fortunately the other class has its valedictory address also, and Miss Hill will help me to convey to the hospital and all those connected with it, our gratitude.

The saying of farewell calls forth different feeling with different people at different ages and under different conditions of life. The child, whose emotional nature is undeveloped, is keenly interested in the change, which a farewell suggests, lives only in what is to come and wastes little sentiments in lingering over sweetness or the pathos of parting. But in mature people, whose experiences of life, have developed character and parting of the ways and breaking up of the habits of some years, or the embarkings upon the serious business of life, means much that is likely to be reviewed with very mingled feelings. It is then, with keen regret that we say farewell to our period of probation and training to those who have during these years of anxious struggling after professional knowledge and experience so kindly and wisely guidded our faltering and often erring footsteps. To the Board of Management of the Hospital, whose watchful provision for its needs has made possible the training we have received. We, the members of the graduating class, tender our thanks and wish them continued success in a work which they are so ably carrying on in this city of Peterborough.

To the doctors of the staff we owe a deep debt of gratitude, and in saying farewell to the Nicholls Hospital we would like to express our gratitude to them on technical knowledge which they have given us. We thank them also for what is higher than technical skill, a proper sense of the value and sacredness of human life, a noble example of unselfishness and devotion and duty. But our warmest expressions of gratitude and our regret are called forth by parting with our superintendent and assistant superintendent, Miss De La Matter and Miss McGregor. Our daily contact with them and their constant supervision and unwearying helpfulness have been by far the most important factors in our training, the most determining influence upon our lives. Their wide experience of the trials and difficulties of the nurse's life, has enabled them to smooth over in our paths, while sparing us none of the hard discipline which is so necessarily a part of the nurses' training.

In closing, we look not only backward with pleasure and regret to the days that are no more, but with a hope and confidence to the career, the success of which we feel to be guaranteed by the fact that in Nicholls hospital we were trained to scorn delight and live laborous days.

The accompanists for the evening were Miss Rosamond, Miss Davies and Mr. J. Crane. The platform was prettily decorated and the occasion was marked by a very large audience.

A feature of the musical programme in connection with the graduating exercises, was the singing of Miss Maud Butler, of Toronto, who possesses a splendid voice of great range and exceptional clarity and purity. Her solo was greatly appreciated and an encore had to be given in response to the applause.

Olio Will Be A Feature Of The Belmont Minstrels Some Of The Big Acts

That the Belmont Minstrels will be the most finished local production ever given in the city is acknowledged by everyone who has witnessed any of the rehearsals. Special attention is given to details, which is an important factor in any line of stage work. The first part in nearly all local performances will pass by to a certain extent; where they all fail is in the olio, or second part, which is the vaudeville end of the production. In the Belmont's big show the olio will be in keeping with the fast and snappy first part. In this section of the entertainment Miss King will be seen with her eight dancing boys. This is a neat singing and dancing number, bordering on the musical comedy order, and no doubt will be one of the artistic hits of the performance. Mr. Walter Davidson will be heard in a new monologue, which will keep the audience in a roar. The funny Policeman Act with George Wesley as big Chief, will be a scream. George Clark and Hally Shepard will be heard in an up-to-date talking and dancing specialty. George is a natural born comedian and with Mr. Shepard as his foil, should put over an act that would be a laugh-getter.

Miss Josephine Sproule has kindly consented to help the big show along and will make her first stage appearance in the city with the Belmont Minstrels in a neat singing specialty, assisted by the six funny end men. The finale is a fitting close to the big show. This number introduces the entire company featuring Mr. McIlroy, and will long be remembered as one of the prettiest stage pictures ever seen on the local stage.

Soden's Book Store Offerings In The Christmas Gift Line

People often allow themselves to get into a state of frenzied worry over the annual problem of Christmas presents and really there is no reason for them working into this condition of mind when one considers the question a little. A visit to Soden's Bookstore at this time of the year would help these anxious people to solve the problem without the least difficulty, as the commodious store is crowded in all sections with a countless array of articles eminently fitted for Christmas giving. Just now Mr. Soden is featuring Christmas booklets and cards and an Examiner reporter was shown a magnificent assortment when he dropped into the store yesterday. They come in many different varieties and at different prizes, but all are artistic and make very pleasing Christmas gifts. No present is more welcome than an attractive box of note-paper and the Soden papetries are unexcelled in their quality. Bibles and hymn-books are appreciated gifts at any season of the year, but particularly so at Christmas. Knowing this the Soden store has a very fine showing of both lines, the Bibles ranging in price from 50c up to $8.00. Calendars of many different kinds are another seasonable feature in the gift-line and these are being eagerly snapped up by discerning people who appreciate their artistic beauty. It is not necessary for Mr. Soden to add to his picture department for the Christmas trade as his store is famous for its fine display in this line. The vast assortment that he has on view furnishes an excellent opportunity of procuring Christmas presents that will be sure to please. For your friend who reads you will be able to secure a gift that will cause unqualified delight from the wide range of books that Mr. Soden is showing just now. On Monday and Tuesday there will be a special exhibit of brass work, which should be seen by everyone. The store is open every night from now until the New Year which gives an opportunity to everyone to look over the stock, and select their gifts. The big toy department will open for the Christmas trade early next week and Santa Claus has many surprises in store for the little ones which he intends selecting from this stock.

T.A.S. Ask For Legislation To Exempt Property From Taxes

The Finance Committee met yesterday afternoon, there being present Ald. Bradburn, chairman; Mayor Morrow and Ald. Phelan.

Mr. D. O'Connell was heard in a request of St. Peter's T. A. S that legislation be obtained to exempt the Society's property from taxation and that the taxes on the rooms formerly occupied by the Society be remitted for half of 1910.

It was moved by Mayor Morrow and seconded by Ald. Phelan that the request of St. Peter's T.A.S. for legislation to exempt their property from taxation and for the usual remission of half of this year's taxes on the rooms formerly occupied by them, be granted, it being understood that no fraternal Society will benefit by their exemption.

It was moved by Mayor Morrow, seconded by Ald. Phelan, that the offer of the Bank of Toronto to carry the city's account for 1911 on the same terms as this year, be accepted, namely the bank to allow on all credit balances 3¼ per cent., and to charge 4½ per cent. on all debit balances up to the amount of the combined credit balances, and 5 per cent. on all debit balances in excess of the combined credit balances.

It was decided on motion that the County of Peterborough be paid $84.60 on account of witness fees in the case of King, vs. Gorham.

A bylaw was ordered to be prepared to confirm the award of the arbitrators in the arbitration between the County of Peterborough and the city in regard to the expenses of th administration of justice.

The chairman was authorized to pay the Public Library Board a balance of $100 of the appropriations for Public Library purposes.

A number of accounts were ordered to be paid.

BOY SCOUTS PAY RESPECT TO THE NATIONAL ANTHEM

One good effect of the teaching that is imparted to the Boy Scouts was illustrated last night at the concert of the 57th Regimental Band in the market hall. The local Scouts attended en masse, and when the band commenced to play the National Anthem at the conclusion of the programme every Scout stood at attention, with his hand at the salute until the last strains had been played. Their conduct was in marked contrast to that of some of the "grown ups" in the audience who used the National Anthem as a signal for a rush for the door, or a hurried seizing of overcoats and wraps.

COURT VISITS SCENE.

Judge, Jury and Prisoner In Wendling Case Go to the Church.

Louisville, Ky., Dec. 3.—Followed by a crowd of several hundred persons, John Wendling, charged with the murder of Alma Kelner, was yesterday afternoon marched through the streets with the judge and trial jury from the court house to St. John's Church, the scene of the alleged crime. The prisoner was nervous and seemed relieved when taken back to the court room, although no demonstration was made by the crowd.

It is almost a mile from the court house to the church. When the trip started, Judge Gregory turned to the people and asked them not to follow. Court officials accompanied the jury and prisoner through the church where the prosecution contends that Alma Kelner was killed, and then to the parochial school beneath which the supposed body of the child was found.

The defence closed its case yesterday and court adjourned until to-day, when arguments will be made.

China to Stamp Out Opium.

Pekin, Dec. 3.—As a result of the extraordinary agitation in recent months by Chinese anti-opium societies, the imperial senate yesterday passed a resolution almost unanimously looking to the drastic extermination of the drug.

The interprovincial transportation of opium will be abolished in the sixth moon of the coming year (July, 1911), and the planting of the seed and smoking will be prohibited in the twelfth moon (January, 1912).

The foreign board is also enjoined in the resolution to seek the abrogation of the opium treaty with Great Britain and so prevent further importation from India.

Northwestern Hard on Rocks.

Seattle, Wash., Dec. 3.—The Alaska Steamship Co.'s steamer Northwestern is hard and fast on the rocks at False Bay, San Juan Island, four miles from Roche Harbor. She went on at almost high tide, has thirteen feet of water in her forward hold, and may be a total loss.

The Northwestern left Seattle for Valdez, Alaska, Thursday night with 66 passengers and 600 tons of freight. She struck the rocks at 2.40 a.m. The British steamer Tes, which was near, responded to a wireless call from the Northwestern, and took over the passengers and mail, which it is expected will be landed at Victoria.

CANADIANS TAKE PART IN THE BRITISH ELECTIONS TO-DAY

Joseph Martin and Hamar Greenwood Will Have a Tussle---The Former Has a Woman Suffrage Candidate to Contend With---Sixty Three Contests Are Being Voted On.

London, Dec. 3.—Excluding the unopposed returns yesterday there are 63 contests to-day. The Unionists hope, if the moderate man supports them, to gain ten seats. If he abstains or supports the Liberals, there will not be much perceptible change.

Little change is expected in the Midlands, but reports from Manchester are very encouraging to the Liberals, who expect to do twenty per cent. better than at the last election. This would mean a gain of many seats.

The Unionists have issued a booklet reproducing the opinion of Joseph Martin, published by Collier's Magazine. This referred to him as a millionaire, who had drawn pay from the C.P.R., though he opposed corporations. Martin is having a hotter fight in East St. Pancras than in January. He has two opponents—Hopkins, a Unionist and wealthy business man, who has been quietly working the constituency for some time past, and Jacob Banister, who is standing as a woman suffrage advocate. The constituency is being invaded by militant suffragettes, whose motto is "turn out this miscreant Ministry." They make great use of Martin's own speech in the Commons, in which he said he had lost all confidence in Asquith.

At Sunderland, which is a two-member constituency, Hamar Greenwood is bracketed with Gladstone, a Labor candidate, against Samuel Storey, a leading merchant and shipowner and brother of a former lord mayor of London, and Joynson-Hicks, who defeated Winston Churchill at Manchester. Everyone agrees that the fight will be close. The Unionist Yorkshire Post says Gokstone is of little account, but Greenwood fights most vigorously, and his attack called for unwearied watchfulness and resource on the part of the Unionists.

Although his seat is uncontested, Donald McMaster is issuing a spirited election address advocating a strong navy, a tariff reformist referendum and a reformed House of Lords, as the only safeguard of a true democracy.

The Cape Times says the Unionist proposals are far more in the spirit of the deadlock provisions in the Commonwealth and South African Union Act than the purely destructive policy of the Liberals.

Manchester South, Haworth, Liberal, was returned unopposed. The Unionist Glazebrook's nomination arrived at the nomination station six minutes too late. Following are fourteen other candidates returned unopposed yesterday. They number twelve Unionists and two Liberals:

Aston Manor—E. Cecil.

Birmingham (Bordsley)—Jesse Collings.

Birmington (Edgbaston)—Sir F. W. Lowe.

Birmingham (North)—J. T. Middlemore.

Birmingham (West)—Hon. Joseph Chamberlain.

Bury St. Edmunds—Hon. W. E. Guinness.

Dover—Hon. George Wyndham.

Hythe—Sir E. Sassoon.

London (City)—Hon. A. J. Balfour, Hon. F. G. Banbury.

Liverpool (Everton) — Harmwood Banner.

Morpeth—Hon. T. Burt.

Swansea District—Sir B. Jones (Lib.).

South Shields—Rea (Lib.).

In the final words of the last general election, the Canadian Associated Press expresses the opinion that the question of tariff reform must remain unsettled pending a settlement of the House of Lords' position on the constitution, the reason being that many people favoring tariff reform could not regard the present Chamber as other than an anachronism. Events have widely published this view and unless the issues in the present contest is indecisive, which is not improbable, the result will be closed for both marking legislation by one party or the other.

Last night all the great cities were booming. Balfour spoke at Grimsby, followed by Winston Churchill, who traveled a hundred miles in a special train, studying a hurried transcribe of the Unionist leader's speech handed him en route, and replied to Balfour at midnight. Grimsby and Northwest Manchester are points of great interest, for the Liberals will be greatly pleased if they down Doughty again and Bonar Law.

Balfour made a studied appeal to the "moderate men," whom he thought were "coming over to us" because of Redmond's domination. He was accused of destroying the Parliamentary system by introducing the referendum, but the destroyers were the Government. They wished to destroy the power of the second Chamber and got defeat in the first. About home rule, Balfour was passionate. Home rule never figured in a radical election address, and they never explained in their speeches. None knew what was meant by home rule, yet if returned the Government would claim a mandate for home rule. It would be an outrage.

Lloyd-George, at Ipswich, said: "What is going on is a kind of a Dutch auction. The Lord first put it up and said, 'Why, you buy us at our own price.' The people replied, 'Not likely.' Then they came down and said, 'Why, pay us a reformed character, half peers, half something else, a kind of shandygaff institution. Then they said, 'Why, you take us at any price.' No bid. Next, they say, 'Why, you buy us at the price of a referendum.' We reply, 'Much too expensive.' They say, 'Then we will give you tariff reform.' If you return Liberal members here to-morrow your example will be followed, and you will get a house of lords cheap."

Identity a Mistake.

Philadelphia, Pa., Dec. 3.—The body of Hyman Wiener, the supposed murderer of Policeman Barnett, is not en route to Roxbury, Mass. This fact developed last night when Wiener was arrested in the Tenderloin district and taken to the city hall. Who the man was who shot and fatally wounded Policeman Barnett and was in turn shot and killed by the officer is still a mystery.

U. S. Currency Legislation.

Washington, Dec. 3.—No effort will be made by the National Monetary Commission to obtain currency legislation at the session of congress which begins next week.

This was made clear at a meeting of the commission held yesterday, at which it was decided to continue through the session with the work of investigation.

Prof. J. E. Mayor Dead.

London, Dec. 3.—John Eyton Bickerateth, mayor, M.A., professor of Latin at Cambridge University since 1872, is dead. He was born in Ceylon in 1833.

MUNICIPALITIES MUST SHARE IN RESPONSIBILITY

Montreal, Dec. 3.—Chairman Mabee of the Railway Commission spoke out yesterday with no uncertain sound as to the relative responsibility as to level crossings.

The chairman said it would be absolute rain to saddle the companies with the whole cost of safety appliances, and that the municipalities will have to pay their share. In fact, it was no use for them to try to get out of this responsibility.

It would be decided, concluded the chairman, whether a third is too much for the municipalities to pay.

TRAIN JUMPS TRACK AND TWENTY-FIVE ARE HURT

Lamont, Mo., Dec. 3.—Twenty-five persons were injured, one seriously, when three coaches on the Missouri Pacific Railroad passenger train No. 4 from Kansas City to St. Louis left the track four miles west of here early yesterday.

The train was running at high speed the smoker left the rails, dragging with it the chair car and the two Pullmans. These last three rolled down a 10-foot embankment and turned over, the last Pullman turning over twice.

A General Censure.

Merlin, Dec. 3.—That several parties contributed, by negligence, to the death of Christopher Boyer, who was killed while attempting to cross with a traction engine a newly-built cement bridge on the Four Road road, Raleigh Township, was the verdict last night of the coroner's jury that investigated the circumstances.

The verdict given censures the township council for unbusinesslike method of letting contracts and for allowing such a bridge to be open for public travel before being inspected by the engineer; censures the chairman for not condemning and closing the bridge at the time he inspected it, and fixes both parties responsible for the accident and finds that the contractor was at fault in not having in continuous attendance while the work progressed.

Reduced Pullman Rates.

Chicago, Dec. 3.—All the Pullman Co.'s rates of 4 to 20 per cent. reduction in the lower charges for upper berths, in sleeping cars together with certain other concessions to both roads and passengers, but was quietly carried through the last session of congress, will go into effect January 1st next.

The reduction, which is acceptable to the Interstate Commerce Commission, the railroads and the states appearing on complaint also will accept it, according to Commissioner Lane.

The rehearing of complaints against previous Pullman rates was ordered after this agreement yesterday and the Pullman Co. agreed to prepare a new schedule showing the reductions offered for all points, pending the decision of the commission.

In the event of the proposed reduction being accomplished, new rates will go into effect some time in February.

Guilty of Seducing Girls.

New York, Dec. 3.—The jury in the case of G. W. Tenaille, who has been on trial in the criminal branch of the Supreme Court for offering to sell for $2,000 his vote as a juryman to the defense while employed on the jury sworn in to try Edward G. Rosenheimer for the killing of Miss Grace Brough, returned a verdict of guilty yesterday afternoon. Tenaille was suspended for sixty days for contempt. The maximum sentence for the crime is twenty years.

MISTAKEN SIGNAL WAS THE CAUSE

Captain of C. P. R. Steamer Athabaska Explains the Collision

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., Dec. 3.—Mistaken signals is the cause assigned by the captain of the C.P.R. steamer Athabaska for the collision in which his steamer sank the tug General off the foot of Little Island, St. Mary's Passage, Wednesday, with the loss of three lives.

He says: "The night was clear. The tug General was sighted about a mile away. I gave a blast. This was unheeded, and another blast was blown. At this time the two vessels were plainly visible to one another. The General was headed for my starboard quarter.

"I signalled to inform that I would make a starboard course. A few moments after the helm was put hard over on the General, and an attempt was made to cross my bows and go on my port side. With a crash the vessels met, and two minutes later the General sank.

Fat Folks Favour

Home Mixture That Takes Off the Fat Rapidly—Causes No Wrinkles — No Stomach Ills and Requires Neither Dieting Nor Exercise.

Too much fat is both uncomfortable and dangerous, but usually fleshy people prefer to put up with its inconvenience rather than punish themselves with the tiresome exercising usually prescribed, or endanger their health by taking the so-called "cures" and patent fat "reducers."

This self-sacrifice of comfort and health to overabundant fat is entirely unnecessary, however, as Mrs. Lucella Bigger tells us there is a home receipt that is far superior in every way to anything money will buy for reducing superfluous flesh. It is said this simple mixture will take the fat off man or woman at the rate of at least a couple of pounds a week without even causing wrinkles. Moreover it does not disturb the stomach, but is a good thing for the system, clearing away pimples, and, best of all, it does not interfere with the diet. You can use it and at the same time eat whatever you like. This receipt is as follows: 1-2 ounce Marmola; 3-4 ounce Fluid Extract Cascara Aromatic and 4 3-4 ounces of Peppermint Water. Get these ingredients at any drug store, mix them together at home and take one teaspoonful after each meal and at bedtime.

Mrs. Bigger, as is well known, is a famous beauty expert, and whatever she recommends is sure to be found eminently satisfactory.

TRUNK VICTIM NOT KILLED

Examination of Skeleton Shows Man Did Not Die by Violence.

New York, Dec. 3.—A microscopic examination of the skeleton found in a zinc-lined trunk where it had lain for eight years, shows that the unidentified victim of the murder for which William Lewis, a waiter, is now sought the world over, did not die by violence. The body was yesterday identified as that of A. C. Callier, a missing artist. Commissioner Flynn of the detective bureau says that he has evidence that Lewis died several years ago of consumption, but 50,000 descriptive circulars will be sent to the police the world over.

A Hero's Death.

Much sickness is due to nervous troubles. Headache, dizziness, epilepsy and insanity are nervous troubles. Then there is a large class of disorders which arise from a weakness of the nerves of an organ or part, as weak lungs, heart, stomach, kidney, bladder, eyes, etc. Dyspepsia and indigestion are usually the result of nervous disorders.

Restorative Nervine soothes the irritated nerves, and assists the nerve cells to generate nerve force.

VI.—Hygiene of the Skin and Its Appendages

By EUGENE L. FISK, M. D

Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

THE skin is one of the most important organs of the body.

This may seem an extraordinary statement to some who look upon the skin merely as a protective covering for muscle, bone and other underlying structures.

It is a fact, however, that the skin is a vital organ and that paralysis of its functions would result in death.

One of the most important functions of the skin is to regulate the body heat. This it does largely through the evaporation of water brought to the surface by the sweat glands. It has been estimated that there are about 2,000,000 of these glands in the skin of the average individual and that they daily pour out from one to three pints of water containing salts and waste products.

In very warm weather this loss is quite apparent, but in ordinary weather we are not conscious of it, and it is termed insensible perspiration.

When the air contains a great deal of moisture and the weather man reports excessive humidity, the evaporation of moisture from the skin is retarded and great discomfort results. The reverse condition obtains, of course, when the air is dry.

Understanding the functions of the skin, we can readily comprehend what grave injury to other organs may result if these functions are suspended.

When the weather becomes suddenly cold the blood vessels of the skin contract, and a greater burden is thrown upon the kidneys, which at once become more active, if they are able to respond. When the skin is not in a healthy condition its heat regulating and waste excreting functions are chronically disturbed, with the result that other organs must bear the burden. This means that the bodily resistance to disease is lessened.

Structure of the Skin.

The skin is composed of two layers—the epidermis, or what is termed the "scarf skin," and the derma, or "true skin." The epidermis is composed of several layers of epithelial cells, which act as a protective coating for the derma. The derma contains the sebaceous or oil glands, the sweat glands, roots of the hair, blood vessels, fat, nerves, etc.

The cells of the epidermis are constantly drying up and are removed by bathing and the friction of the clothes.

To maintain a healthy action of the skin the daily bath is important. Millions of people seem to get along fairly well without bathing, but millions of people have died before their time in consequence of neglecting such hygienic measures as are now known to promote good health and resistance to disease.

A daily cold bath should be taken by all who can react from the shock without feeling "shivery" and chilled.

For the more delicate a daily tepid bath, with light sponging or spraying of neck and chest with cool water, will assist in maintaining a proper tone to the circulation of the skin and fortify against colds, bronchitis, pneumonia and tuberculosis.

Importance of Cleansing Scalp.

A great deal of time and money are wasted in trying to make hair grow in poor soil. It is a curious but illuminating fact that it it is quite as difficult to destroy superfluous hair as it is to induce hair to grow where it is desired. These facts are readily accounted for when we consider that the papillae, upon which the growth of hair depends, are located deeply in the layers of the true skin, where neither hair tonics nor hair destroyers can reach them.

It is true of the scalp as of all other parts of the body that it is easier to prevent disease than to cure it. Prevention of dandruff, which is the usual cause of baldness, is not ordinarily a difficult matter. Sometimes this condition as well as falling of the hair is due to a debilitated nervous system, which must first be treated before local measures are of much avail. The average individual, however, can prevent dandruff and resultant baldness by keeping the scalp clean.

The scalp is prone to collect dirt, dust and germs. Dandruff is thought by some to be due to a germ, but this is all the greater reason for frequently cleansing the scalp.

Shampooing and Scalp Massage.

A mistaken idea exists that the hair is injured by frequent washing. As a rule, both scalp and hair are benefited thereby provided they are carefully dried. Neglect to dry the hair leads to decomposition at the roots and impairment of its vigor. In the summer time exposure to the sunlight will assist in thorough drying. In the winter time hot towels should be used.

Medicated soaps are not of much value. Any pure soap will answer. Tincture of green soap is an excellent preparation. There is no danger of undue loss of oil from the hair, as the oil glands in the skin quickly replace what is washed away. In fact, by clearing away the dead cells and cleansing the orifices of the glands the oil supply may be increased. In old cases of dandruff the head should be shampooed several times a week until the scalp is restored to a healthier condition, and then twice a month will usually suffice.

The hair should be briskly brushed twice a day. This will cleanse it and promote a healthy circulation. The scalp should also be kneaded and massaged with the finger tips, slightly pinched and pulled away from the underlying skull. This is especially necessary where the hair lacks vigor and the scalp is tightly bound to the skull. It is a question whether electric massage, vibration massage, etc., have any advantages over ordinary methods. Vibration massage in particular should be used with caution.

In some cases dandruff is so excessive as to constitute an active disease, accompanied by inflammation. In such cases medical attention is necessary, and experiments should not be made.

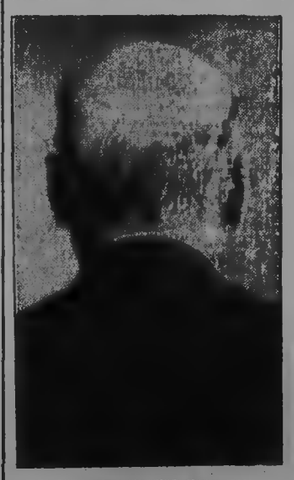
The scalp, like other portions of the body, can be kept in a healthy condition by proper attention to bathing, sleep, exercise, diet, etc., and all these things should be tried in preference to soaking one's head with high priced, highly perfumed stuff out of fancy bottles.

Anything that improves the nutrition of the scalp tends to prevent gray hair. Many theories have been advanced as to the cause of gray hair, but no cure has yet been discovered. Black hair dyes may contain lead and cause serious poisoning. Great caution should be exercised in using dyes.

Care of the Complexion.

Care of the complexion should commence in childhood. This does not mean that we should rub the baby's face with expensive toilet preparations, but that all measures which promote a healthy skin action should early become a part of training and discipline.

The skin of the face should also be thoroughly cleansed at least once a day, in order that a healthy action of its glands may be maintained. Pure soap and tepid soft water are usually sufficient for this purpose. Those who live in dusty or smoky towns will find it beneficial to use cold cream as a cleanser. The face should be gently



FOUR QUIT FOR HAIR.
(A great deal of time and money are wasted in trying to make hair grow in poor soil.)

but thoroughly rubbed with this preparation and then wiped off with a soft towel. The appearance of this towel after use will surprise those who try this method for the first time. The face should then be washed with tepid water. This is an exceedingly valuable measure for young boys and girls.

Importance of Diet.

In addition to local hygiene of the face, care of the bodily functions will have an important influence on the complexion. Constipation in young children is very apt to develop through inattention and neglect. Regular habits should be established and proper diet enforced. Greasy fried foods, pancakes, hot breads, oatmeal, candy, ice cream soda, should all be avoided.

The habit of thoroughly chewing the food should also be early taught. Children are prone to bolt their food, especially soft foods like cereals, potatoes and other vegetables, which should remain in the mouth long enough for partial digestion.

Treatment of Acne.

Acne is a disease characterized by the formation of pimples or blotches, chiefly on the face, but occasionally on other portions of the body. Young people suffer from two forms of this disease, the simple and the indurated. In the former ordinary pimples are present. In the latter the pimples are of large size and very hard, leaving a scar after they rupture. In older people acne takes the form of reddened, inflamed areas, often involving the nose, termed "acne rosacea."

In mild, simple acne daily cleansing of the face with cold cream and careful attention to diet will often be sufficient to effect a cure. The more rebellious cases require the most skillful medical treatment, directed against the underlying constitutional causes. Of late excellent results have been reported from the use of the Roentgen rays. Such treatment requires much judgment and experience and should be administered only by an expert.

Acne rosacea, although so unsightly and formidable looking, is often readily cured by careful diet, avoidance of stimulants, regulation of the bowels and certain local applications. Tight lacing is not infrequently a cause of this disease. People suffering from this trouble should seek relief from a physician, with every confidence of cure, provided instructions are rightly followed.

Bringing Her Round.

Bingo (tiptoeing into his wife's room, in a whisper)—I've brought three friends home to dinner unexpectedly.

Mrs. Bingo (aghast)—What!

Bingo—Yes, I have. They're down stairs.

Mrs. Bingo—You wretch!

Bingo—Now, my dear, I couldn't get out of it.

Mrs. Bingo (haughtily)—Then you'll have to take the consequences.

Bingo—But—

Mrs. Bingo—You'll have to put up with practically nothing.

Bingo—That's what I told them.

Mrs. Bingo—You did?

Bingo—Yes. I told them that they needn't expect a single thing; that we'd scrape round in the kitchen if necessary and pick up whatever we could and that, as I hadn't let you know, that was the best we could do.

Mrs. Bingo—What did you tell them that for?

Bingo—It's the truth, isn't it?

Mrs. Bingo—Certainly not. As if it makes any difference to me how many friends you bring home! I'll show you!—London Tit Bits.

Little Known Republics.

Within the domain of the United States on the North American continent there have been divers independent republics, says Mary W. Haseltine in Harper's Magazine, the very name of three of which is known to but a few. How many Americans of today have heard, for example, of the commonwealth of Watauga, which in 1772 was organized as an independent community by North Carolinians who had crossed the Alleghenies and, descending into the basin of the Tennessee, had made themselves homes in the valley of the Watauga river? How many remember the commonwealth of Transylvania, which was organized in the eastern part of what is now Kentucky in 1775 and which sent to the Continental congress a delegate, who, however, was not admitted? How many have heard of the short lived state of Franklin, or Frankland, which at a somewhat later period was self created out of certain western counties of North Carolina?

A Remarkable Concert.

A Carlsbad letter calls attention to a remarkable concert which took place at the Spa on Aug. 6, 1812, a program of which is still preserved in the city archives at that place. The entertainment was given for the benefit of the sufferers by the fire which had laid waste Baden and took place at the Saechsischer Saal. The only performers were Beethoven and Polledro, who played their own compositions. There were two pianoforte and two violin solos and several numbers in which both took part, says the writer. The account of the entertainment also mentions the fact that one of the interested listeners was a "tall, elderly man, wearing a great blue coat, who sat perfectly erect throughout the performance, never looking anywhere but at the stage. This was Goethe." The amount realised for the fund was about $200. The letter ends with, "Beethoven at the piano for charity and box receipts $300."

A Dog's Tongue.

Have you ever wanted to know why a dog's tongue lolls out of his mouth on a hot day or when he has been running? People sometimes say that it is because he is thirsty, but that isn't exactly right. If you look at it you will see little drops of water dripping from it. Well, you know that when you get very warm you get covered with perspiration. The dog's body never perspires. When he gets hot all the moisture comes out through his tongue, and as the moisture on the tongue dries up the dog's body cools.—Philadelphia Press.

How He Took It.

"In training," said an instructor in athletics, "the strictest obedience is required. Whenever I think of the theory of training I think of Dash, who, after eighteen years of married life, is one of the best and happiest husbands in the world.

"'Dash,' I once said to him, 'well, Dash, old man, how do you take married life?'

"'According to directions,' he replied."

The Sixth Sense.

In a primary school examination over which I once had the pleasure to preside one of the questions was with regard to the five senses. One of the bright pupils handled the subject thus: "The five senses are shouting, sobbing, crying, yawning and coughing. By the sixth sense is meant an extra one which some folks have. This is sneezing." — Weaver's Home Companion.

Hindu Juggling.

The Hindu jugglers and acrobats are the most skillful in the world. One of the latest stories told of them is about a performer who went through many wonderful feats perched on the top of a single bamboo stick about fifteen feet in height. The top of the stick was tied to a girdle around his waist, and a leg rest was provided by a cushion a few feet down the pole. Perched on this slender stick he hopped and danced about in the liveliest way, accompanied by the tapping of a drum. It would be considered a skillful feat to walk about with ease on a pair of stilts fifteen feet in height, but this Hindu showed a marvelous power of equilibrium on a single stick. He did other things even more wonderful. For example, he balanced a light stick on his nose and a heavy one on his chin and then threw the heavy one into the air with his head and caught it on the end of a light one. While balancing the two sticks thus, end on end, he made one revolve in one direction and the other in the opposite direction.

"Gray" and "Grey."

What is the difference, if any, between "grey" and "gray," aside from the matter of spelling?

The editor of the Oxford Dictionary some years ago made extended inquiry as to usage and found that opinions in London varied. Replies to his questions showed that in Great Britain the form gray is the more frequent in use, despite the authority of Dr. Johnson and later lexicographers, who give the preference to gray. Many correspondents said that they used the two forms with a difference of meaning or application, the distinction most generally recognised being that grey denotes a more delicate or lighter tint than gray. Others considered the difference to be that gray is a warmer color or that it has a mixture of red or brown. Another group held that grey has more of sentiment, gray more of color, which may mean that grey is a suggestion rather than a positive outline.—New York Press.

Twice Declined.

The invitation list of the governor general of Canada is made out strictly in accordance with precedent, but is not kept up to date always, the aid who has to send the invitations out—generally an Englishman or a Scotchman—not always being au courant with changes on the list. The late Sir Antoine Dorion, chief justice of Quebec, was once invited to some function, as was proper, but Lady Dorion, who was dead, was invited likewise. Sir Antoine accepted for himself, but declined for her ladyship, on the ground that she was in the cemetery. The next year, however, the same mistake was made, so the old judge wrote back to the aid-de-camp in waiting:

"Sir Antoine Dorion accepts, etc., but, her ladyship being still in St. Anne's cemetery, Sir Antoine is compelled again to decline the invitation for her."

A New Game.

William is the only son of a pious minister, and, though he is only three and a half years of age, his father considers it quite time he learned properly to observe grace on coming to the table. His parents have more than once endeavored to explain to him the reasons for his so doing, but the little boy regards it as no more than an amusing game.

The other afternoon his older sister made another attempt to interest him in this duty. All were seated at dinner, and on the first words of the grace William's small head dropped in his hands in apparent reverence. His sister, secretly pleased with her success, stole a glance at him, when, to the consternation of the family, he sprang up, shouting gleefully:

"Oh, Sis, you're it! I saw you peep!"—Woman's Home Companion.

Barred Them Out.

A proprietor of a cotton mill in England who is something of a philosopher posted up on the factory gates the following notice:

"No cigars or good looking men admitted!"

When asked for an explanation he said: "I'll tell you. The one will set a flame ageing among my cottons and the other among the girls. I won't admit such inflammable and dangerous things into my establishment at any risk!"

The Ink That Homer Used.

Ink of various hues was used by the ancient Romans, that of a purple tint being considered the exclusive fluid for the execution of all royal writings, as it was distinctively the royal color. It is said that Homer's works were written in letters of gold on a roll 120 feet in length, formed of the intestines of serpents, but we are left in ignorance as to the method of preparing this ink.

Trying to Prove It.

Angry Father—Great Scott! What are you doing, Johnny? Why, confound it, you've got my new watch all to pieces! Johnny—Yes, dad. Teacher told us today that a good watch ought to have at least 170 parts, so I thought I'd see if yours was a good one.

Profanity by Proxy.

A good solid type of Western Ontario gentleman not long ago told of the only time when he had been guilty of profanity. He and a friend had gone fishing, and for some time luck was dead against them. At last, however, they seemed to be about to get at the one time the reward for their patience. Both corks were bobbing beautifully, and it was in the excitement of the moment that the man who was very careful of his language was trapped into a lapse.

"I've got a — good bite," said the friend eagerly, and with fully as much eagerness the man who never had indulged in objectionable talk interposed, "No, I haven't."

ROYAL PALACE FOR IRELAND.

King George Said to Be Contemplating Such a Move.

Since the coming of King George to the throne the rumors about the establishment of a royal residence in Ireland have been revived and this time I am informed it is more than likely that they will be verified, says a London correspondent.

It is known that when he was Prince of Wales the present King was greatly taken with an estate in the north that was coming into the market, and instructed an agent to acquire it for him. The matter came to the ears of the then lord lieutenant, who immediately protested to King Edward that his position, never a pleasant one, would become absolutely untenable if the prince established a residence in Ireland. The King saw the justice of the complaint and ordered his son to drop the negotiations.

Now that George is king he is free to follow his own inclinations in the matter and of course there could be no trouble of the sort feared before. As king he could spend little time in Ireland and when he was there of course the viceroy would have to take a back seat if he did not efface himself altogether. When the real king was in Ireland there would be no use for a vice-king.

I am told that he is now after a fine estate in the south which abounds in game and that the owners are more than willing to sell.

The politicians see in this rumor confirmation of the report that the offer to Ireland of self-government in some form will be the outcome of the conference on the powers of the House of Lords which is still going on. The King is known to favor this course strongly and to be desirous that his reign should be thus signalized. I am told that not very long ago, when he was discussing the fact that he would be unable to carry out the engagement he made as Prince of Wales to open the first Parliament of United South Africa, he declared that he would have no regrets on this score if he were enabled to open the first Irish Parliament in College Green in person.

Remarkable Violin Test.

An ingenious test of old and new violins, in which an instrument of modern make was voted the finest, has been made in Paris. During the performance both critics and performers were in complete darkness, so that it was impossible to see which one of the seven violins selected for the test was being played. Then immediately after being used the instrument was placed under a cloth, and the lights were turned on for a few moments to enable the critics to write down the votes. All the violins were played by two musicians of high standing, and the compositions were written especially for the test. The two violinists tried to bring out the best in each violin, and the result, decided by the votes, was interesting. The modern make of violin led the list with 103 votes, and its nearest rival for favor was a Stradivarius with 90 votes. Other old and famous makes of violins received 82, 85, 80, 82 and 80.—London Telegraph.

Tender Hearted Maid.

Once upon a time there lived a child of gentle mien and manners mild; she was so tender and so kind she wept to see window blind. She feared it might give the window pain to leave it standing in the rain. Her maiden aunty she would beg not to stone raisins, beat an egg, or from potatoes take the eyes. Oh, how this maid did agonise! And when she saw her whipping cream with horor she would sob and scream. The very thought of killing time appeared to her a dreadful crime, and, though to music she inclined, to beat a measure seemed unkind. To see the cowslip by the river with appreciation made her shiver; to cut a page or turn it down would cause a distracting frown. And when she saw them shivering in the chill autumn air she knitted stockings for the trees because their limbs were bare. Her heart, so oft with anguish wrung caused this poor maid to die quite young.—Widow.

THE HOSPITAL FOR SICK CHILDREN

COLLEGE STREET, TORONTO

READY FOR MOTHER.

Appeals to Fathers and Mothers of Ontario on behalf of suffering children. This Institution did more work in 1910 than ever before. Total In-Patients 1,224. Of these, 783 were from the city and 441 from the country.

Since its organization, the Hospital has treated in its cots and beds 16,837 children; 12,370 of these were unable to pay and were treated free.

These were 60 cases of club feet corrected last year.

THE HOSPITAL IS A PROVINCIAL CHARITY.

The sick child from the most remote corner of Ontario has the same claim as the child living within sight of the great House of Mercy in College Street, Toronto. Our cause is the children's cause. Could there be one that has a stronger claim on the people of this Province?

Perfect results in Hardie cases. 18 infants were relieved of this terrible deformity last year.

If the Hospital is to continue in great work, it must appeal to your pocketbook as well as to your heart. Let your Dollar be messenger of mercy to the suffering little children of Ontario.

Please send your contribution to J. Gear Robertson, Chairman, or to Douglas Davidson, Secretary-Treasurer, The Hospital for Sick Children, College St., Toronto.

Merely a Question of Comfort.

WOULD VERY OFTEN FAINT AWAY.

Doctor Said That Sometime He Would Never Come Out of One"

Many people may be unaware of having anything wrong with their heart till some little excitement, overwork, or confinement in an overheated or overcrowded room or public building makes them feel faint or dizzy.

If you neglect the warning the slight feeling of dizziness gives you, and fail to take treatment, there will be a gradual progression to something more serious.

There is no reason you should wait till your case becomes desperate before you avail yourself of a perfect cure by using Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills.

Mr. F. A. Clute, Whitby, Ont. writes:—"It is with gratitude I tell how your Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills benefited me. I was very weak and run down, and had headache, nearly every day and would very often faint away.

"At last, my doctor said that sometimes I would never come out of one of them. After taking three boxes of your pills I am glad to relate that it has been a number of years since I have had a fainting spell and consider I have had a complete cure. Too much cannot be said in praise of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills for by me they have effected a perfect cure."

COLLISION ON THE C.P.R.
CABOOSE IS DEMOLISHED

A rather serious accident occurred on the C.P.R., west of Park street, this morning about 10 o'clock, when an east bound freight crashed into the rear of another freight standing on the siding, completely demolishing the caboose and also badly damaging the front of the engine. The smoke stack was knocked off and other serious damage done to the pilot. It was lucky that no men were in the caboose at the time, as th eaccident was such as to make it impossible for any person to escape from the caboose. About 50 yards of track was torn up.

A Plea For Early Shopping

This is a plea for the clerks of Peterborough's stores.

Christmas, that time of joyous celebration for most people, is often to the clerks a season of long hours in trying to give attention to the needs of clamourous customers.

Many clerks, in fact most clerks dread the aproach of Christmas for that reason.

You can help in a very great measure to make things brighter and easier for them by doing your Christmas shopping now.

Some people will read this article and say, "I'll go down the first thing next week, and get what I need" and then they will keep postponing their shopping tour until Christmas is only a few hours, instead of some weeks away.

Don't YOU be one of these.. Make it a point to do your shoping early next week.

Don't imagine that the clerks are the only ones to benefit by your so doing.

If you go now you will have the best of the season's offerings for your selection. The clerks will have more time to wait upon you and you are assured of better service and far more careful attention than you will receive just before Christmas.

Suppose you postpone it until the last few days. Then you have to fight your way through a mob of late buyers like yourself, make your selections from what the early birds have left and at last grab a lot of articles you do not want and your friends will not care to receive.

If only from a selfish motive you should do your Christmas shopping early.

Annual Meeting Of The City Hockey League

The annual meeting of the City Hockey League wil be held on Monday night at 8 o'clock in the Oriental Hotel Parlours, and every team that expects to join this season is asked to have a representative present as it is highly important that the organization should be completed at Monday night's meeting.

SATURDAY'S MARKET

This morning's market was an extra large one, everything, with the exception of eggs, ducks and apples, being in abundance. The upstairs market was crowded to its full capacity and the demand for the produce was as great as the supply. The prices were as follows:

Pork, per quarter, 11c. and 12 1-2 c.
Lamb, per quarter—12c. and 13c.
Beef, per quarter—8c. and 9c.

Hay—$10 per load.

Potatoes—60c.
Butter—26c. lb.
Eggs—35c. doz.
Turkeys—$1.75 to $2.00 each.

Not more than half a dozen ducks were on the market and these sold at a premium. Hay was on in abundance, and the demand was also great. Farmers' hides were selling at 7c. Butchers' hides at 8c.

Dressed hogs were $8.00 and live hogs were $6.50. The supply was heavy.

SPLENDID CONCERT
Great Success Achieved by Young Girls of Knox Church.

The Mission Band of Knox church brought honour to itself last evening because of the excellent concert given by them. The audience was all that could be desired, standing room being at a premium. The girls and boys who took part in the programme performed their difficult parts with ease and gave great pleasure to the audience. Much credit is due to the president of the Band, Miss Jessie Millar, and to Mrs. Keith, Miss Dunlop and Mrs. Sherwood, who trained the members of the Band for the concert.

One of the features of the program was the Pageant of Missions, representing conditions of life in China, Japan, India, Korea and Canada. The singing was excellent. The programme was as follows:

Hymn, by the members of the Band.
Chairman's remarks—Mr. Keith.
Star dialogue by eight girls.
Recitation—Iscna Irwin.
Doll chorus—Fourteen girls.
Piano solo—Jessie Marvin.
Boys' chorus—Seven boys.
Solo by Cora Petgrs.
Dialogue—Zetta McCaw and Lizzie Thompson.
Piano solo—Mrs. Charles Buttera.
Pageant of Missions.
Address by Mrs. Purdy of Cobourg.
God Save the King.

Mrs. Purdy, the Secretary of the Mission Bands for the Presbytery of Peterborough, gave an interesting address on Missionaism, illustrating with different objects and holding the interest of the boys and girls throughout during which time the president entertained the anxious members with a few of his amusing anecdotes, the judges decided in favour of the affirmative. The programme was brought to a close by the singing of the National Anthem.

NORMAL SCHOOL LITERARY SOCIETY

The Normal School Literary Society held its regular meeting yesterday afternoon, beginning at 4 p.m., at which a very interesting programme was rendered.

After the minutes of the last meeting were read by the Secretary, a duet was rendered by Misses Armstrong and Garbutt, accompanied by Misses Davies and Flavelle. The next item on the programme was a debate, the subject of which was: "Resolved that Reciprocity between Canada and the United States is beneficial to Canada." The affirmative was taken by Mr. Donnelly and Misses Dix, Ford and Malloch. The negative was duly upheld by Mr. J. Harry Smith and Misses Davey, Knowles and Gibson. After a serious consideration,

Are Selling Much Higher

From Farm and Dairy.

Good heavy horses are selling much higher than ever before. Teams of the light kind are selling from $100.00 to $900.00 each. Good young draft mares, if registered, are selling at $300.00 and over. Teams sell at $500.00 and some even higher.

Several yearling colts that I know of have been sold at $250.00 and more. The writer recently sold a colt under 17 months old, to one of the best judges in Canada for $300.

BREED THE GOOD MARES

We consider raising heavy horses one of the most profitable lines that farmers can engage in. Any man who has a draft mare that is a regular and safe breeder should breed her to the best draft stallion obtainable if it cost $50.00 or more. Too many good mares have been sold for the high dollar to go across the line and to the West and many mares are being used for dray purposes that should have been retained for breeding. The fact of farmers selling their good mares, than breeding untried and inferior mares, has been one of the worst and most costly mistakes the farmers of this country ever made.

There are enough draft stallions in the country, but there are not nearly enough good ones. There has been too many cheap draft stallions imported with nothing to commend them but the magic word, "Imported." The scarce brutes are loaded with fat to cover their ugliness, then sold to gullible greenhorns, and unprincipled stallioners, who travel them over the country, at any kind of fee for their services. They are a detriment to the man that has invested in a good horse, and their progeny are often a curse to the man that breeds them. A faulty sire will never produce first class stock unless by accident.

THE GOVERNMENT MEANS BUSINESS

A few years ago the Ontario government appointed a commission of many men who travelled the whole province. They made a report, which was published. They also made some recommendations. But no action has been taken. The whole cost of the commission and printing their report was money uselessly squandered. To accomplish any good to the heavy horse-breeding industry of this province, measures would have to be adopted as drastic that they would be unpopular, and it is impossible to educate or enlighten many farmers to their best interests.

I would suggest that the Dominion Government appoint the best three judges of heavy horses in Canada, to inspect every horse imported, with power to shoot or castrate all horses that don't measure up to a certain standard of excellence. Then there would be some encouragement to import higher priced and better stallions.

Few Canadians comprehend the development and expansion that is taking place in the agricultural, railway building, mining, and the commercial activities of this country. Unless some misfortune or financial crisis takes place to arrest or check the unparalleled expansion and progress, which Canadians are enjoying, there is bound to be a good market and a strong demand for all the draft horses the farmers of Canada can produce.

JAMES GORHAM SENTENCED TO BE HANGED ON JANUARY 31st

Department of Justice Refused to Consider Judge's Recommendation Until Sentence Had Been Passed in Accordance With Verdict.'

TRIAL JUDGE HERE TO-DAY

James Gorham, who was found guilty at the Fall Assizes on the 28th of October, of having killed his mother in May last, was this morning sentenced to be hanged on the 31st of January next by Chancellor Sir John Boyd. Chancellor Boyd came to Peterborough on the 11.38 train and drove immediately to the Court House, where, without the usual custom of putting on his gown, and in the case of sentencing a prisoner to death, of donning a black cap, he passed sentence. "At the time the verdict of guilty was returned in the case against you, Gorham," His Lordship began, "I had hopes that the Department of Justice would interfere and the usual sentence of death would be changed to imprisonment. However, I have been informed that it is not the course of the government to deal with capital cases until sentence has been passed. They will then deal with my recommendation. Therefore it is my duty to formally sentence you to be hanged by the neck on the thirty-first of January."

Gorham apparently was unaffected by the Court's sentence, as he returned to his cell with a smile on his face. There were no spectators in the Court room when sentence was passed, save the Court officials, Messrs. O'Connell and Gordon, counsel for the prisoner and the reporters.

ELECTION SPECIAL TRAIN WRECKED IN LONDON AND SIX PEOPLE ARE KILLED

Second Days' Balloting To-day With Both Sides Confident ---The English Papers on the Result---Many Charges of Fraud, Ballot Stuffing and Illegal Voting.

Special to The Examiner.

LONDON, ENG., DEC. 5.—Britain tackled the second day's balloting in the general elections to-day, with both sides confident, but labouring under fearfully bad weather conditions. Several constituencies in South and Middle England are so badly flooded that voters cannot get to the polls.

There was a disparaging feature right within the big city of London to-day, when at Willesden Junction there was a rear-end collision of an election special train, which killed six people and injured forty.

The Liberals are much more confident of victory this morning, because the revised returns indicate that they only had a net loss of four seats in Saturday's polling, which, in districts where they expected to lose many more, is very satisfactory, say the Liberal newspapers to-day. The Conservative newspapers this morning admit that they have no reason to feel disappointed with the returns of Saturday.

The London Times, especially, regrets the turn-over in the London constituency. It looks as if there will be many elections protested, both sides claiming extensive frauds and ballot stuffing. The voters' lists being used are eighteen months old, and several people since dead, or removed, have voted nevertheless, according to partisan reports. Old campaigners say there never were so many charges of fraud and irregularity as at this election. Independent critics say the indications are now that Liberals and their allies will again control parliament, but the question is, will there be a majority large enough to induce King George to create enough Liberal peers to control the Lords. Voting is on to-day in seventy ridings.

HANGED HIMSELF FROM BRANCHES OF A TREE

English Farm Labourer Committed Suicide in Cavan Township Last Night---Body Found Hanging From a Limb of an Elm by His Employer This Morning.

Examiner Special.

SPRINGVILLE, DEC. 5.—The lifeless body of a young man, a stranger in this district, who had been employed on the farm of Mr. James O'Hara, Cavan, was found hanging from the branches of an elm tree on the road, about a mile and one-half from this village this morning.

Your correspondent was unable to learn the name of the man who had taken his own life. He had only come to this part of the country a few days ago. He was apparently an Englishman of about thirty years of age, fair complexion and about five feet eight inches in height. He succeeded in securing work with Mr. O'Hara, who lives on Lot 21, Concession 9, Cavan.

Last night about 8 o'clock he left the house presumably to go to the barn. He failed to return and when Mr. O'Hara went to look for him could find no trace of him. This morning, however, Mr. O'Hara found the stranger hanging with a rope around his neck from the branches of a tree, about half a mile from the house. He had evidently climbed up into the tree, placed the noose around his neck and then jumped off.

No reason is known for the suicide. Mr. O'Hara did not approach the body, but hurried into Springville and telephoned the Coroner at Millbrook.

The body was left hanging from the tree and was there until the Coroner arrived.

Will Death Of Mrs. Eddy Affect Christian Scientists? Opinions Are Conflicting

Special Wire to the Examiner.

BOSTON, MASS., DEC. 5.—Various opponents of Christian Science are to-day stating that the death of Mrs. Mary Baker Eddy means the disruption of the church and eventually the wiping out of the cult which has secured such power in the English-speaking world. The leaders of the faith here, however, declare that the passing from life of their leader will cement the organization into one of greater usefulness. Further questioned this morning the State Examiner said there was no need of an inquest, although no doctor was called in. The death might have been caused by various conditions of old age.

O D RESIDENT OF HASTINGS HAS PASSED AWAY

Special wire to The Examiner:

HASTINGS, DEC. 5.—Henry Johnson, one of the oldest and best known residents of Hastings, died suddenly last night at 5 o'clock. The late Mr. Johnson had lived in Hastings for many years and was known to everybody in the district. He was eighty-six years of age, and was in good health until a short time ago. Yesterday morning he was walking around his room, apparently better than he had been for some time, but he was suddenly attacked in the afternoon, and passed away shortly after. He was reeve of Hastings some years ago. The funeral will take place in Prince Edward County.

CONGRATULATIONS.

To-day, Dec. 5th, 1910, the Ottawa Free Press celebrates its fiftieth anniversary, and if half a century of progressive development and advance to a position in the front rank of newspapers means money, it can well be called its golden jubilee. The Free Press is now one of the most well-balanced and progressive newspapers of the Dominion. Published in the Parliamentary centre of the Dominion, it has well met the responsibility of reflecting the meaning of the sayings and doings at the capital, which at once express and create public opinion, and recording the wonderful national development of which Ottawa is in a very large sense, the centre. While the Free Press is a Liberal newspaer it is not a mere party echo. It has opinions of its own, and is fearless and able in its expressions of them. It is in this respect far more independent than many so-called independent journals, who seem to think they can better serve party interests under such a title. The commercial success of the Free Press has kept step with its progress in influence and circulation. It has well earned and well deserves the congratulations and good wishes for success, which the Examiner and all its journalistic confreres are glad to extend it.

THE CANADIAN NAVY.

It is not a pleasant reflection that the first battle of the Canadian navy, its first victory, should be against and over foes in our own household—that the battle should be for integrity of Canadian nationality and imperial integrity, and unity of Canadian citizenship. The Canadian Navy, in principle, was created a year ago by the overwhelming majority of the representatives of the people in parliament, the good old British constitutional way of doing things. It cannot be unmade by shifty resolutions, evasive of parliamentary responsibility. It is as much a part of our national polity as our great canal and transportation systems. In addition to meeting the manifest duty of providing for our own defence and the manly duty of sharing the Imperial burden of defence, the Canadian navy represents an immense forward stride in national development—in the conversion of our natural resources to the expansion of our trade, and the widening of our commercial influence—the establishment of a great shipbuilding industry in Canada. The Government, in accordance with an act passed last session, will aid the establishment of graving docks and ship-building plants, in Canada; an entirely new industry, capable of immense growth. In answer to the government's demand, six British shipbuilding firms have tendered for the establishment of shipbuilding plants at Montreal and St. John, N.B. These plants, which will cost about four million dollars each—of British capital—will not need the exclusive employment of their facilities for building the ships the naval requirements of Canada call for. The immense sums of money their establishment will cost, will not be allowed to lie fallow; the yards will be employed in commercial shipbuilding. There will be no reason why the hundreds of steamers employed in Canadian trade, shall not be built in Canada. Thus will be given a new opening for the employment of Canadian labour, and the development of Canadian resources—coal, iron, steel, timber, etc. We have long aimed to encourage home industries, and the people should not forget that the establishment of, perhaps, the greatest industry of all, can only, if not only, be best secured through the building of a Canadian navy. When the people come to understand the great motive forces behind the inauguration of a Canarian naval defence force—primarily to protect our own coasts, and to strike the name of Canada off the pauper list in the matter of Imperial defence—and the great results that will flow from it, they will understand and appreciate.

PILES Dr. Chase's Ointment

GIVING.

In a city church on Sunday evening a sermon was preached on giving, and incidentally reference was made to Christmas giving. This is a seasonable topic. The habit or custom of Christmas giving has pretty well lost sight of the foundation upon which it arose. As a type of the great Gift, who was bestowed on the world as on Christmas day, it suggests love, as the centre and essence, and source of both human and divine benevolence, the first step in human and divine beneficence. According to modern custom Christmas giving has pretty well got away from all this, and has become, in many respects, instead of a brightening and joy-spreading practice, a source of worry and annoyance. Gifts at Christmas time have become largely a rivalry. Expensive gifts are bestowed, on social and other grounds, which according an an unwritten law, demand return. Thus, not only is the holy duty of gift giving put upon a commercial basis, but embarrassment in meeting the fancied obligation of a return gift in kind and quality and—cost, is created. There is nothing of the Christmas spirit in this. It comes to pass, that the worldly considerations influencing it, deprive Christmas giving of all its holy significance and primitive innocence. Thousands of dollars spent in gifts, expensive to buy, but often intrinsically valueless, may be "good for trade," but they exercise no good influence upon the heart, whose better promptings alone should suggest the Christmas gift. Christ's coming in a stable, first heralded to the poor, suggests that at Christmas time the poor should not be forgotten. In a city like this there is, happily, not as much proportionate destitution as elsewhere, but there is enough to warrant placing Christmas upon a Christian basis. With a Christian church to every thousand of our inhabitants, if they are to deserve this title, they should see that not one mouth in Peterborough should not know the taste of a Christmas feast, that none should be cold or naked or empty. The indifferent, self-crusted spirit of Scrooge should give place to the Christmas spirit.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

A charter has been granted to the Dominion Amusement Company, Ottawa. This organization has no connection with the Dominion Amusement Company already instituted on Parliament Hill.

In the British elections, the first pollings seem to give the advantage to the Lords. It is a question whether these venerable sprinters will have the wind to keep up the pace.

Mr. Balfour, leader of the Tory Opposition in Britain, might well be surnamed Jonah. He has performed the Jonah act of throwing the tariff reform Jonah overboard, not an evidence of courageous statesmanship, but of a simple desire to gain office.

PUBLIC SPEAKING.

(Ottawa Free Press.)

It is astonishing how few Canadian public speakers will stand reporting verbatim. Their speeches always need more or less "dressing up" as the hands of the newspapermen. The ordinary listener cannot detect anything wrong. That which sounds eloquent is often most faulty in construction.

Sir Charles Tupper used to deliver "great speeches" but he was a terror to the stenographer who attempted to report him verbatim. He would start sentence after sentence and never complete them — they ended in a veritable desert of parentheses. George E. Foster impresses everyone who hears him with his wonderful facility of speech, yet his phrases require much reconstruction when reported. The rounded periods of Robert L. Borden would not read nearly as well as they sound if followed exactly. The beautiful diction of Sir Wilfrid Laurier frequently requires editing, which perhaps is not surprising seeing that French is his mother tongue. Sir George W. Ross has a fine reputaton for oratory, especially of the after-dinner variety, but few of his speeches will stand verbatim reproduction. Other prominent men noted for speech-making are equally faulty — indeed, as has been said, few, very few, are perfect.

One of the most outstanding exceptions to this failing is Sir Richard Cartwright. Not only do his speeches "sound like a book," to use a colloquialism, but stenographers will tell you that when the notes of those speeches were transcribed they also read like a book. Sir Richard's style follows the best English school; his sentences are never involved, they are always complete.

Another man who has this same gift of perfect speech is Allan Bristol Aylesworth. This fact was brought home with particular emphasis to those who took a shorthand note of the Minister of Justice's important remarks in the Commons yesterday on the Hague arbitration. It was possible to report his words absolutely verbatim; the shorthand notes could be transcribed automatically; none of his sentences required "editing." Mr. Aylesworth speaks deliberately and with a clear enunciation. He chooses his words with legal care, his sentences are built accurately, and his argument is well arranged.

It is a pleasure indeed to listen to the speeches of such men, and the wonder is that more of our public speakers do not study the art of speaking accurately. Slovenliness may be excused in an experienced and nervous speaker, or in one whose education has been restricted, but unfortunately slovenliness is not confined to men who can advance this excuse.

The Liberal Naval Policy Only Way To Meet Responsibility

(Toronto Star.)

In 1909 the two parties at Ottawa did a wise and patriotic thing in regard to naval defence. They "got together," and for a time took the question out of party politics. Mr. Foster made a speech which to-day stands as one of the strongest vindications of the policy of a Canadian navy under Canadian control. Sir Wilfrid Laurier introduced a resolution approving of the creation of such a navy, in cooperation with the main naval forces of the British Empire. Mr. Borden made some suggestions, which were accepted, and the resolutions were modified accordingly and adopted unanimously.

Some of Mr. Borden's friends thought that the policy was not sufficiently Imperial; others thought that a glorious chance of putting the Government in a hole had been missed. Mr. Borden yielded, and since that time he has been searching for a policy of his own; something different from Laurier's, something that would enable him to make a party issue out of the navy.

There is no need to examine these efforts at policy-making in detail. The root of Mr. Borden's difficulty lies in his departure from the policy of 1909. That policy was a course open to criticism and improvement in details, but essentially it was not only right policy; but the only possible policy for Canada, the only policy that was in line with the historical development of the country. To oppose that policy it to fight against forces as irresistible as those of nature. The only logical opposition to it comes from those who do not believe that armies and navies are necessary at all.

But if we admit, as most people do, the necessity for naval defence, there is no logical escape from the conclusion that Canada must provide her own naval defence. With a population of eight millions and with wealth and resources far beyond that of many European powers, she could not ask the United Kingdom to carry any longer the burden of that defence. We must have a navy of our own or contribute to the expense of the British navy.

There was at one time talk of a contribution of Dreadnoughts or other ships, but that was merely a picturesque way of describing a contribution of money. We have no Dreadnoughts and no way of building them. All we could do would be to vote so much money out the Canada treasury into the British treasury, and let the British Government do what it thought best with the contribution. By this means we would have no navy of our own, and we would probably add little or nothing to the strength of the British navy. Such a contribution, made year after year, in time of peace as well as of war, would rather dampen than kindle Imperial enthusiasm. Emergency contributions would be worse. If by emergency is meant the actual breaking out of war, the grant of money at such a time would come too late. If by emergency is meant not a war, but a war scare, the proposition is reduced to an absurdity.

The only policy which at once provides for local defence and strengthens Imperial defence is the creation of new centres of growth. In order to render naval aid to the Empire, a colony must have a navy, just as in order to render military aid to the Empire, a colony must have a militia. The withdrawal of the British regulars from Canada forty years ago was followed by the reorganization of the Canadian militia. The withdrawal of the British fleets from Canada is followed by the organization of a Canadian navy. To say that that navy is useless and ridiculous because it cannot fight Dreadnoughts is as absurd as to say that our Canadian militia is useless because it cannot fight the German army.

The Government policy—the policy of the entire House of Commons in 1909—is on the line of the development of Canada. It safeguards autonomy. It provides for local defence. It strengthens the defence of the Empire in the only practical way, by creating a new nucleous of strength. The further the Opposition wanders from the sound position it took in 1909, the more will it involve itself in error.

ACRES OF DIAMONDS

(By Russell H. Conwell.)

"Well, you know that man Jones, who lives in——?"

"Yes, I have also heard of," say they.

Then he begins to shake his sides with laughter, and he says:

"They have both done the same thing I did, precisely!"

And that spoils the whole joke.

Because you and I have done it. Yet, nearly every person here will say: "Oh, no; I never had any acres of diamonds, or any gold mines, or any silver mines."

But I say to you that you did have silver mines, and gold mines, and acres of diamonds, and you have them now.

Now, let me speak with the greatest care, lest my eccentricity of manner should mislead my listeners, and make you think I am here to entertain more than to help. I want to hold your attention this oppressive night, with sufficient interest to leave my lesson with you.

You had an opportunity to be rich, and to some of you it has been a hardship to purchase a ticket for this lecture. Yet you have no right to be poor. It is all wrong. You have no right to be poor. It is your duty to be rich.

Oh, I know well that there are some things higher, sublimer than money! Ah, yes; there are some things sweeter, better than gold! Yet I also know that there is not one of those things but is greatly enhanced by the use of money.

"Oh," you will say, "Mr. Conwell, can you, as a Christian teacher, tell the young people to spend their lives making money?"

"Yes, I do. Three times I say—I do, I do, I do. You ought to make money. Money is power. Think how much good you could do if you had money now. Money is power, and it ought to be in the hands of good men. It would be in the hands of good men if we comply with the Scripture teachings, when God promises prosperity to the righteous man That means more than being goody-good; it means the all-round righteous man. You should be a righteous man, and if you were, you would be rich. (Applause.)

I need to guard myself right here. Because one of my theological students came to me once to labour with me, for heresy, inasmuch as I had said that money was power.

He said: "Mr. Conwell, I feel it my duty to tell you the Scriptures say that money 'is the root of all evil.'"

I asked him: "Have you been spending your time making a new Bible, when you should have been studying theology."

He said: "that is in the old Bible."

"I said: "I would like to have you find it for me. I have never seen it."

He triumphantly brought a Bible, and with all the bigoted pride of a narrow sectarian, who founds his creed or some misinterpretation of Scripture, threw it down before me and said: "There it is! You can read it for yourself!"

I said to him: "Young man, you will learn, before you get much older that you can't trust another denomination to read the Bible for you. Please read it yourself, and remember that 'emphasis is exegesis'."

So he read: "The love of money is the root of all evil."

Indeed it is. The love of money is the root of all evil. The love of the money, rather than the love of the good it secures, is a dangerous evil in the community. The desire to get hold of money, and to hold on to it, "hugging the dollar until the eagle squeals," is the root of all evil. But it is a grand ambition for men to have the desire to gain money, that they may use it for the benefit of their fellow men. (Applause).

Young man! You may never have the opportunity to charge at the head of your nation's troops, on some Santiago's heights; young woman, you may never be called on to go out in the seas, like Grace Darling, to save suffering humanity. But every one of you can earn money honestly, and with that money you can fight the battles of peace; and the victories of peace are always grander than those of war!

I say then to you, that you ought to be rich.

"Well," you say, "I would like to be rich, but I have never had an opportunity. I have never had any diamonds about me"!

My friends, you did have an opportunity, and let us see where your mistake was.

What business have you been in? "Oh," some man or woman will say "I keep a store upon one of those side streets, and I am so far from the great commercial centre that I cannot make any money."

"Are you poor? How long have you kept that store"?

"Twenty years".

"Twenty years, and not worth five hundred thousand dollars now? There is something the matter with you. Nothing the matter with the side street. It is with you."

"Oh now," you will say, "any person knows that you must be in the centre of trade if you are going to make money."

The man of common sense will not admit that that is necessarily true at all. If you are keeping that store and you are not making money, it would have been better for the community if they had kicked you out of that store, nineteen years ago.

No man has a right to go into business and lose money, because it is a curse to the rest of the community. No man has a moral right to transact business unless the man he deals with has an opportunity to make something. Unless he lives and lets live, he is not an honest man in business. There are no exceptions to this great rule. (Applause).

You ought to have been rich. You have no right to keep a store for twenty years and still be poor. You will say to me:

"Now, Mr. Conwell, I know the mercantile business better than you do."

My friend, let us consider it for a minute.

When I was young, my father kept a country store, and once in a while he left us in charge of that store. Fortunately, for him, it was not often. (Laughter). When I had it in my charge a man came in the store and said:

"Do you keep jack-knives?"

"No, we don't keep jack-knives." I went off and whistled a tune, and what did I care for that man? Then another man would come in and say:

"Do you keep jack-knives?"

"No, we don't keep jack-knives."

Then I went off and whistled another tune, and what did I care for that man?"

Then another man would come in the same door and say: "Do you keep jack-knives?"

"No, we don't keep jack-knives. Do you suppose we are keeping this store just for the purpose of supplying the whole neighbourhood with jack-knives?"

Do you carry on your business like that? Do you ask what was the difficulty with it? The difficulty was that I had not then learned that the foundation principles of business success, and the foundation principles of Christianity itself, are both the same. It is the whole of every man's life to be doing for his fellow men, and he who can do the most to help his fellow men, is entitled to the greatest reward himself. Not only so, saith God's Holy Book, but also saith every man's business common sense. If I had been carrying on my father's store on a Christian plan, or on a plan that leads to success, I would have had a jack-knife for the third man when he called for it."

"But," you say, "I don't carry on my store like that." If you have not made any money, you are carrying on your business like that, and I can tell you what you will say to me to-morrow morning when I go into your store.

I come to you and inquire: "Do you know neighbour A.?"

"Oh, yes; he lives up in the next block. He trades here at my little store."

"Well, where did he come from when he came to——?"

"I don't know."

"Does he own his own house?"

"I don't know."

"What business is he in?"

"I don't know."

"Do his children go to school?"

"I don't know?"

"What ticket does he vote?"

"I don't know?"

"What church does he go to?"

"I don't know, and I don't care."

Do you answer me like that to-morrow morning, in your store? Then you are carrying on your business just as I carried on my fathers business in Washington, Massachusetts.

You don't know where your neighbour came from and you don't care. You don't care whether he has a happy home or not. You don't know what church he goes to, and you don't care? If you had cared, you would have been a rich man now.

You never thought it was any part of your duty to help him make money. So you cannot succeed! It is against every law of business and every rule of political economy, and I would give five dollars myself, to see your failure in the "Ledger" to-morrow morning. What right have you to be in business, taking no interest in your fellow men, and not endeavouring to supply them with what they need? You cannot succeed.

That merchant, who, in the City of Boston, made his fifteen millions of dollars, began his enterprise out in the suburbs, where there were not a dozen houses on the street, although there were other stores scattered about. He became such a necessity to the neighbourhood, that when he wished to move into the city to start a wholesale house, they came to him with a great petition, signed by all the people, begging that he would not close that store, but keep it open for the benefit of that community. He had always looked after their interests. He had always carefully studied what they wanted, and advised them rightly. He was a necessity; and they must make him wealthy; for in proportion as you are of use to your fellow men in that proportion can they afford to pay you.

Is This Your Boy

Who At Tender Age Must Face the Hard, Cold World Without Preparation or Protection.

No. You could not think of such a thing. And yet, would you neglect your health as you do if you waited to think of your family and how they would get along without you.

You have not the old-time vigour and energy. You go home tired and worn out, feel cross and irritable, lack the old-time smile and good cheer which brought sunshine into your home at your arrival.

You don't sleep well, the brain is not so clear and active, little things annoy and worry you. In short, the nervous system is exhausted. You know this, but do not want to consult a doctor, and scarcely know what to do.

Use Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. It cannot fail to do you good, for it is made up of the elements of which your run-down system is most in need. Through the medium of the blood it sends new energy and vigour to every organ of the human body.

You can feel yourself getting stronger every day. You can prove it by noting your increase in weight. You will sleep better, appetite and digestion will improve, and you will feel again the courage and energy which can only exist side by side with good health and steady nerves.

You can put a stop to the wasting process to-day by beginning this treatment. You need not let delay bring you a day nearer to nervous collapse.

This treatment is not a stimulant to whip up tired nerves and brain. It cures in nature's way by filling the system with rich red blood. It will not cure in a day, but its benefits are natural and lasting. With persistence on your part it will work wonders.

Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Food, 50 cents a box, 6 boxes for $2.50, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto. Portrait and signature of A. W. Chase, M.D., the famous Receipt Book Author, on every box.

ANOTHER CITY FOR SASKATCHEWAN

Weyburn, the most progressive town in Southern Saskatchewan, with its ideal location both for a railway centre, and distributing point, gives every promise of developing into a city at an early date. The surrounding district has proven to be the finest wheat growing country in the west. Last year nearly a million and a half bushels of wheat were marketed in the seven local elevators.

The flax and oats crop are being very abundant, and a crop failure has never been experienced in that section of Saskatchewan.

The water supply is practically inexhaustible in Weyburn, and coal for manufacturing purposes can be procured here more cheaply than at any of the other large centres in Saskatchewan. The wholesale houses realize that Weyburn will be a city, and distributing point, and are preparing for same by erecting extensive warehouses.

The town enjoys the distinction of being the only town in the Canadian West to possess its own chartered bank. It is named the Weyburn Security Bank, and has nine branches operating in neighbouring towns. The Canadian Bank of Commerce, the Bank of Montreal, and the Union Bank of Canada, have also opened up very fine offices there.

Weyburn has a splendid system of waterworks and sewerage. Also owns its electric lighting system.

McKinnon & Company are erecting a departmental store, which will cost nearly a quarter of a million dollars. Three of the hotels, which are a credit to the town, are always filled to their capacity. It is almost impossible to secure accommodation, unless reservations are made ahead.

New business blocks under construction include the head office for the Weyburn Security Company, which will be the finest in the Province. It will be three storeys high, with a handsome, white terra-cotta front, and will cost $80,000. Many residences costing from $5,000 to $8,000 are nearing completion, and in every part of the town new cottages and houses, costing from $1,000 to $5,000 are under construction. A large warehouse for the Massey-Harris Company, and also a splendid restaurant building have been completed. Operations have been commenced on a large warehouse for the International Harvester Company.

No better criterion of the town's growth and prosperity could be desired than that of the building and local improvement expenditure this season. It is conservatively estimated that this total will not be less than $475,000.

Weyburn being one of the most important C.P.R. divisional points in Saskatchewan, profited by an expenditure of $75,000 this summer, with promise of greater things in the near future, when the important line to Lethbridge is completed.

Treasury Depleted.

Windsor, Ont., 5.—Veiled charges regarding the handling of funds by members of the North Essex Conservative Association, were made, at the annual meeting of the association in Windsor, Saturday afternoon, and will be investigated by a special committee, which is to report to the executive of the organization.

"I believe I ought to have more money than I have," said John Fry, treasurer of the association, in reporting a balance of $56. "People tell me they have money belonging to the association, but I cannot pay the bills that come in as long as they hang on to it."

WAS TERRIBLY AFFLICTED WITH LAME BACK.

COULD NOT SWEEP FLOOR.

Three Boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills Cured Her.

It is hard to do housework with a weak and aching back.

But they can't help it. If more work is put on them than they can stand it is not to be wondered they get out of order.

Work back is simply a warning from the kidneys and should be attended to immediately so as to avoid years of suffering from kidney trouble.

Mrs. N. Lachance, Smith's Falls, Ont., writes:—"I take pleasure in writing you, stating that myself I was troubled by using Doan's Kidney Pills. About a year ago I was terribly afflicted with lame back and was so bad I could not even stoop my own floor. I was advised to try Doan's Kidney Pills, which I did, and after the second bottle I only used three bottles and I am as well as ever. I highly recommend these pills to any sufferer from lame back or kidney trouble."

Price 50 cents per box, or 3 for $1.25, at all dealers or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

Be sure you ask specially "Doan's."

To Re-enter Politics.

Montreal, Dec. 5.—A special from St. Johns, Que., says that the report that Hon. Justice Dominique Monet will re-enter politics is the topic of the day. Mr. Monet, who is an ex-M.P. for Napierville County, and afterwards a member of the Quebec Legislature and Minister of the Parent Cabinet, prothonotary of Montreal, and for the last three years a justice of the Superior Court here, has been asked to run as the Liberal candidate in the provincial bye-elections, necessitated by the death of Gabriel Marchand. If he accepts, he will surely be chosen at the Liberal convention of St. John County, which will be held in a few days. Judge Monet was formerly a follower of Bourassa at Ottawa.

Rev. William Kloepfer Dead.

Guelph, Dec. 5.—The death occurred Saturday afternoon, in St. Joseph's Hospital, of Rev. William Kloepfer, head of the Society of the Heavenly Monists of North America, and president of St. Jerome's College, Berlin. He had been ill for three months with heart trouble.

Deceased was 60 years of age and was born at Little Germany, 16 miles from Guelph. He was educated in Rome, but his life work centered around Berlin, Ont. He leaves several brothers, including Christopher Kloepfer, ex-M.P.

Upper Berth Cut Will Follow.

Montreal, Dec. 5.—It is announced in railway circles that there is every possibility of sleeping berth rates being reduced in Canada to the level just announced by the Pullman Co. in the United States. In future the minimum rates on the other side of the border will be $1.50 instead of $1.00 for upper berths and that in all instances other than this the upper berths will cost 50 per cent. of the lower. In the case of lower berths being $2, therefore, the charge for the upper berth will be about $1.00.

Salesmen Would Tax Drummers.

Kingston, Jamaica, Dec. 5.—A proposal has been submitted to the Government to tax commercial travelers.

THE EVENING CHIT-CHAT

By Ruth Cameron

I HEARD another chapter of a life story, which I have been reading serially for several years, yesterday, and it gave me so much food for thought that I want to tell it to you.

I'm going to call the heroine—no, won't call her the heroine, the subject—of the tale, Griselda, because, by rights that ought to be her name. Griselda has an utterly worthless husband. She also has three small children. The two usually go together, as you may have noticed.

I will relate to you a few of the things which Griselda's husband has done to earn his title.

In the first place he has a trade at which he can get plenty of work and can earn four dollars a day, but he hasn't worked more than three or four months any year of their marriage.

They had not been married a month before he got hold of Griselda's savings and spent them. The bank described these savings as $200. A more accurate description would have been—so many thousand hours spent over an ironing machine, so many thousand shirt-waists and shirts, so many tens of thousand of collars and cuffs ironed for Griselda was a hardworking laundry girl before he persuaded her to be the presiding genius of his home.

When this money was gone, pretending to be about to go into business and settle down, he borrowed four hundred dollars of Griselda's sister and mother. That has never been paid back.

Twice he has left Griselda for several months at a time. On one of these occasions, he was absent when her first baby was born.

Several times he has beaten Griselda when he was drunk. I have seen her arms black and blue.

Once, he threw a plate at his little boy and cut his cheek so that several stitches had to be taken.

Through all this, Griselda has been absolutely faithful, devoted and forgiving. Once only did she falter and that was when he threw the plate at the boy. Then she allowed the society with the long name to enter a complaint against him, but when the case came up, she refused to appear.

Maybe you don't see a great deal of food for thought in this story.

Granted, but the food for thought came from a comment which I heard made on the story.

After a six months' absence during which, freed from the drain of his presence, Griselda had successfully supported the children and was on her feet again, he reappeared.

One of the charity workers who had helped her from time to time, tried to persuade her not to take the man back. But Griselda was obdurate. He is back again. The home is again a home of disorder and turmoil—no home at all. The children again creep around in fear. Her earnings are again spent in drink, while she and the children are half fed.

And this is what the commentator said when he heard that Griselda had taken her husband back.

"What a beautiful and wonderful thing is woman's love."

Do you call the feeling that made Griselda sacrifice four lives to one, wonderful and beautiful?

I don't. I call it ugly and disgraceful — a mania and an obsession rather than an affection.

Is it because I'm hard and unfeeling that I can't understand?

That's what I'm wondering about. That's my food for thought.

Ruth Cameron

THE FARMERS' INSTITUTE MEETINGS AT LAKEFIELD

Balance of Report of the Two Interesting Meetings Held on Thursday, Which Were a Great Success---Profitable and Interesting Addresses.

He advised the farmers, especially the young men, to take in the special courses being offered in the near future for the study of the breeding of stock, especially the course in Guelph He also commended the practice which is being widely spread now of organizing Farmers' Clubs. It will not only help the farmer by the lectures given by capable speakers, but also it arouses some lively arguments. One of their discussions will be how to attract buyers, and what breeds to specialize in to enable them to make profitable sales. These and other organizations are a great help to the young farmers. In Norwood they intend having a very important meeting of the Farmers' Clubs. Many other places are asking for Farmers' Clubs, and they are anxious to hold a general conference in order to discuss how to further agriculture. Within three years he was of the opinion that there would be trucks going around, gathering the eggs from the sellers and delivering them in Peterborough as a much sounder condition and greatly cheaper than if they were sent by express. Remarks along similar lines concluded Mr. Duff's address at the afternoon session.

Bright Entertainment.

In connection with the Farmers' Institute the Women's Institute of West Peterborough held a very useful meeting in the afternoon in the Foresters' Hall, Lakefield, where supper was also served. Mrs. (Dr.) McAlpine delivered a very interesting address, somewhat similar to her address in Ennismore on Wednesday evening.

The evening session of the Farmers' Institute was held jointly with the Women's Institute, and was one of extreme interest, being enhanced in pleasure by several musical numbers. A larger audience than in the afternoon was present, the ladies especially turning out well. The addresses given by the delegates and the entertainment provided were much enjoyed.

The programme was opened by an instrumental piano duet by Miss Alice Hunter and Miss Murdock, which was well received.

The chairman, Mr F. A. Tanner, Reeve of Lakefield, in a neat speech, explained the nature of the Farmers' Institute meetings.

"There is no province that occupies a more important place in agricultural work" said he, "than does Ontario" There are 175,000 people in the province engaged in tilling the soil. The farmer is a creator of wealth and brings the wealth up from the ground, and it is this that is making the province go ahead by leaps and bounds."

A cornet solo by Mr. Riddell was then given and received hearty applause.

Farm Poultry.

Mr. H. C. Duff district representative at Norwood, was the next speaker. The subject of "Farm Poultry" was discussed by him. In this country we are coming to the conclusion that there is a good deal of money made in poultry. Regarding the value of egg circles in this country if you had seen the improvement in quality recently you would come to the conclusion that the change was remarkable. The Windsor Hotel, Montreal, which uses most of the eggs sent from there now used just about twice as many as formerly and this certain lyspeaks well for this district. It would pay us said Mr. Duff if we could stick to one breed of hens, the barred Rock, for instance, being hard to beat and is worthy of being raised exclusively.

One particular breed, and stick to it—never mix up the breed. Many are when houses are being built these days and the farmers are taking pride in them. However one drawback he noticed was their expensiveness. The kind we want are houses that can be cheaply built with plenty of fresh air and no draughts.

Feeding chickens is another important point. In concluding Mr. Duff said that the people of the whole provice were looking to Peterborough as one of the greatest egg-producing communities in the province.

A vocal solo "Sugar Moon," by Miss Webster was the next number, and was a popular one with the audience.

An address by Mr. Groh then followed on "Canadian Boys and Girls." He stated that he was scarcely capable of speaking on such a subject.

Before proceeding with his address he made a few additional remarks about Mr. Duff's subject.

Two classes of boys always exist. One class is always hunting for a job, the other class is being hunted. Men of character and stability are being hunted. Every one in this life should have something to do and find out what he is really suited for. Do what you have to do well and others will hunt you. Never look for anything sofe, but work hard at what you are at. The whole thing is to find out what you are fitted for and then do it. Do the things as they come to you. Everybody is good for something. We too often get dissatisfied with our lot in life.

Another thing worth notice is that you are being constantly under surveillance, always being measured up when you are not expecting. You cannot do anything you like when boys and girls and then later on when you are grown up forget all about it and think that everybodys else forgets it. One important thing is education. Some of those who go to college often come out with big heads and false notions. In person once settles down to seek and search after something definite, then aid is worthy to that person. Early in life he should have some ambitions.

"Get them to realize they are here for a purpose and not for a snap."

"If you want to be a millionaire be a farmer," said Mr. Groh.

There is more real good coming to the farmer than ever came to a millionaire. The country boy gets character, life and vigour. Everything that is good has originated on the farm, and the boys and girls who have amounted to anything came from the farm. About 80 per cent. of successful men and women came off the farms. Then who are doing the things in life came from the farm. You may have all the freedom of life on the farm. If the warms won't grow good boys, the assuredly the city never will."

In concluding his address Mr. Groh urged the people to go ahead, assert their opinions, and have the courage of their convictions. The farmers' greatest drawback is that they have got developed their speaking abilities. They can talk well in the blacksmith shop, but out on the platform. If the farmer is going to get his stand he must learn to speak and develop himself. If the boys and girls will learn to do this, then one of the greatest problems of youth is solved.

After this address a recitation, in costume, was given by the Misses Vincent, and evoked loud applause.

Perfect Womanhood.

Dr. McAlpine was next introduced. When speaking to a mixed audience she wondered why such a subject as "Perfect Womanhood" had been assigned to her. While much of a serious nature had been expounded on question, still it was as keen as ever. There are fundamental differences between men and women which give different spheres to their lives. Women know how to endure pain, for men are notoriously susceptible to pain. However, there are other different characteristics, two of which are physically and morally. Men are better at logic, they reason things out in a cold, clear-cut manner. Women often obtain their conclusions by intuition, which often enables them to grasp options without the long process of reasoning. Women's gift of intuition is oftentimes wonderful. While solid reasonin gis not despised, she was pleading for the combined power of intuition and reasoning, as each mutually assists the other.

This power held by women enables them to know instantly what is right in social affairs. That is why women will always lead in the social world. Women also are more emotional; they have the heart side much more prominently developed than have men. The womanly traits of sympathy, love and tenderness which express the feelings so strongly that constitute the women, must be fostered.

Often women have to go out and fight the world, and it is these womanly traits that make her such a power, and which they always assert for the good of the world generally.

Woman has a tremendous work to do in the world. It is a woman's duty to strive for a strong physique to enable her to cope properly with the hardships of the world.

In the old days there was a terrible prejudice against woman having any brains, or at least asserting them. Jane Auster had to hide her identity as an author on this ground, and her real name was not known as the author of her books util after her death.

The best educated women in the country should be the mothers. A perfect woman, if she wishes to be perfect, must have a certain degree of mental development. A strong personality must be developed also, if she would be complete. Women should keep alive other qualities also. It has been said that men do not understand women, and perhaps it is just as well, because we always love the mysterious. Idealism is another strong trait of womankind. It would be the greatest calamity if it would disappear from our women.

Some women we find, however, who live in a world of idealism. The ideal woman would be the one who would be the happy medium between those two mighty characteristics.

Dr. McAlpine's address was of an excellent character, and was delivered in a scholarly manner.

A duet by the Misses Burgess proved to be very acceptable, and was heartily applauded. It was entitled "Fifty Years Ago."

Mr. Cowan, editor of "Farm and Dairy," was the concluding speaker. He received a liberal welcome. "There is a great element of truth" said he "in the saying that many farmers might become millionaires. There must be some great reason why farmers quite frequently migrate to the city. Whatever the reason is, I think you will agree that after spending a lifetime on the farm they do not make more money out of it."

The remainder of Mr. Cowan's address was practically the same as his address on Wednesday evening, and brought out startling facts in connection with the monopolization of the wealth of the land by the wealthy men.

His address was startling and instructive.

Miss Jose, owing to illness, was unable to take part in the programme.

Mr. E. M. Elliott, county treasurer of Peterborough, made a very acceptable short address and was heartily welcomed back on the platform of the Farmers' Institute. He wished to state his appreciation of the enjoyment he derived from the evening and intimated that his heart was always open to Institute work. He corroborated many of the statements made by the previous speakers, and bestowed his best wishes on the movement of the Farmers' Institute.

Misses Baptie and Moore in a very charming vocal duet delighted the audience, an dthe season was closed by the hearty singing of "God Save the King."

Everybody was unanimous in the opinion that it had been one of the most successful in its history.

Mr. E. M. Elliott moved a vote of thanks, which was heartily endorsed.

"WHY BE SO THIN?"

Thinness is Embarrassing, Unhealthy and Not Natural — Formula Now Used Which Adds From One to Three Pounds a Week.

Every one ought to have some extra flesh, on the bony structure of the body, both for the sake of health and self-esteem.

Most thin people are sensitive to the harsh, unfeeling criticisms which are constantly being hurled at them by the more fortunate well-figured persons.

Every one pities a thin, bony horse, but horses don't know it—while thin people are both pitied and ridiculed, it ought not to be so, but it is.

A well rounded figure, be it man or woman, excites admiration; not only the figure but for the bright eyes, pink cheeks, red lips and vigorous carriage which accompany a well-nourished body.

This prescription aids nature; helps absorption, digestion and assimilation; helps distribute the blood and nerve elements which make sound flesh. Get the ingredients and make it at home, and see how very fast you gain in weight.

In a half pint bottle, obtain three ounces of essence of pepsin, three ounces syrup of rhubarb. Then add one ounce compound essence cardiol, shake and let stand two hours; then add one ounce tincture cadomene co-mound. (not cardamom). Shake well and take a teaspoonful before meals and one after meals. Also drink plenty of water between meals and when retiring. Weigh yourself before beginning.

Young Girl Drops Dead At The Breakfast Table Sudden Death Of Visitor

Miss Emma Flaherty of Brantford, who has been visiting her sister, Mrs. W. J. Andrews, 871 George street for the last five months, was stricken suddenly with heart failure while at breakfast at 10 o'clock yesterday morning, and died almost immediately. She had been in the best of health, but nothing serious was anticipated. She seemed as well as usual yesterday morning and sat down to breakfast with the rest of the family. In the course of the meal, however, she suddenly collapsed at the table and death was practically instantaneous. It is the second bereavement her family has sustained recently, a brother dying suddenly about six weeks ago, and his unexpected death was a terrible blow to his relatives.

The late Miss Flaherty is survived by four brothers and three sisters, all with the exception of Mrs. Andrews, residing in Brantford.

The remains will be taken to Brantford for interment.

DANGER OF GIVING TOO MANY CHRISTMAS GIFTS

Is Commented on by Rev. Canon Davidson at St. John's Church Last Night — Is a Religious Festival.

IN MEMORY OF CHRIST CHILD

"There is a danger of Christmas being made a season of exhaustion and worry, which might come to be even dreaded by some through an unreasonable multiplication of Christmas gifts," remarked Rev. Canon Davidson, preaching in St. John's church last night on "Divine and Humane Giving."

"These gifts should not be given "of necessity," or for conventional or society reasons," he continued. "Christmas is a religious festival, and the appropriate gifts are those to the children or to the poor, or to those separated from us by distance or otherwise, in memory of the Christ Child. Gifts to others are present additions that should not be overdone or made a burden."

Evangelist Whiteside Gives Farewell Addresses Meetings Are Continued

Evangelist Whiteside gave his farewell address last evening at the Mark Street church, closing a very successful evangelistic campaign of four weeks' duration in the city, the first two weeks having been spent at the St. James' Methodist church.

At both these churches the special work done has resulted in an exceedingly gratifying harvest of souls.

Yesterday will not soon be forgotten by the people of Mark street, as one of spiritual uplift and blessing; and when, last evening, nearly a score of adult people pledged themselves to live a Christian life, in addition to the large number already enlisted during the services. The pastor, by the concurrence of the congregation decided to continue the meetings at least until Wednesday night.

There will be special singing each night, and it is hoped there will be a well-sustained interest to the end.

"Call Of The Wild" Scored Big Success In Montreal

"Call of the Wild," the big dramatic production which scored such a big success for Franklin Woodruff in Montreal, will be presented here at the Grand Opera House to-morrow evening, Dec. 6th, with the same cast and production.

The presentation of the play has been awaited with a great deal of interest by Peterborough theatregoers, and should tax the house to capacity, as Mr. Woodruff has a reputation as being a talented actor.

The production comes with the glitter and eclat of its Montreal and New York engagements.

Those who witness the play will find in its scenes that which is to be remembered for many days.

The play is staged and produced with the utmost care and the same care is given to it on its road tour by the management as was given it during its long stay in the Metropole.

In the part of "John Ermine," Mr. Woodruff surpasses any of his past parts.

Third of a Special Series of Sermons Delivered Last Evening—Denounced Statement That "A Man Can't Be Honest and be in Business."

ETHICS OF WEALTH

Rev. W. C. Riddiford preached the third sermon in the series on "Some Ethical Questions," to a large congregation last night at the Park street Baptist church. His subject last evening was "The Ethics of Business."

"If Jesus Christ was a business man in Peterborough, upon what principles would He conduct his business?" he asked. "What kind of a business would He conduct? Would He wed His business to religion for convenience at eleven o'clock Sunday morning in church, and divorce it for His business when He went to the office or store Monday morning?" To be honest with himself, every business man should seek an answer to these questions.

What relation does Christ hold to my business?

What relationship does my business bear to religion?

What is the influence of my business upon the lives of my fellowmen?

"Now, I suppose," said the speaker, "it would be best to define the word business, before we enter too far into our discussion. According to Crabb, an English authority, "business is that which occupies man's thoughts and powers in some definite and right direction. Now that may not be absolutely correct. No definition is. All have their imitation, since they all crouch in finite thought and expression. But I accept Crabb's definition, for want of a better one. Thoughts, powers, engaged in a definite and right direction. I wish to refer to four outstanding facts, contained in the two texts I have chosen, Luke, 2: 49. "Wist ye not, that I must be about my Father's business."

In these words, Christ assumes that religion and business could and can be worked together. Now, some business men tell us that it cannot be done. They tell us that no man can be a success-ful business man and be honest. I admit that, if there is one class of men above another who need all the grace of God they can get, to keep them sweet, and honest, it is the average business man. But I will not admit, that a business man cannot be honest. He can if he wills to.

The Laymen's Missionary Movement gives the lie to such a statement. In that splendid association of business men, bound together by the golden chain of God's redeeming love, can be found representatives of all business life, except the barroom business. I wonder why? Let Christian Canada answer at the polls in January next. Yes, religion and honest business will blend. You will admit, I think, that religion in business is the same as religion out of business. When God says, 'The soul that sinneth it shall die', He did not add, 'Except it be in business,' When God says, 'Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and thy neighbour as thyself,' He does not say, 'Except you are in business.' When a man approaching the question of personal religion feels as most do, that he must begin business differently, his feeling is perfectly correct. There are not two standards of morals, one for private life and Sundays, and another for business life and week days. Christianity has but one code of morals, for all men, "Whatsoever ye would that men should do unto you, do ye also unto them." You justly despise the man who lives beneath that. Give Christ the supremacy in your business life.

In the next place, I submit that if a man's religion does not keep him honest, it is worthless. This does not mean if a man's religion does not keep him as honest as other men are in the same business, nor if a man's religion does not keep him honest, when dishonesty is likely to be found out. It carries the question back to forming a man's conscience, and the laws of God. If a man's religion does not hold him to that, and that only which is right in God's sight, and which needs no justifying, his religion is so far worthless. He may be a decent man. He may be a successful man, as the world counts success, but a religious man, a Christian man, no. The man who refuses Christ, the supremacy in his business-life, cannot, and is not a Christian man. Christianity is not a philosophy of life, but life itself.

Again, I suggest that there is no honest occupation in which an honest man is required to be dishonest. Dishonesty has come to be looked upon as a necessary evil in business life, in some quarters. But it is not. Honesty is still the best policy. Yea, it is more than that; it is the right thing. I speak of honest men, not of those who would like to be honest, but are not. A man can be honest in business life if he wills to be. Alexander Pope is right in his essay on man, when he says:

"A unit's a feather and a chief a rod,
An honest man's the noblest work of God."

The advice that Bobby Burns says his father gave him, is well worth following in business. Bobby says:

"He bade me choose the better part,
Tho' I had ne'er a farthing,
For without a noble, honest heart,
No man is worth regarding."

Progress in business life does not depend upon dishonesty. The motto of the worldly business man is, "Do everybody you can, before everybody does you." But the business motto of the Christian man, the motto that should hang in letters of gold over the entrance of every business place, every factory, should be, "Whatsoever ye would do that men should do unto you, do ye also unto them." If you would like to work for starvation wages, then pay your men such. If you would like to work eighteen hours out of the twenty-four, then work your men that way. It is time that the captains of industry and business men in general learnt, that a man is worth what he is, not what he has.

While there is so much time and money being wasted, ves, worse than wasted, upon a needless navy, why cannot the government consider some measures, that will help employer and employee to come closer together, upon the questions of hours of work, standard of wages, and such things. Let us have earlier closing hours in our stores. No successful business was ever found to be buttressed by dishonesty, only the barroom business.

The dishonest business of the barroom, the pool rooms, the gambling dens, are all marching to their doom. The black-cap of condemnation is already two-thirds over the heads of these monsters, and public opinion will soon complete their execution. Victor Hugo, that great lover of right and humanity says, "Napoleon failed at Waterloo, not because of the rain the previous night, not because of "Blucher's delay, but because he embarrassed God." So business men fail when they think they can insure success by business methods that embarrass God.

Lastly, I wish to say that any business that requires a man to be dishonest, should be turned down. A man should shun a nefarious business as he would shun a rattle snake. Give Christ the supremacy in your business. Let the emphatic wish of God dominate your life, when the devil tempts you to dishonest practice. Loo kup and say, "Wist ye not that I must, I must be about my Father's business." Do business for God. Be not slothful in business, fervent in spirit serving the Lord.

Next Sunday, evening Rev. Mr. Riddiford will speak on the "Ethics of Wealth."

RESULT OF FIRST DAY'S POLLING IN ENGLAND

Unionists Gained Four Seats on Saturday but Both Sides Express Themselves as Being Pleased With the Outcome.

THE CANADIANS WIN

London, Dec. 5.—Although the polltings in the general election Saturday indicate that the next Parliament will be similar in complexion to that of the dissolved House, and both sides late last night professed to be pleased with the result of the first day's contests, a careful analysis of the figures in the political clubs appeared to give greatest satisfaction to the Liberals who declare themselves more than contented. They point out the fact that every Unionist majority in Birmingham was reduced, and that the Liberals improved their position in Wolverhampton and other Midland districts devoted to manufacturing interests, and under Chamberlain influence.

London again proved disappointing to the Unionists, and encouraging to the Liberals, who had not expected to regain Peckham. The London boroughs, like Birmingham, also show increased majorities for the Liberals, who believe their successors in Manchester and London will greatly influence the coming contests.

On the other hand, the Unionists are able to point to significant victories, while they improved their position in a larger number of constituencies than did the Liberals.

The struggle between the Redmond and the O'Brienites will be bitter. The Conservatives in Ireland will, wherever possible, concentrate their attack on the Redmondite candidates, by voting for the O'Brienites.

The return of H. St. Maur, the Liberal candidate in Exeter, over H. E. Duke, Unionist, which was announced late Saturday night, was an unexpected Liberal gain, Duke having captured the seat in the January elections by 26 votes. The polling Saturday gave St. Maur 4,876 and Duke 4,673.

Polling takes place to-day in 67 constituencies, returning 70 members. These constituencies were represented in the old Parliament by 35 Unionists, 33 Liberals, 6 Laborites, and one Nationalist. Of these seventeen are London boroughs, and both sides are making a keen fight in St. Pancras, and the Islington division.

Including those unopposed, 125 members had been elected to the new Parliament at the close of Saturday's polling. The standing of the parties is as follows: Government coalition, Liberals 51, Labor 7, Irish Nationalists 6. Total 63. Opposition, Unionists 62.

The Unionists gained seven seats, six from the Liberals — Salford (South), Ashton-under-Lyme, Warrington, Darlington, King's Lynn and Grimsby, and one from the Laborites, Wigan. Liberals won four seats from the Unionists—Manchester (Southwest), Rochester, the Peckham division of Camberwell, and Exeter. So the net gain of the Unionists is four seats.

The results are not quite up to the expectations of the Unionists, but, even at that, if the current continues to run in their favor as it has started, the Government will be placed in a very awkward position, and in all probability would resign. Neither party received the lead from London and Manchester that it desired, although on the whole the Government came off the better, as it succeeded in holding the northwest division of Manchester against A. Bonar Law, one of the chief exponents of tariff reform, who was greatly assisted in his campaign by Mr. Balfour's pledge to submit the question of protection to a referendum.

New Electric Line.

Welland, Dec. 5.—Final steps towards the construction of a million dollar electric railway between Niagara Falls, Welland and Dunnville, are now being taken.

The officers and directors of the road, the Niagara Falls, Dunnville and Welland Electric Railway, at a meeting in Welland decided to go ahead with the construction. A provincial charter has been secured, and franchises from towns and cities and townships through which the road will pass will now be asked for.

The head office of the company, its car barns and machine shop and a large station will be erected at Welland, at a cost of $12,000. A $30,000 station and restaurant will be erected at Niagara Falls. A station at Dunnville will be erected at a cost of $5,000.

It is proposed to extend the line to Port Dover later on.

Chinese Raid.

Ottawa, Dec. 5.—Two Chinese opium and gambling dens were raided by the police here yesterday and twenty-one Chinamen arrested. A considerable quantity of opium was seized.

TEN NEW VESSELS FOR CANADIAN NAVY

Four Cruisers and Six Destroyers are to be Built---Government to Proceed at Once With Programme as Arranged ---Either One of Two Companies Will Build Yards in Canada.

Ottawa, Dec. 5.—The Government will, in a few days, call for tenders for four cruisers of the Bristol type, and six destroyers of the improved river class, in accordance with the naval construction program decided upon last session. Plans and specifications for the new warships have been drafted in harmony with the suggestions of the Admiralty. The vessels will have all the latest improvement in armament, engine power, speed, and general equipment. Three years' time will be given for the delivery of the first ships. The first of the new cruisers and destroyers will, therefore, be commissioned for service in 1914.

It is expected that two Canadian companies, with a British connection, respectively, with the Vickers' Sons & Maxim, and the Harland may also be tenders received from other British firms. The specifications require building in Canada, and this involves the establishment of the first of branch shipbuilding plants on the Atlantic coast. It is understood that whichever firm gets the contract will be prepared to arrange for construction in Canada. No United States tender will be considered. The total cost of the ten vessels is estimated at between ten and twelve million, but, in view of the requirement regarding construction in Canada, it may be found that tenders will aggregate considerably in excess of this.

A definite announcement as to the steps that have been taken by the Government to carry out he naval construction program, determined on last session, will probably be made shortly in the Commons.

AMERICA WOULD HELP ENGLAND IN THE EVENT OF HER BEING IN DANGER

London, Dec. 5.—Sir Thomas Vesey Strong, the Lord Mayor, and corporation of the City of London on Saturday gave a luncheon at Guildhall to 750 American sailors from the visiting fleet at Gravesend and Weymouth.

The bluejackets arrived by train at Charing Cross, headed by Commander Sims of the Minnesota and the officers of his staff, and accompanied by the band of the Coldstream Guards, which the War Office had ordered out for the occasion, marched through the streets in the west end of the city to the ancient hall, where so many famous guests have been honored.

The dining was followed first by formal toasts to King George and President Taft. Sir Thomas then welcomed the sailors.

Replying, Commander Sims spoke with enthusiasm of the friendly manner in which the men of the fleet had been received in London. This, he said, could not happen in any other country, but was made possible by the strong ties of blood between the two countries. Speaking for himself, he believed that if the time ever came when the British Empire was menaced by an external enemy they might count upon every man, every drop of blood, every ship and every dollar of their kindred across the sea.

Chief Boatswain's Mate E. L. Benson of the battleship Minnesota replied on behalf of the men, expressing thanks for the entertainment in a neat speech, which was frequently interrupted by the guests with spontaneous cheers for the Lord Mayor and the City of London.

A vaudeville performance followed, England's foremost artists taking part.

MRS. MARY BAKER EDDY IS NO MORE.

Founder of the Christian Scientist Movement Passes Away at the Age of Ninety Years — Pneumonia Reported Cause.

STORY OF HER LIFE

Boston, Mass., Dec. 5.—Mrs. Mary Baker Glover Eddy, the founder of Christian Science, is dead. Announcement of the passing of the aged leader, which occurred late Saturday night at her home at Chestnut Hill, a suburb, was made at the morning services of the mother church in this city yesterday.

"Natural causes," explains the death, according to George L. West, a district medical examiner, who was summoned a few hours after Mrs. Eddy passed away. Later Dr. West added to his statement by saying that the more immediate cause was probably pneumonia.

The news of Mrs. Eddy's death was made known simultaneously by Judge Clifford P. Smith, first reader of the mother church, at the close of the morning service, and by Alfred Farlow of the Christian Science publication committee, in a statement to the press. According to Mr. Farlow, Mrs. Eddy passed away at a quarter before eleven o'clock Saturday night.

"She has been indisposed for about nine days," said Mr. Farlow's statement, "but had been up and dressed, and as late as Thursday transacted some business with one of the officials of the Christian Science Church. She took her daily afternoon drive until two days before her going. Saturday night she fell quietly asleep and those around her could at first hardly realize that she had gone. Her thought was clear until the last and she left no final messages.

"No physician was in attendance, but she had the assistance of the students who comprised her household. With her at the time of her departure were Calvin A. Frye, Mrs. L. E. Sargeant, Mrs. Ella S. Rathvon, Rev. Irving S. Tomlinson, her corresponding secretary; William B. Rathvon, and her secretary, Adam H. Dickey.

"No arrangements regarding the time or the place of her burial have yet been decided upon. It is well known to her household that she believed in simplicity on such occasions, and in compliance with this knowledge it is expected that the service will be private and of a simple nature.

consisting probably of prayer and reading from the Bible, with some brief selections from the Christian Science text book. Only her relatives, her household and the officials of the church are expected to be in attendance.

"A telegram was sent to her son, George W. Glover of London, S.W., England, [illegible] to be in his mother's home on the 16th of July, 1911, and was therefore to that effect.

"Mrs. Eddy was born [illegible] July 16, 1821, and was therefore in her 90th year."

Mrs. Eddy was one of the congregation at the morning service at the mother church yesterday who knew that the life of the leader and teacher had ended. The service was as usual, and the two readers, Judge Smith and Mrs. Leland T. Powers, presented the sermon of the day, "God, the only cause, and Creator," with voices that were without emotion and had no suggestion of sadness. At the close of the service Judge Smith rose, read a farewell address and announced the leader's death.

Then the greater part of the congregation left their seats in silence. There were no words of sorrow, although many a tear was shed. The great organ pealed its recessional as triumphantly as ever.

Miss Sibyl Wilbur, the latest of Mrs. Eddy's biographers, whose "Life" was approved by the leader herself and the church authorities, says that "no mystery to-day surrounds Mrs. Eddy's life story. Her birth, her ancestry for two hundred years, her education, her social development, her individual service to the world, have been scrutinized with the strong searchlight of both love and criticism."

Other less friendly commentators on Mrs. Eddy's works and life have criticised her with more or less severity, and some have denounced her as an imposter.

Her life was begun in New Hampshire. Her father, Mark Baker, was a respectable farmer of Bow.

Mary, the youngest daughter, was of delicate health from her birth. She is said to have perplexed her father with sage sayings and grave doings.

In the early 40's, George Washington Glover, formerly of Concord, became associated with Samuel Baker, the third son, and as a result Mary Baker and he were married at Christmas time in 1843 at Tilton, N.H. The next few months were passed by the Glovers in the south, where Mrs. Eddy saw slavery in its worst forms, and there the June after her marriage she was left a widow.

Mary Baker Glover spent the next few years with her sister Abigail, and other relatives in New Hampshire, and began literary work with several articles on her observations of slavery in the south. She also taught school.

After nine years of widowhood, Mrs. Eddy married Dr. Daniel Patterson, a New Hampshire dentist. The marriage was not a happy one.

A notable event of Mrs. Eddy's life was her meeting in 1862 with Phineas Quimby, a mesmeric healer, at a hotel in Portland, Me. Quimby was the son of a prior blacksmith.

Mrs. Eddy became imbued with metaphysical ideas and started on a career in that line which made her one of the most famous of the world's mental healers. Later she denounced Quimby's methods.

After spending two years in Portland, Mrs. Patterson rejoined her husband in Lynn, where she lived five years, additional studies of metaphysics. It was in that city that she believed an accident through a fall on the ice which the doctor said was severe, and from which she recovered, she said, in one night. It was this incident that led directly to the promulgation of her discovery of Christian Science.

In 1877, four years after her separation from Mr. Patterson, the founder of the new belief was married to Asa Gilbert Eddy.

Mrs. Eddy established the Massachusetts Metaphysical College in Boston in 1881. Her teachings were taken up and expanded at first by a few followers and as years went on, but a [illegible] and strange manner, until they [illegible] thousands, extended to many lands and numbered millions of [illegible]

"I had dropsy, and was told by my family physician that there was no chance for me. My family also gave me up. I took Dr. Miles' Heart Remedy until I was entirely cured. This was in 1902, and I am now able to do any kind of work on my farm. My cure was certainly marvelous."

Brock Street Rink To Open For The Winter On Saturday

If the cold snap continue sBrock Stret Rink will be flooded on Thursday morning and the hockey men may get a chance to have their first workout before the end of the week. There is a benefit for the employees of the Roller Rink to-morrow night, and unless a thaw sets in Wednesday will wind up the roller skating season as far as the Brock Street Rink is concerned. There is already skating in the Mutual Street Rink in Toronto and the Simcoes, with which club Ken Crane of the West Ends, and Hugh Burritt of the Strathconas, are playing this season, had their first workout Friday night. Season tickets for the ice skating are now on sale ,and it is expected the rink will open for the winter season Saturday night.

The Mission At St. Luke's Was Concluded Yesterday

The Girls' Auxiliary will meet to-night at the Rectory at 8 o'clock.

The usual ser vice on Wednesday at 8 p.m., with an address by the rector on Hymnology. After the service a choir practice will be held, at which the organist, Miss Greenslade, wishes to meet all members.

The Mission Band will meet on Friday at 4.15.

The A.Y.P.A. has been invited by St. John's A.Y.P.A. to be their guests next Monday.

Yesterday a most successful mission held by Rev J. Bennett Anderson, Diocesan Missioner, was brought to a close. The attendance throughout the week was most encouraging, and much help was given to those who attended. Everyday at 12.30 a prayer was said on behalf of the work and the parish.

Large congregations attended both services yesterday. In the afternoon a children's service was held, addressed by Mr. Anderson, at which many parents and adults were present.

At the morning service Mr. Anderson preached on the 51st Psalm, bringing out lessons in particular from the 13th verse, as the basis of success.

In the evening the subject was "Human Destiny."

During the mission Rev. J. B. Anderson has proven himself a man of great spiritual force, possessed of a great eagerness and longing for the saving of souls. His very presence has proven to be a benediction to many. Letters and personal testimonies have been given to the Rector by persons who have benefitted by th Mission. The attendance increased from day to day, and the heartiness of the service, combined with its deeply spiritual tone, added to the solemnity of the great work of deepening the spiritual life and the saving of souls. Mr. Anderson leaves to-night, accompanied by Rev. Langfeldt, for Omemee, where he will enter upon a fortnight's mission.

Doctor Told Her She Did Not Have A Pint Of Good Blood in Her Body.

Mrs. Dosithe P. Cormier, Middle Sackville, N.B., says:

"In the spring of 1897 I was all run down, and the doctor told me I had not a pint of good blood in my body. I took different remedies from doctors, but they did not seem to do me any good. After having taken a lot of different other kinds of medicine, and they did not seem to benefit me, I was almost in despair and did not know what to do until my husband met a lady and told her about my sickness and she told him to try Burdock Blood Bitters as she had received the greatest benefit from using it. My husband went and bought me a bottle, and after having taken it I felt better, so I kept on using one bottle after another until I had taken six in all and then I was strong and well. I am positive that my being alive to-day is due to the use of Burdock Blood Bitters One spring since then I was not feeling very well and had a lot of work to do. I thought I would procure a bottle of Burdock Blood Bitters and after I had taken two I was able to do a lot of hard work all the summer, and I never felt better in my life. In the winter of 1900 I had Pneumonia, and it left me with a severe pain in the left side. Every morning when I would get out of bed I had to sit down for a while it was so painful. After I had used Burdock Blood Bitters the pain disappeared entirely. To this also equal aid of bleeding piles. I have received so much benefit from Burdock Blood Bitters that you may publish this as it may help others as it has me."

Cabinet Ministers In Britain.

London, Dec. 4.—It is natural that when members of the Dominion Cabinet are in Britain they should endeavor to confine both their statements in the press and in social and business circles to generalities regarding the resources of the Dominion as well as in connection with matters of policy on which they are questioned. Now, however, the business world as well as the prospective emigrant is so eager to hear about special areas that it is no wonder the Hon. W. C. Grimmer, Surveyor-General of New Brunswick, and the Hon. Price Ellison, Finance Minister of British Columbia, have had scarcely a spare moment since their arrival.

In the case of New Brunswick Mr. Grimmer's visit was particularly opportune; for no member of the Government has been in England for a long time and the province has come into more notice since the character of its representative and the scope of its work was enlarged after the death of Mr. Duff Miller. The plans of the C.P.R. and G.T.R. in connection with the port of St. John; the ore shipments of the Drummond Co. from Newcastle and the reported developments in the oil and lumber industries all combined to enable Mr. Grimmer to give detailed information which as he stated is likely to bear fruit next year. It was fortunate in view of a large amount of British capital being invested that Mr. Grimmer was able to give official confirmation to the remarkable growth of the territorial revenue during the last fiscal year.

Mr. Bowder, the resident London agent, on his return from Scotland, was able to announce that a number of the very best type of settlers will go to the province next year.

Is He Jack the Ripper?

Los Angeles, Dec. 5.—Having admitted during lucid moments to the police that he fled from England fifteen years ago in fear of being arrested as "Jack the Ripper," who committed the notorious Whitechapel crimes of the later 80's, Jack Shaw is being detained in the insane ward of the county hospital. Shaw was arrested through the efforts of the legal aid society, the complaint being that he attempted to murder Edith Tyson, his wife's sister, last Wednesday. The man's mental condition was found to be such that he was locked up in the insane ward. His past life will be investigated and the local authorities will notify the London police of their suspicions. Shaw has not admitted that he is the notorious "Jack the Ripper," but his constant references to the subject indicate that it is deeply impressed upon his mind. He is fifty years old.

Prof. Harcourt Bereaved.

Guelph, Dec. 5.—The wife of Prof. Harcourt, head of the chemistry department of the Ontario Agricultural College, met with a tragic death early yesterday, having taken oxalic acid in mistake for Epsom salt, both being kept in the kitchen. Mrs. Harcourt has been under the doctor's care for several weeks. When the mistake was discovered a physician was sent for, and also Mrs. John Yule, her mother. Mrs. Harcourt, remarking that it would be awful if she should die before her mother arrived, but Mrs. Yule was just too late. Mrs. Harcourt leaves a two-months-old child.

Announcement of the death was made yesterday morning at Chalmers' Presbyterian Church, of which Mrs Harcourt was an active member.

Italian Aviators Killed.

Rome, Dec. 5.—An aeroplane carrying an Italian officer and a private fell from a height of 60 feet at the military grounds at Centocelle Saturday evening. Both men were killed instantly.

The aeroplane, which was a Farman machine, was in charge of Engineer Cammarota, and the accident appears to have been due to an attempt to make a short turn.

Cammarota is the third Italian officer to be killed in an aeroplane accident in the past four months.

Engineer Giovanni Palovani of Verona has invented an aeroplane that is built like an umbrella. It is capable of rising and descending vertically, and of floating in the air when the engine is stopped.

Back From the Dead.

New York, Dec. 5.—Just as the undertaker put out his hands to lift the body of three-year-old Lillian Viand yesterday to prepare her for burial, the child sat bolt upright in her winding sheet, opened her eyes and cried: "Mama, I want my mama, I'm cold."

The undertaker fell back in a chair, nearly fainting, but regaining presence of mind, snatched up blankets, wrapped the child in them and rushed downstairs with her to the parents. A doctor was brought and said he believed the child's life had come back permanently.

The little girl had been ill five days with convulsions. Yesterday afternoon she stiffened, her eyes glazed and none of the familiar tests showed any signs of life.

New York Ungrateful.

New York, Dec. 5.—Oscar Hammerstein, the opera impressario, is going to quite the country for good, and will leave in January for England, where he expects to open his opera house. Mr. Hammerstein said:

"My business is opera. I can do nothing else. I must produce opera. Since New York does not want me, as the man who could have made it possible for me to remain showed in the past few years, I will go to London, where I believe I can do well.

"After forty years in New York I am going. After realising my ambition and giving opera here as it was never given before and then being forced to give up my work, I shall go. Yes, I will sell my theatres if the offers I receive are sufficiently large. And I shall live in London. That is all."

New it is Autonomists.

Montreal, Dec. 5.—Over two thousand people gathered under Nationalist auspices Saturday at St. Johns, and cheered heartily when Mr. Blondin, M.P. for Champlain, with a dramatic wave of the hand, declared that the last shot in defence of British institutions in America would be fired by a French-Canadian. The Nationalists now call themselves "Autonomists," and the word has evidently been given to discard the sobriquet Nationalists completely. The speakers included Bruno Nantel, M.P. for Terrebonne, and Hon. Jean Prevost. Mr. Blondin made a very energetic speech, to show that all the charges made against him were falsehoods, and that he had never been anything in his life but a Britisher, and that he intended to die one.

Floods in France.

Paris, Dec. 5.—Torrential downpours continued throughout France yesterday and the flood situation hourly grows more serious.

Hundreds of villages are surrounded by the waters. They are being provisioned by soldiers with boats. Immense damage has been caused in the valley of the Loire by the breaking of the dike near Nantes. The waters flooded farms and villages, lying below the level of the embankment, to a depth of six feet.

The floods also invaded the lower quarters of Nantes, rising to the tops of the lampposts on the streets.

Practically every stream in France was out of its banks yesterday. The Rhone is again rising at the rate of two inches an hour, overflowing its banks, and driving the people of the neighborhood to the hills. The railroad lines are cut at many places, and mails are being delivered in boats.

Caen, in the Department of Calvados, is flooded.

Plenty of Money Now.

New York, Dec. 5.—Three short weeks ago John M. McCluskey, a farm hand, who labored a season with the tops on a little farm as husby, just back of Glasgow, Scotland, and, wondering how he would get through the week on two shillings and sixpence, Yesterday, McCluskey, accompanied by Andrew Wilson, a New York lawyer, was a passenger on the steamer Campania from England, and comes to take title to a fortune estimated at a million dollars, left him by his brother, a paper box manufacturer in this city. The brothers lost track of each other for eighteen years, and the lawyer had a hard time locating McCluskey to tell him of his fortune.

More Honors For Sir Henry.

Toronto, Dec. 5.—Mr. Willoughby Bulloch, secretary of the Society of Knights Bachelor of England, announces that at the recent meeting of the council Sir Henry Pellatt was elected president of the society for the year 1911.

Sir Henry has had a cordial reception in Great Britain. He and his wife were given a large dinner at Lambeth Palace by the Archbishop of Canterbury, and they have also been the guests of Lord Aberdeen at the viceregal lodge, Dublin. They were also dined by the ladies and gentlemen of the Corinthian Club.

Boy Broker Fleeced Lauder.

Boston, Dec. 5.—Robert E. Davis, a boy stock broker with offices at 63 State street, is missing from the city. With his vanishing a month ago sums estimated at from $300,000 to $500,000 have disappeared.

Davis is 23 years of age, one of the youngest and most successful men on State street. Among his victims is Harry Lauder.

Out Goes Inspector Dew.

London, Dec. 5.—Chief Inspector Dew, who had control of the Crippen case from the outset, left Scotland Yard Saturday. He is only 47 years old, but has served the time necessary to qualify for a pension. His resignation was undoubtedly compulsory on account of his having let Crippen escape from the country.

Sending Warships to Macao.

Hong Kong, Dec. 5.—The authorities at Pekin Saturday ordered a Chinese flotilla to Macao, where there was a revolt recently in the Portuguese army and navy, forcing the governor to make certain concessions, including the driving out of the religious orders.

The Italian cruiser Calabria has also gone thither to protect Italian interests.

BREAKFAST BEVERAGE IS COST MORE

The housekeeper will have to make up her mind to pay more for her favourite breakfast beverage in the near future or buy a poorer quality, and few are prepared to do the latter.

Reliable information from South American countries confirms previous reports that the growing coffee crop will be much beneath the average, and totally inadequate to meet the demands of the constantly increasing consumption.

Importers are now paying 4 to 5c. per pound more than six months ago for their various grades, and as the profit of the retail dealer is none too large on high-grade coffees, he will either have to increase his selling price or accept a profit much smaller than he ought to get considering the expense of a well-managed retail establishment.

The consumer has the consolation that old prices will no doubt be restored in the course of a year or so, and it is more than probable the crop of 1911 will be a good one.

Winnipeg, Dec. 6.—The street railway employes closed their case yesterday morning with a statement, signed by 400 employes, to the effect that they individually had ignored the rule forbidding drinking in uniform; that they understood prohibition referred only to excessive drinking, and that they did not feel that they, therefore, incurred either chastisement or dismissal.

DENIES THE ACCUSATION

Sir Wilfrid Answers Attempt to Twist Girouard's Message to Papal Legate—F. D. Monk Brings Up Case Where Company Was Advised Not to Invest Money in Land in Canadian West.

Ottawa, Dec. 6.—Two incidents of outstanding interest occurred in the House of Commons yesterday. The first was the Government's answer to questions propounded by Dr. Sproule and Col. Sam Hughes, the former on the "homages" proferred by Mr. Justice Girouard, as administrator of Canada, to Cardinal Vannutelli, and the latter on the appearance of a guard of honor of His Majesty's troops, subsequently the parade of the 65th Regiment of Montreal, and the presence of Speaker Marcil during the recent Eucharistic Congress. While the answers of the Government were categorical, it is stated that the matter is not to be allowed to rest, and further action is to be determined upon.

With regard to the word "homages," Sir Wilfri dexplained that this, in the plural, was translated "respects" in English.

The second incident occurred when F. D. Monk moved for copies of certain correspondence relating to the Netherlands Land Co., which proposed to do business in western Canada, and later withdrew. W. T. R. Preston, trade commissioner, gave as the reason that certain adverse comment was made regarding land values, which stifled the project, and the person implicated in giving the derogatory information, he declared, seemed to be Hon. Charles Fitzpatrick.

Mr. Monk will examine the correspondence before pressing for a committee of enquiry; meanwhile Mr. Preston will likely be called upon to explain.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier said that, but for a certain thing that recently had transpired, he would have felt diffident about complying with Mr. Monk's request. Enquiry had already been made of Mr. Preston with the idea that it might be shown that some one connected with the Government was concerned. In the reply received it was shown that a private citizen had caused the trouble.

Sir Wilfrid then read a letter recently received from Sir Charles Fitzpatrick, Chief Justice of the Supreme Court, stating that he had both informed that he had been mentioned by Mr. Preston as the person who had given the adverse advice. He declared this to be absolutely without foundation in fact, and asked Sir Wilfrid to facilitate a full enquiry.

Mr. Monk would doubtless agree that the denial ought to be accepted, said Sir Wilfrid, and Mr. Monk remarked that he had no idea that Sir Charles Fitzpatrick's name had been so mentioned. He thought it was doubly important to have the committee proceed in order to exonerate the Chief Justice, and, if Mr. Preston's statement was not well founded, to bring that fact out.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier reiterated that the denial should be accepted, and that it would be inadvisable to investigate the possible action of some private citizen. For that reason he would ask Mr. Monk to allow his motion calling for a committee to drop.

After some discussion, during the course of which R. L. Borden said that the statement of the Chief Justice should be accepted, Mr. Monk agreed to the Premier's request, stipulating, however, that it could be renewed if he so desired.

In the House yesterday, answering W. D. Staples (Manitoba) Sir Wilfrid Laurier said that he had given utterance to the following, or similar words at Winnipeg, on July 12 last. "You have been told that I was an enemy of Manitoba. You have been told that I don't want to give justice to you. I have written to Mr. Roblin, and I repeat here, let him come to Ottawa, where he can discuss with me what is fair and just, and see if we can agree upon what is proper, either in land or in money for the increased territory of Manitoba. What more can we do? If the Province of Manitoba continues to be on the map, a postage stamp, the fault will not be mine, the fault will be his."

The Premier read correspondence which had passed between himself and the Premier of Manitoba regarding the question of the extension of the boundaries of that province.

"There was," said Sir Wilfrid, "an interview between the Premier of Manitoba and myself on Nov. 25. At that interview I suggested to the Premier of Manitoba, that, as the question to be settled, according to the resolution of July 13, 1908, was the financial terms to be granted to the province, it would not be advisable to discuss the same then and there on account of the absence of the Minister of Finance, but that negotiations would be resumed after the latter's return to Ottawa."

Further questions were asked by Mr. Staples as to who was to blame for the present condition of affairs. Sir Wilfrid replied: "If the Province of Manitoba still continues to be a postage stamp on the map, the blame is not with the present Federal Government. The Prime Minister is prepared to discuss with the Government of Manitoba the terms of the boundary extension upon the lines adopted by this House on July 13, 1908."

In the afternoon A. B. Warburton (P.E.I.), in moving for an order of the House for copies of all correspondence, reports, surveys, etc., relating to the oyster industry of Canada and barren bottoms suitable for oyster culture, took some time to point out to the House that a gradual depletion of this industry was taking place in Eastern Canada, largely due to neglect. He suggested that the Government make an arrangement with the Maritime Provinces to acquire the land, as it already owned the water, where the oyster beds were to be found, and grant a title, conditional upon the beds being properly worked. He proposed to make the provinces interested parties, by granting compensation by way of a royalty.

SAYS WAR CAN'T LAST

In Speech in Toronto He Discusses the Merits and Demerits of Democracy—Evils of Too Much Government Offset by Liberality of Education—Too Much Money Spent on War Supplies.

Toronto, Dec. 6.—Dr. C. W. Eliot, until recently president of Harvard University, made a profound impression on the Canadian Club yesterday, when one of the largest attendances was registered. He spoke on "Democratic Tendencies—Safe and Unsafe," and afterwards, in reply to questions, enlarged on the advantages of civic government by commission. Discussing the disadvantages of democracy, he said:

"It is characteristic of democracies that popular opinion, and action based thereon, moves forward and backward without steadiness of march, a democratic populace being in this respect just like a stumbling, wayward, inconsistent man.

"Democracies tend to increase the number of elective offices and to elect their officials for short terms. This is one of the most undesirable tendencies that democracies have manifested. The theory of this subject is, that the people really part with their power to a few professional political managers, of whom the most intelligent are themselves office-holders."

The hopeful and wholesome tendencies of democracy were next dwelt upon. Democracy recognizes no fixed permanent code. No single authority out of the past prevents progress in a Christian state as the fixed and unalterable authority of the Koran, obstructed progress in Islam.

Democracies spent more money on education of all kinds, elementary and advanced, cultured and utilitarian, liberal and technical, linguistic, historical and scientific.

"The progress of democracy has already made dynastic war impossible, and bids fair soon to prevent wars between Christian nations for the conquest of territory.

"In the future the well-grounded conviction that in their blood and their labor the masses pay the terrible cost of war is likely to exercise a calming influence in times of popular excitement. It is only the burden of past wars and of preparations for new ones which to-day prevents the liberal expenditure of public money for the direct promotion of human welfare on a grand scale," he concluded.

Funeral of Old Oshawa Boy.

Oshawa, Dec. 6.—The remains of J. O'Driscoll, an old Oshawa boy, who for many years was identified with the mechanical interest of this town, were brought here yesterday from Toronto, for burial. About twelve years ago Mr. O'Driscoll left Oshawa to assume a position in the Department of Agriculture, but several weeks ago he found it necessary to ask relief from his duties. Tuberculosis developed, and Friday last he died suddenly, after a hemorrhage. Father Jescollet said requiem mass. The Department of Agriculture was represented at the funeral by N. J. Clark and Col. A. G. Henderson.

A Brutal Murder.

Vancouver, Dec. 6.—Comaplix, a small town eight miles east of Arrowhead, is the scene of a reported brutal murder. Fanny St. Clair is the victim. Her body was found yesterday afternoon in the kitchen of her home, her throat cut from ear to ear, and a carving knife with which the deed was done, lying on her breast. The rooms show evidences of her struggle to defend herself, but so far no trace of her assassin has been found.

Brantford Priest Resigns.

Brantford, Dec. 6.—Rev. Father Lennan, after twenty-eight years as parish priest at St. Basil's Church, has tendered his resignation, as a result of strained relations with the bishop of the diocese, who some time ago called on the priest publicly to resign.

BIGGER THAN EVER

The Guelph Winter Fair Opens With Record Attendance.

Guelph, Dec. 6.—The Royal City is on fete, the occasion being the opening of the 17th annual Provincial Winter Fair, in point of attendance a record breaker, and in the quality of exhibits the greatest the Dominion has ever seen.

Every department is crowded to excess, and the management, after making what was considered ample provision, are even now casting about for means to relieve the situation. Practically the exhibits are all here, and afford a magnificent display.

The city is rapidly filling up and yesterday afternoon at the exhibit and judging of horses in the arena, the balconies were comfortably filled. What it will be when the several institutes get fairly under way, the officials are already beginning to wonder.

A feature which attracts already great interest, is the exhibit given under the Standing Field Competition of the Agricultural Societies Branch, with J. Lockie Wilson in charge. Four years ago, when Mr. Wilson took charge of this department, ten societies were represented with 300 farmers and about 1,000 acres were under inspection. Yesterday 110 societies, 1,200 farmers and 90,000 acres are interested, a wonderful expansion. There are 62 expert judges who go out through the country, and the interest is marvelous. At the fair here, 150 bushels of the very choicest prize-winning grain will be retained by the Department of Agriculture, sent out again to certain districts and the product again returned to the department. In this way the good work goes on.

Hon. James Duff, Minister of Agriculture, will preside as chairman at a number of the meetings, and to-day, in addition to the judging of horses, cattle and sheep, there will be addresses by Prof. Raynor of Ottawa, Prof. Zavitz of Guelph, on "Alfalfa," and George H. Clarke of Ottawa.

In poultry, the show is the finest ever exhibited in Canada, approximately 5,000 entries, and they are all choice birds, though citizens living down around the fair buildings aver that the authorities have turned night into day. But it is a wonderful demonstration and gives one a faint idea of the enormous possibilities in revenue to the Canadian farmers. From as far away as Manitoba they have contributed to swell the poultry show.

SAVED FROM AN OPERATION

By Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Belleriver, Que.—"Without Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I would not be alive. For five months I had painful and irregular periods and inflammation of the uterus. I suffered like a martyr and thought often of death. I consulted two doctors who could do nothing for me. I went to a hospital, and the best doctors said I must submit to an operation, because I had a tumor. I went back home much discouraged. One of my cousins advised me to take your Compound, as it had cured her. I did so and soon commenced to feel better, and my appetite came back with the first bottle. Now I feel no pain and am cured. Your remedy is deserving of praise."—Mrs. EMMA CHATEL, Valleyfield, Belleriver, Quebec.

Another Operation Avoided.

Adrian, Ga.—"I suffered untold misery from female troubles, and my doctor said an operation was my only chance, and I dreaded it almost as much as death. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound completely cured me without an operation."—LENA V. HENRY, R.F.D. 8.

Thirty years of unparalleled success confirms the power of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to cure female diseases

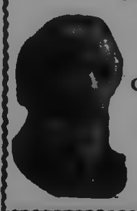
PEOPLE'S PULPIT.



Sermon by CHARLES T. RUSSELL Pastor Brooklyn Tabernacle.

Israel's New Covenant Now to Be Established.

Messianic Kingdom Has the Power to Bring About God's Will on Earth.

Brooklyn, Dec. 4.—Pastor Russell continues to use the Academy of Music, our largest Auditorium, whenever he speaks in Brooklyn, the "Tabernacle" being of insufficient capacity. He had a splendid audience to-day of thoughtful-looking people evidently chiefly from the middle walks of life. Asked why so few of the wealthy attended, his characteristic reply was: "Of my Master it is written, 'The common people heard him gladly.'" He spoke from the following text:

"The Lord, whom ye seek, shall suddenly come to his temple, even the Messenger of the covenant, whom ye delight in. Behold he shall come, saith Jehovah of Hosts; but who may abide the day of his coming?"—Malachi iii. 1-5.

Six thousand years ago in Eden our Maker, in justly sentencing his disobedient children to death, intimated that ultimately the Seed of the woman would bruise the serpent's head. This hidden promise was the first intimation of the Divine mercy which our gracious Creator purposed in himself from before the foundation of the world. Ever noble, kind and gracious our Creator restrained his mercy for the good of his creatures—that they might learn to appreciate the exceeding sinfulness of sin. For the good of the angels also, and that they might fully know of his justice, as well as of his wisdom and power, God insisted upon dealing with his creatures from the standpoint of exact justice. They had sinned and thereby had forfeited all claim upon the eternal life which he had given them conditionally.

Eternal torment, as we have already seen, did not in any sense or degree enter into the Divine intention. His sentence upon man, plainly stated, was, "Dying thou shalt die," not, Living thou shalt live in torment. "The soul that sinneth it shall die" (Genesis ii. 17; Ezekiel xviii. 4). God intended to exemplify in his dealings with our race a principle of Divine government to be made operative everywhere ultimately amongst all his creatures on the spirit plane, as well as upon the earthly.

Long centuries after, in the seventh generation of Adam's children, God spoke prophetically through one of these, Enoch, saying, The Lord cometh with ten thousands of his holy ones to execute justice in the earth—to establish righteousness amongst men. Time passed on, but sin prevailed and the coming of the Great Deliverer was still future.

Next God spoke to Abraham, after first he had tested his faith and loyalty. To him he mentioned the same great Deliverer who would bruise the serpent's head and who would come in great glory with ten thousands of his holy ones. To Abraham he gave assurance that this One, in some way, would be identified with his posterity, so that he might properly be called the Seed of Abraham. He said, "In thy Seed shall all the families of the earth be blessed."

The Divine Program was not changed, but more explicit statements were given respecting it. Thereafter all taught of God would know to look for the Messianic blessing through Abraham's Seed. Besides, the Covenant was on rewards confirmed with an Oath to Abraham; later, to Isaac; later, to Jacob. That Covenant promise became the basis of God's adoption of the entire nation of Israel—all of Jacob's children. They were heirs of the Abrahamic Covenant—the Oath-Bound Covenant. If so great an honor from the Almighty God has made some of the Jewish people at times to appear arrogant and proud, let us not forget that to err is human—to forgive, Divine. Perhaps if we were in their stead our imperfections would similarly display themselves.

Israel's experience of tribulation and bondage in Egypt were probably necessary to prepare them for God's great proposition that they should keep the Law and as a reward have life everlasting. As it is written, "He that doeth these things shall live by them" (Leviticus xviii. 5). Israel greatly rejoiced in this manifestation of Divine preference for them more than for all others of humanity. The Law Covenant was mediated. The sacrifice of bulls and goats made a typical atonement for them for a year, so that they might enter into this Covenant relationship with God. But when they attempted to keep the Law they were disappointed. They failed. The Law of God being the full measure of a perfect man's ability, and the Jews, like other men, being imperfect, found that they had undertaken an impossibility.

Not a Jew kept the Law perfectly. Not a Jew, therefore, gained eternal life during the first year. But God, foreknowing this, had made preparation for a repetition of the Atonement Day every year, so that the people might continue striving to attain eternal life. Year after year, century after century, they failed, and discouragement took the place of hope. God was teaching them a great lesson respecting the need of better sacrifices than those of bulls and of goats, and also teaching them that there is no other means of justification in his sight. They got blessings under this Covenant—educational blessings, but not the blessing hoped for, not life eternal. Hence they were not in a position to become as they had hoped, a national Messiah, a national Seed of Abraham, for the blessing of all the nations.

God gave them kings for a time, but they were unable to accomplish the great things hoped for. But the promise of a personal Messiah was made, and that he should be of the lineage of David, a great King, far superior to the great, wise and rich Solomon. Messiah would be David's Son and yet David's Lord (Psalm cx. 1; Matthew xii. 42-44). Here, as God intended, Israel began to get the thought of a personal Messiah, a King of Glory, who would use their nation as his instrumentality for the conquering of the world, when every knee should bow and every tongue confess to the glory of God.

The next lesson for Israel to learn was that a change of Dispensation must come, that, as Moses had mediated the Law Covenant, so an antitypical Moses, a greater than Moses, would induct them into the blessings and privileges of a still better Covenant, a Covenant more favorable to them and under which they could gain eternal life. This New Covenant was particularly set before them through Jeremiah's prophecy (xxxi. 31-34). And this, combined with the statement of Moses respecting a greater Mediator, helped their faith to take a fresh hold upon the Oath-Bound Abrahamic Promise—"In thy Seed shall all the families of the earth be blessed."

If a great enough Mediator should come as the promised Messenger of God, and should establish a better Covenant, under which Israel could have eternal life, and if he, as the offspring of David, should become their King, then indeed Abraham's Seed, the nation of Israel under that great Mediator-King, would be fully qualified to bless all the families of the earth. The thought of this glory to their nation became a fresh inspiration, and around it gathered the fifty odd thousand of Jews, out of all the tribes of Israel, who returned from Babylonian captivity under the edict of Cyrus, offering them this privilege.

Through the Prophet Ezekiel the Lord again made mention of the fact that their Law Covenant, made at Sinai, must, before their great blessing of restitution, give place to a New Covenant, a better Covenant. Speaking of the time when he would re-gather them out of all lands and would fulfill to them the promise made to Abraham, Isaac and Jacob and make them a great nation, and use them for the blessing of other nations, the Lord declares, "Not for your sakes do I this, O house of Israel, but for my name's sake." He then proceeds to tell them that at the time he would receive them back again into his love and favor he would also humble their pride by restoring the Samaritans and the Sodomites, peoples whom Israel detested as inferiors and sinners.

God declares that neither of these peoples had ever committed as serious sins against Divine goodness as had Israel, and that when he would again bless Israel he would bless also these other peoples in their midst. Let me quote his words: "When thy sisters, Sodom and her daughters, shall return to their former estate, and Samaria and her daughters shall return to their former estate, then thou and thy daughters shall return to your former estate. * * * Nevertheless I will remember my Covenant with thee in the days of thy youth, and I will establish unto thee an everlasting Covenant. * * * and I will give them (Sodomites and Samaritans) unto thee for daughters, but not by thy Covenant (not under the old Law Covenant; but under the New (Law) Covenant of the future), and I will establish my Covenant with thee; * * * (in order that) thou mayest remember and be confounded, and never open thy mouth any more, because of thy shame, when I am pacified toward thee for all that thou hast done, saith the Lord God" (Ezekiel xvi. 55-63).

This New and better Covenant is to be mediated through a personal Messiah—a still more glorious Mediator, than Moses, a still more glorious King than David—this One whom Israel began to look for and to long for. Can we wonder that they failed to identify him in the lowly Nazarene who died at Calvary? We cannot! Nothing but a special assistance of the holy Spirit would enable any one to trace the connection between the glorious pictures of the prophecies and the humble appearance of him who came to fulfill those prophecies. He did, however, that the great Messiah of Glory, Jesus, in his Second Advent as King of kings and Lord of lords, fills absolutely every demand of Jewish expectation and of prophetic outline. Some can see, but others cannot as yet, that he who was pierced is the same One who, as the Son of God, in great glory is shortly to bless Israel—and all the families of the earth through Israel.

Our text is from another prophecy speaking of this same great Messiah, the Mediator of the New Covenant, King of kings and Lord of lords, who as the representative of the great Jehovah, his Father, is to reign until all enemies shall be put down; until Satan shall be bound and, ultimately, shall be crushed, until Adam and his race, released from Divine sentence, under the New Covenant provisions, shall be uplifted out of sin and degradation and death to perfection and everlasting life—the unwilling and disobedient being destroyed in the Second Death.

The Prophet Malachi points out that the Messiah of the New Covenant, whom he announces, is the glorious Mediator and antitypical King for whom they had waited long and of whom they delighted to think. He would come to the temple—thus implying that he would be not only an antitypical Prophet, an antitypical King, but also an antitypical Priest—"after the order of Melchisedec"; "A priest upon his throne" (Psalm cx. 4; Zechariah vi. 13).

But after this joyful proclamation that their long-expected and gloried-in Mediator of the New Covenant should be looked for, they were warned that his day would be one of trial, one of special testing and proving, that the Lord might find the antitypical Priests and antitypical Levites to serve in the antitypical Temple. He would be like a refiner of fire to take away the dross and to leave only the pure metal—fiery trials and testings being implied. He would "be like fuller's soap," in the sense that a great washing or purging would take place to make ready for the Kingdom the called and chosen and faithful.

At that time the consecration of Judah and Jerusalem unto the Lord will be accepted as in olden times. We may understand that this spirit of devotion is now reviving amongst the Jews and particularly amongst those who are identified with Jerusalem and the Zionist movement. Hitherto this has been a political movement in the interest of Jewish nationalization and a home for exiles. Now, however, the due time has come for a real movement of those who have the faith to draw near to God and to show their faith by helping forward in the restoration of earthly Jerusalem and her interests.

The First-begotten of the Father, as his glorious Agent in the great work of creation, had the honor granted him of becoming the great Messenger of the Covenant, the great Prophet, Priest and King of Israel, the great Michael of Daniel xii. 1. But there were tests connected with his attainment of this high position: (1) By faith he must lay aside his heavenly glory, in obedience to the Father's will to become a man—not a sinful man, but a perfect man—holy, harmless, undefiled, separate from sinners. (2) Thus prepared to become the Redeemer it was his privilege to make full consecration of his earthly interest and the Father's pleasure to beget him of the holy Spirit at Jordan to the spirit nature on the highest plane. For three and a half years his sacrifice burned upon the altar. It was indeed better than the sacrifice of bulls and goats, for it was a corresponding price for Adam; an eye for an eye, a tooth for a tooth; a man's life for a man's life. (3) When Jesus had thus sacrificially parted with his earthly life he experienced a resurrection change from human nature to spiritual, like what he was originally, only higher and more glorious. Thus he was at once both a sacrifice and the spirit-begotten priest who offered that sacrifice. When he arose from the dead, his personal sacrifice had ended and his personal perfection as a spirit being was completed.

Then why did he not at once begin his great work as Prophet, Priest, King and New Covenant Mediator for Israel and through Israel for the world? It was because there was to be more than one sacrifice in the Divine Plan on the Day of Atonement. Throughout this Gospel Age this risen, glorified High Priest, Mediator, Prophet and King has been waiting to inaugurate his glorious Kingdom of blessing—waiting while a little handful of saints should be selected from the world and tested and found worthy and glorified with himself—a "little flock" out of all mankind, both Jews and Gentiles.

When this Bride class shall have completed her sacrifice in and under the merit of the great Priest, then every arrangement for the blessing of Israel as Abraham's seed and of all nations through Israel will have forthwith commenced. Thus seen the revelation of Israel's great Messenger of the New Covenant is very important not only to the Jew, but also to the world of mankind, who must receive their blessings under Israel by a compliance with the same New Law Covenant. Moreover, the elect handful of saints drawn, called and gathered during the parenthesis period are also deeply interested in God's glorious Kingdom; for the Divine promise is that they shall be then changed to be like their Master and share his glory.

Notice the further message of the Lord through the Prophet. "I will come near to you to judgment; and I will be a swift witness against the sorcerers, and against adulterers, and against false swearers, and against those who oppress the hireling in his wages, the widow and the fatherless, and that turn aside the stranger from his right" (verse 5).

Ah, do we not see here plainly stated that the Messianic Kingdom means not only glory and honor to those whom he will accept as servants, but that it means also requirements of faithfulness to the principles of Truth, of purity, of harmony with God? And this lesson for the Jew, under his New Covenant arrangement, will ultimately apply to all nations. Under that new arrangement, under Israel's New Covenant, all the families of the earth will be privileged to become "Israelites indeed" through faithfulness to the great Prophet, Priest, King and Mediator of Israel and of all the families of the earth.

Orators In London.

Although Sir James Whitney makes one of those bluff, hearty never at a loss for a word speeches which attract notice to his personality the palm as an orator in England has certainly been carried off by the Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux, says an English correspondent. It seems strange that it is as a rule the French-Canadian who seems able to express himself in most felicitous and cultured phrase. The fact of using another language seems to embellish his style and the slight accent revealing the fact that he is a Frenchman loyal to the British flag immediately puts him en rapport with his audience and creates an enthusiasm which in turn helps the operator.

All the English-speaking Canadian statesmen we have heard this season would have been more effective in the House of Commons or in the case of Sir James Whitney—at a political meeting rather than at a Guildhall function or a Dominion Day banquet. The business world, however, appreciates the direct and terse utterances of the great body of the Canadian men of mark it is coming into contact with.

Generous With Titles.

You would have thought that the importance of the recent Eucharistic Congress and the prominence given to it in the press would have guaranteed that everybody would have had some idea of the position of the people prominent it it, but the experience of a Toronto publication says otherwise. The publication concerned was having cuts of Cardinal Vannutelli and Father Vaughan made at an engraving house. The foreman of the engraving firm was telephoned to and was asked what progress was being made on "those portrait cuts that are being made for us?"

"Wait a minute," said the foreman, and when he returned from a little trip of inquiry he sent over the telephone the startling question, "Was they two popes?"

Could Not Walk Ten Yards Without Resting.

WEAK HEART WAS THE CAUSE.

Mrs. Robinson Collette, Rogersville, N.B., writes: "I am now enjoying the best of health after having used your Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills. I was troubled with a weak heart and was afraid to draw a long breath for the pain it would cause me. I could not sleep at night, and it was impossible for me to walk ten yards without resting myself. I cannot speak too highly of your Heart and Nerve Pills, for they are the greatest pill I have ever used and I can recommend them to all sufferers."

Thousands of people go about their daily work on the verge of death and yet do not know it.

Little attention is paid to the slight weakness of the heart for the simple reason that one thinks it will right itself, but there is where the mistake is made. It is only when a violent shock comes that the weakness of the heart becomes apparent.

On the first sign of any weakness of the heart or nerves, flagging energy or physical breakdown, the use of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills will soon produce a quick and permanent cure.

ACRES OF DIAMONDS

(By Russell H. Conwell.)

Oh, my friend, going through this world and thinking you are unjustly dealt with! You are poor because you are not wanted. You should have made yourself a necessity to the world, and then the world would have paid you your own price. Friends, learn that lesson. I would speak tenderly and kindly to the poor but I sometimes need to speak decidedly.

Young man, remember if you are going to invest your life or talent or money, you must look around and see what people need and then invest yourself, or your money, in that which they need most. Then will your fortune be made, for they must take care of you. It is a difficult lesson to learn.

Some young men will say to me: "I cannot go into the Mercantile business."

Why not?

"Because I have no capital."

Capital! Capital! Capital! is the cry of a foolish generation, which cannot see over its collar. (Laughter and applause).

Who are the rich men now? The poor boys of fifty years ago. You know it. The rich men of your town, in whatever profession or calling they are, as a rule, were the poor boys of forty or fifty years ago. If they had not been poor then they wouldn't be rich now.

The statistics of Massachusetts say and I presume it holds good in your State, that not one rich man's son in seventeen ever dies rich. I pity the rich man's son. He is not to be praised for his magnificent, palatial home; no to be congratulated on having plenty of money, or his yachts, carriages, and diamonds. Oh, no, but rather to be commiserated. It is often a misfortune to be born the son of a rich man. There are many things a rich man's son cannot know, because he is not passing through the school of actual experience. A young man in our college asked me "What is the happiest hour in the history of a man's life?" The definition I gave him was this: The happiest hour in the history of a man's life is when he takes his bride for the first time over the threshold of his own door, into a house which he has earned by his own hands; and as he enters the nest he has built, he says to her: "Wife, I earned this home myself!" Oh, that is the grandest moment a man may ever know. "Wife, I earned this house. It is all me, and I divide it with thee." (Applause). It is a magnificent moment.

But the rich man's son cannot know that. He that. He may go into a house that is more beautiful; but as he takes his wife into his mansion he will go all through it and say to her: "My mother gave me that! My mother gave me that! My mother gave me that—until his wife wishes he had married his mother. (Applause).

I pity such a young man as that.

It is said that the elder Vanderbilt, when a boy, went to his father and said:

"Father, did you earn all your money?"

And the old Commodore said: "I did; I earned every penny of it"; and he did. It is cruel to slander the rich because they have been successful. It is a shame to "look down" upon the rich the way we do. They are not scoundrels because they have gotten money. They have blessed the world. They have come into great enterprises that have enriched the nation and the nation has enriched them. It is all wrong for us to accuse a rich man of dishonesty simply because he secured money. Go through this city and your very best people are among your richest people. Owners of property are always the best citizens. It is all wrong to say they are not good.

The elder Vanderbilt went to his father and said: "Did you earn all your money?"

And when the Commodore said that he did, the boy said, "Then I will earn mine."

And he insisted on going to work for three dollars a week. If a rich man's son will go to work like that he will be able to take care of his father's money when his father is gone. If he has the bravery to fight the battle of poverty like the poor boy, then, of course, he has a double advantage. But, as a rule, the rich father won't allow his son to work; and the boy's mother—Oh, she would think it a social disgrace for her poor, weak, little lily-fingered, sissy sort of a boy to earn his living with honest toil. And so I say it is not capital you want. It is not copper cents, but common sense. (Applause).

Let me illustrate it again. A. T Stewart had a dollar and fifty cents to begin life on. That was, of course, before he was a school teacher. He lost eighty-seven and a half cents on his very first venture. How did he come to lose it? He lost it because he purchased some needles, thread and buttons to sell, which people did not want, and he said: "I will never do that again." Then he went around, first to the doors of the houses, and asked the people what they did want; then when he found out what they wanted he invested his sixty-two and a half cents and supplied a "known demand."

Why does one merchant so beyond another? Why does one manufacturer outsell any other? It is simple, because that one has found out what people want, and does not waste his money buying things they do not need. That is the whole of it. And A. T. Stewart said: "I am going to buy things people do not want. I will take an interest in people and study their needs." An dhe pursued that until he was worth forty millions of dollars.

"But," you will say, "I cannot do that here." Yes you can. It is being done in smaller places now, and you can do it as well as others.

But a better illustration was John Jacob Astor, the elder. They say that he had a mortgage on a millinery store. I never reach this point without thinking that the ladies will say, that "Fools rush in where angels fear to tread." (Laughter.) But John Jacob Astor had a mortgage on a millinery store, and foreclosed the mortgage and went into business with the same people who had failed on his hands. After he entered into partnership, he went out and sat down on a bench in the dark. What was the successful merchant doing out there, in partnership with people who had failed on his own hands? Ah, he had the most important, and to my mind, the pleasantest part of that partnership. He was out there watching the ladies as they went by. And where is the man who would not get rich at that business? As he sat upon that bench, if a lady passed him with her shoulders thrown back and her head up, and looking straight in front, as though she didn't care if all the world did gaze on her, then John Jacob Astor studied the bonnet she wore; and before it was out of sight, he knew the shape of the frame, and the curl of the face, an crimp of the feathers, and lots of intricate things that go into a bonnet which I cannot describe. Then he went to his millinery shop and said: "Now put in the show window just such a bonnet as I describe to you, because I have just seen a real lady who likes just such a bonnet." Then he went and sat down again. Another lady with another form and complexion came, and, of course, she wore another style of bonnet. He then went back and described that, and had that put into the window. He didn't fill his window full of hats and bonnets to drive the people away and then sit in the back of the store and bawl because people went elsewhere to trade. (Aplause). He didn't have a hat or a bonnet that some lady didn't like. That has since been the wealthiest millinery firm on the face of the earth. There has been taken out of the business seventeen million dollars and over, by parties who have retired. Yet not a dollar of capital have they ever put into that business, except what they turned in from their profits—to use as capital. Now, John Jacob Aster made the fortune of that millinery firm, not by lending them money, but by finding out what the ladies liked for bonnets, before they wasted any material in making them up. And if a man can forsee the millinery business, he can forsee anything under Heaven' (Laughter and applause.)

But perhaps a better illustration may strike nearer home. You ought to go into the manufacturing business. But you will say there is no room there. Great corporations which have gotten possession of the field make it impossible to make a success of a small manufacturing business now. I say to you, young man, that there was never a time in your history, and never will be in your history again, when the opportunities for a poor man to make money in the manufacturing business is so clearly quarent as it is at this very hour.

"But," says some young man to me, "I have no capital."

Oh, capital. Do you know of any manufactures around here who was not born poor? Capital! You don't want acpital now; I want to illustrate again, for the best way to teach is by illustration.

There was a man in Wingham, Massachusetts, who was a carpenter and out of work. He sat around the stove until his wife told him to "go out of doors," and he did—what every man in Massachusetts is compelled to do by law,—he obeyed his wife. (Applause.) He went out and sat down on the shore of the bay and he whittled out an oak shingle into a wooden chair. His children that evening quarrelled over it. So he whittled another to keep peace in the family. While he was whittling the second a neighbour came in and said to him: "Why don't you whittle toys and sell them? You can make money." The carpenter said, "I would not whittle toys, and if I could do it, I would not know what to make!" There is the whole thing. It is to know what to make. It is the secret of life everywhere. You may take it in the ministry. You may take it in the law. You may take it in mechanics or in labour. You may take it in professional life, or anywhere on earth, the whole question is what to make of yourself for other people. "What to make," is the great difficulty.

He said he would "not know what to make." His neighbour said to him with good New England common sense: "Why don't you ask your children what to make?"

"Oh," he said, "my children are different from other people's children."

I used to see people like that when I taught school.

A Few Words Of Caution

From Farm and Dairy.

The matter of the health of live stock has become a great and is yet a growing problem in Canada. It has many divisions. Tuberculosis is the greatest. In this matter it has been charged that the dairymen are the grossest sinners. It is not our purpose here to accept this challenge as being just or unjust but rather to give out a few words of caution.

Fresh air is absolutely essential to the health of any animal. Stables corked up tight, having little or no ventilation, heated, and the cattle being forced under hot house conditions are far from right. It is highly improbable even that big records can be gotten under these conditions unless there be fresh air provided. Any who keep their stables in such a condition are laying up trouble for themselves later on.

The ordinary stable is not such as to favor the general health of an animal, not to mention the manner in which it fosters tuberculosis. It is doubtful if there is any need of having a high temperature in a dairy stable. Rather should there be a uniformity of temperature and as much fresh air as possible.

We need to practise more common sense in dairy stables. We need to beware of fads. Some of our breeders are now advocating no divisions in mangers. Who can say but that in advancing the advantages of such, they may be overlooking many other things of greater importance. Schroeder says that 40 per cent. of tuberculous cattle give off the germs of the disease in their fæces. Investigations by the authorities at Washington have warranted the assertion that the excreta is the most dangerous of all sources, which might spread tuberculosis. Might there not be danger of sweeping excreta, tramped there by the boots of the attendant, into the mangers of healthy stock?

As yet, the Government has not been able to satisfy itself on a policy to be followed in dealing with tuberculosis in the herds of this country. The struggle against this disease must largely be individual. Some breeders in the States and quite a sprinkling of stockmen in Canada have undertaken to have their herds tuberculosis free and to offer stock for sale guaranteed to be non-reactors to the tuberculin test. The Bang system offers the most acceptable means of ridding herds of tuberculosis but if this is to become general, the Government will have to help. Unless a man be wealthy he cannot clean up by practising this system. It would ruin him. Extra help is needed and the labor question is such as to block him in the enterprise.

But notwithstanding these facts, it must be fully realized that the struggle for the most part must ever be largely individual. Much can be accomplished by taking ordinary precautions, and by supplying abundance of fresh air and sunshine. These latter should receive every attention. They cost little to supply and need to be supplied freely.

MYSTERIOUS DISEASE AMONG CALVES

From Farm and Dairy.

Several outbreaks of some mysterious disease, which has carried off several calves, have recently occurred in Peterborough County, Ont. The calves on being attacked show loss of appetite. Rumination ceases. The affected calves draw away from their fellows, become stupid, and apparently suffer little or no pain. On investigation, the disease proved to be small other than Black Leg.

This disease is confined wholly to the younger animals. Cattle over two years old are most likely to be affected with it. In a typical case of Black Leg as the disease develops, the animal will show lameness in one quarter. In those cases that came under the writer's observation, this symptom did not appear.

OTHER SYMPTOMS

Other than those symptoms already given, it should be said that respiration increases as the disease progresses in the animal. The temperature rises several degrees above normal and the animal dies usually from six to 24 hours from the first appearance of the disease. Near the termination of the malady in the diseased animal and after death examination of the affected quarter reveals the presence of a frothy material under the skin. When the hand is passed over the skin, a crackling sound may be heard as if bubbles under the skin were being broken.

A cure for an animal that has contracted this deadly disease is out of the question. The only remedy is a precautionary one, that of inoculation with Anti-Black Leg vaccine. Young cattle once inoculated with this vaccine are immune for a period of about a year. The vaccine is supplied by the Department of Agriculture, Ottawa. It is put up in a form such as any farmer may use. It is supplied at a nominal cost, five cents per head of stock.

There seems to be a widespread lack of information as to this deadly malady, Black Leg and as to how readily it may be controlled by Anti-Black Leg vaccine if the cattle are inoculated before being attacked by the disease. Quite a number of farmers in this County and I presume elsewhere have lost calves, often all that they had pasturing on low land where the bacteria producing this disease is said to flourish. They evidently believed that the ravages of this disease were quite beyond their control and have taken it as a matter of course that they should lose these animals.

It would seem that the Health of Animals Branch of the Department of Agriculture has been grossly negligent in this matter in that they have not informed the breeders of cattle throughout this country of these remedies and how they may be applied.

From the recent experience of some Peterboro farmers who have lost cattle from Black Leg it would seem that thousands of dollars might be saved to the cattle breeders of this country if they knew more about these measures and took steps to immunize their stock from the disease. —"Peterboro".

CAMERA AND AEROPLANE

Professor Archenhold, a director of the Royal Observatory at Treptow—the German Greenwich—is preparing a unique aeroplane expedition in German East Africa. He has conceived the idea of employing the flying-machine for the science of astronomy, and intends to carry out from a base at Kilimanjaro a series of flights during the coming summer. The professor thinks of ordering a Wright biplane for the purpose, specially equipped with photographic apparatus capable of "snap-shotting" the constellations, the peculiar tropical twilight, and other objects of astronomical interest. Treptow possesses the most powerful lens in the world, and the professor has a theory that if he can obtain a still larger lens, the secret of Mars can be telescopically penetrated.

RED CORAL

The red coral that is used for necklaces is a horny axis which supports a number of soft bodied animals, or polpys, the entire structure bearing a strong resemblance to a small shrub. The fishermen, after they have brought this shrub-like colony to the surface, clean the soft animal matter away, preserving the red core, or axis, which is sold for the manufacture of jewelry. Although red coral contains lime, it is largely composed of a substance akin to horn, and, like horn, it takes a fine polish. Animal substances of this nature almost invariably change their color when brought into intense heat.

SUICIDE OF A WASP

Some time ago a scientist being curious to see the effect of benzine on a wasp, put some of it under a glass in which a wasp was imprisoned. The great annoyance and anger, darting at a piece of paper which had introduced the benzine into his cell. By and by he seems to have given up the unequal contest in despair, for he lay down on his back, and, bending up his abdomen, planted his sting thrice into his body, and then died. He is, therefore, of opinion says the "Family Doctor," that wasps, under desperate circumstances, commit suicide.

PRICES OF POULTRY

From Farm and Dairy.

John I. Brown, Poultry Expert, Montreal

Although high prices range for No. 1 poultry, it is very difficult to get it in comparison with the large amount of poultry produce offered; fully 75 per cent. of the poultry is placed on the market in such a condition that it can be rated only as second and third class goods—hence it can bring only the second and third class price.

The poultry on so many farms is a mixture of four or five, sometimes more, breeds, and comprises in color more shades than the rainbow represents. Such a flock does not appeal to the eye, and no special interest can be taken in anything unless we are deeply interested in it. For this reason it is advisable on every farm, where poultry is kept in any quantity at all, to have one breed and one breed only.

We can come to one of two conclusions only in reference to the different breeds which we would like to keep. They all must be equal, or one is better than the rest. If all breeds are equal, then we can shut our eyes and pick at random. If one breed is better than the rest, than we choose this particular breed, and when we do so we have taken the first step which should be taken to start poultry raising on a farm, after our accommodation for same has been provided. Not only will the poultry look better if it is all of one kind, but we can hardly get two breeds that the same conditions will apply to in reference to feed and care. By this we mean that two breeds such as the Leghorn and Buff Orpington would not do well together; one requires much more exercise than the other to get the best results in egg production or in the fleshing of the birds during any season of the year.

Farmers and producers would do well to look into this matter, and if they are desirous of obtaining the best results for their efforts should endeavor to get a breed that will bring the best market price, or in other words that is most in demand. They are perfectly safe in choosing any of the following breeds: Rocks, Orpingtons, Wyandottes or Rhode Island Reds, but after all is said we cannot get away too far, from the farmer's standpoint, from the good old Barred Plymouth Rocks.

SEVEN DAY TESTS

From Farm and Dairy.

Champions of the yearly tests, especially since the introduction of the Record of Performance for pure bred dairy cattle, have been given to making light of the seven day and even longer short records. It would be idle to gainsay the contention that the yearly tests as compared with the seven day or even 30 day tests have the advantage. Nevertheless, seven day tests have been of great material benefit to our dairy interests and they have a large place in the estimation of all fair-minded dairymen. Seven day tests offer ample opportunity to the feeder for exercising his skill and they demonstrate the dairy qualities of a cow to a great degree.

Some expert authorities in the United States, notable among whom might be mentioned Professor Eckles of the Missouri Agricultural College, have, in a degree, pronounced against the seven day test as conducted by some breeders shortly after their cows have freshened. Their action seems to be warranted inasmuch as lately there has been a tendency on the part of a few breeders in the United States to unduly emphasize the importance of seven day records which has led them to adopt methods which are apt to bring discredit on this form of record and which are detrimental to the long continued production of a dairy cow.

It is contended that an abnormal percentage of fat is found in the milk of cows undergoing the seven day test. It is well known that by giving the cow a long period of rest and getting her into a high condition of flesh and being in the hands of expert feeders an abnormally high percentage of fat can, for a short period afterwards be obtained. Reference to the test of over 50 cows of the Holstein-Friesian breed entered in the Canadian Record of Performance test shows that as a rule, the first test does not run higher than the average for the year. In a few cases, the first tests were high, but in these instances, we are informed, that each of the cows had been prepared by heavy feeding previous to calving.

Notwithstanding the known weakness of seven day tests, Farm and Dairy believes in them. These tests have been of great value in interesting farmers in the producing capacities of cows and they have shown up the possibilities of milk production in a manner most favorable to the dairy industry. There is a danger here, however for those breeders who may carry this thing too far. There has been no harm worked yet in Canada from seven day records but there is a possibility of breeders making trouble for themselves and for the breed if undue emphasis is laid upon the seven day test. Now is the time to act before any damage has been worked. Along with the judicious use of the seven day test breeders should look more and more to, and take greater advantage of, the possibilities of the Record of Performance.

Seven day records to be of the most value should be accompanied with information as to feed consumed, period of rest before freshening and other information on those points which are known to be such important factors in influencing a high record of production for a short period after calving. The seven day records made after eight months of lactation are to be commended. This latter test is calculated to show the staying powers of a cow in long periods of production and there can be little if any objection taken to it on the ground of influencing the production of fat by undue earlier preparation, or while the cow is dry. This test might well be more greatly emphasized and be patronized more by the breeders of Holstein cattle. The need of the present day breeding is not so much to develop cows that will milk heavily for a short time but that will produce heavily and be persistent throughout the longer or yearly periods.

WINTER FOOD FOR DAIRY COWS

From Farm and Dairy.

We have plenty of mixed hay and corn ensilage to feed to our dairy cows this winter, but will have to purchase most of the grain we feed. At present prices what feeds can be purchased and fed most economically? Most of our cows freshened this fall, so we will be feeding quite heavily.—J. M. Oxford Co., Ont.

It is advisable to purchase feeds high in protein. Analysis of milk shows that it contains a very high percentage of nitrogenous materials. The carbonaceous materials that are necessary can be furnished cheaply in the corn ensilage.

Gluten meal, brewers' grains, linseed meal and cotton seed meal as may be seen are very high in protein content. All of these feeds with the exception of dried brewers' grains seem very expensive when compared with wheat bran. Their extra nutritive value however makes them much cheaper as feed for dairy cows. Cotton seed and linseed meal are the cheapest foods we can get at present for dairy cows but they are too heavy to be fed exclusively in the ration. They should be lightened up with wheat bran or some similar bulky material.

Feed	Protein	Carbo-hydrates	Fat
Corn	7.9	68.7	4.3
Gluten meal	25.8	43.3	11.0
Gluten feed	20.4	40.4	2.9
Wheat bran	12.2	39.2	2.7
Brewers' grains	15.7	36.3	5.1
Linseed meal	29.3	32.7	7.
Cotton seed meal	37.2	16.9	12

Dry brewers grains make very cheap food, where they can be obtained, but only a small part of the ration can consist of these grains as they are not palatable and unless mixed with other meal will not be eaten by most cows.

Gluten meal is probably the best feed for forcing the milk yield of cows. When purchasing gluten meal be sure not to get gluten feed. Gluten feed is poorer in protein and fat than gluten meal and hence has not the same milk producing properties.

One can by study of the composition of the feeds as given and comparing with the prices of the feed decide which food it will be advisable to purchase. A mixture of grains is always better than feeding them singly.

In most parts of Ontario a ration consisting of two parts gluten, two parts cotton seed or linseed meal and three or four parts of bran if all meal must be purchased would give good results. Feed about one pound of this mixture for every five pounds of milk.

PAYING PATRONS EXACTLY

From Farm and Dairy.

"It is wonderful what some patrons will think of in their endeavors to get a little more for their cream than they deserve," said a prominent Eastern Ontario creamery man in conversation with an editor of Farm and Dairy recently. "Only lately one of my patrons who had been delivering 35 per cent. cream throughout the whole month delivered a thin 20 per cent. cream on the last day of the month. As we take equal samples each morning he expected to get credit for more fat than he delivered. I took a separate test of this sample however and gave him credit for what he had actually brought in."

This patron was doing intentionally what many patrons are doing unintentionally all the time. If the composite test is to be a fair method of deciding the amount of fat delivered at the creamery the test must be uniform for each delivery; otherwise the sample taken should be in proportion to the weight of the cream delivered.

AN EXAMPLE

Suppose a patron delivers 100 lbs. of 40 per cent. cream one week and 200 lbs. of 20 per cent cream the next week. The composite sample would give a fat reading of 30 per cent. Three hundred pounds of cream at 30 per cent. would be equivalent to 90 lbs. fat while the actual delivery is 80 lbs, 40 + (2 × 20) = 80. Another patron may deliver 200 lbs. of 40 per cent. and 100 lbs. of 20 per cent. cream. This patron would get credit for just 90 lbs. of fat while he actually delivers 100 lbs., (2 × 40) + 20 = 100). Had samples been taken in proportion to the weight of cream in each case the results would have been as follows:

With one-third of the first sample testing 40 per cent. and two-thirds 20 per cent. the test of the composite sample would have been 26.66 per cent. which would mean 300 × 26.66 80 lbs. of fat. In the second case the average test would have been 33.33 per cent. and the patron would have received credit for 100 lbs. fat.

There are two methods in use for taking an aliquot test. The graduated cylinder is recommended by the Wisconsin dairy school. A certain number of c.c's is taken for every 100 lbs. of cream delivered. Where the cream of each patron is delivered separately the method adopted by the Renfrew Creamery is quicker and easier. A glass tube is run down to the bottom of the cream in the can of each patron and sample obtained in this way which is in exact proportion to the amount of cream delivered. If the cream is very thick it is necessary to suck the cream into the tube somewhat.

POULTRY SOLD ALIVE

From Farm and Dairy.

Miss C. A. Adamson, Peterboro Co., Ont.

It came as welcome news to us that, in the case of nearly all kinds of poultry, it will realize as much sold alive as if it were dressed and disposed of on the local market. At special seasons of the year particularly is this true. For instance, old hens sold during late June and early July realize us a price fully twice as great or greater than they would bring later on in the fall or now dressed and sold locally.

Before going to the labor and the general inconveniences caused by dressing a lot of poultry for a local market, I would advise anyone to enquire as to prices that can be realized for the stuff if sold alive. The work of the women folk on many a farm this past year has been greatly lightened through the poultry being disposed of alive.

INCREASE IS SLOW

Liberal Victories In Conservative Strongholds Argues Well For an Increased Governmental Majority In the Rural Districts—"Joe" Martin Elected In East Parry Sound With Smaller Majority.

London, Dec. 6.—The results of yesterday's elections merely confirm the opinion formed from the results of Saturday's contests that the Unionists now have no possible hope of replacing the Liberal Government in power. The only question now is, whether the Liberals will return with a larger or smaller majority.

To gain a bare majority in the new Parliament, the Unionists must make a net gain of 32 seats. Thus far, with 530 pollings, they have gained eleven, and the Liberals six seats, a net gain of but five. The gain for the Unionists on Saturday was seven, while the Liberals gained four. Yesterday the Liberals gained four and the Liberals two seats. A continuation at this rate of progress would kill the Unionist prediction that the Asquith Cabinet would come back with a greatly weakened majority, and would be more than ever dependent upon their Irish and Labor allies.

It must be remembered, however, that the Liberals lost at the January elections a large number of seats through three-cornered contests. Such contests are largely eliminated in the present elections, and this may give the Liberals sufficient gains to balance those of the Unionists. On the whole it seems likely that the new House of Commons will meet with the position of the parties practically unchanged. The question will then arise whether the King will feel justified in giving guarantees for the creation of Liberal peers to force the veto bill through the House of Lords.

The Unionists rally in Lancashire has been maintained, and the Liberal hope of winning two seats at Preston has been disappointed, but what the Liberals lost in Lancashire as compensated for by their better showing in York-shire.

In Liverpool the strong campaign by the Unionist orator, F. E. Smith, greatly improved the Unionist position. The Unionists gained the seat for the Exchange division of Liverpool, as well as that for Birkenhead. In the latter case the Liberal defeat was attributed to the recent absence of H. Vivian on a free trade mission in Canada.

The two seats the Liberals lost in London yesterday, Islington (North) and St. Pancras (West), were held by very small majorities in the previous Parliament.

Some of the Liberal gains, such as Wakefield, a cathedral city, which has been represented by a Unionist for eight years, and Cheltenham, another Tory stronghold and residential city, largely composed of retired officers, are noteworthy, as is the fact that in the royal borough of Windsor, the Liberals succeeded in reducing the Unionist majority.

These signs of the conversion of the traditionally Conservative middle classes may be an indication of a similar change in the country agricultural districts, which went almost entirely Unionist in January.

Among the members returned unopposed is Ald. Daniel Boyle, for North Mayo. Doyle won this seat last January by only 40 votes, and his unopposed return is now attributed to appreciation of his services in accompanying John E. Redmond on his recent mission to America.

Mr. Redmond last night issued a public denial of the allegation made by a Conservative candidate that he (Redmond), in a public speech, repudiated allegiance to the King.

"Kaiser Wilhelm" Crippled.

New York, Dec. 6.—A wireless message brought word here yesterday afternoon that the Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse cast her propeller at 2.15 p.m. yesterday and is now making port with her starboard propeller at 10 knots an hour. At this rate she will dock Wednesday afternoon, instead of Wednesday forenoon.

More Deadly Than The Plague

The Common Cold is Held Responsible For a Multitude of Human Ills.

Colds kill more people than plagues. When not avoided they can often be hurried from the system by keeping the filtering and excretory organs active.

Many write us that nothing helps them to so quickly get rid of a cold as Dr. Chase's Kidney and Liver Pills. This is because these pills act directly on the liver, kidneys and bowels, and promptly arouse their activity.

The poisonous matter which collects with every cold is quickly removed from the system before it has time to cause trouble or give rise to other derangements.

If misfortune in the form of a cold should overtake you do not give it a chance to attack the lungs or to settle on the kidneys. Get rid of it quickly by using Dr. Chase's Kidney and Liver Pills.

Mr J. H. Gibbard, Mission City, B. C., writes:—"We have used Dr. Chase's Kidney and Liver Pills for the last year, and think they are just the thing as a family medicine. My wife had been sick for nearly two years with torpid liver and kidney complaint. Sometimes she was so bad she had to go to bed for two or three weeks at a time, and she suffered dreadfully.

"Reading of Dr. Chase's Kidney and Liver Pills, she decided to use them, and has been improving ever since. She is never sick a day now, so we believe the cure permanent. I have been greatly benefitted myself by this treatment for kidney trouble."

Dr. A. W. Chase's Kidney and Liver Pills, one pill a dose, 25 cents a box, all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto. To protect you against imitations the portrait and signature of A. W. Chase, M.D., the famous Receipt book author, are on every box.

Not Seen Near Laundry.

Cambridge, Mass., Dec. 6.—The prosecution's direct case against Hattie Leblanc, on trial for the murder of Clarence F. Glover, will probably be before the jury to-day.

No witness has yet testified to seeing Hattie Leblanc enter or leave the laundry, where the shooting is said to have taken place, and three efforts by the district attorney to introduce testimony that more closely connected the girl with the crime have been ruled out by the court. On the other hand, the defence has turned the attention of the jury from the little Cape Breton girl to Mrs. Lillian M. Glover, the widow. Half a dozen witnesses testified yesterday to seeing her in her own home about the time the shooting is said to have occurred in the laundry.

Mrs. Glover's personal counsel, S. D. Elmore, was on the stand longer than anyone else yesterday, and was forced to admit he was paid $4,513 by Mrs. Glover immediately following the murder to defend her against a situation which had arisen.

Settled After Charge Was Laid.

St. Catharines, Dec. 6.—Magistrate Campbell spent all afternoon hearing a charge of theft of $30 by William Meadows, from Lowry, Vivian & Shovaller, growers at St. Davids, by whom he was employed. It was shown that the accused had collected money appropriating it to his own use, but after the information was issued, he had settled the amount. Under the circumstances, the magistrate held him guilty, but did not send the case for trial. To-day Meadows will answer to another charge of theft of $26.

CATTLE MARKETS.

NEW YORK, Dec. 5.—London cabled quote American cattle weak, at 12c to 13½c per lb.; refrigerator beef at 9½c to 10c per lb.

Union Stock Yards.

TORONTO, Dec. 5.—Receipts of live stock at the Union Stock Yards were 147 carloads, consisting of 2549 cattle, 224 hogs, 2386 sheep and lambs and 23 calves.

Exporters.

Maybee & Wilson bought 101 export cattle on order, 1300 to 1300 lbs. each, at $5.40 to $5.60. This firm will be buyers of export cattle next week.

Butchers.

The best butchers' cattle were firm to 10c higher than last week, that is a few picked lots, good enough for the Xmas trade, which sold up to 6c per cwt., which was higher than the bulk of the export cattle sold at. Prime picked lots of butchers sold at $5.75 to $6 but we only heard of 8 cattle that brought $6 for butcher purposes, and they were bought by Alexander Levack; loads of good, $5.40 to $5.70; medium, $5.10 to $5.35; common, $4 to $5, and two or three lots sold under $4; cows, $3 to $4.75; canners, $1.75 to $2.50.

Stockers and Feeders.

Coughlin & Co. sold one load of short-keep feeders, 1230 lbs. each, at $5.45. Good straight feeders sold from $4.75 to $5.25; stockers, $4 to $4.60.

Milkers and Springers.

The highest price paid to-day was $70, which was for a cow that would have brought $85 not long ago, which shows that the keen edge is somewhat off, on the milker and springer market to-day. Fred Rowntree bought all on sale at $50 to $75, and only two brought the latter price.

Veal Calves.

Deliveries were light only 25, and these sold at firm prices, from $4.50 to $6, and two or three extra quality sold at $6.50.

Sheep and Lambs.

There was a serious break on the sheep and lamb market to-day, as will be seen by the quotations given and the various sales made by the commission salesmen. Wesley Dunn quoted ewes, extra, at $4.10 to $4.40; rams, $3 to $3.25; lambs, $5.35 to $5.60.

Hogs.

Hogs—Receipts, 3,000; 10c to 15c higher than Saturday; light, $6.20 to $6.30; mixed, $6.40 to $6.45; heavy, $6.40 to $6.45; roughs, $5.10 to $5.25; sows, $4 to $4.50; boars, $2.50 to $3.50; stags, one-third off; dairies, $6.10 to $6.25; country points, $6.10 to $6.25; weighed off cars, $6.40 to $6.45.

Montreal Live Stock.

MONTREAL, Dec. 5.—(Special.)—At the Montreal Stock Yards West End Market receipts last week were 2500 cattle, 1200 sheep and lambs, 1800 hogs and 300 calves. Supplies this morning were 1400 cattle, 600 sheep and lambs, 1200 hogs and 300 calves. Cattle trade shows an advance of 10c per cwt., somewhat of a surprise to the trade, as offerings were even larger than last week, notwithstanding fewer receipts of northwest ranchers. There was a good demand from local butchers on account of favorable weather. A few picked steers sold as high as $5.40, but the bulk in choice stock was done at $5.10 to $5.25, good at $5.20 to $5.50, fairly good at $4.75 to $5; fair at $4.30 to $4.50, and common at $3.50 to $4. Supplies were fair, with good demand from packers and the ruling price for selected lots was $7.10 per cwt., weighed off cars. There is still a feeling that prices will come down owing to recent weakness in foreign markets for bacon and supplies in the country are large. Trade of the market for sheep and lambs was stronger and prices for the former show an advance of 25c per cwt. the latter 10c to 25c per cwt., as compared with a week ago. The demand was good, with sales of sheep at $4.25 to $4.50 and lambs at $6.25 to $6.50. Demand for calves was good and offerings small. Prices were strong at 50c to $1 for common and at $1.50 to $2 per lb. for good veal weights.

New York Live Stock.

NEW YORK, Dec. 5.—Beeves—Receipts, 2,200; steers steady to 10c higher; bulls and cows steady; steers, $5.10 to $6.50; bulls, $4.60 to $5.65; cows, $2.25 to $4.90; tail-ends, $4.

Calves—Receipts, 100; veals steady to 25c higher; grassers steady; veals, $7.50 to $11; culls, $4.50 to $6.50; grassers, $3.50 to $4; barnyard and pen calves, $3 to $3.

Sheep and Lambs—Receipts, 11,200; sheep steady, at $4.25 to $4.50; culls, $3 to $3.75; lambs 10c to 15c lower, at $6.25 to $6.60; culls, $4.50 to $5; yearlings, $5.75 to $6.

Hogs—Receipts, 11,000; nominally steady to strong, at $6.25 to $6.

Chicago Live Stock.

CHICAGO, Dec. 5.—Cattle—Receipts, 45,000; market slow and weak; beeves, $4.40 to $7.60; Texas steers, $4.25 to $5.25; western steers, $4.20 to $6.25; stockers and feeders, $3.40 to $5.70; cows and heifers, $2.20 to $6.25; calves, $7 to $9.

A NEW INDUSTRY TO MANUFACTURE YARN IS SEEKING LOCATION HERE

The Bonner Worth Co., Ltd., May Erect Factory in Peterborough---Would Employ Thirty Persons at the Start ---The Agreement Between the Company and the City.

THE BY-LAW TO BE VOTED ON IN JANUARY, 1911

Name of Com pany.

Bonner, Worth Co. Ltd., manufacturers of worsted yarn, with an authorized capital of at least $100,000, and a paid up capital of $35,000.

What Company Must Do.

The Company must purchase land for a site to erect thereon a factory and instal in it machinery and plant to the value of at least $18,000, of which at least $2,000 shall be fixed machinery.

Must employ at least thirty operatives.

Must have erected by September, the first, 1911, a two storey brick building, 75 by 80 feet.

Building must be equipped by the first of January, 1912 and before June 1st, 1912, must be employing thirty operatives.

What City Gives.

The city to assist the Company by advancing it by way of a loan the sum of $12,000 without interest.

To advance $6,000 when machinery and plant is installed, and the remaining half when factory is in operation for one year and employing 30 operatives. The Company will repay the City Trust the amount of loan in equal instalments of $1,000, the first to be made within a year after the payment to the Company of the last instalment of the loan.

Exemption from municipal taxes on buildings and machinery and plant therein, and the business assessment for a period of ten years.

A by-law to execute an agreement between the City and the Bonner Worth Company Ltd, was put through at the Council meeting last evening and will be submitted to the ratepayers at the next January elections. The company is a newly organized one, the promoters and managers, Messrs. Isaac Bonner and Edgar Worth, until recently connected with the Penman people of Paris, Ont. Messrs. Bonner and Worth visited Peterborough last week, and in company with Mayor Morrow and Industrial Commissioner Dugan drove around the city and inspected several sites that are available. It is learned that these gentlemen prefer erecting their building in the south end of the city, but no definite site has been chosen. The members of the Council met the representatives of the company in a meeting of the Committee of the Whole and the various clauses of the by-law were gone over and proposition seemed a very favourable one to the aldermen. Messrs. Bonner and Worth took a copy of the by-law away with them for the purpose of considering it and later notified the mayor that they were prepared to acquiesce in the agreement in as far as they were concerned.

The company will manufacture worsted yarn such as might be used either by the Brinton Carpet Company or the Auburn Woollen Mills in the manufacture of the goods they turn out. The Bonner Worth Company, will employ mostly girls, about one-third of their employees, it was stated, being men. It was pointed out by Mr. Bonner that they would probably employ a good deal more than thirty persons the first year, but they did not wish to be bound to a greater number.

The company has a good financial backing and the industry is one that is likely to grow to great proportions in the course of a few years. The by-law will be submitted at the next January elections and the ratepayers will have an opportunity of expressing their approval or disapproval as the case might be.

VOTE OF THANKS TO THE MAYOR

At the conclusion of the business of the Council last evening, Ald Hicks took the chair and Ald. Phelan moved a vote of thanks to Mayor Morrow for the able and carefal manner in which he had conducted the city's business this year. The motion was seconded by Ald. Metheral and heartily endorsed by a standing vote. His Worship Mayor Morrow thanked his colleagues for their resolution and assured them that he had enjoyed presiding over their meetings and appreciated the courtesy they had always showed him. He wished all a happy and prosperous New Year.

UNIONISTS LOSE HOPE

Their Press This Morning Admits Victory of the Asquith Ministry Seems to be Pretty Well Assured

ACCUSE GOVERNMENT

Examiner Special.

LONDON, ENG., DEC. 6.—Unionist papers this mornig have changed their tone considerably and most of them are agreed that the results of the elections so far give little ground for a hope of defeating the Asquith ministry. They are beginning to seek reasons for the impending victory of the Government which they seem to admit now is pretty well assured. They accuse the government of ulterior motives in forcing the election on the registration of eighteen months ago. However, they are urging the Unionist followers to a never-say-die campaign and point out they can still gain enough to at least put the government into the hands of the Irish Nationalists, whose power must militate against the government. The Daily Telegraph makes a rabid denunciation of the Asquith-Redmond coalition, and says they have a plot to destroy the British constitution. It talks of Asquith and his government as charlatans of insincerity.

LONDON, ENG., DEC 6.—Seven o'clock English time—"Follow Sunderland" is the new war cry sounded to-night in the Liberal meetings throughout Great Britain. The victory of Hammer Greenwood, the Canadian, and his running mate in Sunderland, is being enthusiastically declare dthe greatest in the campaign. Both of these seats were regarded as thoroughly Unionist.

Complete Standing at 4 p.m.

Unionists 126.

Govt. coalition — Liberals 90, Nationalists 25. Labourites 16. Total 131. Net Unionist gain three net. Labour gain 1.

LONDON, ENG., NOV. 6. That Unionists have made only three gains where they expected to make twenty-five, is the admission of the leaders this afternoon. They have advised their followers by telegraph and letter to make the strongest concentrated efforts in remaining seats in order to prevent losses to their cause. There were pollings to-day for forty-one seats. Hanar Greenwood, Canadian Labour, has been elected in Sunderland, where he was defeated last election.

ACCEPTS CALL TO ST. ANDREW'S

Sketch of the Career of Rev. Jas. Rollins, of London, Who Will be Rev. J. G. Potter's Successor in Local Church

A VERY ABLE MINISTER

LONDON, DEC. 6.—At the meeting of the London Presbytery held this afternoon, the call of St. Andrew's church, Peterborough to Rev. Jas. Rollins, of London, was sustained. His induction into his new charge will take lace on December 20th.

The following brief sketch, by request of the Examiner, has been sent by Rev. Dr. D. L. McCrae, of First Westminster church, at London, and formerly of Collingwood, an old newspaper man. Dr. McCrae has been a co-Presbyter of Mr. Rollins, both in Barrie and London.

The Rev. James Rollins, B.A., of King Street Presbyterian church, London, who this afternoon, at a meeting of the London Presbytery, accepted a call to St. Andrew's church of Peterborough, is a native born Canadian, of Irish extraction Mr. Rollins is a graduate in Arts of Queen's University, and took his theological course in the same institution. He was a prize man in oratory and a scholarship man in Systematic Theology, Principal Grant's subject. Mr. Rollins spent a session at Queen's after completing his theological studies in the capacity of assistant librarian and business manager of Queen's Quarterly, and in reading honour English, under Prof. Cappon. His first charge was Elmvale and Knox Church, in the Presbytery of Barrie, where he spent seven years and three months. During his pastorate, a beautiful manse was built, and the debt on the new church greatly reduced. Mr. Rollins assisted in the canvas of the Century Fund, with good results, and was an active and valued member of the various committees of the Presbytery. At the time of his call to King stret, London, he was clerk of the Barrie Presbytery, and Convener of the Augmentation Committee.

King Street Church, London, was in a precarious condition, when Mr. Rollins came to it requiring the closest personal atention. The membership under his ministry has increased from 277 to nearly 300. East of Adelaide street, at the time of Mr. Rollin's induction King street was the only Presbyterian congregation, now there are three other congregations, strategically placed—one of them an augmented charge, about to move into a fine, new brick church; the other two promising missions. All this expansion has taken place with the heartiest approval and assistance of Mr. Rollins and his session, though it curtailed the King Street field, and meant the loss of members.

The King Street church has been generous to Mr. Rollins, increasing his salary three times and always paying most liberally in proportion to their means.

Mr. Rollins has always taken his full share in Presbytery and civic work. At the present time he is Convener of the Presbytery's Home Mission Committee, Secretary-Treasurer of the Presbyterian Monday Club; Secretary-Treasurer of the Western Alumni Association of Queen University, president of the Reform work and in the fight for the Convener of the Presbytery's committee on Systematic Beneficettee. Mr. Rollins has always been active in Temperance and Moral and Social Reform work, and the fight for the preservation of the Lord's Day. As a pastor and friend he is beloved by his people and as a preacher he is over the ablest in Western Ontario. He has built up his own congregation splendidly and retained the good will of all his brethren in a pre-eminent degree. Personally Mr. Rollins is broad-minded, large-hearted, and one of the most genial and loveable of men. He goes to Peterborough in the very prime of his manhood, and with the hearty co-operation of his new congregation, his hosts of friends in London, and elsewhere predict great things for him. He is sane in counsel and enthusiastic in his work, and St. Andrew's would do well to accept his leadership from the very start and treat him generously.

Mrs. Rollins, a graduate of Queen's, is a cultured and charming lady, greatly beloved by all who know her. She is a recognized leader in the ladies' societies of the church, and also of the city, and has proved herself a true help-meet to her husband in all his work. The ministers and laymen of London, and the surrounding district deeply regret the removal of Mr Rollins, and wish for him the greatest success in his new field.

REQUEST FOR EXEMPTION FROM TAXES WAS REFUSED ST. PETER'S TOTAL ABSTINENCE SOCIETY

Heated Discussion in the City Council Last Night Over the Question of Exemptions---Counsel for T. A. S. and Counsel for Three Local Societies Were Heard.

THE COUNCIL CHAMBER WAS CROWDED WITH PEOPLE

The question of granting exemption from taxes to certain Societies in this city called forth a heated discussion at the regular meeting of the Council last evening, finally resulting in no action being taken in regard to the request of Mr. J. H. Burnham on behalf of the Orangemen, the Knights of Pythias and the Sons of England, and in the striking out on the clause of the Finance committee, recommending that legislation be granted to exempt St. Peter's Total Abstinence Society's property. The Council chamber was packed with citizens, all apparently interested in this matter, as several times they showed approval of certain Aldermen's remarks by enthusiastic applause. M. J. H Burnham spoke on behalf of the above named societies and Mr. D. O'Connell on behalf of St. Peter's Society.

Mr. Burnham was the first to address the council. He stated at the outset that there was no desire on the part of the societies he represented, to be unfair and they did not want anybody else to be unfair. He believed that there had been a great deal of carelessness in regard to exemptions, he suggested that the will of the people be taken on the matter. The ratepayers he believed should have something to say. The T. A. S. had applied for exemption and in view of exemption having been granted the Y.M.C.A. and the Y.W.C.A. it looked reasonable that the T.A.S. should also have it. There was a strong feeling that this exemption was being extended too far, but if one society or association received it, why not them all. The societies he represented protested against exemption, but insisted that if one had it, all should.

Mr. O'Connell's Remarks.

Before the motion of Ald Bradburn, seconded by Ald. Morgan, that the report of the Finance committee be adopted with the exception of the clause in regard to the T.A.S. and that it be struck out, Mr. D. O'Connell asked permission to address the Council. He stated that St. Peter's T. A.S. had been formed ten years ago for the promotion of temperance. It had now a membership of over one thousand. Each year the Society, in its noble work had been assisted by the city, in the way of granting them exemption, and never until this year has this indulgence been protested. The speaker thought the request in regard to the new building would be granted, as for the past ten years no one has thought it worth while to protest. It always had a ready acquiescence by previous councils. In 1896 the Council assisted that most estimable institution, the Y.M.C.A. by giving them exemption, and in 1904 the Y.W.C.A. was granted the same. The Catholics were only too glad that such concessions were made to such worthy institutions. There was no organization in the city doing a better work than the T.A.S. in the struggle to help men to live lives of sobriety. There were many Catholic Fraternal Societies in the city who feel that they have no claim upon the city in the way of asking exemptions. They were not the same as the T.A.S. and he would strongly oppose such a request were they to ask it.

Some Views Expressed.

Ald. Hicks stated that he had heard considerable talk about the granting of exemption to the T.A.S., but he thought that if the T.A.S. was to the Catholic people what the Y.M.C.A. and Y.W.C.A. were to the Protestants then they should be granted exemption. The T.A.S. was doing good work and although he had been represented as having always opposed the Catholics he was in favour of granting exemption in this case.

Ald Phelan remembered when the Y.M.C.A. was granted exemption, and thought it was only fair and right that they should have it. However, he believed in doing the square thing all around.

"I am opposed to exemptions in all cases," said Ald. Metheral. If people who can pay, don't pay, then the burden of taxation falls upon the working man. Other societies are doing just as good work as that of temperance, and are not seeking exemption. The T.A.S. has been nursed in its infancy until now it has acquired a big mansion across the street, and they should be able to pay their own taxes. The property recently bought by the Catholics from the Wentworth estate is exempted by law, and if we grant exemptions to this new home of the T.A.S., which heretofore brought a revenue to this city, he/her will go the rates, and others will have to pay the taxes."

Ald. Duffus "What would you do regarding the Y.M.C.A."

Ald. Metheral "If the law would permit cut their exemption off."

Ald. Duffus "What would you do with the other."

Ald. Metheral "Cut them all off — churches as well."

Ald. Batten was opposed to exemption any society or church. They should all pay their taxes. Only one church is paying taxes and that should be the proudest church in Peterborough. Should the city continue its policy of exemption one-third of the property would soon be free from taxes and the working man will have to suffer in consequence. "I am opposed to exemption and always shall be."

The vote was taken as follows:

Against granting exemption to T. A.S.—Bradburn, Morgan, Metheral, Graham, Batten and Duncan.

For granting exemption Ald. Phelan, Duffus, Hicks, Gillespie and Butler.

The Examiner's New Story Commences On Saturday

Saturday next, Dec. 10th, will be a red-letter day with Examiner readers for more reasons than one. In the first place Saturday is the date of the big Christmas edition, which this year will be the largest and most complete ever issued in this city. In the second it marks the commencement of a fascinating new serial story, the exclusive rights for which the Examiner has secured. The title of the next in the series of Examiner serial hits is entitled "Ashton-Kirk, Investigator," from the pen of John McIntyre, and is a gripping, spell-binding story of a mysterious and intricate case which is investigated by Ashton-Kirk, a unique specialist in crime problems. The love story of a beautiful and rarely spirited girl is strangely interwoven into the mystery and the Examiner has no hesitation in saying that its readers will enjoy every moment of this intensely interesting and cleverly written story. It is a detective story, but widely different from others of its kind. Do not miss a chance to read one of the best stories published in years. Remember, it commences Saturday next, Dec. 10, the big Christmas edition number of the Examiner.

$80,000 Paid By Local People Under Double Liability Bank Act

The call made on the shareholders of the Ontario Bank has resulted in $780,000 having been paid under the double liability act provision. Over $80,000 of this amount has been sent in by citizens of Peterborough, who will no doubt long remember the Ontario Bank. The call of 95 per cent. is practically a call upon the full liability. Should this call and the assets more than meet the required sum the shareholders will be returned any surplus.

The bank suspended payment in 1908, and on Sept. 28, 1908, the winding up order was made. It is expected that at least two years more will be needed to realize upon the assets, which consist of Fort William and other real estate, stocks, etc. A 10 per cent. dividend will shortly be declared to the creditors, who will ultimately be paid in full.

Junior Hockey Players To Meet At The Rink

All junior players in the city who intend to play the game this winter are requested to meet the management of the club at a meeting to be held in the hockey room at the Rock street rink on Friday night at 8 o'clock. This invitation is extended to every junior player and the boys are cordially invited to attend and get in touch with the committee to talk matters over and make plans for the season. There should be a big attendance. Every boy who wants to play this winter should not miss this meeting.

THEY PLAYED WITH MATCHES

And as a Result Fire Brigade Was Called to Home of W. J. Koster, Charlotte Street, This Morning

DAMAGE WAS SMALL

The Fire Brigade received a telephone call this morning at the same hour as yesterday morning's call, at 10 o'clock. It was another case of children playing with matches. This time it was at the home of Mr. W. J. Koster, 574 Charlotte street. The children were playing with matches near the window and the lace curtains caught fire. The curtains, blinds, window sash and wainscoting were burned. But the total damage would not exceed $25.00. The building was insured but the contents were not. Mrs. Koster displayed remarkable presence of mind in sending in the alarm and also rescuing the children, who were badly frightened. The brigade responded quickly and succeeded in extinguishing the fire before it had got tightly under way.

TUESDAY, DEC. 6, 1910

PROPOSED NEW INDUSTRY.

The City Council and the citizens have before them a proposal for the establishment of a new industry which seems to be in every way worthy of favourable consideration. A few concern, known as the Bonner-Worth Company, (Limited), is desirous of establishing a business in Peterborough to be devoted to the manufacture of worsted yarns, with an authorized capital of $100,000 and a paid-up capital of $25,000. The company, which has, it is understood, inducements from other places, will establish a manufactory in Peterborough on the giving of a certain degree of encouragement.

The conditions are set forth in detail in another column. The proposal generally is this. On the company purchasing lands and erecting thereon, Buildings suitable for their purposes, which, according to the size proposed, will be worth from $12,000 to $15,000, and installing machinery to the value of at least $18,000, of which $2,000 worth shall be fixed machinery, and employing a fixed number of hands, the city is to advance the company, by way of loan, $12,000 without interest—$6,000 when machinery and plant are installed, and $6,000 when the manufactory shall have been in operation one year and employing at least thirty hands. The loan advanced is to be repaid in instalments of $1,000 per year. The Company is also to receive exemption from taxation—except school taxes—for a period of ten years.

There does not seem to be any objection from a business point of view to the city dealing with the company upon the terms proposed. The principals, Messrs. Bonner & Worth, are practical men, with long training in the business they propose to establish. What they propose to manufacture—yarns—are a staple in demand by a large number of industries—woolen mills, carpet factories, manufacturers of underclothing, etc., and the demand will doubtless be equal to the supply of output by the new concern.

The by-law covering the proposal will be submitted to the vote of the people at the approaching municipal elections, and the people are asked to give the proposal unprejudiced attention. There does not seem to be any risk in giving the assistance the city proposes to give. The city's advance by way of loan will be protected by a first mortgage on buildings, worth at least $12,000, and on $18,000 worth of machinery, with the proviso that the loan is to be repaid in yearly instalments. It seems to be well worth while to secure a promising new industry on such safe and easy terms. The City Council have gone into the matter thoroughly, and, after full investigation and consideration advance the proposal as a most favourable one for the city.

THE FRUIT OF THE SYSTEM.

At last night's City Council meeting, the last for general business, one alderman brought up the question of a garbage by-law. Another alderman voiced the result of the system of changing councils by replying: "What's the use of taking up this matter at the Council's last meeting? It should be left over for the incoming Council to deal with." That is one important explanation of the failure of the present system to give satisfaction. Here we have one of the most important matters that can engage the attention of the people's representatives the protection of the public health neglected the whole year, and at the end left as a legacy to another council to be treated. Perhaps, with the same indifference. That it received last year. If we had had the city governed by a commission of business men, that is, by men, working on business principles, would we have such a flippant dismissal of important matters?

The City Council have had the matter of a garbage by-law dinned into their ears all summer, but no action was taken. The Council took office in January. It took some time to get into working order, and before anything very important was done the holiday season was upon them, and since that it has taken a good deal of time to deal with arrears of business. This sort of thing goes on from year to year and with the results reflected by the unsatisfactory management of the city's business.

When there are too many aldermen there is apt to be wasted time. With the Council practically elected every year, nearly the whole time on the part of some of the members is taken in the consideration of questions and policies and attitudes that will promote the reelection of members. If aldermen were sub in their places for three years, they would have, at least, two years to devote to business, and the third might be devoted to means for making their reelection sure. This however might not be needed. If a board of aldermen would seriously devote two years of a three-year term, to serving the people faithfully, they could afford to do the same the third year—their services would commend them to public approval.

Last night a great deal of the time of the most important meeting of the year was taken up in the consideration of a matter not specially in the public interests, something that should not be a subject of discussion at all. The city should have a policy on exemption from taxation, the matter should be decided upon principle; should be decided upon principle; when any body applied for exemption and came within the operation of the principle, the matter referred to a committee, could be settled without delay or interference with other business.

But under our present system we can have no continuous policy. We have not only changing membership of councils, but we have the indifference of the people. If the ratepayers would take enough interest to elect a body of aldermen, pledged to do business for the city on business principles a yearly change would not be so mischievous. But when the people elect representatives, not on the ground of their ability to do their business, but because they represent some special sectional, or other interest, we have that evil added to that of brevity of term.

There is one thing outstanding—we do not have satisfactory city government under the present system of yearly, or practically yearly change in representation. What do the people think about it? Will they continue to grumble about increasing taxation and not lift a finger to relieve themselves? We properly attach great importance to obtaining new industries; but good city government is, in itself, as important a matter, if not more so. Good city government, good civic services, good streets, a clean, healthy city and pleasant to live in are necessary elements in procuring new industries. We want better city government, a better system of government, and if we do not get it, we shall continue to muddle along in the same unsatisfactory way.

ELECTION RETURNS.

(Montreal Herald.)

It will help to an understanding of the political situation in Great Britain if we look a little closer at the results of the voting where there is no change, as well as in the ridings where gains were made. There were changes in only eleven places, and the net alteration was only three. As against this very small net variation, the constant factor is represented by a hundred and fourteen members so far elected.

There is a significance about the Unionist majorities of 3,449 and 2,796 in Birmingham, for instance. It means that Birmingham is rooted in its convictions and preferences. But so is there significance in the Labour majority of 3,290 in West Bradford, of 2,993 for the Liberal in East Bristol, of 4,174 in Halifax, of 4,088 in West Ham, London.

Quite as instructive in their way are the results in some of the close constituencies. Take West Wolverhampton, for instance, staying as it was, with a majority of 23 in a poll of over 11,000; or the three Salfords with over 28,000 votes cast, with 812 Liberal majority, of which 800 went to one candidate, or the five Manchester seats adjoining, where in a poll of over 45,000 the five successful Liberals had an aggregate majority of 2,345.

It is always interesting to know what change has been made in the minds of the people, by any new item of policy, but it is highly desirable to remember as the parties face each other for the future, these proofs that they have each in high degree stability of following, that the other side cannot hope, in any conceivable conditions of practical politics ,to dislodge.

All this tells its bearing upon the position of Parliament after the election, and upon the demand that will be made upon the Liberals to hold their hand if their majority is decreased a little in England. For it is another of the troubles of British fair play that the Liberal party is expected not merely to fight with strength against opponents who sometimes control the Commons and always control the Lords, but is expected also to rate at less than its face value any majority drawn from Scotland, Wales and Ireland, where its greatest strength lies. But the day of two rules and two measures is soon to pass.

How To Overcome And Operate A Refractory Or Other Furnace

(Mail and Empire.)

A school for the making of handy men would be a valuable addition to our educational institutions. It should be a night school, and the course need not be longer than six months. In that time the students would learn how to use a square, and a mitre box, how to sharpen and set a saw, how to draw a rusty screw, how to thaw out frozen pipes, mix a pup's tail, put a slate on the roof, mix paint and whitewash, repair a lock, put a washer on a tap, regulate a furnace, fit a storm window, repair an automobile tire, put in a pane of glass, milk a cow, set a hen, draw a cork without a corkscrew, find and stop a leak in a gas pipe, hang a door, and do as hundred other little jobs that nearly everyone has to do when he gets married and starts housekeeping. They are obliged to hire a tinsmith or a carpenter to do the odd jobs their fathers would have done just as well in less time. They don't know a monkey wrench from a brace and bit, and when there are new fire bricks to be fitted in the kitchen range, they have to call in a stove repairer. Their unfamiliarity with tools costs thousands of them money every week in the year, and if they can't afford to employ high-priced mechanics, they live in discomfort until they can. A few weeks' training in the use and handling of tools would be not only a good thing for their hands and brains but would save them hundreds of dollars and materially add to their subsequent comfort, and the comfort of those dependent upon them.

Masters of Furnaces.

How many young men who meet a sullen furnace in open conflict for the first time this Fall know how to quell its insubordination? Only those who are professional firemen and newspapermen. The young clerks, lawyers, and doctors, know nothing about it; nor do the maids they may employ. If they had spent the time they wasted in shooting pool in some such Technical school as we recommend, they would now be able to get up a good fire without melting the grate bars, or smoking the house out. Until some such institution is established these helpless young householders will have to either employ skilled professionals or look up the household hints in their favourite newspaper.

What Ails the Furnace?

Speaking of furnaces, a writer in Popular Mechanics gives some useful advice to the householder who is called upon to grapple with the heating problem. As a rule, there are only five trifling causes of worry in the average furnace, as follows:

1. It smokes.
2. It does not heat the house.
3. It makes too much heat.
4. It eats up too much coal.
5. It goes out unless watched closely.

Assuming that the furnace is the proper size fo the house it is required to heat, that the right sort of coal is used and that there is nothing mechanically defective about either furnace or flues, the exercise of a little common sense will cure the great majority of heating troubles. The first golden rule is to keep the furnace clean. Never let ashes accumulate under the grate. The best way is to take them out to the ash barrel every morning.

Smoking, Draft and Coal.

If the pipes and flues are kept reasonably free from soot, there will be no smoking except when it is necessary to light a fresh fire. A little smoke on these occasions is inevitable until the fire has been burning long enough to heat and dry chimney and flues. Excessive smoking is usually caused by too much draft. When the kindling wood is being burned under a strong draft so much smoke is created that the flues cannot carry it off fast enough, and it drives back. The banking of the fire at night with ashes is a mistake, for it chokes the draft, cools the house and frequently melts the grate bars. To get a proper fire in the furnaces, two sizes of coal should be used. The larger coal should be first put on after the fire has been leveled in the firebox. Then enough of the smaller coal should be placed on to cover it. Care must be taken that the smaller coal is not too small, otherwise it will fall between the larger chunks and thus defeat the very purpose for which it is intended, namely, to slightly check the burning of the larger pieces by shutting off some of the draft. In mild Winter weather the furnace should be rouled once a day; in zero weather, three times a day. More coal will be burned when it is fed by the single shovelful than when the firebox is well filled.

Lancaster Deserts Whitney.

St. Catharines, Dec. 6.—At a meeting of the executive of the Conservative Association of Lincoln County, E. A. Lancaster, M.P., declared that, owing to the Hydro-Electric power policy of the Whitney administration, he no longer is a supporter of the Ontario Government.

He claimed that that policy had many conditions such that it would be almost impossible for him to again be elected in this county.

London, Dec. 6.—A balloon, which rose from Mutich last Monday, was driven by a furious gale to the Orkneys, where it came to earth yesterday. On Sunday morning the balloon struck the sea, and a huge wave swooping over the basket, Meiser, one of the aeronauts, was carried away and drowned.

ONLY ONE TEAM HAS ENTERED CITY LEAGUE

West Ends Only Club to Pay Entrance Fee and the Annual Meeting Had Again to be Postponed, This Time Indefinitely---Looks Like No Senior Division This Year.

The prospects for the City Hockey League do not appear to be very bright. So far two meetings have been called with the net result that there has not been a quorum present and no business could be transacted. The second attempt was made last night, when the annual meeting was called to take place at the Oriental Hotel. The attendance consisted of President Graham, Secretary Craig, J. Oldham, representing the West Ends; W. Grady and W. Murray representing the Sacred Heart T. A. S. who wanted to put in a junior team, and representatives of the press. With only one senior club represented there was nothing to do but postpone the meeting indefinitely and there the matter stands. Unless two or three more teams come along in a hurry, Johnny Oldham's West End team will win a bloodless victory by default as the yellow and black team entered last night and will claim the championship if no one comes along to dispute the title with them.

It was thought that the withdrawal of the Strathconas would cause a number of teams who formerly hesitated to enter to do so, but this has not proved to be the case. Clubs wishing to enter are asked to notify Secretary Craig or the Examiner office of their intention to do so, as soon as possible. If they do not do this the League will drop through as far as a senior division is concerned at least.

SOME HOCKEY HAPPENINGS

The first hockey practice will likely be held this week. Some of the players are too eager to wait for ice in the rink and are looking for some of the frozen stuff outside to get going on their steel blades.

If Jack Oldham's team win the City League by default, they will have to banquet themselves. Anyway it's cheaper to win that way than through any other means.

The T.A.S were expected to enter a team in the Senior City League, but they have not been represented at either meeting called, so it looks as if there was nothing doing with the Coldwater Brigade.

Peterborough and Lindsay will likely have their annual battle this year as usual, although in the junior series instead of the intermediate. It is probable that the local juniors will be grouped with the Grove and Shoe team.

These are the days that skates are being dug out of the attic and hockey sticks rescued from the woodpile.

The Peterborough Intermediate O. H. A. team may open its season with an exhibition game on New Year's night with St. Michael's College of Toronto, the amateur champions of Canada and holders of the Allan Cup. A game with the Toronto seven should prove very popular.

Now is the time to start a good junior league going. With the post-mortem on the senior division in sight there is a great chance for the juniors to get in. A junior league with four or six teams and an age limit of eighteen and under should haul into prominence a lively bunch of juniors that will be decidedly useful a year or two hence. Woodstock has a junior league of this kind and at the end of each season they pick fourteen of the fastest players in the League to represent the city in the junior O. H. A. the following year. From these fourteen, a junior seven is selected and as a result Woodstock is always to the front with a lively junior article.

The trouble with the Peterborough City Hockey League is that it has gone to "extremes," said a fan last night. "The throwing open of the gate to all O.H.A. players was a good thing for the O.H.A. club but a bad thing for the League and it would perhaps have been better for the latter if it had continued to bar O. H.A. men, as it did in the first place. Although the quality of hockey would have suffered, there would have been more material produced."

The Springbok.

A peculiarity of that most beautiful of South African antelopes the springbok is that it always leaps over human tracks. It is at once exceedingly shy and marvelously active, and the reason for this strange antic is its intense suspicion of any possible enemies, among whom it has come to recognize man as the most dangerous. It is not only with human tracks that the springbok goes through this performance, but it does the same with the tracks of lions or even when it gets wind of a lion. The leap is exceedingly graceful, and the animal covers from twelve to fifteen feet at each bound, it drops on all four feet at once and immediately rises again, making a clear spring without any run. Its usual gait when not pursued is a light springy trot. The springbok usually travels with its nose to the ground, as if constantly on the lookout for the scent of enemies.

New Experimental Farm.

Quebec, Nov. 30—The Federal Government has purchased from Gustave Langelier the Stadacona farm, situated at Cape Rouge, about ten miles from Quebec, to convert it into an experimental farm. The price paid is said to be $30,000.

Shiloh's Cure

He Saw She Saw It.

As the man who writes little items for the paper sat getting himself fitted with a pair of shoes the other day he saw this happen. A woman was getting waited on by a clerk who wore on the third finger of his right hand a diamond twinkler weighing at least a carat and a quarter. He hadn't always worn a ring of that sort. It was new to him. He took a great deal of pride in his new ring. Oh, how it sparkled when the light was just right! Once or twice he got so interested in twisting it around on his finger with his thumb to a position where it would be most easily noticed by the woman customer that he forgot to finish lacing up the shoe she was trying on.

But he had succeeded in bringing the jewel to her attention. She had a sharp, leathery, suffragettish face and a disposition to speak right out on things.

"I see it," she remarked in a refrigerated tone. "It's very pretty and attractive. You wear it with a good air of abandon too. I admire it exceedingly. After you've finished toying with it I wish you would go ahead and show me something else—something with not quite such a narrow toe."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Weighing Machines.

Weighing machines and scales of some kind were in use 1800 B. C., for it is said that Abraham at that time "weighed out" 400 shekels of silver, current money, with the merchant to Ephron, the Hittite, as payment for a piece of land, including the cave and all the standing timber "in the field and in the fence." This is said to be the earliest transfer of land of which any record survives and that the payment was made in the presence of witnesses. The original form of the weighing scale was probably a bar suspended from the middle, with a board or shell suspended from each end, one to contain the weight, the other to contain the matter to be weighed. The steelyard was probably so called from the material of which it was made and from its former length. It is also known as the roman balance and is of great antiquity.

The Spinning Mule.

Samuel Crompton, a boy of sixteen, copied the best features of the spinning machine invented by Hargreaves and Arkwright, added to them some of his own and, after three months of anxious and secret experimenting, produced the first spinning mule, so called because it was a kind of hybrid between Hargreaves' jenny and Arkwright's water frame. The new apprentice lad was, however, no match in cunning for the cotton lords, who soon found out the secret of his new machine and shamelessly robbed him of the fruits of his ingenuity. Many years afterward, it is true, they used their influence to secure for him a parliament grant of £5,000, but he was then a broken hearted and disappointed man, to whom the money came too late to be of any real service.

The New Welland Canal.

St. Catharines, Dec. 5.—Last night the City Council appointed Mayor McBride and six aldermen to join with the deputation which on Tuesday next will bombard the Government in favor of making provision in the estimates for the early starting of work on the new Welland Canal. The old Town will send three men. The local Board of Trade yesterday appointed two members, President Connolly and Secretary Lieut.-Col. G. C. Catlisle, and Lincoln County Council has appointed the present warden and three former wardens to join in the appeal.

Two Incendiary Fires.

London, Ont., Dec. 5.—Two fires in hotel stables, both believed to be of incendiary origin, took place here yesterday evening. The first, in the Windsor Hotel stables, resulted in a loss of $1,000 and threatened the whole block of buildings. In this fire Fireman Frank Gladman was severely injured by falling timber and taken to Victoria Hospital.

The second fire, at the Harrison Hotel, two blocks away, resulted in two horses being destroyed.

WHAT VICTORIAN ORDER IS.

Personal Mark of Royal Recognition Conferred on Sir Henry Pellatt.

The Royal Victorian Order which has been conferred by King George on Col. Sir Henry Pellatt and some of the officers of the Queen's Own Rifles was created by Queen Victoria in April, 1896. It is a personal mark of royal recognition and differs from other orders in this respect: that it is bestowed without the recommendation of the Cabinet and for this reason is the more highly prized by recipients. Nominally, of course, all decorations are the gift of the reigning sovereign but actually they are conferred on the advice of the Prime Minister of the day.

Among those connected with the Dominion who have received this mark of royal favor are Earl Grey, Lord Strathcona and Mount Royal; Col. I. Hanbury-Williams; Joseph Pope and the Hon. J. S. Hendrie; and the list of those in England on whom the order has been conferred includes the names of distinguished men who have rendered valuable services to the Empire.

The decoration of the Royal Victorian Order is a Maltese cross of eight points, enamelled white. In the centre on a red enamelled ground is the monogram "V.R.I." in gold surrounded by an oval band enamelled garter blue on which in gold letters is the word "Victoria." Surmounting all is an imperial crown enamelled in the proper colors. There are five classes in the order. Members of the first-class wear the badge suspended from a ribbon over the right shoulder, the second and third classes round the neck and the fourth class on the left breast. The fifth class wear on the left breast a badge similar to that of the fourth but it is of frosted silver instead of enamel. The ribbon of the order is dark blue with three narrow stripes, red, white and blue at either edge. The silver medal of the order has on the obverse the bust of Queen Victoria surmounted by the inscription "Victoria Regina et Imperatrix." On the reverse is the imperial monogram "V.R.I." and below on a ribbon "Royal Victorian Medal" with an imperial crown. The medal is worn on the left breast suspended from a ribbon of the same color as that of the order.

Lignite Coal Talk.

A Dominion land surveyor has been out at Edson, Alberta, talking about lignite coal. He says that the Brazeau coal is nearer anthracite than bituminous. Pittsburg experts agree with him.

Two years ago it was that Brazeau got into the popular vocabulary, when Col. Talbot, a quiet Parliamentary gentleman from Belle Chasse, Quebec, returned from the knees of the Rockies with wonderful tales of new fangled coal. The Canadian Courier published a great illustrated story, dealing with the colonel's adventures. But the surveyor says that he "had to be shown." He came, he saw—he was conquered. Says the surveyor:

"I was fairly astounded by what I saw. The coal seams are so deep and solid that you can see them from either bank of the river. You don't have to dig at all. The coal is right there on the surface and, it is the hardest coal I have seen anywhere west of Edmonton."

Lignite coal is Alberta's fortune—just now potential. It is lying there under the timber and the smoking ledges of the Rockies, waiting for the short of the railroad engine. Edmonton sits on lignite, as does Strathcona. There are cake layers of it thirty feet thick all along the headwaters of the Saskatchewan, the place where you can also see weather inside.

It is Edson which is to be the coal centre of Alberta, according to the surveyor. The G. T. P. is to send a branch down there. That will be a first step in turning potentiality into actuality. The future of Edson—he has it all laid out. When the mines begin to cough, he says that thousands of men will be employed there. Hundreds of houses will sprout up. Lots will boom into three figures. The coal will be porked over to Edmonton—supply post and distributing point for Edson.

DANGERS OF RUNNERS.

Walter Knox of Orillia Has Faced a Revolver Barrel Before Now.

Stories of professional foot runners being shot at for winning and shot at for losing races are usually reminiscent of the good old days of twenty years ago, when the country was flooded with crooked sprinters and half-milers. The other day Walter R. Knox, the famous Orillia athlete, dropped into town, and the conversation rounded to gun-play over foot races. Now, Knox is a silent fellow. He has by hard experience learned the wisdom of keeping his mouth shut and his eyes open. Therefore when he rounded to and commenced to talk about his adventures in that line I was more than surprised that he should loosen up. However, it is a cinch he never considered for a second that his tales of tight quarters would ever reach the calcium of public print. Even at that the stories were only revealed after much adroit questioning or politic silence at the proper time.

"Down in Mexico I bucked up against a tough proposition," remarked Walter. "I had to give a runner down there a three-yard start for a big bet. The night before an ugly-looking greaser came to my room and said: 'I know you won't win this race to-morrow.'

"'Why won't I?' I asked.

"'I know you won't,' he said, producing a 'Gat,' with a bore as big as a military rifle. 'I'll be 75 yards down the course, and if you're ahead there I'll bore you, and if you win half a dozen Mexicans will be at the tape to carve you up. The chief of police was a friend of mine, so I told him. He said: 'You run and win and I'll look after you.'

"When the gun cracked for the race I drew level with my man early, and then dropped back and watched for the greaser at the 75-yard mark. He was there. When I got by I shot to the front and won. Then I trotted back by the greaser, and when he made for me the chief made for him, and there was no trouble.

"Up in British Columbia the night before a race I received a message to meet a certain man. I told my backers, and they told me to meet him and see what was afoot.

"Before I went I threw on my raincoat, and, putting an automatic pistol in the side pocket, I met the man. He took me a quarter of a mile out of town, where two other chaps met us. Then he said: 'You — — —, if you win that race to-morrow I'll kill you!' and he poked the gun into my ribs hard enough to hurt. I had my hand in my pocket with the gun trained on his heart. I knew if he pulled the trigger the clutch of my fingers would give him his receipt.

"'Did you win?'

"'Yes, I did.'

"'What happened?'

"'Well, this chap's friends were at the tape when I broke it, but they made their sneak. When I left the crowd to get my clothes the chap who poked me with the "Gat" started after me. He was a bad one, too, but my backer, a crippled hotelman, watched for him and when he poked his head through the crowd my way knocked him senseless with his cane or crutch. He went down like a poleaxed steer, I thought he was killed.

"They've had the gun on me more than once, but they have found flashing it often about getting me that I am more afraid o' some disappointed bettor potting me without saying a word than I am about these chaps who show guns and knives, and tell you what they are going to do.

"They got the once in Seattle, but they disguised me. The gave me colorless iodine before the race. I was dizzy all day in spells. When that race came I never started away so fast in all my life. I went like a bullet, and was in deadly terror lest one of those staggering dizzy spells would hit me and I would lose."

Knox has a couple of bullet scars, but he did not receive them over foot races. Those who know Knox will say he is the gamest, coolest athlete who ever stood in spikes, and claim that he could if he cared be the all-round champion to-day.

He has been clocked a hundred in 9 3-5 seconds by good men, and can always beat 10 1-5 if he has to, is a fair 220 man, jumps 23 feet and over all the time, pole vaults well enough to beat Eddie Archibald; puts the shot 44 feet, the discus 124, and can high jump 5 feet 10 inches. Knox is only a 160 pound man, at that, but he is a good caretaker. He will likely go to England next summer, and if he does he'll beat Postle, Eastman, and that crowd.—Toronto Star.

Toronto Still Holds Record.

The Galt L. C. brought in its excursion here yesterday the toughest and noisiest lot of young blackguards that have invaded the streets of Brampton since the Toronto Irishmen were here. This gang of toughs brought its booze, hard stuff, in suit cases and they were half full when they stepped off the train. At the lacrosse grounds they drank and caroused during the entire game. After the game they took possession of Main street from the corner north. They scrapped, yelled, cursed and did as they pleased. It was a grand opportunity for Councillor Williams' "law and order committee" to show the town what it was good for. Chief Harvey arrested one man at the train and afterwards for some unknown reason let him go again—Brampton Banner and Times.

The Coronation Saltcellars.

Visitors to the Tower of London may possibly recall the beautiful gold saltcellars which constitute a feature of the regalia of the crown in the Jewel House. These have been used at the coronation banquets ever since the reign of Charles I.

During the late king's reign an interesting old point was discovered in Windsor castle, showing the design of these coronation saltcellars, and from this it was very evident that for the last 300 years the saltcellars had been used in an inverted position. It seems that the authorities were deceived by the fact that each of the cellars in question had what were taken to be feet, but which, in reality, were nothing more than cats attached to the upper rim. Believing them to be feet, the officials had not only fulfilled the saltcellars upside down, but they had inserted a small silver bowl in each of the hollow ends.

King Edward, whose personal interest in all matters of detail was well known, was most interested in the discovery, and at once sent direction to the Tower commanding that the mistake of centuries should be rectified.

A House in the Air.

In 1850 a balloon of 300,000 cubic feet capacity was constructed in Paris. It was named the Giant and was intended to show the great possibilities of the air. The car attached consisted of a small two-story house, fitted with every modern comfort, having dining-room, bedroom, kitchen, parlor, etc. Thirteen passengers made the first ascent, but the journey was of only four hours' duration. The last ascent was for seventeen hours and was abruptly terminated by a high wind, which when the balloon descended, dragged the little house bumping over the ground. The remains of this giant of the air was for a long time exhibited in the Crystal Palace in London.

Intuitions.

"Is he not an ideal lover?" she inquired.

"On the contrary, Amanda finds him exceedingly trying."

"Indeed! In what respect?"

"Why, the stupidest that he is not even trying a multitude of small things to her which she wants to be sure, but cannot."—Punch.

THE EVENING CHIT-CHAT

By Ruth Cameron

I VISITED a home recently which was decidedly unique in one way, and that was this:

There were two as dear children as ever were petted and noticed and admired in the ruination of their childish charm, and yet they actually were not the centre of attention or anything like it.

They were subordinated to their elders, taught to respect them thoroughly, to obey instantly and to some extent to actually practise that old proverb, "Children should be seen and not heard."

The difference between this and the ordinary household was most noticeable at the dinner table.

In the average household where there are children who are old enough to come to the table with the family, the whole conversation usually centres about the children. Their sallies, which are listened to with rapt attention and receive an unwholesome amount of applause and laughter, admonitions of their table manners and prohibitions as to their diet, are the backbone of the table talk.

In this household, EXCEPT TO ASK FOR SOMETHING TO EAT, THOSE CHILDREN NEVER SPOKE UNLESS THEY WERE SPOKEN TO. They ate what was put on their plates — every bit of it, too — listened to the conversation of their elders, and when they had finished murmured their "Please excuse me's," slipped silently down from the table, and it being a home where there was no maid, bore their plates quietly out into the kitchen. At night, having done this, they prettily bade us all "Good night" and without even a suggestion from their mother that it was bedtime, much less the ordinary child's teasing wail to be allowed to "sit up just five minutes longer," started upstairs to bed themselves. Later their mother followed, tucked them in and kissed them good night.

Now by this I don't mean that those children were absolutely silent at the table. By no means. I mean just what I said. They did not speak except when spoken to. Frequently one of the older members of the family would inquire what the little girl learned at school or where the little boy went skating, and then the youngster addressed would answer with a naturalness and spirit which the average youngster, blased as he is by his habitual monopoly of the centre of the stage, never knows.

Doubtless there will be some passionate believer in the wickedness of repressing the young who will think this programme rather too harsh, and pity the children who are ruled by it.

Let me tell you, my dear sir or madame, that they most emphatically don't need your pity. They are two of the happiest as well as best behaved children that I ever had the pleasure of seeing, and I only wish that every parent of an attention-spoiled child could take dinner for once at this litle home and see what is possible under a system which does not make the child the supreme centre of attention.

A number of friends gathered last evening at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. T. Mr. Taylor and Master Tom Taylor gave some beautiful selections on the piano and Mr. Charles Quinn sang his usual comic song. Mr. Frank Gainey sang, "In the Dear Homeland," which was greatly appreciated. Mr. Elwell sang "The Boys of the Old Brigade," and a most pleasant time was spent. Dainty refreshments were served, which added to the enjoyment of the evening. Mrs. Scha received some beautiful presents, one which is greatly prized, being a photo of all the young ladies of the wire department of the C.G.E., taken by Mr. McIntyre. "THE WOLF"

"The Wolf," Eugene Walter's great play of life in the wilderness around Hudson Bay, is to be presented by the Paul Gilmore Co. at the Grand Saturday, matinee and night, Dec. 10.

Mr. Walter's latest play, "The Easiest Way" was the sensation of the past season in New York. He first startled New York theatre goers and critics by producing two marked successes in quick succession—declared to be the two greatest dramatic achievements of the year. While they are both generally mentioned in the same breath, his second success, "The Wolf," is the direct antithesis of his first one, "Paid in Full." As one critic expressed it, the first one takes you into the stuffy confines of a Harlem flat, while "The Wolf" breathes the freedom of the Canadian frontier, redolent of pine woods and border simplicity. Its characters are rough, hardy and primitive, and Mr. Walter has painted them in the bold strokes of the impressionist. The Wolf, from which the play takes its name, is a human wolf—a man who looks upon attractive womankind as prey for his amusement. This man, Macdonald, is a wealthy railroad promoter and engineer. He deserts one victim and her unborn child, and she dies a suicide. His next fancy is Hilda, the young and unsophisticated daughter of an old Scotch backwoodsman, Andrew MacTavish. His rival for her affections is Jules Beaubien, a stalwart and handsome young French-Canadian, heartily and honestly in love with the girl. The struggle of these two men of opposite designs forms three acts of intense interest. Mr. Edward Sloman and Miss Nell Carr head a strong cast. Grand special matinee Saturday, 25c. to all parts of the theatre.

CHARGED WITH SELLING LIQUOR TO A MINOR

A local bartender was arraigned in the police court this morning on a charge of selling liquor to a young man under age. Mr. G. N. Gordon appeared for the defence. The plea was "not guilty." John Copperweight, the young man who was supposed to have received the liquor, was put in the witness box. He stated that he was only seventeen years of age. He also stated that he had received the liquor from the accused without any questions being asked as to his age. Copperweight stated that he and another boy, Ross McColl, were in the hotel in question, last Saturday and had eight or nine drinks of lager. He stated that the bartender asked McColl his age but did not hear McColl's answer, at any rate they got the liquor. He also said that they were not very drunk and yet were not sober. He said it was the first time he ever got liquor before. McColl was subpoenaed for Thursday by mistake and as he could not be found this morning an enlargement of the case was asked for. Accordingly tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock the case will be proceeded with.

DANGER OF FIRE IN CHRISTMAS DECORATIONS

Fire Chief Howard Howard was yesterday made the recipient of the following letter from the Canadian Fire Underwriters' Association:

Re Christmas Decorations and Displays.

Dear Sir,—Following our usual custom at this season of the year, I beg to call your attention to the dangers to life and property from Christmas decorations, displays, etc., which are frequently made at this time of the year. The use of Christmas greens harvest specimens and other inflammable materials such as draperies, scenery, cotton to represent snow, and the like, (especially in connection with electric and other lighting systems,) is decidedly an increase of hazard, it being impossible to make displays of that nature perfectly safe.

The third statutory condition of your Insurance Policy reads in part as follows:

"Any change material to the risk, but within the control or knowledge of the assured, shall avoid the policy, as to the part affected thereby, unless the change is promptly notified in writing to the Company or its local agent."

In addition to the danger to property from the displays referred to, the danger of life in crowded stores or places of meeting, by reason of a panic occasioned by a fire, even though it be small and easily controlled, is so great that the Underwriters, who have made a study of such hazards, would fail in their duty should they not give this warning.

By order,
JOHN A. ROBERTSON.
Secretary.

The above letter is herewith published as a notice and warning to the general public, who are dealing with such cases, and especially to the merchants who may make alterations for their electrical fixtures for the purpose of decorating their window displays, etc. It is also deemed necessary to advise them of the fact, that any such alterations made to the said electrical fixtures without advising the insurance company, that the particular party is insured in, and getting the consent of that company, will be done at the risk of the insured, as any damage done by fire, caused by changing the electrical fixtures, will not be paid by insurance companies.

LAST MEETING OF THIS YEAR'S COUNCIL ONE OF THE MOST LIVELY

Deputation From Township Councils Wait Upon City Council in Regard to Emptying Sewerage Into the River—Sign By-law, as Amended, Passes.

THE GARBAGE BY-LAW

The last meeting of the City Council for the present year was held last evening and might be characterized as the most lively of the year. Several matters of importance were put through and some heated debates took place. The Council Chamber was filled to its utmost every seat being taken and many having to stand. The question occupying the most animated discussion was the question of granting exemptions, which is referred to at some length in another column. The Mayor and all the aldermen, with the exception of Ald. Turner, who is absent in the West, were present. Ex-Mayor Rush was present and at the invitation of Mayor Morrow, occupied a seat beside him.

Statement of Roll.

Following is the statement of the roll, ending Nov. 30, 1910:

Total amt. of roll for 1910	$210,191.28
Total amount deposited	193,083.88
Balance	$17,107.40
Less 2 per cent. discount on first payment	3,158.62
Balance	$13,948.78

Amount taken and deposited during November, $34,091.40.—Received.

Communications.

From the City Trust Commission notifying the Council of the vacancy caused in the commission by the death of Jas. Stevenson.—Received.

From the Auburn Power Company, pointing out that the Eastern boundary of Water street, in the vicinity of the Colonial Weaving Co's. mills at Auburn is not clearly defined, and pointing out that it should be in connection with the construction of the canal for the new Power House.—Received.

From R. Sheehy, giving up that section of the waterfront rented by him—Received.

From the Peterborough Teachers' Association, asking for the annual grant of $25.—Finance Committee.

From O'Connell and Gordon on behalf of the Peterborough Cereal Co., asking for a clear definition of the conditions attached to the conveyance from the City to the Company of a strip of land on the south side of Simcoe street, upon fulfillment of said conditions in payment of $1,000.—Finance Committee.

From Mrs. C. Warner, asking the city to pay $15 (three months' rent) which accumulated while she was laid up as a result of a worn sidewalk.—Legal Committee.

From J. H. Larmonth, General Manager of Electric Power Co., stating that when the new dam was built at Auburn satisfactory arrangements could, no doubt, be made with the city for building a roadway over it—Received.

J. J. Turner and Sons wrote, asking to have an arc lamp placed at the corner of King and Water streets, just south of the Grand Theatre.—Fire, Water and Light Committee.

Deputation Heard.

A joint committee from North and South Monaghan and Otonabee Councils waited on the City Council last evening in regard to the city emptying sewage into the Otonabee River. Mr. S. Deyell of South Monaghan, in addressing the Council, stated that he had four horses die, the direct cause of their death being attributed to the city sewage in the river. The sewage in the river was getting to be a serious question. The stench at a point about ten miles down the river last summer, he stated, was very bad. The water in the Spring covered the river front, and later, when it receded, it left the posture poisonous, a serious thing for the cattle. Mr. Deyell urged that the city take steps to treat the sewage, either by septic tank or some other system. Other members of the deputation spoke along the same lines.

Mayor Morrow thought that as this was the last meeting, he could not promise that the matter would be dealt with by this year's council. However, the matter will be again brought up in the New Year.

Board of Works.

When Ald. Hicks moved the adoption of the Board of Works report, Ald. Phelan moved in amendment that the clause in regard to paying Mr. F. Bartlett $84 be struck out. Ald. Hicks pointed out how Mr. Bartlett has saved the city several hundred dollars and that it was only fitthat the money be paid him.

There was no seconder to Ald. Phelan's amendment.

The clause in regard to the sign bylaw also came in for a good deal of discussion.

Ald. Buller thought that merchants should be allowed their illuminated signs free.

Ald. Bradburn thought that the merchants might be made liable without paying a fee.

Ald. Hicks pointed out that the small fee merely paid for the annual inspection of the signs by the city engineer.

The report was finally adopted as read.

It was moved by Ald. Hicks, seconded by Ald. Duffus, that the Treasurer be authorized to pay H. Edwards $25, and Miss Phelan $75, for damages done as a result of cleaning out sewers.

Finance Report.

To the Council of the City of Peterborough.

Gentlemen,—Your Finance Committee begs leave to report, and recommend as follows:

1.—That the offer of the Bank of Toronto to carry the City's account for 1911, on the same terms as this year, be accepted, namely, the Bank to allow on all credit balances 3½ per cent. and to charge 4½ per cent. on debit balances up to the amount of the combined credit balances, and 5 per cent. on all amounts in excess of the combined credit balances.

CHRISTIAN AND PAGAN MONUMENTS OF ROME

A MUSICAL PROGRAMME

A large crowd assembled at St. Alphonsus' Lyceum last night to hear what proved to be a very interesting and educative lecture on "Christian and Pagan Monuments in Rome," by Rev. Dr. O'Brien. His intensely interesting lecture was illustrated by lantern slides, showing to good advantage the subject of discussion. And every picture had a historical value. Rev. Dr. O'Brien has spent some two years in Rome and during his stay there acquired a perfect knowledge of all these places, so that he handled the subject with a degree of ease, attended by that freeness of delivery, which is acquired only by personal experience. He described the Roman Coliseum, one of the most famous and probably the most famous ruins, in the city of Rome. Numerous slides, of this ruined structure were shown and a very instructive description given of each. The numerous great arches, erected by the ancient rulers to co-memorate their signal victories, were shown, and were in a remarkable state of preservation after a period of two thousand years. One great arch was shown. It was erected by the monarch who conquered the Jewish army and worked the overthrow of the Jewish nation. The homes of the ancient Caesars, were shown, and the great halls of historical fame. Several views along the banks of the beautiful old river Tiber were shown and the great marble bridge upon which the Roman army met their enemies in the last deadly struggle, was seen to advantage. Several monuments of solid marble were shown. Numerous great ancient Pagan structures, built of solid marble, were shown and an intensely interesting description was given of each. Several other historical views, too numerous to mention, were shown and described, all of which were inside the walls of Rome, with a possible exception of some pasturing scenes near the famous city.

In addition to this exceedingly interesting, educative and instructive lecture by Rev. Dr. O'Brien, a splendid musical programme was also given. The following were the musical numbers contributed.

Vocal solo—Mr. Joseph Mercier, accompanist, Miss Doherty.

Song—By Miss G. Clancy.

Song—By Mr. Now

Song—By Miss Devlin; accompanist in the last three numbers, Miss J. Clancy.

Each of the above numbers was warmly applauded and encores were demanded in every case, but owing to the lateness of the hour, they were dispensed with.

At the close of the programme, a vote of thanks to Rev. Dr. O'Brien was moved by the President, Mr. Begley, and seconded by Mr. James Strain. The Rev. Doctor responded in an appropriate manner, after which, what proved to be a profitable, enjoyable and interesting evening, was brought to a close by singing the national anthem.

ANEMIA AND WEAKNESS

Constantly Being Cured by Vinol—An Interesting Case Reported

Greensboro, N. C.—"I would not take a thousand dollars for the good Vinol has done me.

"I was told that cod liver oil was the medicine I needed for poor blood and my weakened condition. I could not take the greasy mixture, but when my druggist explained to me that Vinol contained all the medicinal curative elements of cod liver oil, without the grease, and tonic iron added, I made up my mind that Vinol was the medicine for me.

"I tried it, and to-day am strong and well.—Mrs. J. T. Sinder." (We guarantee this testimonial to be genuine.)

Vinol is a specific for impure, impoverished blood and it is the greatest tonic we know of.

We sell Vinol always with the understanding that if the purchaser is not satisfied with the result it gives we will cheerfully refund his money. That seems fair. McDermid and Jury, druggists, corner George and Charlotte streets; also Payne's drug store, corner George and Simcoe streets.

GOOD-BYE TO BEAUTY

It is good bye to beauty when kidney derangements set in. The skin becomes hard and dry and the form wastes awey and becomes emaciated. One cannot be too watchful and the safest way is to keep the kidneys as well as the liver and bowels, healthy and active by the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney and Liver Pills. This ensures pure blood and a healthy digestive system.

OPENING FOR A FLOUR MILL

Advices received at the Grand Trunk Pacific offices state that there is an excellent opening at Wainwright, Alberta, for a flour mill. The local consumption of flour is a carload a week. There is plenty of water and cheap fuel, and the district produces the best hard wheat.

To show the growth of a town it Western Canada it is stated that Wainwright, Alberta, which is not more than two years old, is negotiating for a $5,000 steam fire engine. They have also authorized the employment of an engineer to run the level of the entire town, preparatory to the installation of a complete drainage system.

THE BELMONT CLUB MINSTRELS.

If you want a lively show,
Full of fun, and with a go,
Not fast and fast and nothing slow,
You will find it—don't you know—
At the Belmont Club Minstrels.

If you want an hour of song,
Full of fun but nothing wrong,
When the boys are going strong,
Bring your lady right along—
To the Belmont Club Minstrels.

Fine big troup, oh my, it's jolly,
Make you laugh, till off your trolley,
Leave no room for melancholy—
Nearing Christmas, watch for Holly—
At the Belmont Club Minstrels.

To talk, or dance, or sing, they scoop
The man who tried to loop the loop
And if not counted in the soup,
You'll join the gay and festive group
And hear the Belmont Minstrels.

Songs at home or wit that's free,
Don't begin with what you see
At Holly's Minstrels—least for me—
"Nothin' like that in our family"—
Like the Belmont Minstrels.

WAITING FOR SON.

George Glover Will Be Consulted as to Mrs. Eddy's Funeral.

Boston, Dec. 7.—Final arrangements for the funeral of Mrs. Mary Baker Eddy, the head of the Christian Science Church, who died at her home at Chestnut Hill on Saturday night, will not be perfected until the arrival of her son, George W. Glover, who is expected here from Lead, S.D., to-day.

It was decided that the body of the leader will be buried in Mount Auburn Cemetery, Cambridge. In the meantime the directors of the Christian Science Church, Archibald McLellan, Stephen A. Chase, Allison Stewart, John V. Dittemore, and Adam H. Dickey, have taken full charge of the church management, and the scope of these powers includes matters of organization, finance and discipline. They are supreme in the mother church and control branch churches.

An expression of opinion from two score of prominent Christian Scientists throughout New England has been obtained on the future of the church, and they are unanimous in saying that the church will in no way be affected by the passage of the leader. At the mansion at Chestnut Hill, where the body lies in an upper chamber, there are no outward signs of grief. There is no crepe on the door, the window shades are up and the household comes and goes as usual.

Will Not Contest Will.

Chicago, Dec. 7.—George W. Glover of Lead, S.D., son of Mrs. Mary Baker Glover Eddy, passed through Chicago yesterday on his way to attend the funeral of his mother, and while here announced that on his part there would be no contest of his mother's will.

"I surrendered all my claims to her estate several years ago," he said, "and there is nothing more to be said. I cannot speak of the estrangement between us. I always loved and respected her as one of the most wonderful of women. We are going east merely as mourners."

Swept Overboard, But Rescued.

Kingston, Jamaica, Dec. 7. The four-masted schooner Thomas S. Dennison put in here yesterday dismasted by a gale encountered soon after sailing from Porto Rico for Mobile, on Dec. 1. Heavy seas swept the vessel, and one of Capt. Wades ten men was washed overboard, but he was rescued.

Three Years for Attack on Premier.

Paris, Dec. 7. Three years in prison was the sentence yesterday afternoon inflicted on Lucien Lacour, the young man who attacked Premier Briand recently at a public meeting and almost knocked the Prime Minister down with a blow from his fist.

YESTERDAY WAS LIBERAL FIELD DAY WON A LONG SERIES OF TRIUMPHS

John Burns' Majority Increased in Battersea---Will Crooks Back in the House---Liberals Have a Net Gain of One ---Victory is Assured.

London, Dec. 7.—A situation has been developed almost phenomenal in the closeness of the race between the Government coalition parties and the Unionists. The pendulum swung slightly toward the Government yesterday, and the result of three days' voting, in which 299 seats have been filled, gives the coalition one more member than they had in the last Parliament from the same constituencies. Up to Monday night the Unionists had a clear gain of five.

The returns last night showed that the Unionists had regained St. Helens from the Laborites. This borough, with the exception of last election, had been Unionist since 1906. The Liberals gained Southwark (West), Burnley and Coventry, and the Laboritos gained Woolwich and Whitehaven, all from the Unionists, while yesterday morning's returns from Sunderland showed that the Liberal candidate, Greenwood, and the Laborite, Goldstone, had replaced the two Unionists there.

The Unionists concentrated their heavy fire on Battersea, but John Burns, President of the Local Government Board, again surprised them, bringing up his majority from 555 in the last election, to 1,558. The Socialist, Shaw, whom Mr. Burns' enemies schemed to put up, in the expectation that he would divide the votes, polled a mere handful. John Burns dashed around the constituency all day in an automobile. Sir John Harrington, the Unionist candidate, and his wife, followed suit in another. Mr. Burns appealed to his friends: "Don't be taken in by the blandishments of fine ladies, who visit the mean streets only when they want something."

Almost everywhere newer ballots were cast than in last election. More Liberals than Unionists stayed away from the polls. Excluding the districts which changed their complexion, the Unionists made relative gains in eighteen, the Liberals in twelve.

The turning of the tide toward Labourism is a surprise for the Unionists, who counted upon capturing half a dozen seats from the enemy. The greatest surprise was in Coventry, because that is the seat of motor manufacturing, and the protectionists had put great stress on their plea that tariff reform would prevent the growing competition from American machines.

The Liberals hardly expected to win Burnley, because the Socialist Hyndman was in the field and hoped to take part of the Labor vote. The Southwark contest was one of the most interesting. E. A. Strauss, Liberal, winning by only 12 votes. In Woolwich, Will Crooks, who was turned out in the last election, recaptured his old seat by a majority of 236.

The prominent fact in yesterday's early returns in the Parliamentary elections was the capture of Sunderland by the coalition parties. T. Hamar Greenwood, the Canadian Liberal, who returns to the House of Commons after an absence of less than a year, and Frank Goldstone, the Laborite, turned out the two Unionist members, Storey, Independent Tariff Reformer, and J. Knott, who were elected last January by majorities of 741 and 1,212, respectively. The polling took place in Sunderland on Monday, but the results were not announced until yesterday. Greenwood received a majority of 1,637, and Goldstone had a margin of 991 votes. The turnover is attributed in part at least to the bitterness of the boilermakers in the Sunderland district who were locked out some months back. The results in Newcastle-on-Tyne were also made known for the first time yesterday. They show no change, the Liberal and Laborite candidates being returned by slightly reduced majorities. Unopposed returns, however, placed the Unionists again in the front yesterday with a total of 129 seats against 126 secured by the coalition. Taking a line from Mr. Balfour's speech at Sheffield Monday night, most of the Unionist morning papers yesterday blamed Premier Asquith for "snubbing" the elections on the old register, and, as a further excuse for the failure of the Unionists to make a better showing at the polls, contended that they did not have sufficient time to perfect their electoral organization. The Daily Telegraph says: "It is sad not been for the deplorable inferiority of the Unionist organization, both in London and Manchester, the work of stamping out the dollar domination would be still further advanced."

MUCH SPACE TO CANADA IN TAFT'S MESSAGE

President Taft's Annual Address to Both Houses Yesterday Dealt Largely With Subject of Tariff---Negotiations With Canada---No Discrimination Now.

Washington, Dec. 7. President Taft delivered his annual address to both Houses yesterday afternoon, it being the sixty-third session of the sixty-fifth Congress. The address was a lengthy one, comprising about 30,000 words, and many matters of importance were touched upon. The one of most interest to Canadians was on the tariff negotiations and the reciprocal relations between the United States and Canada.

Along this line the President said: The new tariff law, in section 3, respecting the maximum and minimum tariffs of the United States, which provisions came into effect on April 1, 1910, imposed upon the President the responsibility of determining whether or not the discriminations existed against the products of any country which required the application to it of the maximum rates of the new law. Under executive action provided for in that section, the conventional rates of the minimum tariff have been extended to the products of most countries with which we have relations. In the case of several countries instances of apparent undue discrimination against American commerce were found to exist. These discriminations were removed by negotiation. Prior to April 1, 1910, when the maximum tariff was to come into operation with respect to importations from all those countries in whose favor no proclamation applying the minimum tariff should be issued by the President, one hundred and thirty-four such proclamations were issued. This series of proclamations, embracing the entire commercial world, and hence the minimum tariff of the United States has been given universal application thus testifying to the satisfactory character of our trade relations with foreign countries.

The policy of broader and closer trade relations with the Dominion of Canada, which was initiated in the adjustment of the maximum and minimum provisions of the Tariff Act of August, 1909, has proved mutually beneficial. It justifies further efforts for the readjustment of the commercial relations of the two countries so that their commerce may follow the channels natural to contiguous countries and be commensurate with the steady expansion of trade and industry on both sides of the boundary line. The reciprocation on the part of the Dominion Government of the sentiment which was expressed by this Government was followed in October by the suggestion that it would be glad to have the negotiations, which had been temporarily suspended during the summer, resumed. In accordance with this suggestion, the Secretary of State, by my direction, despatched two representatives of the Department of State as special commissioners to Ottawa to confer with representatives of the Dominion of Canada. They were authorized to take such steps for formulating a reciprocal trade agreement as might be necessary and to receive and consider any propositions which the Dominion Government might care to submit.

Pursuant to the instructions issued conferences were held by these commissioners with officials of the Dominion Government at Ottawa in the early part of November.

The negotiations were conducted on both sides in a spirit of mutual accommodation. The discussion of the common commercial interests of the two countries had for its object a satisfactory basis for a trade arrangement which offers the prospect of a freer interchange for the products of the United States and of Canada. The conferences were adjourned, to be resumed in Washington on January, when it is hoped that the aspiration of both Governments for a mutually advantageous measure of reciprocity will be realized.

Says He Killed Robber.

Vancouver, Dec. 7.—Jas. Rigney, whose wife in London has been enquiring for him, notified the police yesterday that he was here, and thought to be going under the name of E. Thomas. He is the janitor of a large office building. He says he was robbed in London, and later declared he killed a robber at Dover, England, by throwing him off the dock. The Vancouver police are inclined to doubt this robbery and killing story.

Acres of Diamonds

BY R. RUSSELL CONWELL

But he consulted his children later, and whittled toys to please them, and found that other people's children wanted the same things. He called his children right around his feet and whittled out of firewood those "Hingham tops," the wooden shovels, the wooden buckets and such things, and when his children were especially pleased, he then made copies to sell. He began to get a little capital of his own earning, and secured a foot lathe, and then secured a room, then hired a factory and then hired power and so he went on. The last law case I ever tried in my life was in the United States court room at Boston, and this very Hingham man, who had whittled those toys, stood upon the stand. He was the last man I ever cross-examined. Then I left the law and went into the ministry—left practising entirely, and went to preaching exclusively. But, I said to this man as he stood upon the stand:

"When did you begin to whittle those toys?"

He said: "1870."

Said I: "In these seven years how much have those toys become worth?"

He answered: "Do you mean the taxable value or the estimated value?"

I said: "Tell His Honour the taxable value, that there may be no question about it." He answered me from the witness stand, under oath: "Seventy-eight thousand dollars."

Seventy-eight thousand dollars in only seven years, and beginning with nothing but a jack-knife (and a few hundred dollars of debts he owed other people) and so he was worth at least $100,000. His fortune was made by consulting his own children, in his own house, and deciding that other people's children would like the same thing. You can do the same thing if you will. You don't need to go out of your house to find out where the diamonds are. You don't. You don't need to go out of your own room.

But your wealth is too near. I was speaking in New Britain, Conn., on this very subject. There sat five or six rows from me a lady. I noticed the lady at the time, from the colour of her bonnet. I said to them, what I say to you now. "Your wealth is too near to you." You are looking right over it." She went home after the lecture and tried to take off her collar. The button stuck in the buttonhole. She twisted and tugged and pulled, and finally broke it out of the buttonhole and threw it away. She said: "I wonder why they don't make decent collar buttons."

Her husband said to her: "After what Conwell said to-night, why don't you get up a collar button yourself? Did he not say that if you need anything, other people need it, so if you need a collar button there are millions of people needing it. Get to a collar button and get rich. Wherever there is a need there is a fortune. (Applause).

Then she made up her mind to do it, and when a woman makes up her mind, and don't say anything about it, she does it. (Applause). And she invented this "snap button," a kind of a button that snaps together from two pieces, through the buttonhole. That very woman can now go over the sea every summer in her own yacht and take her husband with her, and if he were dead she would have enough money left to buy a foreign count or duke, or some such thing. (Laughter and applause). What is my lecture in it? I said to her, what I say to you. "Your fortune is too near to you." So near that you are looking over it. She had to look over it. It was right under her chin. And it is just as near to you.

In East Brookfield, Mass., there was a shoemaker out of work. His wife drove him out of doors with the mop-stick, because she wanted to mop around the stove. He went out and sat down on the ash barrel in the back yard. Close by that ash-barrel ran a little mountain stream. I have sometimes wondered if, as he sat there on that ash barrel, he thought of Tennyson's beautiful poem:

"Chatter, chatter, as I flow,
To join the brimming river;
Men may come and men may go,
But I go on forever."

I don't believe he thought of it, because it was not a poetical situation, on an ash barrel in the back yard. (Laughter).

But, as he sat on that ash barrel he looked down into the stream, and he saw a trout go flashing up the stream and hiding under the bank. He leaped down and caught the fish in his hands and took it into the house. His wife sent it to a friend in Worcester. The friend wrote back that they would give $5.00 for another such trout. And the shoemaker and his wife immediately started out to find one. They went up and down the stream but not another trout was to be found. Then they went to the preacher. But that is not half as foolish as some other things young people go to a preacher for. That preacher could not explain why they could not find another trout. But he was true to his profession; he "pointed the way." He said: "Secure Seth Green's book on the "Culture of Trout," and it will give you the information you need." They got the book and found that if they started with a pair of trout, a trout would lay thirty-six hundred eggs every year, and that every trout would grow an ounce the first year and a quarter of a pound every succeeding year, so that in four years a man could secure from two trout four tons per annum to sell. They said: "Oh, we don't believe such a great story as that; but if we could raise a few and sell them for five dollars apiece, we might make money." So they purchased two little trout and put them in the stream, with a coal sifter down the stream and a window screen up stream to keep the trout in. Afterwards they moved to the banks of the Connecticut River, and after to the Hudson, and one of them has been on the United States Fish Commission and had a large share in the preparation for the World's Fair in 1900 at Paris. But he sat that day, on that ash barrel in the back yard, right by his acres of diamonds. But he didn't see them. He had not seen his fortune, although he had lived there for twenty-three years, until his wife drove him out there with a mop-stick. It may be you will not find your wealth until your wife assumes the sceptre of power. But, nevertheless, your wealth is there. (Applause).

But the people who make the greatest mistakes are the farmers. When I could not keep my father's store he set me to work on the farm. Knowing that as the ground was nearly all rock, I could not do much harm there. (Laughter).

I know by experience that a very ordinary man can be a lawyer. I also know that it does not take a man with a gigantic intellect to be a preacher. It takes a greater man than either, to make a successful farmer I take. The farmer will be more successful when he gives more attention to what people want and not so much to what will grow, though he needs them both. But now the whole time of most of our farmers is taken up with the finding out of "what will grow."

I was going up through Iowa a while ago and saw the wheat decaying in mud, and I said to the farmer, "Why is it that all this grain here is decaying?"

"Oh," he said, "it is the 'awful' monopoly of the railroads." He did not use the word "awful" but he used a word that he thought was more emphatic. (Laughter).

"I got into the train and I sympathized with the poor down-trodden farmer. The Conductor came along and I asked him:

"How much dividend does this railroad pay on its stock?" He looked at me and said: "It has not paid any for nine years and it has been in the hands of the receiver the most of that time."

Then I changed my mind: if that farmer had raised what the people wanted, not only would he have been rich, but the railroad would have paid interest on its stock. (Applause).

I was in Evansville, Indiana, and a man drove up in his beautiful carriage and told me: "Eighteen years ago I borrowed two hundred dollars, and I went into farming. I began the first year to raise wheat, rye and hogs. But the second year I decided to raise what the people wanted: so I ploughed the ground over and put in small fruits. Now, I own this farm and a great deal more." They told me at the hotel that he owned two-thirds of the stock in the bank of which he was president. He had made his money all because he planted what people wanted.

Let me go down through the audience now and ask you to show me the great inventors here. You will say: "That does not mean me." But it does mean you. Great inventors that hear me now. Oh, you will say we don't have any inventors here. They all live away off somewhere else. But who are the great inventors? Always the men who are the simplest and plainest. They are the great inventors. The great inventor has the simple mind, and invents the simplest machine.

Did you ever think how simple the telephone and the telegraph were? Now, the simplest mind is always the greatest. Did you ever see a great man? Great in every noble and true sense? If so, you would walk right up to him and say: "How are you, Jim?" Just think of the great men you have met and you find this is true.

I went out to write the biography of General Garfield and found him crowded with other people. I went to a neighbour's to wait until they were all gone. But the neighbour told me that if I wanted to get a chance to see him I had better go over at once, and he offered to introduce me. He took his old hat and stuck it on the back of his head, and climbed over the fence and went to the back door of the house and shouted: "Jim! Jim! Jim!"

Very soon "Jim" came to the door and the neighbour said: "Here is a man who wants to see you."

I went into the home of one of the grandest men that America ever raised. To his neighbours he was "Jim," a plain man, a simple man. (Applause).

I went to see President Lincoln one time when I was an officer in the war of 1861. I had never seen him before, and his Secretary sent me in to see him as one would enter a neighbour's office—simple, plain. "Old Abe." (Applause).

The simplest men are the greatest always. Did you ever see a man strut proudly along, puffed up in his individual pride, not willing to notice an ordinary mechanic? Do you think he is great? Do you really think that man is great? He is nothing but a puffed-up balloon, held down by his big feet. There may be greatness in self-respect, but there is no greatness in feeling above one's fellow men. (Applause).

I asked a class in Minnesota once, who were the great inventors, and a girl hopped up and said: "Columbus." (Laughter). Columbus was a great inventor. Columbus married a wife who owned a farm, and he carried it on just as I carried on my father's farm. He took the hoe and went out and sat down on a rock. But as Columbus sat on that rock on the Island of Port Santo, Spain, he was thinking. I was not. That was a great difference. Columbus, as he sat on that rock, held in his hand a hoe-handle. He looked out on the ocean and saw the departing ships apparently sink into the sea, and the tops of the masts went down, out of sight. Since that time some other "Spanish ships have sunk into the sea." (Applause). Said Columbus: "This world is like a hoe-handle, the further off the further down; the further off the further down—just like a hoe handle. I can sail around to the East Indies. How clear it all was. Yet how simple the mind. It is the simplest minds that observe the very simplest things, which accomplish the greatest marvels.

I went up into New Hampshire and when I came back I said I would never go to New Hampshire to lecture again. And I said to a relative of mine, who was a professor at Harvard:

"I was cold all the time I was there, and I shivered so that my teeth shook."

Said he: "Why did you shiver?"

"Because it was cold."

"No, that is not the reason you shivered."

Then I said: "I shivered because I had not bed clothes enough."

"No, that is not the reason."

THE CURTAIN ON MA'S HAT.

Ma's pulled down the parlor curtain, and she wears it on her hat.
Gee, but she is lookin' stylish! Has 'em all beat in our flat!
She has sort of let it dangle, so you'd never see her face
If you didn't peek up under when the wind blew out the lace.

Pa don't somehow seem to like it. He came home the other night
And kept lookin' at the window as if something wasn't right.
When he asked about the curtain and ma showed him what she'd done
What he said to her was plenty, and it wasn't said in fun.

Her new hat is like a bucket or a basket upside down,
And you never could tell whether she was white or black or brown.
Neatly all her face is hidden away up inside her hat;
Just her chin sticks out below it, and the curtain covers that.

"Lord," pa said, "what won't a woman do to try to be in style?
I suppose you'll get to wearin' the old carpet after while.
If your face is so blamed homely that you hate to have it seen,
Why not wear a mask or hide it with a decent lookin' screen?"

Ma appeared to be disheartened. She had done the best she could.
But it was her fate, she told us, always to be misunderstood.
Though it ought to be much brighter, things are dismal in our flat
Since ma took the parlor curtain and arranged it on her hat.

Peter E. Summers relates his experience:

"I was troubled with Nervous Debility for many years. I lay it to indiscretion and excesses in youth. I became very despondent and could care whether I worked or not. I imagined everybody who looked at me guessed my secret. Imaginative dreams at night weakened me—my back ached, and pains in the back of my head, hands and feet were cold, tired in the morning, poor appetite, fingers were shaky, eyes blurred, hair loose, memory poor, etc. Numbness in the fingers set in and I feared paralysis. I took all kinds of medicines and tried many doctors, physicians, women especially for three months, but received no benefit. I was induced to call on Drs. Kennedy & Kennedy, though I had lost all faith in doctors. Like a drowning man I grasped the New Method Treatment and it saved my life. The improvement was like magic—I could feel the vigor going through the nerves. I was cured mentally and physically. I have sent them many patients and continue to do so.

STERILIZING OYSTERS

A Simple and Efficacious Method of Rendering the Bivalves Harmless

The danger of eating oysters taken from polluted sources has been frequently proved by outbreaks of typhoid fever and other intestinal complaints among those who have been unfortunate enough to consume them. It now appears that there is a very easy and efficacious method of obviating this danger. At the meeting of the Academie des Science in Paris recently M. Hennegny submitted an account of experiments recently carried out by M. Fabre Domergue with the object of discovering some means of preventing the accidents which arise from eating contaminated oysters. As the result of these experiments M. Hennegny was able to state that oysters taken from beds teeming with sewage and typhoid germs can be rendered absolutely sterile by the simple process of keeping them for fifteen days in tanks of filtered water. This treatment, while freeing the bivalves from all germs of disease has no deteriorating effect upon the oysters themselves. They remain as fat and well flavored as when taken from the parent bed.

MANUEL'S FAIR CHARMER

Gaby Deslys Finds her Friendship With the ex-King Pays Well

Gaby Deslys is in Paris again, fresh from her triumphs, if they may so be called, in Berlin, where she has been appearing in vaudeville. Mme. Deslys is the young actress who found so much favor in the eyes of former King Manuel of Portugal. Her value as a star has increased tremendously since her name became coupled with that of the boy king. However, she keeps one eye on the spot in England where the ex-king is living with his mother. Gaby believes that Manuel is as much devoted to her as ever. That she will return this devotion if the Portuguese republican government makes some sufficiently large financial allowance to the deposed king is believed by many who know this capricious young beauty.

Let to-morrow take care of to-morrow; leave things of the future to fate. What's the use to anticipate sorrow?

Two persons will not be friends long if they will not forgive each other's failings.

THE CRAZE IN FRANCE FOR FLYING MACHINES

Parisians are Interested even in the Tiny Aeroplanes Hovering in the Air at Children's Shows

Europe in general and France in particular have seemingly gone mad on the subject of flying through the air. What matters it if here and there some poor unfortunate falls from the clouds and is picked up a piece of mangled flesh? The sport must go on. The history of the world's development shows that the sacrifices of some pioneers in new directions is not alone demanded, but is inevitable. It is the law of progress and can not be evaded, for some must die for the sake of many. With every aviation accident resulting fatally some proof is given of precautions necessary to avoid similar disasters to hundreds of other aviators, hence the victims have not died in vain, but that many other persons may be saved from like accidents.

In Paris, at present, so great a hold has aviation on the public mind that even in the public parks and gardens where Punch and Judy or similar open exhibitions were formerly given by itinerant showmen, tiny aeroplanes, with manikin aviators, are sent flying through the air around and about the show grounds. In most cases they are controlled by strings held by the showmen who bring the toys to earth in due time.

A CENTENIAL JUBILEE

The Kaiser Congratulates the University of Berlin on its Progress

Berlin, Oct. 22.—The exercises in celebration of the centennial jubilee of the University of Berlin, held in the quarters of the royal library, were attended by delegates from nearly every important country in the world.

After the opening address of welcome by the rector of the university, the Kaiser in a speech congratulated the school on its progress and its realization of Humboldt's aim to make it a university in the widest sense.

The Kaiser stated that over $2,000,000 has been accumulated to advance independent research. The fund will go toward establishing institutes devoted to this field.

UNITE GERMAN TOWNS

A Scheme Under Way Which May Make a New Metropolis

Berlin, Oct. 22.—If the plans of certain ambitious spirits in the Rhenish-Westphalian industrial districts are carried out, Berlin will shortly lose its position as the largest city in Germany. They have mapped out a scheme for amalgamating fifteen towns, which will create a metropolis with an imposing population of more than 2,500,000 souls. Berlin numbers only 2,150,000, or thereabouts. The towns which plan this raid on Berlin's metropolitan pre-eminence are Essen, Dusseldorf, Hague, Elberfeld, Barmen, Witten, Dortmund, Bochum, Gelsenkirchen, Wattenscheid, Herne, Hattingen, Mulheim, Duisburg and Oberhausen.

"That's a very popular man."

"Yes, he'll listen to the details of your summer trip without insisting on telling you about his own."

MOST AWKWARD

At a party recently they were playing a game which consisted in everybody in the room making a face, and the one who made the worst face was awarded a prize. They all did their level best, and then a gentleman went up to one of the ladies and said:

"Well, madam, I think you have won the prize."

"Oh," she said, "I wasn't playing."

VERY WEAK

It was his first morning in his new "apartments," and his landlady came up with the breakfast, and as he began the meal she opened a slight conversation.

"It looks like rain," she said.

"It does," replied the lodger, "although it smells rather like coffee."

RURAL ETIQUETTE

A farmer had come to town to see a man on a business deal. At noon they went to a restaurant for luncheon. The farmer ate his entire meal with his knife. Near the end he discovered he had no fork.

"Say," he said to his friend, "that waiter didn't give me a fork."

"Well, you don't need one now, do you?" asked the city man.

"Why don't I?" inquired the farmer. "What am I going to stir my coffee with?"

A SHORT COMPOSITION

When asked to write a short composition on some interesting experience Tommy, after much labor, handed his teacher the following:

"Twins is a baby, only it's double. When twins do sumything wrong their mother can't tell which one to lick so she gives it to both of 'em so as to make sure. We've got twins at our house, and I'd swap 'em any day for some white mice or sumthing. And

THE SIXTH SENSE

Is That of Equilibrium—Recognized by Physiologists

Few people are aware that there is recognized now by all physiologists a well-defined sixth sense. It is known as the sense of equilibrium. Its seat is in the semi-circular canals of the inner ear, and is very ingeniously constructed to do that for which it was intended. These canals for a long time puzzled scientists, as it was known that they had nothing to do with hearing or the proper working of the auricular organ, and consequently were looked on as superfluous.

They consist of three semi-circular tubes, almost at right angles to one another and full of a clear liquid. They enable a person to tell what position he is in, no matter whether he is blind or paralyzed. By some peculiar process not well understood, but which probably has something to do with the varying pressure of the liquid in the canals on nerve-fibres while the body assumes different positions, they warn us when we are about to lose our equilibrium, and give us the consciousness of being in any position assumed.

A peculiar thing in connection with this and one that had a great deal to do with the final discovery of the use of the organs is the following: On divers occasions steeplejacks and workmen on high buildings found that they had lost their nerve and that they could no longer persuade themselves to go very far from the ground. On trying to work at their old trades they would have a dizzy feeling and would not be able to remain upright at great heights for any length of time. On examination by physicians it was determined that their semi-circular canals were diseased and that consequently their sense of equilibrium was partly lost.

A GAELIC STORY

A Fine Tale from the Western Isles of Scotland

Many folk tales in which apples play a magical part are to be found in the Highlands, as also in Ireland. The following Gaelic story from the Western Isles of Scotland tells how a Prince went to visit his wicked sister who is a witch, and with whom three venomous pigs dwell. He, however, takes the precaution of taking three apples with him, and when the enraged sister sets her porkers on him, intending to kill him and seize his money, he runs away, but throws the apples one by one behind him. These change into woods, and moors, and lakes, hence hinder the porkers from getting to him. Other similar stories have the apples as the magical sign. Indeed, in all Gaelic folk lore the apple plays an important part, and it is also found in Italian German and Norse legend. When the two eldest idle sons of the king go out to herd cattle, they find an apple tree whose fruit moves up and down as they vainly strive to pluck it; when the hero wishes to pass from Islay to Ireland he throws sixteen apples one by one into the sea, and steps from one to the other; when the giant's daughter runs away with the king's son, she cuts an apple into a mystical number of small bits, and each bit talks, then when she kills the giant she puts an apple under the hoof of the magic filly and he dies, for his life is in the apple, and so on. In Manx stories we find the golden apple as a prize; in Norse legend the Princess has three golden apples on her lap; in the "Arabian Nights" there is a long story, "The Three Apples," which turns upon the stealing of one. In the well-known tale of "Snow White" there occurs a poisoned magical apple, and in French legends we often find an apple that sings or speaks. History tells us the Druid priests held the apple sacred, hence it appears that the fruit has been magical and mysterious from the earliest of times, throughout all ages. Sought for in the West, valued in the East, apples are still invested with the magic that belongs to the past and now, when they form one of the most important of our natural productions, we may spare a few minutes to regard what was at one time a sacred fruit.

A GALLANT CORNET

Sir George Wombwell, who recently celebrated his golden wedding, is probably best remembered for his gallantry in the Valley of Death at Balaclava. In the memorable charge, though he was not on duty with the 17th Lancers, in which he was a cornet, and extra galloper to Lord Cardigan, he rode on the right flank. Twice he had his mounts shot from under him, but he went to within a hundred yards of the terrible battery unscathed.

DYSPEPSIA Can Be Cured.

This disease is the all prevailing malady of civilized life, and one which oftenest baffles all ordinary treatment. It gives rise to a great variety of distressing symptoms, such as distress after eating, rising and souring of food, wind in the stomach, heartburn, etc.

Nearly everything that enters a weak dyspeptic stomach acts as an irritant; hence the great difficulty of effecting a cure.

The long train of distressing symptoms, which render life a burden to the victim of dyspepsia, may be promptly cured by the use of Burdock Blood Bitters.

B.B.B. regulates the stomach, liver and bowels, stimulates secretion of the saliva and gastric juice to facilitate digestion, purifies the blood, and tones up the entire system.

Mrs. Herman Dickens, Benton, N.B., writes: "I have used Burdock Blood Bitters and find that few medicines can give such relief in dyspepsia and stomach troubles. I was troubled for a number of years with dyspepsia, and could get no relief until I tried Burdock Blood Bitters. I took three bottles and became cured, and I can now eat anything without it hurting me. I will highly recommend it to all who are troubled with stomach trouble."

"Do you think you could identify the burglar?" asked the detective from Scotland Yard.

"Well, I never saw him," replied the victim, "but he was a very small man."

"How do you know?"

"Haven't I told you he got into my flat without any trouble?"

AYE, THERE'S THE RUB

A widow who had recently got married for the second time visited a certain fortune-teller the other day.

"Lady," said the fortune-teller, shuffling the cards, "the fate decrees that you will visit foreign lands. You will mingle in the court life of kings and queens. Conquering all your rivals, you will marry the man of your choice—a tall, dark, handsome gentleman of distinguished ancestry—a man, in fact, a peer of the realm."

"Will he be young?"

"Yes; young and rich."

The visitor, in her excitement, clutched the fortune-teller's arm. "But how," she cried, eagerly, "how am I to get rid of my present husband?"

CARTER MEDICINE CO., NEW YORK.

DORMAN'S GIRL

By Edna Mary Booth

ELIAS DORMAN took the pipe from between his lips.

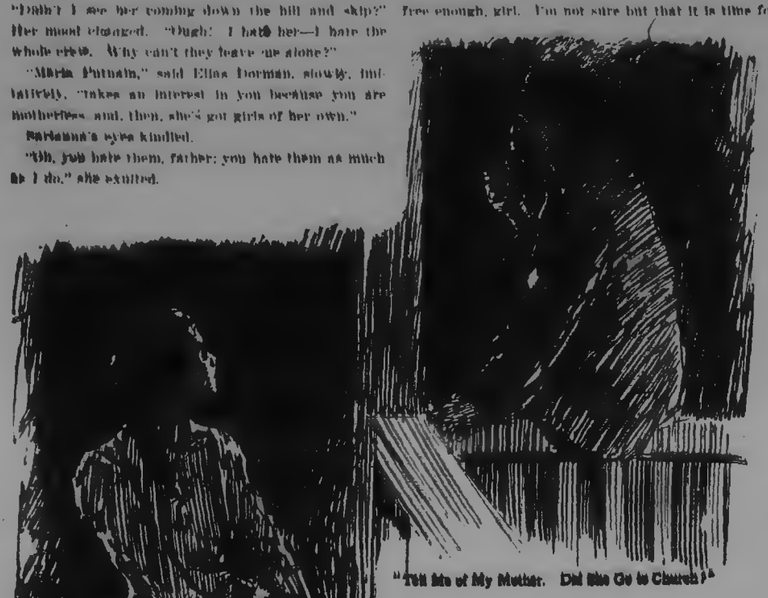
Sarianna looked up from her place on the steps of the porch.

"I know it." She threw back her head, laughing. "Didn't I see her coming down the hill and skip?" Her mood changed. "Ough! I hate her—I hate the whole crew. Why can't they leave me alone?"

"Maria Putnam," said Elias Dorman, slowly, deliberately, "takes an interest in you because you are motherless and, then, she's got girls of her own."

Sarianna's eyes kindled.

"Oh, you hate them, father; you hate them as much as I do," she exulted.



"Tell Me of My Mother. Did She Go to Church?"

The man took a long puff at his pipe.

"I hate meddling," he blurted, when the pipe was again in his hand. "I hate them to act as though we're degenerates and curiosities."

The girl tossed her head.

"Well, if that means anything different from them I hope we're it."

Dorman laughed.

"What'll ever become of you, girl?"

After a moment he became serious.

"They may be right in some things, though, Sarianna. I guess you had ought to go to church. Mother always went."

Sarianna turned to him sharply. A sudden tenseness came into her voice.

"Tell me of my mother. Did she go to church?"

The dusky fingers closed firmly upon his pipe. The stem snapped, and with a gesture of impatience he flung the pieces from him.

"Yes," he answered.

The girl sprang up, revealing a tall, lithe form that seemed almost too powerful for a woman. She threw out her hands, appealingly.

"Oh, father, tell me, tell me more!" she cried.

He shook his head sadly.

"Father, why won't you?"

"Because when I came back home sixteen years ago I wanted the twenty years before to drop out. I wanted to forget as much as I could. I feel the same now."

The girl knelt on a step and wound her arms about the post above her.

"Twenty years was a long time for you to stay away, father. Why didn't you come home?"

"If my mother had lived I should have come after the first few years. Heart and soul I am a sailor; what was the use of coming back to father with his everlasting talk of college and law?"

"And then, you met my mother?" Sarianna entreated.

"Don't let us wrestle with that to-night," he refused.

The girl sank down upon the steps and hid her face in the curve of her arm. The man left his chair and began to pace the porch. Up in the tree tops the wind began to reign. Only the soft rustle of it came to the two on the farmhouse porch. Gradually it descended until it touched the waters of the Sound.

Sarianna lifted her head.

"There's going to be a storm," she prophesied quietly.

Overhead the moon rose in a heaven so clear that the black cobwebs hung on threads leading to a higher place.

Quiet as her voice was it startled Elias Dorman.

"Yes, Sarianna," he said, hastily.

Sarianna gazed at him thoughtfully.

"Am I a great trial to you, father?" she asked, wistfully.

With an effort Dorman aroused himself to a laughing tone.

"I suppose I ought to say that you're a thorn in the flesh, but, to tell the truth, I approve of you, although I know I ought to do."

The girl rose to her feet with a merry laugh.

"I'm glad William is that," she chuckled. "He has approved of me more than he really ought to."

Dorman came to the porch rail and hung over it.

"Look here, Sarianna," he said seriously, "that is something I want to talk to you about."

The girl put up her hands in mock terror.

"Don't; please don't."

"Come, Sarianna, you've got to listen to me once in a while. William Blake is a good man. For his sake I wish you'd be a little different. Your life has been free enough, girl. I'm not sure but that it is time for you to settle down a bit. Anyway I don't want you to lose Blake. I'd like to see you his wife."

"Oh!" breathed Sarianna.

"I mean it," persisted Dorman. "I wish you thought more of him."

"Oh, I think enough of him," she declared brusquely.

She walked down the pathway—back and down again. There was a certain wild impatience in her movements.

For fifteen years the people of a little Connecticut town had criticised and censured Dorman's girl. But only of late had there come to Dorman any anxiety concerning the future of his child.

To-night he watched her walking up and down the path, as he had watched her often in the last few weeks. More than one emotion lined his face.

Suddenly she came to him, a wonderful light in her eyes.

"Look! Father, look! See, the moonlight is on her cabin. See her rock, father! Isn't she kind of the caress of the waves?"

She pointed to a catboat at anchor in a bay below them.

Dorman laughed, even if his voice shook.

"How you love that boat, Sarianna! No wonder William Blake is jealous of it."

The girl made a grimace.

"How can any one compare the Sarianna with William Blake? My Lady Sailor wouldn't like it."

"You're a queer girl," her father sighed. "I wish you'd like him better."

"You've said that before," she retorted.

"And you don't think you can please me in this, Sarianna?"

She tossed her head as if she already felt the restraint her father would put upon her.

"Oh, I don't know, father; I don't know."

She moved away from the porch.

"I'm going to the beach. If he comes you may tell him."

"Wait for him, Sarianna. You know he'll come."

The girl's lips parted, showing large, even, white teeth.

"No, I'm not sure of it, father. How long do I know he'll stand being told that I'm dragging him down—down to the very depths of—— I won't say it, father, but I've heard you use the word. Hark! Hear the waves, and see, 'way down the stars have gone out. The storm's coming. In the morning it will be here."

She hurried down the path and disappeared below the bank.

Five minutes later Blake came.

"You'll find her on the beach, William," Dorman greeted him. "You'll have the same old job, I reckon. Well, it's a good night for a sail."

But when Blake came to her the girl said nothing about going out in the boat. She was pacing back and forth at the very edge of the water.

"Oh, you've come!" she exclaimed.

"You knew that I would."

"I wasn't sure that your mother wouldn't let you," she chaffed.

"Don't talk foolishly," Blake frowned.

She resumed her walking and he joined her.

"Maria Putnam came here to-day," she told him, after an interval of silence.

"So that is why you are not in a decent temper. What did she say to you?"

"Nothing at all;" Sarianna laughed, taking no offense at the words. "I saw her first. I slipped out of the back door. I wanted to go for a sail, but there was no wind then, so I rowed—rowed out to the point and back. Oh, I gave her plenty of time to lay the law down to father. Poor father!"

"Did she?" Blake asked, amused.

"Of course. It was about church to-day, I guess. Any way, father told me to-night that I really ought to go to church."

"He is right, Sarianna."

"Of course. Father is always right. But you need not think, William Blake, that I'm going." She stopped walking. "Why should I go while I have this?" She stretched her arms out to the sea. "Isn't God here the same as in that stuffy old church? I tell you I won't go. I won't be laced and starched and sit for an hour or more with a hat on. I won't! I won't!"

Blake dug one foot deep into the sand. He cleared his throat and clasped his hands behind his back.

"Oh, you're going to make a speech," foretold Sarianna.

Blake flushed. In the moonlight she could see the color sweep his face. She laughed softly and he felt the spur.

"Well, there's this much to it, Sarianna," he blurted, "you're twenty years old now, and it's time you began to do a little as other folks do."

"This would be mighty interesting, William, if I hadn't heard it before."

"Not so much as you ought to have done." Blake was warming to his subject. "I don't like to say anything against your father, but you're done just as you've wanted to do ever since he brought you here years ago. He and that old woman up there have been your slaves. You've——"

"Yes, yes, I know," she interrupted, impatiently. "I've heard it all before, and—I can't—I can't bear it to-night."

Blake gave her a puzzled look.

"What is the matter with you to-night?" he asked.

"I don't know," she said wearily. "I've been asking father to tell me something of my mother, but he won't—he never will—he won't let Martha. Why won't he tell me who I am, William?"

"You're a Dorman; that is enough to know."

The girl turned from him with a low cry.

"What is it, Sarianna?" he asked, in troubled tones.

"Oh, you don't understand me. Why is it? You've told me over and again that you love me, but you can't, you can't, or you would understand me."

The man looked at her helplessly.

"Oh, it's the things I don't know that I want to know," she cried. "I've tried so hard to straighten things out. I've tried so many times to find out why Martha in her queer English calls me 'My lady.' I can remember so little of what I knew before I came here that it is like putting that old puzzle boat of yours together with all the pieces gone but one sail."

Blake laughed. But when Sarianna turned a wrathful gaze upon him he became serious at once, and said:—

"I wish you wouldn't think of it, Sarianna. If your father doesn't wish you to know he has a reason for it. Better be content as you are, Sarianna."

"Oh, I could know easily enough what you would say. I'm a fool to talk to you, but—there's no one else. Well, whoever my mother was, this much I know—she loved the sea. Her fathers, too, were men of the sea, not for a little time, but back—back to the time when it was the sailors who found new lands."

"Hush!" said Blake, swinging from her.

The girl's eyes followed him for an instant, and again the low cry escaped from her lips.

"Oh," she despaired, seating herself wearily upon an old boat, "you don't understand. If you understood me I could love you."

She Threw Out One Arm Toward the Sea. "Why Didn't They Leave Him There?"

Blake stood apart, watching her. In this mood she was wholly incomprehensible. Nevertheless, he loved her with a love that was above the ordinary. The outcome, perhaps, of an unusual courtship. He was twenty-five years old, and this was his first passion—the passion of his youth. Many times he had seemed to wish himself free of it, with no will to bring matters to a definite conclusion.

To-night the moonlight softened the ruggedness of Sarianna and gave to her an unusual beauty. He longed to go to her, snatch her up in his arms and carry her off to his mother to be made one of his mother's orderly household. He watched her dig her feet down into the sand. Her dark skirt was woefully lacking in length, and the white blouse she wore was open at the throat. Her shoulders and proud head drooped a little, but after a time she straightened and tossed backward a long thick braid of brown hair with a swift, challenging motion. He looked at her then with the critical eye of a New England villager supplanting the lover.

He strode toward her.

"Aren't you ever going to wear long skirts and do up your hair?" he demanded.

"I am not sure," she answered coolly.

"But you must, Sarianna. You can't go on like this."

"Why not?" Sarianna's voice was metallic.

"Because I won't"——

"You?" broke out Sarianna, getting upon her feet.

"Can't you be reasonable, Sarianna?" He attempted to take hold of her.

She sprang past him.

"You forget, William Blake, that I am not your wife and have never promised to be."

When she went toward the path leading to the house he did not follow her. He was wise enough to know that it would not be possible to talk any more to Sarianna that night.

Two days later Sarianna again walked back and forth upon the beach. The fury of the September storm that had lasted a day and a night was gone. The heavens were not yet clear, but the rush of the waters was subsiding.

The morning before Elias Dorman, down on the beach, among some busy fishermen, had offered to go out to secure a boat that seemed to be slipping her moorings. He rowed out, every motion giving evidence of his joy in fighting wave and wind. Later, after going through much danger, the men had brought him home. The elements had won the battle. It was a strange thing to happen to a man who on high seas had laughed at storms.

He was lying white and still up in the house while Sarianna paced the sands. No one but Martha had dared to speak to her. All day she had looked with scorn upon the women that filled the house. Once when they had sent Martha to her with a question she had told the old woman curtly that she had nothing to say.

At twilight she had gone to the beach. After a time Martha sent Blake to her.

"Sarianna, there must be something I can do for you," he pleaded, laying his hand upon her shoulder. She freed herself impatiently.

"They drive me mad!" she cried. "They're everywhere in the house. I can't get away from the sound of their voices. Why don't they leave me alone? Why don't they leave him alone? Don't they know that he'd hate it? They're planning all sorts of things. They think that I am beside myself, and they're treating me like a little child. They've even sent to the city for clothes for me to wear. They don't seem to realize that I am not deaf. They're going to have a quartet sing, and they're going to line the grave with flowers. Don't they know that he'd hate it? Why did they bring him home? Out there is where father would rather lie." She threw out one arm toward the sea. "Why didn't they leave him there? Hasn't he said over and over again that there was no better ending than to go out to sea?"

Blake shuddered.

"Don't, Sarianna," he urged; "don't think like that. The men couldn't do less than search for him, and they risked their lives to do it. It is because every one is sorry for you that they are trying to do so much. Why don't you think that way, Sarianna?"

"Father would call it 'meddling,'" she answered, doggedly.

Blake attempted to take her hand.

She drew back. "Don't!" she flared. "You're one of them! You don't know what this is to me!"

For half an hour they walked in silence, her face turned always to the sea. The twilight deepened to dusk; the clouds parted and stars came out.

Suddenly she turned to him. With a single gesture she flung her arms about his neck.

"William! William!" she cried. "I want to give father the Sarianna; I want to give both of them to the sea. William, help me to do it and I'll love you—I know I'll love you!"

The man drew back, aghast. He tried to loosen her arms, but they were like bands of steel. He attempted to wrench himself away, but in physique and strength she was his equal.

"For heaven's sake, let me go!" he cried.

The muscles in her arms relaxed, but she did not unclasp her hands. Blake ceased to struggle. Her face was very close to his.

"William," she entreated, "if you really love me you'll do it. No one need know. They'll all go away to-night. Martha will help. I want father to wear his oilskins, she always loved to be in them. We'll lay him in the Sarianna's little cabin and lock the door. I'll take them out to sea and you must find some way for me to give them to it. I'll row back to the nearest shore. The water will be quiet then."

"I can't, Sarianna. It's heathenish," resisted Blake.

She was too much in earnest to be angry with him. Moreover, she knew with a woman's intuition that she was winning. His arm had slipped about her, he allowed his face to rest against hers. She had never surrendered thus to him before, and she was realizing the power of it.

"William," she breathed softly, all her wildness gone, "if you'll do this I'll come back to you. I'll wear long skirts. I'll do my hair just as you wish. I'll be your wife, William, and I'll go to church every Sunday."

She drew her head from his and searched his face with eyes like live coals.

"William," she cried, "do it for him. He loved you, William."

She released him and waited, her breath coming in fitful gasps.

With a muttered word the man caught her to him.

"You'll promise me that you won't be reckless—you'll promise me you'll come back?"

"Yes, William," she said, reverently. "I am sure God will let me come back to you."

He had not asked to go with her. At last, in part, he understood her, and the knowledge tamed her wayward heart.

From the east came the promise of dawn. Sarianna left her place at the tiller and with swift unerring fingers lowered the sail. This done, she felt along the bottom of the boat and began to draw out the plugs that Blake, remembering a story dear to his boyhood, had arranged for her. Slowly, steadily the boat began to fill. For a moment she knelt in the water with her body resting against the cabin. Then reverently, each movement a caress for what she loved best on earth, she swung herself over the side of the boat.

The rowboat had shipped considerable water, and for a time Sarianna was busy bailing it out. Afterward she waited quietly until, reeling a little to one side, the Sarianna passed from sight.

There was more light in the east. A new day was coming, but the girl had not yet begun it. The oars were still at the bottom of the boat.

No longer had she any desire to know her father's secret. She was content that it should pass with him. Martha would never tell and she was glad.

Nothing could ever be the same again, yet all seemed well. By this one wild act she had brought herself into bondage. All her life must be spent in expiation, and still she was glad.

So let the waves sing a solemn requiem for the father she loved and the boat she loved, and her heart gave a joyful surrender to things as they were.

Gentleman in Vancouver Owes His Recovery

TO "FRUIT-A-TIVES"

Vancouver, B.C., Feb. 1st, 1910.

I am well acquainted with a man, known to thousands in Vancouver, Victoria and New Westminster, who for nearly a year was practically a cripple from rheumatism. He was so troubled with the disease that he found it difficult to even turn over in bed. His heart appeared so weak that he could hardly get upstairs. Last June, he received a sample of "Fruit-a-tives." He used them and dates his recovery from that time. To-day there is no other man in Vancouver enjoying better health. He was building a house this fall and shingled a good part of the roof in a driving rain storm without suffering any bad effects.

The Turning of the Tide For Two Persons

By KARL K. SHIMANSKY

Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

Young Mrs. Sanderson came slowly down the stairs clad in a beautiful white satin gown.

"Going away again?" asked her husband wearily, putting down his paper.

"Yes, Jack," she replied; "tonight there is a meeting of the Woman's Rights club. It's a very important meeting too. We're going to elect a new president, and the contest is between Mrs. Albert and myself. You will wish me good luck, won't you, dear?" she cried, putting her arms around his neck.

"Laura," said her husband slowly, "you know I want you to have all the good luck in the world. But of what use are all these clubs? You belong to at least five. The literary club is all right; that does you a great deal of good. And Judge Lander told me today that your visits to the juvenile court could hardly be dispensed with. He said that you had reformed several apparently incorrigible young men. Those are the kind of occupations you should like. You have gone to three card clubs this week, and they do good to no one. In fact, you get no pleasure from cards unless you win. And you go more and more every week." Here he paused, breathless after his long speech.

His wife arose and leaned against the mantel, looking at him in dismay.

"Jack!" she said in a surprised voice. "Jack"— She stopped, not knowing what to say in reply to an argument which in the depths of her soul she knew to be right.

"Why don't you stay at home sometimes and take care of James instead of leaving him entirely with the nurse?" continued Mr. Sanderson, with considerable spirit. "You are forgetting how to keep house. What's become of the hundred and one little plans that used to engage your time for our mutual entertainment? Things are different now."

His wife swept out of the room without a word. She paused at the front door.

"Goodby, Jack," she called softly.

"Goodby, Laura," said her husband. "If you don't find me here when you return don't be worried."

* * * * * * *

About 10 o'clock that night the front door of the Sanderson mansion slowly opened. A well built man clad in evening dress and carrying a silk hat entered the hall. He walked quietly through the deserted rooms until he came to the library, where a small light was burning.

He slipped a gleaming little automatic pistol into a convenient pocket and went lightly up the stairs.

The clock on the library mantel had just struck the quarter after 10 when the burglar again entered the room. In his hands lay a glittering mass of precious stones.

"My, what a beauty!" he cried and then looked around apprehensively lest he had been heard. The object of his admiration was a magnificent ruby set in a simple gold band. Suddenly he seemed to crumple up, and he sank into the great leather chair which stood before the table.

"What's the use of all this?" he exclaimed in a listless voice.

As he lay there, his eyes closed in reverie, the warning was being flashed far and wide over glistening copper wires that Gentleman Jim, the famous thief, was at work and had been seen in Philadelphia.

Gentleman Jim tossed the jewels back on the table. One alone he held in his hand, and that was the great ruby. His head sank forward, and he stared at the stone with a gaze of infinite tenderness.

Suddenly there was a noise as of a door opening, and the thief whirled around, his pistol gleaming in his hand. There before the door stood Mrs. Sanderson, leveling a revolver at his head. She looked superb with her head thrown back and her eyes gleaming with unaccustomed brightness.

"Sit down," she commanded calmly, "and lay that gun on the table."

Gentleman Jim glanced around the room and took a step forward. Her pistol clicked suggestively, and, giving a slight laugh, he dropped the revolver and sat down.

Mrs. Sanderson walked slowly toward the telephone, debating in her mind whether she should call for the police or wait until Jack returned.

"May I smoke?" asked the thief as he saw her go toward the instrument.

"Sure it isn't a gun?" queried his captor suspiciously.

Gentleman Jim smiled and pulled out a package of cigarettes. Mrs. Sanderson looked at him thoughtfully.

"Why wouldn't it be a good scheme to treat him as we do prisoners in the juvenile courts?" she asked herself.

"I will," she decided and turned away from the telephone.

"Why didn't you call for help?" asked her prisoner, with a smile.

"I don't think that I have to," she replied, wondering at his nerve and calmness.

"It wouldn't do you any good if you did," he continued. "I cut the wires before I entered."

"Look here," said Mrs. Sanderson "if you will promise not to touch that gun I'll put mine down." The burglar looked at her curiously.

"I promise," he said, still staring at her. "You have some beautiful jewels," he continued, pointing to the pile on the table, "and this one especially." He held up the giant ruby which he had concealed in his hand.

Mrs. Sanderson put down her pistol.

"What makes you do this kind of work?" she asked, paying no attention to what he was saying.

Gentleman Jim suddenly leaned forward, staring intently at the ring. His deep voice became strangely soft.

"Little girl," he said, "you don't understand."

"But can't you tell me—can't you explain?" pleaded the young woman, following the methods she had used in the courts.

The burglar sat with his head in his hands for a long time, then suddenly sat up straight and held out the ruby ring.

"Only one other place on this broad earth have I seen a ring that can be compared with that," he said slowly.

"And where was that?" asked Mrs. Sanderson.

"It was here," said Gentleman Jim shortly.

"And won't you tell me about her?" she asked, trying to make him unburden himself.

The burglar lighted another cigarette.

"Three years ago," he began, "I belonged to the best society in San Francisco. I fell in love with one of the belles of the town, and when we were engaged I hunted all over the world for a ring beautiful enough to express my feelings toward her. At last I found it—one nearly like this." He paused and stared moodily at the lamp. "Then," he went on, "one day I received a note from her sending back the ring and breaking the engagement. She said she had found that she did not love me, and within a month she was married to one of my best friends. I was heartbroken and crushed, for I loved her with all my soul. I dropped from society and went to Africa. There I fought in the British ranks, and, although my comrades fell around me, I passed through every battle untouched."

"Poor boy!" murmured Mrs. Sanderson softly.

"When the war was over," he continued, "I came back and learn this. I had to have excitement or I would have gone crazy. And now I couldn't stop if I wanted to. The police are always on my trail." He stopped and looked sorrowfully at his auditor.

"There," he said; "you have my story."

"Man," she cried. "Don't you understand that you're like a piece of driftwood floating about near shore? When the tide comes in you have your chance to gain a foothold; if you wait until the tide goes out you may never have another."

"Little woman," he said solemnly, "I have tried to gain a foothold."

Mrs. Sanderson, ignoring his familiar manner of speech, quietly arose and walked to the grand piano. In a few seconds the solemn tones of "Home, Sweet Home," rang through the great house. When she had finished she turned around.

"God!" he exclaimed. "That was superb—beautiful. That music did me more good than anything I have seen or heard or felt for years."

"Look," said his captor. "You said you were thrown back when you tried to change. But do you know why? It was your own fault. You've gone along in the world with the same feeling with which you enter this house—to get what you can and if you are detected to shoot. If you meet the world with kindness in your heart and a smile on your face the world will smile back at you. But if you go on with the intention of fighting—of robbing—it will fight like a wounded tiger and give you as good as it receives. And it will rob you of the best in you—your manhood. So why don't you take a new start and forget yourself in doing good to others?"

She stopped and looked at the burglar. He picked up a book and turned the leaves in a familiar fashion. Suddenly he smiled and marked a quotation with a pencil.

"I never thought of doing that," he suddenly cried, "but I'll try it." He stood up straight as an arrow.

"I'll try it," he repeated slowly. "Will you let me shake your hand, and may I go then?"

Mrs. Sanderson, her heart aglow, went with him to the door.

"Don't forget your resolution," she cried out cheerily.

"I won't," he called back and disappeared into the dark night. And somehow she knew that he would keep his promise.

* * * * * * *

Mrs. Sanderson sat in the chair lately occupied by the reformed burglar when she saw the book which he had marked. She carelessly picked it up and turned to the bookmark. There her eyes were attracted by a cross, and beside it she read, "They serve God well who serve his creatures."

She sat there thinking until Jack came in.

"Were you elected tonight?" he asked cheerily.

"No, dear," she replied; "I withdrew my name. And, Jack," she continued, "I've decided to give up the card clubs." And she told him everything that had happened that evening.

When she had finished Mr. Sanderson drew her lovingly to him.

"Laura," he said slowly, "I'm glad. I guess that the tide has turned for two persons."

"And I am glad, too," she said.

Praise for Britain.

The German explorer, Dr. Carl Peters, is telling his numerous friends all about his latest discoveries in South Africa. Germany has to thank this resolute man for most of her East African possessions. He also claims to be the pioneer of the movement for the increase of the German navy, and the author of the Anglo-German agreement of 1890. For some years he lived in England with his uncle, Carl Engel, the well-known composer, and he has stated that "the foundation of German East Africa was practically the consequence of impressions I received in England."

At one time the doctor had strong anti-English views, but now he is a staunch admirer of England and its people. He declares that we are "a nation of statesmen — the greatest since the Romans."

Foreign critics have complained of English pride, "But if ever pride was justified in any people known to history," he says, "it is justified in the English. To understand what Great Britain has done for humanity, a man ought to wander through the forests of British Columbia and the gold fields of South Africa, to visit the banks of the Ganges and the cataracts of the Nile. How small appears all the Romans did compared with the work done by the Anglo-Saxons on this earth!"

SAME OLD DISPUTE

Mr. Lennox Wants Change in Handling Accounts—Two Years at a Time—His Amendment Cause of Long Debate

IS VOTED DOWN

Ottawa, Dec. 7.—The first straight party division of the session took place yesterday, on the acceptance of Sir Wilfrid Laurier's sub-amendment to that moved by Haughton Lennox, respecting the submission of two years' accounts to the public accounts committee. The division was: Liberals 86, Conservatives 73, giving the Government a majority of 20.

A. Verville (Maisonneuve), and F. D. Monk (Jacques Cartier) were absent from the chamber, and Arthur Gilbert (Drummond and Arthabaska) voted with the Opposition.

The evening sitting was occupied with a discussion in committee on the resolution appropriating money for the expenses of the new international joint high commission, and a lengthy dissertation took place on the question of the rights of the commission over those held by Parliament in respect of works on navigable boundary waters. Hon. Wm. Pugsley explained that the treaty was a further safeguard of the terms involved in the Ashburton treaty.

The Opposition wanted more tangible evidence of that, and the whole discussion became involved in St. Lawrence River geography. The resolution finally passed, and the bill was introduced.

Haughton Lennox (South Simcoe) precipitated a long discussion by moving in amendment to Sir Wilfrid Laurier's formal motion to submit the public accounts and Auditor-General's report to the public accounts committee for the past fiscal year, that, instead, these documents for two years past should go before the committee. Mr. Lennox explained that many public works are undertaken, which do not progress sufficiently the first year to warrant investigation, and these accounts are closed to the committee, when an effort is sought to enquire into the entire transaction on completion. He also thought that the Government should follow the English custom and elect the chairman from the Opposition. He claimed further that the committee was too large and unwieldy. "Take down the bars," he said, "and let the people see how the country is run."

Sir Wilfrid Laurier thought that the proposal to extend to two years was not logical. He was personally of the opinion that all the committees were too large, but it would not be advisable to make a change at this period of the present Parliament.

Sir Wilfrid moved in amendment: "If when, in a report of the public accounts committee, it is recommended that particular items of the Auditor-General's report of the previous year be referred to the said committee, the House will favorably consider such recommendation."

R. L. Borden advanced the argument that the committee last year had only dealt with half the accounts of the Public Works Department. On account of the indisposition of Mr. Brodeur, the marine estimates were not touched at all, while the printing bureau estimates had hardly been considered. It would be no detriment to the public interest if these accounts went before the committee. The Premier simply told the committee to do as they had already done, and really restricted further investigation.

Dr. Reid (Grenville) described some of the transactions entered into by the Public Works Department as roguery, insisting and believing, Referring to the obstruction of Mr. Pugsley and others, he was surprised that the Prime Minister was willing to stand behind these obstructionists. He refused to accept the amendment of Mr. Lennox. He must be in league with them.

W. H. Smythe (Algoma) declared that the Premier and others were guilty of causing civil servants, whose bread and butter were dependent upon the Government, to perjure themselves after they had come to the committee, intending to give honest evidence.

Richard Blain (Peel) said the chief reason why the work of the public accounts committee was unsatisfactory, was because the Government induced them purchasing goods from middlemen, who made enormous profits.

Major Sharpe (North Ontario) observed that the most flagrant sinner was Mr. Pugsley who had obstructed efforts to show that the Imperial Realty Co. of Ottawa had secured a rake-off on lighting and heating contracts made by the city for the Departmental Buildings. This company was composed simply of middlemen.

Mr. Lennox refused to accept the sub-amendment offered by Sir Wilfrid, and the House divided, Gilbert, member for Drummond and Arthabaska, voting with the Opposition. The vote stood, Liberals 86, Conservatives 73. The amended motion passed on the same division.

Tests Mrs. Glover's Comb.

East Cambridge, Mass., Dec. 7.—One of the biggest surprises of the trial of Hattie Lebiane on the charge of having murdered Clarence F. Glover, came yesterday, when Wm. H. McCall, superintendent of the Glover Laundry, testified that the lady's comb found in the laundry the next day after the tragedy was that of Mrs. Lillian M. Glover.

The comb was introduced into the case by the state, and Mrs. Glover testified that it belonged to Hattie Lebiane. McCall swore that he often visited the Glover home, and that he saw the comb in question, or one just like it. He said that it was being worn by a woman when he saw it.

"Who was wearing it?" Lawyer Melvin M. Johnson asked.

"Mrs. Glover," replied the witness.

$60 FINE IMPOSED

By Magistrate Dumble This Morning on Bartender, on a Charge of Selling Liquor to Boys Under Age—Much Evidence

BLACKLIST CASE

Wm. Pierce, bartender at the American House, was arraigned in the police court this morning on a charge of supplying liquor to minors, Ross McColl and John Copperwaithe. Pierce stated that he remembered seeing the boys in the barroom and he also remembered asking them their names.

McColl's evidence was heard first. He admitted being in the hotel and getting liquor, but stated that the bartender did not ask him his name.

Mr. Atchison, a boarder at the hotel, next gave evidence. He said that he came into the bar just at the time of the incident to get some matches and overheard the little dialogue between the bartender and the boys. He would not swear that the boys in court were the ones in the bar, but to the best of his knowledge and belief they were. He said he heard the bartender ask one of the boys (he thought the latter, (Copperwaithe) how old he was, and if he was 21. The boy answered that he was nearer 22 than 21, and then (Mr. Atchison) left the room.

Mr. John Revoy was then called. He said that McColl was standing back a little piece from the bar smoking a cigar, and he did not know whether the bartender served McColl or not, but he saw Copperwaithe with the glass of liquor in his hand. Revoy said that he would take either of the boys for 21.

Joe Guerin was the next witness called. He corroborated the former witnesses' statements. Mr. J. Morrow and Mr. J. Gauthier were also called and gave evidence similar to the above.

Then Pierce, the bartender, was called. He said he asked Copperwaithe if he was 21 and the latter answered that he was. Pierce stated that he told McColl that he would get no more liquor there, but he gave him a cigar.

Copperwaithe was put in the box. He said he did not remember the bartender asking him how old he was. He said he was sober when he went into the hotel, but was not very sober coming out. He would not swear, however, that the bartender did not ask him how old he was.

Copperwaithe was again sent in the box. He stated that McColl got a few drinks over the bar before he got the cigars. He said he knew Gauthier, but Gauthier was not in the bar when he first came. It appears that he and McColl came and had a few drinks and then went out, and when they came back the second time, the little dialogue between them and the bartender took place. He admitted that he knew he was not of age and that he was doing wrong, but never thought he was getting any person else into trouble.

McColl stated that he got a cigar down town and that he was served with drink first in the American house. He admitted being in the court on other occasions.

Mr. G. N. Gordon appeared for the defence.

Mr. Dumble then gave a summary of the case. He drew attention to the fact that the boys' ages were not asked until they came a second time. He also said that he questioned the truth of the whole affair. He said that the boys' statements were uncontradictory and that the evidence given for the prosecution was not broken. He stated that he would not make it a minimum offence.

Mr. G. N. Gordon asked to have the fine not made forthwith as he was going to appeal the case. His Worship, Magistrate Dumble then pronounced judgment.

Pierce's fine was $60 and $7.45 costs. Being for Copperwaithe $30 fine and $4.15 costs and for giving liquor to McColl $20 and $3.30 costs.

Wm. Trimear was charged with supplying liquor to Mr. Coulter. Trimear said he did not know that Coulter was on the black list until later, but he admitted giving him the liquor. Coulter was put in the box and stated that he never told Trimear that he was on the list, but he thought he

LIBERAL PAPERS CALL UPON BALFOUR TO RESIGN AT ONCE

However Unionist Leaders Urge Followers Not to be Discouraged and Say Last Week Will Bring Gains---Canadians are in Demand for Electioneering Purposes.

Special wire to The Examiner:

LONDON, ENG., DEC. 7. — Not daunted by three days' reverse, Hon. A. J. Balfour, the leader of the Unionist Opposition, is busy this morning addressing big meetings in several metropolitan ridings where the Liberals expect to make a clean sweep. The Unionist leaders urge their followers not to be discouraged, victory is often won by a final charge. Balfour said to-day he expected the last week of polling would show many gains for the Unionists.

For the government Honourable John Burns, Will Crooks, the Labourite, Hamar and Joe Martin, candidates all of whom won great and rather unexpected victories for government, were in forefront in the campaign speech making to-day. They addressed meetings in ridings sometimes miles away. The Canadians' method of electioneering have naturally appealed to Asquith and they are in demand in every constituency where elections still to be held.

To-day's Liberals papers call on Balfour who has, they say, thrice led his party to defeat, to resign forthwith. In the nominations this morning the Coalition party took six out of ten Union tested seats, giving them a majority at noon of seven.

LONDON, ENG., DEC. 7.—William O'Brien, Independent Nationalist and Matthew Healey, his running mate, have both been elected in Cork City. O'Brien defeated William Redmond, brother of John Redmond, the Nationalist Leader. Fearing a renewal of riots, which marked yesterday's balloting the returning officers did not announce the results till noon to-day. O'Brien and Healey must be put in the doubtful column. They say they will vote with the Government ,or may be with the Conservatives. The Conservative evening papers are taking considerable consolation out of the results in Cork. They say it presages a turnout at the finish. This makes the results to this afternoon, Unionists 151, Liberals 108, Labourites, 29; Nationalists 30, O'Brienites 2.

SCHOOL BOY HURT WHILE SLEIGH-RIDING YESTERDAY

Since the cold snap set in, sleigh riding on the Central school hill has become a favourite pastime with the younsters. Yesterday as a result of an accident, Frederick Rutherford, a pupil at the Central school, residing at 541 Aylmer street, was badly shaken up and bruised, to such an extent that he had to be taken up and medical assistance called. Young Rutherford was sleigh riding with the rest and was walking up the hill when he was struck with a swiftly descending sleigh with three girls on it and knocked over. Dr. Marshall attended to his injuries.

YOUNG LADY ASSAULTED ON EDINBURGH STREET

The following has been sent to the Examiner with a request for publication:

Last night a brutal assault was made on a young girl in the northern part of the city. While walking with a friend this lady was accosted by a man who swore at her. She rebuked him and the ruffian knocked off her hat and dragged her up Edinburgh street to Bethune street, tearing her coat en route.

Here the young lady began screaming. A young man who lived nearby hearing the screams and hastening out was beseeched b ythe lady to render help. The young man told the villain to release her instantly. This he did and after a few heated words he departed. The young lady was taken into a nearby house and a cab was sent for. Mr. Ernie Lawrence promptly apeared and the girl was driven away.

All this time the ruffian remained nearby and only departed after the hack had gone.

AT LESS THAN COST

School Children Getting School Supplies and Text Books at a Lower Figure Than What the Board Pays

STATEMENT READ

In compliance with the request of Dr. Burnham, Mr. H. G. Thompson, Secretary of the Board of Education, supplied the members last evening at their regular monthly meeting with a statement of the fund for text books and supplies. The statement shows that the aggregate deficit since the adoption of the system, including this year, amounted to $680.97. It must be a source of gratification to all concerned to learn that the fees collected for text books and supplies, although not sufficient to meet the demand made upon it, has been supplemented from the common fund to the advantage of the Public school supporters.

On motion of Mr. Dumble, seconded by Mr. Hill, the Board expressed its unqualified gratification that the people had not been overcharged for text books and supplies, but on the contrary the children were getting the same really at less than cost.

BOY SLASHES HIS THROAT WITH KNIFE IN VIEW OF MANY

Mind Unbalanced From Serious Injury in a Hockey Match, He Ends His Life on the Street---Is Chased by Crowd, Brandishing His Knife and Dies When Caught.

MONTREAL, DEC. 6.—A gruesome tragedy was begun last night at 919 Urbain street, a tragedy that reached its culmination in the Royal Victoria Hospital with the death of Hudson Adams, who had slashed at his throat with a carving knife in full view of a terror-stricken crowd of spectators, on the street near his home. Ever since Adams met with an all but fatal accident in a hockey match it is thought by those who knew him that his mind has been temporarily unbalanced.

It was early in the evening that Adams pounced upon the long carving knife and thrust its point into his throat. His sister, with whom he lived and who is employed as forewoman in the glove department of John Murpany and Company's establishment, retained remarkable presence of mind, and with a wonderful composure refrained from exciting the poor young man further and succeeded in gaining his consent in sending for an ambulance. She ran to Mr. McCrea, who lives at 901 on the same street, for help. Left alone, the unfortunate boy recovered the knife, of which he had been momentarily deprived, sprang through a window and fled, tearing at his collar and tie with one hand while he hacked and mutilated his throat with the knife he held in the other. It was near Mary Ann street that he attracted the attention of some children, whose cries for help drew other people to the scene. It was constable Pilon who finally caught Adams after he had flourished his blood stained knife over the heads of men, women and children and had defied capture.

The constable did not catch Adams until the latter had led him from street to street, down lanes and over an eight foot fence. Captured after a fierce struggle, the victim of his own violence was sent to the Royal Victoria Hospital, where he died shortly after.

Adams and his sister came from Sherbrooke, P.Q., and had been living together on St. Urbain street since last May. The body will be sent to his home this afternoon for burial.

FURS AS CHRISTMAS GIFTS PRESENTS THAT ALWAYS PLEASE

Barrie & Co. Have a Magnificent Assortment in all Lines ---The Place to Secure Gifts That Will be Appreciated by Every Woman.

Verily the woman is a rarity who is not overjoyed at the receiving of a Fur Gift, which comes to her without looking for, without choosing, without paying for.

In the wooing of Tennyson's Princess it will be remembered how the father of the blue-eyed Prince "sent Ambassadors with Furs, Jewels, gifts to fetch her," judging, doubtless, that even the most wilful maiden would not be susceptible to the charms of precious gems or a bit of daintily fashioned peltry, and Fur still ranks as a Princely Gift. It still holds the magic power of winning a way to the feminine heart. As a love-laden offering from husband to wife from brother to sister, from mother to daughter, from lover to sweetheart, from any relative to any for whose adornment and comfort it would be appropriate, it is ever of pre eminent suitability.

Among the novelties in smart Fur Sets for Christmas giving we would mention Adelaide, Chinchilla, Ermine, and the several kinds of Foxes as being very popular. Persian Lamb Mink, Alaska, Sable, Wolf and Badger, are also greatly sought after, and make very handsome pieces when appropriately made. In the jacket line, of course, Persian Lamb and Seal, either Alaska and Hudson) lead, as they always do; while Near Seal, Muskrat Caricule and fine, curly Astrachans and Bocharen Lamb in long lengths are very much in vogue this season.

Ladies and Gentlemen's Fur-lined garments are selling better than ever this season, as there is no other garment of Fur wear for either sex, which embodies so much style, comfort and durability at as little cost as they do.

For driving, autoing, and general utility, the heavy coats made of coon, Beaver, Muskrat and a whole list of heavy peltry of different colourings, some as low in price as $14.75, are to be had that give good service. Barrie's Limited of Peterborough and Regina, never before have made as extensive and well selected a stock to choose from as this year. Their long experience in making up Furs, and their extensive connection with trappers and collectors place them in a unique position for supplying and making up good Furs at very close prices. From "Trapper to Wearer" is not simply a catch phrase, but is a genuine business fact with them: there are no middle men reaping profits off their Furs. They pay cash for all raw material and have the goods made up by hand labour in their own workrooms. A guarantee goes with every Fur article sold, that it is just as represented in every particular.

It is safe to buy from people that know, in any article, but in furs it is absolutely necessary, as Furs usually represent a considerable outlay, and are an article that one can readily be deceived in. It pays to pay for quality and security when buying Furs.

At Barrie's one can get both without any extra charge and generally at much lower figures than are asked elsewhere.

Barrie's Limited extends to you a welcome to look through when doing your Christmas shopping.

They also show a very complete and select stock of Men's Furnishings and Men's Hats and Caps of the better sort. Just now beautifully boxed for Christmas giving

Tenders Being Asked For Building An Addition To Local Post Office

Plans and specifications are out, and tenders are being asked for the construction of an addition to the local post office. The new part will be built in the present yard. It will be one story high, 30 by 50 feet. This addition will be in two rooms, one a good large one for assorting mail, and the other will be the postmaster's office. The present quarters for assorting mail are far inadequate and the new part is badly needed.

A NATIONAL INSTITUTION.

It takes from ten to fifteen representatives to conduct the business of many municipalities—to administer a few thousand dollars, yet a small board of directors manages the Bank of Montreal, whose interest-bearing deposits amount to 154 million dollars and its total deposits to more than 300 millions of dollars. Thus one sees how large a part this great financial institution plays in promoting the interests and growth of Canada. It is to be credited with an important share of contribution to "the almost universal prosperity of the land" which the president says is evidenced in "the tremendous earnings of the railways, the output of factories and the large volume of commercial transactions." Deposits increased during the year by 18 millions of dollars.

TRANSATLANTIC OPPORTUNISM.

The Lloyd-George budget apparently has little place in the present British elections. In the last elections it was the chief issue. The Lords compelled the Government to go to the country on the issue of the budget, which was declared to be revolutionary, incendiary, and altogether iniquitous and ruinous—simply because it compelled the Lords, or the class they represent, to pay a share of the taxes. The people approved the budget and none of the awful things prophesied have happened. The country is in a prosperous condition under its operation with increased trade and increased revenue. The Lords seem to be an unsafe guide, only solicitious about the retention of class privileges as against the popular welfare. It is intolerable that such a body should hold the balance of power and have it in their power to nullify the will of the people. The House of Lords is thoroughly partizan, and no matter to what party the people intrust the government of the country to, a Tory government is practically always in power. Mr. J. S. Willison, editor of the News, writing from England, sets this matter in a rather clear light. He says:

> It should not be difficult for Canadians to understand the feeling amongst Liberals against the Upper Chamber. Four years ago the Government took office with an enormous majority at its back. During a long period the Lords had dealt tenderly with Unionist legislation. With the assumption of office by the Liberals they became active and obstructive. They rejected the Education Bill, the Licensing Bill and the Budget. It is doubtful if they would have rejected any of these measures if they had proceeded from a Conservative government. This explains the rage of Liberals against the House of Lords and the desperate attempt they are making to accomplish its destruction.

It is hardly fair to say that Liberals desire to "accomplish its destruction"; they rather seek to reconstruct the second chamber so that it may cease to be an outrageous anomoly, under a system of responsible government. For, as things stand, with the Lords ready to acquiesce in all legislation of a Tory government, but bent on the destruction of legislation enacted by Liberals as the representatives of the people. Great Britain cannot be said to have representative and responsible government. But the end of Upper Chamber tyranny is at hand. The Lords are showing a willingness to be reformed and their desire in this direction will not be thwarted. From time immemorial the Lords have blocked every advance in popular enfranchisement and real reform. Though, in practice, the Lords and what autocracy they represent ignore the will of the people, they are rank opportunists. To save their skins and gain office for the Tory party they are willing to go to the other extreme of radicalism. Mr. Balfour, leader of the Conservatives, went into the fray with "Tariff reform"—taxing the poor man's loaf—as a battle cry. He hopes to postpone the evil day, and to concentrate all effort upon saving the Lords, throws tariff reform, as a policy, to the winds, and wishes to refer it to the people. He is more radical than the radicals.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Seventeen days till Christmas. Have you thought of doing your Christmas buying? By shopping early you not only consult your own interest, but do the fair thing by shop men and sales girls.

Removal of trade shackles naturally promotes trade. During the last fiscal year the exports of Canada to Germany have nearly doubled. A year ago the tariff war with Germany was ended.

"A cataract of coats-cuterwauling" is Winston Churchill's description of Unionist election speeches. What, asks the Toronto Star, would he call the chaotic contortions of the Opposition's naval experts at Ottawa?

We are enjoined to do a great many things at Christmas time; among other things, we must do our Christmas buying early. Now it becomes a duty to help the postoffice employees by getting our Christmas mail matter off as early as possible.

Mr. W. M. Aitken, the boyish-looking young Canadian who has been elected to the British parliament, is a son-in-law of General Drurie, commanding at Halifax. He has had a meteoric career in Canadian financial circles, and is now a millionaire.

Our Conservative friends are inclined to criticise the Liberal government's immigration policy, aimed at filling up the vacant areas of Canada. A justification of this policy is found in the statement of Sir Edward Clouston, at the annual meeting of the Bank of Montreal, who testified to this effect—"the large increase in immigration has done much in building up the country."

CANADA'S TRADE.

(Farmer's Sun)

Canada's trade continues to show gratifying expansion. Our exports of domestic produce for the last fiscal year totalled $279,247,000, nearly $111,000,000 more than ten years before. Our imports for consumption aggregated $375,831,000, of which $237,204,000 were dutiable goods, and $138,509,000 free. Of our exports something like $157,000,000 worth, over 55 p. cent. of the total, came from the farm.

A noteworthy feature in the trade returns is found in a comparison between our commerce with some distant markets and our nearest market. Our exports of domestic products to the West Indies, South America, Australia, China and Japan combined totalled a little over $14,000,000. In order to encourage trade with these far-away countries we paid subsidies to steamship lines connecting our ports with theirs to the extent of nearly $600,000. In the same year we exported $104,000,000 worth of Canadian products to the United States, over seven times as much as to all these other countries combined. And yet, so far, the policy has been to discourage rather than to encourage trade with our nearest neighbour.

THE CASE IN A NUTSHELL.

(Ottawa Free Press)

The reasons why Canadians should support the naval policy of the Laurier Government have been set forth in many styles during the past few months, but we have never found a case in which the arguments were better summarized than in a resolution adopted the other day by the Young Liberals of Quebec, as follows:

> Whereas, on March 29, 1909, the House of Commons unanimously endorsed the principle of a navy;
> Whereas, the Government, in deciding on the construction of a fleet, has only executed the mandate which was given to it by the representatives of the people;
>
> Whereas, the policy of the party is in the best interests of the country;
>
> Whereas, the naval service will be voluntary;
>
> Whereas, our autonomy is safeguarded;
>
> Whereas, the navy will be essentially Canadian;
>
> Whereas, all the vessels will be constructed in this country and their crews will be Canadian;
>
> Whereas, the construction and the maintenance of our navy will not necessitate any additional taxation;
>
> Whereas it will protect our coasts and our commerce;
>
> Whereas, it is opportune for us to prove our loyalty to the Crown;
>
> Whereas, Canada has become a nation;
> It is resolved that this association regrets the campaign in this province of the Nationalist group; this association has confidence in the policy of the Government on the naval question; and this association has confidence in Sir Wilfrid Laurier.

These are a set of resolutions which might well be, and should be adopted, by every Liberal Club in Canada. They are the sentiments of a united people, and not those of any group of the community.

REFORMING THE DEPARTMENTS

(Toronto Star)

When Hon. Charles Murphy undertook to investigate working conditions at the Government Printing Bureau, he found that the efficiency of the civil service was hampered by too frequent interruptions of the day's work. Visitors were numerous, and private, as well as public, business was transacted during office hours. Mr. Murphy at once issued regulations which put an end to this, and now the other departments are taking a leaf out of his book. A circular, for instance, has just been issued by the Department of Militia and Defence, pointing out that:

> "For many years a great deal of annoyance and interference with the public duties of the officials of the department have been caused by the unrestricted opportunities afforded the outside public to visit the employees upon private and personal matters and questions entirely foreign to the official duties imposed upon the working staff of the department, whose whole time belongs to the public. Although some care has been taken to protect the officials of the department, yet it has been found impossible to check, to any reasonable degree, the annoyances indicated above. Money lenders, promoters, agents, and canvassers of all kinds seem to easily find their way to the officials, high and low."
> In order to secure the officials from interruption, the department will hereafter issue permanent passes to those who regularly have business with these gentlemen, and temporary passes to others, the latter to be initialled by the official who grants the interview. Minor officials will not be allowed to see strangers during office hours, except in cases of extreme urgency. The procedure will be as follows:
> "A visitor will note on the temporary pass his name, address, nature of inquiry, and name of official with whom an interview is desired. The pass will then be taken up to the officer or official concerned, who, if he desires to see the visitor, will initial the pass, and the visitor will then be shown up to him. After the interview is ended, the officer or official concerned must see that his visitor is attended to the exit by a messenger."

If it is the intention to preserve all passes thus initialled by civil servants at Ottawa, an interesting record will be available when the conduct of any Government servant is under investigation.

The School In Relation To Our Industrial Efficiency

(Manitoba Free Press)

There are two branches of education along industrial lines which must be clearly distinguished from each other. One of these belongs to general education, the other to technical training. All grades of public education from the primary school to the university are concerned with the former. The latter has no place in the primary school, but belongs to the period of youth and early manhood.

There are therefore two problems for the educational authorities. One of these involves the establishment of vocational courses in the high schools for the express purpose of fitting young people for the special occupations which the economic conditions of the community demand. The other problem is of an entirely different character. It is not a matter of vocation at all, but of citizenship and general education. The organization of a course of study in the elementary schools in the field of industry, or more exactly, in the field of economics, has not yet been accomplished. Here and there throughout the country a beginning has been made under the name of manual training, but these courses are nowhere fully and systematically organized.

There are naturally many disputed questions in the domain of education. The professional educators themselves are by no means a happy family. But of the principles which may now be taken as established among serious students of education none receives a more general or more solid support in the community than the proposition that education is social in its aim and purpose that the school must fit the individual for social service, which shall be intelligent and sympathetic as well as efficient. The modern conception of education as social rather than merely individual and personal in reform necessarily involves a double purpose. Education must be at once liberal and practical, must socialise the individual, while equipping him for the struggle of life. It is not necessary at this time of the day to insist strenuously upon the fact that the liberalizing influences of education are not confined exclusively to particular courses of study or to a strictly limited period of life. Elementary education, like collegiate education, may be conducted in such a way as to be either liberalizing or narrowing. It depends on the character and scope of the teaching in both cases.

In the elementary school the learner is made acquainted with the rudiments of two great branches of knowledge, the humanities and the sciences. The liberalizing influences of the humanities, here represented by history and literature, are much more powerful than those of science, and this for the obvious reason that the instructive tendencies of childhood respond more readily to that kind of appeal. Nature study and geography however, especially when linked up with lit rature, do evoke a sympathetic response. The practical value of these two branches has never been called in question. Knowledge is certainly power in the sense that knowledge of man and of his physical environment, along with skill in computation, means efficiency in the practical affairs of life.

But the humanities and the sciences cover only two-thirds of the area of the circle of knowledge required for the elementary school. The third sector is the field of economics, and here is a branch of instruction which lends itself most readily to the two purposes of education already mentioned. Such a study of industrial materials and industrial processes as can be adapted to the minds of children will serve in the highest degree both the practical and the liberal purposes of the elementary schools.

How can these studies be pursued so as to serve the ends of a liberal education? A liberal education should liberalize, should soften harsh antipathies, widen the social as well as the intellectual horizon, set free the mind from the dominion of baseless pride and ignorant prejudice, and enable one to form a just estimate of the lives of his fellow men. A liberal education, then, means intellectual and moral enlightenment. It means a real extension of human sympathy due to a deep insight into the conditions and struggles of human life. A study of human society which fails to take into account the chief industrial materials and the chief processes of industry can give no true insight into the nature of the social organism. Perhaps one of the principal reasons for the partial failure of the elementary public school to socialize its pupils may be found in the fact that until quite lately economic study has been consistently neglected. In the reading-books, it is true, there are a few lessons upon the occupations of men, but the lessons are patchy. The chief emphasis of manual training has been upon one kind of material and one set of processes. Latterly, other materials have been introduced, such as metals and clays, and here and there textiles, and even foods. What is wanted is organization on a systematic plan which shall afford the learner an understanding of the way in which the world lives and gets its living.

Manual training, so-called, is a method of approach to the study of economic life. It develops certain desirable intellectual and moral results, such as initiative, patience, accuracy and precision of thought. Its chief value, however, is that it affords an acquaintance with certain facts and factors in economic life. It is not claimed, or intended that these studies should furnish the elementary school pupil with direct training for any gainful calling. On the contrary, they confer a broad and general human efficiency. They are not intended to impart technical skill, but to enlarge the whole mind. Nevertheless, a moment's reflection will show that such a course of study must inevitably improve the attitude, both mental and moral, of young people towards industrial life. Our too great preoccupation with the more or less bookish humanities and sciences has tended to turn their minds away from the actual life of the world, which after all, is engaged in the not unimportant problem of supplying human needs and human desires by working over the raw materials supplied by nature.

OPEN EVENINGS

May Choose Hahn.

Toronto, Dec. 7.—In labor circles last night, the name of Mayor Charles Hahn of Berlin was mentioned as the probable Government choice for the vacant secretaryship of the Ontario Bureau of Labor. Mr. Hahn is one of the most prominent labor men in Canada to-day, having been strongly urged on two occasions to allow his name to stand for the presidency of the Dominion Trades Congress, with no doubtful chances for success. He is a staunch and active Conservative and was a hard fighter for the Whitney-Beck power policy from the first. He is one of the most vigorous advocates of public ownership in Canada to-day, and Berlin has advanced far in this direction in the matter of a municipally-owned street railway, successfully operated, and civic-owned light and power facilities.

To Send Fournier Back to Jail.

Quebec, Dec. 7.—The courts have granted a motion made by the Attorney-General's Department to have the record of the famous Jules Fournier case sent back to the Superior Court. This will allow the Attorney-General to put Fournier back into jail and have him finish his time of imprisonment. Mr. Fournier, the ex-director of the Nationalist, had been condemned to three months in the Quebec jail for contempt of court, and was liberated under caution after two weeks, when he appealed. He is now in Europe.

To Curb Rowdyism.

Kingston, Dec. 7.—The police commissioners have been asked by the City Council to interview the Alma Mater Society of Queen's in the endeavor to have a curb put on the students, so as to avoid a repetition of Saturday night's affair, when the opera house was stormed and damage done. The council believes it is time to stamp out this rowdyism.

The battery came within an ace of being called out Saturday night, and the fact that innocent people would have been hurt is one prevented the orders being given.

A Fatal Fire.

Chicago, Dec. 7.—One man was fatally burned, two policemen seriously injured, by live wires, and a score of families made homeless by a fire which destroyed three buildings on West 13th street early yesterday. The dying man is John Smith. The loss was $75,000.

KYLE FOR PORT HOPE TEAM
THE PROS HAVING TROUBLE

$14 to $16 is the Price Handed Out in the Ontario Leagues and There Does Not Seem to be Any Rush to Get in on the Long Green---Western Division Formed.

Toronto, Dec. 6.—These are troublesome times for the pro. hockey promoters. In the East the players are in open revolt over the salary question and the indications are that they will compel the magnates to accede to their demands. It has been estimated that at the $700 limit adopted by the league each player will receive about $35 per game for his services. Not bad, considering that hockey is only a side issue, but a decided drop from last year, when some of the star puck-chasers were in receipt of amounts close to $200 per match.

Ontario League Troubles.

Similar troubles are being enjoyed by the newly-formed "Merry-go-Round" called the Ontario Pro. Leag Round" called the Ontario Pro. League. The promoters are not any too strong financially and consequently cannot afford to offer very much in the way of inducements. From $14 to $16 is being hung up, with some takers, but not many. Nearly all the youngsters in this neighbourhood who have shown anything have been approached, but the boys, wise in their day and generation, have turned a cold shoulder. In the first place, they have no desire to play for the filthy lucre, that is openly, and, in the second, the bait is not sufficiently tempting enough. At any rate it is evident that the backers of the clubs do not intend to pay more than they can afford for material. Buck Irving, who is stationed at Belleville, has been through the mill. He knows from bitter experience the difficulties that confront a promoter, and it is a certainty that he will not take any chances. Some of the others may be foolish, but not the genial "Buck." A case in point is the fact that a local trainer was yesterday offered $5, and his board to take charge of a team not far from the town at present favoured with Mr Irving's attention.

Kyle With Port Hope.

Andy Kyle, the well-known ball-player, who last year played with Parkdale, runners-up to St Michael's has signed up with Port Hope.

A Western Division.

Berlin, Ont., Dec. 6.—The Western division of the Ontario Professional League, organized here last night, the representatives being: Seagram and Hergott, Waterloo; Ellison and Serviss, Galt; Williams and Witt, Berlin; and "Buck" Irving of the Eastern Division. The three teams will play a double schedule, to be completed by the third week of February in order that the winners may play off with the champions of the Eastern Division.

SOME HOCKEY HAPPENINGS

The Toronto Star says: Teddy Marriott's Simcoes always cut some ice as a joke intermediate in junior O. H. A. circles. That they will be right there this season seems "the one best bet." Teddy has the knack of gathering a good pack of young puck-chasers around him, and this year is no exception to the rule.

Last night his bunch had its second practice, and the roll call showed 38 men on the ice. Look the list of good ones over:

A Puzzled Artist.

Of unsigned paintings the Dusseldorfer Zeitung tells an amusing story, which may interest picture buyers. Achenbach, the German artist, enjoyed a vogue some years ago. A certain collector had bought from an art dealer a seascape represented as a genuine Achenbach. Afterward it was pronounced to be a copy. The buyer brought an action against the dealer, who turned the tables by declaring that his picture was genuine and the other was a copy.

Achenbach himself was summoned by the courts to tell which was which. Amazed at the absolute similarity of the two paintings, he gazed at them for a long time, inspected them closely, front and back, sniffed them and then frankly admitted he could not tell which was the original and which the copy.

A Town in the Philippines.

Santo Domingo has a population of about 2,000 and is entirely different from any other town in the Philippines. In the first place, all the buildings are of stone, whitewashed. The roads are made of cogon grass, closely trimmed so as to afford no purchase to the severe typhoons which sweep over the islands. The streets are about twelve feet wide, many of them paved with stone. Some walls extend along both sides of the streets their full length, giving them the appearance of lanes. The walls are about three to five feet in height, broken at intervals for entrance to the yards, which in —n are separated from each other by stone walls. Most of the yards are clean and exceptionally neat and attractive.—Manila Times.

Corrected His Error.

With the Germans the absentminded college professor is a stock source of witticism.

One of these deeply absorbed gentlemen, sitting on a rear seat, thought he knew a person sitting in front and was about to speak to him when, the stranger by chance turning a little, the professor saw that he was mistaken.

Nevertheless, touching him on the shoulder, he remarked politely:

"You will excuse me, but you are not the person I thought you were."

AN OLD SONG REJUVENATED

I cannot wear the old hair
I wore some months gone by,
I've laid it on the topmost shelf
With many a weary sigh.
No longer are they wearing puffs,
And rats are quite de trop.
I cannot wear the old hair.
Oh, what a cruel blow!

I cannot wear the old hair,
For which good gold I paid.
Red hair is so expensive when
One gets the proper shade!
I felt so dressed when it was coiffed,
All little puffs and curls,
But I can't wear the old hair.
Alas for fashion's whirls!

I cannot wear the old hair.
Four switches I must buy
And wind them round and round my head
As flat as they will lie.
My face is far too plump for this,
My nose is much too long.
But I can't wear the old hair.
It's altogether wrong.

—Lippincott's.

Imagination on the Wing.

"How do you like your summer hotel?"

"Fine! Girl who flutters the feather duster in my room makes me think I'm seeing 'Chantecler.'"

Making Things Worse.

"That excuse only increases the awkwardness of the case," said Mayor Gaynor of a political fiasco. "That excuse reminds me of young Dr. Start.

"Dr. Start a short time after he began to practice was summoned to attend a banker suffering from typhoid. Dr. Start pulled the banker through. Then in taking leave for good he congratulated his patient and himself and said he would just call once more in the course of the week to make sure that no complications had set in.

"He called five days later. The banker's brother met him at the door with a very long face.

"'Poor George is dead,' he said solemnly.

"Dr. Start turned pale. 'How am I to get out of this?' he thought. 'I must exonerate myself somehow. What negligence have I shown? Then he said:

"'Well, on the whole, I'm not surprised. This isn't the first case of typhoid convalescence, nor will it be the last. A clot, it is clear, formed suddenly at the base of your brother's medulla, the diastole was disordered, and the usual heart failure ensued.'

"'No, Dr. Start, you are wrong. That isn't what killed George. He went bathing at Coney Island and was carried out by the tide.'"—Louisville Times.

She Beat the Boys.

There was a swimming match held in the river at Nottingham, England, not long ago in which fourteen boys and one girl participated. The prize was £10, and it was won by the girl, who is the daughter of poor parents. The distance was three miles, and she beat the same boy by a number of yards. After she had won the prize she swam a mile farther to show what she could do. The boys of the town will have to kick out further and faster to keep up with the girls.

A MAGIC CLUB.

Curious Decoy Used by the Native Fishermen of Hawaii.

"Lau malomalo" is the name of a decoy used by the native fishermen of Hawaii. It is made of the hardest wood to be found on the islands and is carved and rubbed till it assumes the shape of a club with a little knob at the smaller end, to which the line is tied.

The club is from one to three feet long. A village sorcerer performs certain rites over it over a sacred fire. After this is done the club is magic, and the fisherman must be extremely careful of it. If a woman should step over it or enter a canoe in which it lies the club would lose all its power and would be useless ever afterward.

After the club has been charmed the fisherman mixes candlenut and cocoanut meat, bakes it and ties the mixture in a wrapper of cocoanut fiber.

At the fishing grounds the club is covered with the oily juice of the stuff and is then lowered carefully to the bottom. The scent of the baked nut meat attracts certain kinds of fish, which soon gather and begin to nibble at the club. As soon as enough fish are around the decoy a small bag shaped net is lowered very gently until its mouth is just over the club. The latter is then pulled up carefully and cunningly till it is within the bag. The fish are so eager for the stuff with which the club is covered that they follow it into the net without fear. As soon as all the fish are in it a fisherman dives and closes the mouth of the net, whereupon the feat haul it up quickly.

THE MIDDLE AGED MAN.

Finding Happiness in a Life That is Youth is irksome.

"Younger people," said the middle aged man, "want variety. They want to be always on the go. Routine galls them. They hate to have to do the same thing over and over and over again day after day.

"They want to go somewhere or do something different all the time. Older people are happiest in a life of routine, most disturbed when variety is thrust upon them.

"For myself I welcome my daily task, endlessly repeated and always the same. I should be lost without it; disturbed if it were changed. A life of habit suits me best. I like the old scenes—familiar friendly surroundings. I don't want to change.

"Nor do I want much outside pleasure. In fact, I think I should be best suited with none. I like my groove. It fits me, and I fit it. I don't want change. I just want to be left alone to work in my accustomed ways. It is in my groove that I am most comfortable. I like a life of labor and routine.

"And could there come to one a greater blessing? Nature and the customs of men enforce routine upon us whether we like it or not. In youth this irks us, but in our maturer years in a life of routine, in the undisturbed enjoyment of familiar labor, we may find our greatest happiness."—New York Sun.

The One to Pay.

When she was Lady Randolph Churchill, Mrs. George Cornwallis-West consented to electioneer for Mr. Ashmead-Bartlett in his first parliamentary campaign. Mr. Ashmead-Bartlett was married to the Baroness Burdett-Coutts, a very rich woman, who was nearly forty years his senior. Lady Randolph, with her beauty and charms, did splendid work for the candidate.

To a group of farmers she said one day:

"Won't you promise me to vote for Mr. Ashmead-Bartlett?"

"My lady," said a red faced farmer, with a chuckle, "we'll all vote for him if every vote 'll be paid for with a kiss."

"Thank you very much," said Lady Randolph. "Your offer is accepted. I'll send for the Baroness Burdett-Coutts at once."

A WANING SUGAR INDUSTRY.

New Zealand Expert Finds It Dying in British Guiana and West Indies.

Any fear of competition with the sugar growers of British Guiana and the West Indies may be dismissed by the planters of Louisiana. So said Ernest W. Ludwig, an expert sugar chemist of Wellington, New Zealand, but more recently of Demerara.

Mr. Ludwig has just arrived, after a tour of the West Indies, where he looked over the sugar situation thoroughly, investigating sugar conditions, methods and prospects with an eye to settling down on some of the islands. After deliberation he decided to come to Louisiana, where he believes the greatest opportunities are to be found.

Mr. Ludwig is charmed with New Orleans and commented on the activity apparent in the streets.

"Is all America like this?" he asked. "It is different from what one finds in England.

"Much of it I know comes from your sugar traffic, and of course that interests me directly. You people are so progressive. Even the little that I have been able to see of the means you employ to get results show wonderful advances over those methods one finds in many other sugar growing countries. In Guiana, for instance, they are behind the times woefully. One thing only they have there that you have not here. I mean the Hindu labor. It is amazing what the planters of Demerara have been able to accomplish by the aid of the coolie. The negro was tried, but he would not do the work. He will not stand the long hours, the steady and continuous labor that the coolie will. Also he demands more money for what he does. But with the Hindu, who has come into Guiana in great numbers, that is not the case. The Hindu of the second, or at the most the third, generation is an almost different race from his 'immigrant forefathers.

"But even with the introduction of the Hindu and the advantage he has been to the sugar planter there British Guiana is passing as a producer of sugar.

"The West Indies also from what I saw of them are in a bad way. In the Barbados, where I spent a couple of months, I found pretty much the same condition of things that exist in Guiana. The negro, with his indolence and his numerical superiority there, is killing any chances the islands might have of ultimately becoming a factor in the sugar production of the world. Of course I bar Cuba when I speak of the islands. She is in a class by herself.

"Certainly! unless they adopt radically different means, copying the advanced methods of you Americans, there is no hope for them. Japan, however, is coming to the fore. In her Formosa colony she is trying to raise sugar and meeting with some success. In time I believe that she will accomplish much."

Novel Use of a Billboard.

During a recent run on a western bank a billboard was set up in the street, where the line of depositors were gathered, and its frank statement of the bank's condition did much to restore confidence. Many people dropped out of the line after reading the sign, which bore this legend: "This bank can pay every dollar on deposit. It is one of the strongest banks on the Pacific coast. It has been your friend. Reckless competitors have worked to bring you here. Every person in this line should show their loyalty by leaving at once. Your money is safe. Why, then, remain here doing an unkind and foolish thing? Break ranks." The run lasted thirty-six hours, but the bank stood the strain and remained solvent. An enterprising merchant took advantage of the incident to secure a novel advertisement for his store. It happened that he was prepared to move into the adjoining building and the picture of the crowd before the bank had the appearance of heading for his new quarters. A cut of this picture was used for the announcement, the legend reading, "Your money is safe if you follow the crowd to"— giving the name of his own establishment.—Bookkeeper.

A Cordial Welcome.

A well known American portrait painter, armed with a full length portrait study taken off the stretcher and rolled under his arm, ventured to call on Whistler one Sunday morning. His modest knock brought the great man to the door, says a writer in Great Thoughts. Opening it a little way, he thrust out his head and demanded irritably:

"What brings you here? What do you want?"

The artist stammered out that he was a student and had a study that he would much like to show Whistler.

Whistler said, "H-m-m—just wait a minute!" and, rushing back into the room, he turned every picture with its face to the wall and remained from the easel the canvas on which he was engaged. Then, motioning the American in, he sat down and said: "Now, what do you want? You know I'm fearfully busy today, but sit down—sit down!"

Gratitude.

Kind Lady—My poor man, what would you do with the money if I gave you a penny? Tired Tramp—Why, mum, I'd buy a picture postcard an' send you a note o' thanks.—Cleveland Leader.

To live in hearts we leave behind is not to die.—Campbell.

THE EVENING CHIT-CHAT

By Ruth Cameron

I WONDER if there are any rich folks, especially rich folks with poor relations, that read this column.

Please remember, in answering for yourself, that rich and poor are only relative terms, and that while you may consider yourself but passably well supplied with this world's goods, you may be considered by some impecunious connection of yours in the light of a "rich relative."

On the chance that there are, I'm going to give over my space today to some one really worthy to fill it and let Dr Holmes give them a little Christmas talk.

The extract is from the "Poet at the Breakfast Table." The poet and the landlady are discussing the other boarders. From the cultured and dignified demeanor of one of the boarders the poet suspected a story of shipwrecked fortune and determined to question our landlady. That worthy woman was delighted to tell the story of her most distinguished boarder. She was, as I had supposed, a gentlewoman whom a change of circumstances had brought down from her high estate.

"Did I know the Golden Rod family? Of course I did! Well, the Lady was first cousin to Mrs. Midas Golden Rod. She had been here to call upon her, though not very often." "Were her rich relatives kind and helpful to her?" "Well, yes. At least they made her presents now and then. Three or four years ago they sent her a silver waiter and every Christmas they sent her a bouquet; it must have cost as much as five dollars," the landlady thought.

"And how did the lady receive these valuable and useful gifts?"

"Every Christmas she got out the silver waiter and borrowed a glass, filled it with water, put the bouquet in it and set it on the waiter. It smelt sweet enough and looked pretty for a day or two," but the landlady thought it couldn't have hurt 'em if they'd sent a piece of goods for a dress, or at least a pocket handkercher or two, or something else that she could 'a made some kind of use of; but beggars mustn't be choosers'—and that she was a beggar, for she'd sooner die than do that if she was in want of a meal of victuals.

"There was a lady, I remember, who had a little boy and she was a widow. After she had buried her husband she was dreadful poor. She was ashamed to let her little boy go out in his shoes, and copper-toed shoes they was—because his poor little ten toes was a-coming out of 'em; and what do you think my husband's uncle—well, there, it was me and my little Benjamin, there's no use in hiding of it—and what do you think my husband's uncle sent me? A plaster of Paris image of a young woman that was—well, her appearance wasn't respectable, and I had to take and wrap her up in a towel and poke her right into my closet, and there she stayed until she got her head broke, which served her right, for she wasn't fit to show folks. You needn't say anything about what I told you, but the fact is, I was desperate poor before I began to support myself taking boarders, and a lone woman without her—her—"

The sentence plunged into the gulf of her great remembered sorrow and was lost to the records of humanity.

BELMONT CLUB MINSTRELS WILL BE A GREAT SUCCESS

Impressions of an Examiner Reporter Who Witnessed a Rehearsal Last Night—Snap and Vim Characterize Production.

HOST OF SONG HITS

An Examiner reporter dropped in at a rehearsal of the Belmont Club minstrels last night and had no trouble in discovering the reason why a Duluth newspaperman christened Holly Shepard the "man who makes minstrels." Although he has only been at work here a couple of weeks he has accomplished results that the people of Peterborough are certain to term marvellous when they see the production on Thursday and Friday of next week. Mr. Shepard is energy personified. He literally and figuratively takes his coat off at every rehearsal and he has managed to impart his own gingery spirit into each one of the company, with the result that the whole production goes through with a snap and vim that has never been equalled here except by the best professional companies. Catchy music, the kind that makes you go out of the theatre whistling merrily and causes a perpetual pucker all next day, bright specialties, "business" that is the last word in minstrelsy, with a dashing swing to the whole programme, these were some of the features that impressed the Examiner man as he watched the first part last night.

From the first strains of "My Sunbeams," the opening chorus, to the final drop of the curtain after Mr. Shepard's end song, "Any Rags," there is nothing that looks like an instant's delay in the first part. There is a splendid coterie of vocalists, the including in which of two ladies is an innovation, and the chorus work is the kind that gets over the footlights easily. The end men Messrs. Holly Shepard, Geo. Wesley, Geo. Clarke, Walter Davidson, Reg. Turner and Roy Fuller are worked overtime during the first part but they are equal to the task and are sure to "go big" next week. Mr. Shepard winds up the programme in this section with the coon song that he has been featuring for eight years, "Any Rags" and as sung by him it's a 'scream."

You could look over this list of first parts songs with a microscope without discovering any dead ones:

Opening chorus, "My Sunbeam" by the entire company.

"Will You be Out To-night?"—Paul Trebilcock.

"Espanola France"—Geo. Wesley.

"Honey I Will Long for You"—Nat Greenhalgh.

"Bamboo Bungalow"—Geo. Buchanan.

"Chinatown Rag"—Roy Fuller.

"Thing Are Coming My Way"—Reg. Turner.

"Think of the Girl Down Home"—Stan. Ecclestone.

"I Didn't Ask So I Don't Know"—Walter Davidson.

"Close That Eye"—Miss Geraldine King.

"The Loving, Loving Rag"—Geo. Clarke.

"Baby Doll" — Miss Josephine Sproule.

End song and finale, "Any Rags," Holly Shepard and company.

With amateur minstrels it is the ads or second part that sometimes falls flat. The Examiner man saw enough of the numbers in this section of the Belmont programme last night to realize that there is not the least danger of this catastrophe with the local production. The same ginger that characterizes the first part is again in evidence, and while it would not be politic to divulge all the good things handed out, the mention of a few acts might not be out of place.

Holly Shepard and Geo. Clarke have a singing and talking specialty that is away out of the ordinary, Miss Geraldine King sings "Lazy Moon," a "moon" song that is a little bit different from others we have heard and she is assisted by a very clever dance by the chorus men. Geo. Wesley with eight assistants has a burlesque cop specialty that would make a cigar store Indian laugh and laugh himself off his pedestal and the other acts are equally as meritorious. Mr. W. McIlroy, who is the interlocutor of the production has the solo in the big finale, the lively march song, "It's Great to be a Soldier Man" featured by the whole company and a fitting climax to a programme that is crammed full of bright features.

The Examiner reporter would not be doing his friends justice if he did not advise them to attend the Belmont Minstrels, Thursday and Friday, Dec. 15th and 16th.

To Grow Hair on a Bald Head

By a Specialist

Thousands of people suffer from baldness and falling hair, who, having tried nearly every advertised hair tonic and hair grower without results, have resigned themselves to baldness and its attendant discomforts. Yet their case is not hopeless; the following simple home prescription has made hair grow after years of baldness, and is also unequalled for restoring gray hair to its original colour, stoping hair from falling out, and for destroying the dandruff germ. It will not make the hair greasy, and can be put up by any chemist: Bay Rum 6 ounces, Lavona de Composee' 2 ounces, Menthol Crystals 1-2 drachm. If you wish it perfumed add half to one teaspoonful of To-Kalon Perfume, which unites perfectly with the other ingredients. This preparation is highly recommended by physicians and specialists, and is absolutely harmless, as it contains none of the poisonous wood alcohol so frequently found in hair tonics. Do not apply to the face or where hair is not desired.

Chase's Nerve Food my system is wonderfully built up. There is no further trouble from dizzy spells and stomach weakness, and with health and strength restored, life has a new pleasure for me."

MUSIC AND DRAMA

CALL OF THE WILD.

"Call of the Wild" adopted by Louis Evan Shipman from Frederick Remington's famous novel, "John Ermine of the Yellowstone" did not exert much of a call upon the theatregoers of Peterborough in its local appearance at the Grand last night, but those who were there were delighted with the production. With the scenes laid in Wyoming in 1877-78, the drama is full of stirring and unusual situations and permits of the introduction of some unbackneyed character sketches that makes the presentation an unusually appealing one. The acting was fully up to the standard of the play. Mr. Franklin Woodruff gave a remarkably finished and clever portrayal of the leading role of John Ermine, and he was given the best of support by his associates. Clarence Bennett who is responsible for the scenic investure has considerable to do with the success of the play.

"The Wolf," Eugene Walters' phenomenally successful play of the Canadian wilds comes back to the Grand for matinee and evening performances on Saturday.

ALL IN THE FIGHT.

Winnipeg Church and Social Reformers Against Mayor Evans.

Winnipeg, Dec. 7. The hottest of several hot municipal campaigns is now on here. Churches and social reform people throwing their weight and influence into the civic scale against Mayor Sanford Evans and the old regime, which they accuse of violating the laws in permitting, or rather establishing, an immoral colony. In the other hand, mayoralty candidates Waugh and Harvey, not caring to split that vote which, if not satisfied with the status quo, is satisfied with their present official representative, agreed to withdraw from the field, if they could induce Mayor Evans to run again, as a demonstration against scandal mongering and defamation of the city.

The nominations yesterday were as follows: For mayor, W. Sanford Evans. E. D. Martin (reform candidate. For controllers (four vacancies), R. D. Waugh, J. W. Cockburn, A. A. McArthur, D. McLean, J. G. Harvey, T. Wilson, A. W. Puttee. Four school trustees by acclamation, D. Sinclair, D. A. Lister, A. H. Browne, Johnson Douglas.

Eighteen candidates for aldermen were nominated, and 11 candidates for vacant school trusteeships.

Evansville, Ind., Dec. 7.—Fire, starting early yesterday in the H. Fendrich cigar factory, on Main street, did damage to the amount of $200,000, and for three hours threatened to destroy the entire business district of the city. Five inches of snow on the roofs of the business houses in the neighborhood is all that saved the district.

The buildings destroyed include those of the Fendrich Cigar Co.; Durre Wholesale Whisky Co.; H. Fendrich, bonded warehouse, containing 500 bales of Sumatra tobacco, valued at $272,000; Southern Express Co.; Postal Telegraph Co. and American Express Co. The Bray office building also burned. Slightly Confused.

All of us become confused, and all of us mix our language sometimes, but the peroration of an old negro preacher's sermon was the greatest confusion of metaphors I ever heard, says a traveler. When the lengthy discourse was nearing its close and he had reached his "Twenty-third and lastly, brethren," he wound up by the following elaborate figure:

"Everywhar, bredren, we see de Almighty. All down de untrodden pathe of time we see de footprints of de Almighty hand."—Human Life.

POST CARD COLUMN

Editor Examiner:

As the City Fathers and the Protestant Home officials are discussing a modus vivendi on future prospects of a sadly needed home for Peterborough's Protestant poor and aged, I would like to make a respectful suggestion to both the high contracting parties. The Protestant Home, with its comparatively limited resources, is doing a good work. Stress, however, should be laid on the word "limited." As compared with the unlimited needs of Peterborough's poor and aged, and the equally unlimited desire of the Home authorities to meet these demands, their income is too limited to permit of accomplishing what might and should be done. These gentlemen now offer to put in $10,000 if the city will give a fair proportion. It has occurred to me and my idea was concurred in by several gentlemen I spoke to on the subject, that the residence of the late James Stevenson, ex-M.P., would be a good location and a solid nucleus for a larger building to be erected. This property, right in the heart of the city, easily under police supervision, has many arguments in its favour. There is plenty of land on which to extend the present house, which, I understand, is well and solidly built. With comparatively few and inexpensive alterations, the house could be made to accommodate more inmates than the rambling old structure now in use as the Peterborough Home. With few exceptions, the people cared for in such an institution are too old and too feeble to do farm work. The old folks could have their declining days brightened by seeing a little of Peterborough's life passing the doors of their abode.

Again, sir, whilst this suggestion in no way emanates or, is even known, when written, to any of the late Mr. Stevenson's family, I would recall the attention of what the late Mr. Stevenson did for the public welfare and advancement of our city. When you consider that with more than 30 years given, gratis, towards the School Board, a quarter of a century given, gratis, as Mayor and Councillor, many years as commissioner of the Town Trust, the years and great loss of time and money given during his eight years in Parliament, gratis, a quarter of a century on the Cemetery Board and the Horticultural Society, his year in the County Council, in all, about two hundred and fifty years, of course concurrently, given gratis, towards the upbuilding and management of Peterborough, I think it would be a grateful and graceful compliment to his memory, and recognition of his services, to secure his old homestead for a public institution. This suggestion is, of course, made on the presumption that the property could be secured for a fair and equitable sum.

In conclusion, Mr. Editor, it is my humble opinion that Peterborough's public buildings should be given central locations, where the visiting public can see them, not for instance, hidden away like the Normal school, not a locally owned building, but a handsome one, rarely seen by strangers in Peterborough.

Yours truly,
IN MEMORIAM.

DESERTS ON HONEYMOON

Special Wire to the Examiner.

ESCANABA, MICH., Dec. 3.—Shown by a wealthy farmer over since she was a goldenhaired baby, Bessie Stover, twenty-one years old, daughter of D. C. Stover, of Spring-[illegible] eloped with her admirer from babyhood. Oscar Ludlow, aged seventy, and was married to him in Detroit secretly.

Before the marriage he gave the bride-elect a warranty deed to 140 acres of land and a cheque for $1,500. Eudora cashed the cheque while in Detroit. They went to Chicago on a honeymoon trip. Within forty-eight hours she deserted him, he declares, and went West with his cash and the deed to the land. Ludlow returned to his lonesome fireside and told of his disappointment.

Mrs. Ludlow's parents declare that unless Eudora gives back these presents she can't live with them any more.

For Catarrh

Medicine Free in Every Case Where It Fails to Relieve

Neglect or pessimism, we believe, is the greatest enemy the public has to contend with when it comes to the loss or recovery of health. Practically every case of consumption might have been cured if hope had been maintained and proper treatment had been resorted to at the first symptom of the disease. Until the advanced stage is reached consumption is curable. Catarrh is responsible, we believe, for many cases of consumption. It is about catarrh we want to talk to you today, incidentally consumption, since the two are so closely allied.

We have a medicine made from a prescription of one of the most successful catarrh specialists known. We believe it is positively without an equal. We are so satisfied that we are right, that we will supply the medicine free in every instance where it is used according to directions for a reasonable length of time, should it fail to give satisfaction in every particular. We want every one to try this medicine at our risk. There are no conditions attached to our offer. We put the user under no obligation to us whatever.

The medicine we want you to try is Rexall Mucu-Tone. It is a catarrh remedy that goes direct to the seat of trouble. It is carried by the blood to every part of the system. It purifies and enriches the blood, tones up the mucous cells, and brings about a condition of health and strength that tends to prevent the germs of consumption from getting a start. Besides this, Rexall Mucu-Tone is a wonderful appetizer, digestive aid and flesh builder. Its good effects are often felt from the very first dose. It is one of the largest and most satisfactory selling medicines that we have ever had anything to do with.

We know so much of the great good that it has done that we personally back it up with our reputation and money, which fact should be ample guarantee to satisfy anybody. Rexall Mucu-Tone comes in two sizes, 50 cents and $1.00. We urge you to try it. Remember you can obtain Rexall Remedies in Peterborough only at our store.—The Rexall Store, McDermid and Jury, druggists, corner George and Charlotte streets.

DECEMBER MAGAZINES

A Christmassy flavour, with an abundance of light reading, marks the December number of Rod and Gun in Canada, published by W. J. Taylor, Limited, Woodstock, Ontario. Included are some notable articles. Mr. Bonnycastle Dale telling of the contrasts to be found at this season on the Pacific Coast as compared with other portions of Canada; while the delights of a canoe trip in New Brunswick with the exhilarating experiences of days of rapid water are well described by Mr. S. H. Bisson. Then there are fishing stories recalling the pleasures of rod and line. Mrs. Charlotte C. Talcott giving voice to the feelings of many who are inevitably led to engage in the proper season in a recreation that has filled some of the happiest hours of their lives. Big game hunters are not forgotten and a paper by Dr. Edward Brock on European and American methods is calculated to give all interested in game problems in this country much food for thought. Crisp, bright verses, with an Old Time story, and many other good things complete a number that for variety and interest is the equal of any that have ever gone before and well sustains the reputation which the Magazine has achieved.

The Athletic World by its December number more strongly than ever establishes its position as the best athletic and sports magazine in Canada. Its exhaustive treatment of the whole national and world aspects and occurrences in the realm of outdoor and indoor sports fills a long felt want. The illustrations are many and excellent, depicting the happenings in universal athletics, especially presenting to Canadians everything of sporting moment in the Dominion, giving a complete resume of the past month's seasonable sports. It is a national monthly of world scope for Canadian followers of athletic sports.

COUPLE FOUND DEAD IN A ROOM

Special to The Examiner.

NEW YORK, Dec. 3.—Henry Hasnack, a window cleaner, aged fifty, and his wife, Annie, forty-seven, were found dead in their room at No. 811 East Seventy-first Street yesterday afternoon. They had been dead several days. Under the bed was a bowl containing a glass and a small flask with a white liquid in it, believed to be cyanide of potassium.

Neither Hasnack nor his wife had been seen since Wednesday afternoon. Mrs. Rose Reitman, wife of the janitor, brought a postal card to the room. After knocking she concluded that somethink was wrong. She called Policeman Newman, who climbe dup a fire escape and forced the window. He found the couple lying in bed, partly clothed.

Coroner Holtzhauser's theory is that the husband died, and the wife, after a lonely vigil, took poison.

The postal card was from Thomas O'Reilly, who is representative of the Pavers' Union, Local No. 1. He said that Mrs. Hasnack's first husband was Peter W. Hasnack, a member of the union, who died six months ago. His widow, although she had been separated from him for fourteen years, had claimed a part of his estate. It was in regard to this that he had written. O'Reilly did not know the second Hasnack.

No one has been found who can explain the relationship of the two Hasnacks, Peter and Henry.

On a table was a card, with the following comment:

"Ticket to heaven. Trains leave at all hours; trains arrive when God wills. Three classes—Class I., Poverty, Chastity and Obedience; Class II., Piety, Charity and Self-Denial in this World; Class III., Fear and Penance."

Coroner Holtzhauser has arranged for an autopsy to-morrow.

38 YEARS IN TRANSIT

Examiner Special.

SOUTH BEND, IND., Dec. 3.—A postal card that has been thirty-six years in reaching here from a town in Connecticut, where it was mailed in 1874, has arrived. It is still in good condition, the only marks on it being those of the South Bend and the sending office.

The card had evidently not been lost in the mails, but in some post office or mail car. The firm to which it was addressed, H. S. Liebe & Co., has long been out of business.

The posts lcard will be sent to Washington for exhibition in the Post Office Department museum.

THE UNREST IN EGYPT

THE PEOPLE WOULD BE SORRY TO SEE BRITISH LEAVE.

Writer in Daily Mail Says That Despite the Cries of the Nationalists Justice and Order Would Be Involved in Chaos if the Guiding Hand Were Removed From the Khedive and His Ministers.

"Egypt," said Napoleon, "is the most important country in the world." Without exaggeration we can declare that for Britain it is still so to-day. Lord Palmerston once remarked in private talk: "If ever the Suez Canal be made, England will be compelled to annex Egypt."

In course of time the Suez Canal was made. Yet England did not annex Egypt. To have done so then would have meant war with Turkey and France. To do so now might mean war with Turkey and Germany. British diplomacy, however, stumbled upon a way to safeguard her interests without making any apparent change.

Actually we altered everything, but we still kept the old names, a peculiarly British method which has on the whole answered well. Nominally the Khedive and his Ministers govern. In effect their British advisers do so. There used to be some difference of opinion as to whether this had benefited the country. There is none now. Foreign observers agree that there is better order, better justice, greater prosperity, a far more efficient army, an immeasurably more competent system of finance. Even the Nationalists who would send us packing admit that we have set things straight for them. No one dependent on agriculture wants to see the British irrigation engineers leave. The peasantry would never put the same trust in native officials as they do in those of British blood. "Send an English inspector," is always the request to the Ministry of the Interior when there is any trouble in the provinces. No one engaged in business would go to law with any confidence after the departure of British judges. Yet the Independent Egypt Party become more and more active. Their newspapers are allowed to attack us violently and without the smallest regard to truth. Egyptian officials are being encouraged to think they can get along without British help. The impression that "the English are going," gains ground every day.

Now, let us suppose that Egypt were handed over to the Nationalists next year. What would happen? In the first place there would be a tremendous outcry from the great majority of substantial people all over the country. For although most Egyptians, nearly all Egyptians look forward to a time when they will be left to themselves, they would be very sorry to see us go at once. The Constitutional Party, for example, which has been started by Idris Bey Rugheb, will be quite content for many years to draw up paper Constitutions on the best models, and nothing would alarm them more than to hear that one of their amiable exercises was really to be tried. In fact, most Egyptians are but platonically in love with independence.

How could the Coptic Christians feel confidence in a Government dominated by men whose organ, Al Lewa, addressed them thus less than two years ago:

"You should be kicked to death. You have faces and bodies similar to those of demons or monkeys which is a proof that they hide poisonous spirits within their souls."

How could men of business have confidence in those who set themselves against the Suez Canal agreement upon sentimental grounds? How could Europe trust a Parliament which acted as the present General Assembly does? In picturesqueness this body (which has merely consultative powers) stands easily ahead of all other Parliaments. Its eighty members are most Arab sheikhs who sweep in with that air of world-masters which the Arabs have never lost since they overran Europe, and which alone among peoples they share with the British race. Their black outer robes reveal beneath garments of rich grey or yellow of blue striped silk. Their turbans are white, worn over red skull caps with blue tassels! Some of the older ones keep to the traditional red or yellow loose Moslem shoes. They are tall and dignified, yet merry among themselves.

When I attended one of their sittings I was taken into an ante-room before the proceedings began and introduced to several over cups of coffee and glasses of water and cigarettes, the invariable accompaniments to visits, official or otherwise, in Egypt. Their manners were magnificent and their greetings friendly. Arabic, our conversation was limited. They left a much better impression upon me than the members who wear European clothes with tarbushes on their heads, though among the latter, too, there are a few strong, clever faces, such as that of Abaza Pasha, with whom I had an interesting little talk in French.

The president seemed timid and altogether of too weak a personality to guide such a turbulent team. There was a curious little scene, illustrating the Assembly's state of mind, when the president proposed to have the report of the Committee on the Suez Canal proposals printed for distribution among members. Instantly there was an uproar. He was accused of trying to deprive them of their rights, which include deciding what documents shall be printed and when. He explained that his object was merely to give everyone the opportunity to study it as soon as possible. But he had aroused suspicion. The deputies behaved like children. They refused to allow the report to be printed until they had heard it read.—Hamilton Fyfe in The London Daily Mail.

Success doesn't "happen." It is organized, pre-arranged, captured, by concentrated common sense.—F. H. Wilcox.

SURGEON ON HANDICRAFTS.

Sir Frederick Treves Says Skill is Passing Away.

Perhaps some persons would be embarrassed for a moment if they were asked to describe the ideals which led to the creation of a Philomathic Society, or at least until they had had time to reflect that the word "mathematics" signified to the Greek in the first instance the whole field of learning, says The Lancet. It is then only fitting that a society banded together by its common love of learning should now and then bid as the chief guest of its yearly banquet a distinguished exponent of medical knowledge.

When the Liverpool Philomathic Society invited Sir Frederick Treves recently to the chair of honor it paid its homage to art no less than to science, and their guest, whose art has been shown with pen as well as scalpel, devoted his address to the praise of handicraft and in some measure to a lament for its decline among men. He reminded his audience that the surgeon is above all the men who uses his hands, and after asking whether mankind is, as a whole, losing that wonderful function, he felt constrained to answer yes. In spinning, weaving, sewing, carving, writing, countless human hands have been for ages employed, with the result that works of surpassing excellence and variety have been produced.

None will deny that the advance of handicraft since the days when it was confined to the shaping of flints and the preparation of hides for garments has been so amazing as almost to stagger contemplation. But, says Sir Frederick Treves, with the prefection of mechanical skill the zenith of human handicraft has been passed. We are losing as a race the capacity for the finer movements of the fingers now that the loom, the sewing machine and the typewriter have reduced the products of a million hands into a soulless level of uniformity. Many instances present themselves to support the thesis. Metal, instead of being wrought is cast in moulds; furniture is decorated by stamping machines; the camera and the electric bath have well-nigh killed the engraver's art; and if there still be such craftsmen among us as were at once the wonder and the glory of the Middle Ages, their hands find no similar expression for their capacities, for there is only here and there a purchaser for slow-wrought, and therefore costly, wares.

Sir Frederick Treves sighed for the day of hand-made lace and hand-made boots, and every book lover will join with him in his eulogy of the crafts of paper-making and bookbinding when carried on by hand. From his own profession he drew a striking instance of how the progress of invention may trend toward the decline of handicraft. He could imagine few phases of activity more difficult or more subtle than that displayed by the facile operator in the pre-anæsthetic days. Now there is no call to be brilliant, for the surgeon can proceed with easy deliberation and "in place of the flashing of a blade is an action as studied as a movement on a chessboard." He acknowledged that surgery has gained more than it has lost but thought that nevertheless it no longer attains to its former perfection as a handicraft.

We cannot wholly indorse Sir Frederick Treves' view here. The modern surgeon is called upon to perform manipulations in the depths of the abdomen, the pelvis and even in the brain itself that never tried the hand and eye of the dexterous men whose exploits of amputation or lithotomy were timed by the second hand of the watch. And in any general indictment of machinery it must be remembered that the machine may be regarded as the extension of the human hand called into existence by exercise of the highest faculties of the brain. But we agree with much of Sir Frederick Treve's lament. The hand-made thing is always an honest thing, being what it professes to be, and often possessing a character and beauty that no machine can ever imitate because it depends upon a human individuality.

London's "Lady Servants'" Club.

A club for "lady servants" is soon to be opened in London. The main object of the club, according to the secretary, is to give such servants an opportunity of enjoying the social life of which their position often deprives them. People would be astonished, she says, if they knew how many ladies have gone into domestic service in the last few years. Many of them belong to distinguished old families, and others are daughters of doctors, clergymen, and lawyers.

The chief hardship in the career of a lady who becomes a servant, it is pointed out, is the lack of congenial society, but she will be lonely no longer. In future she will spend her evenings out at the club.

The club rules permit members to invite male friends to dine at the club and enjoy a quiet rubber of bridge. Members will not be encouraged to talk shop. Bridge, for small stakes, may be indulged in, and country members on a visit to town will find in the club all the luxuries of a London hotel.

The Fur Markets.

London is the largest and most important fur distributing point in the world, followed in order of importance as named by Leipzig, Nijni Novgorod, Irbit, Kazan, Kiachta and Astrakhan. Russia's large fur trade with the United States is done through German and English commission houses.

Points of the Compass.

A little girl had been told by her teacher to stand with her face north and her right hand would be at the east, her left hand would be at the west and her back would be at the south. Starting to go over it, the teacher asked, "Now tell me what is in front of you?"

After some thought the child replied, "My stomach."

The Patriotism of Higgins.

Here is patriotism and romance! One hundred odd years ago, Commodore Perry swept the seas. Down at Put-In Bay near Pelee Island, Canada, they are talking of a Centennial in memory of his Lake Erie deeds. Harry Higgins, an English workman, who has been digging ditches in the village for a living, wants to throw cold water on the fireworks. Higgins thinks he is the agent of Providence. Quite recently he was ploughing when a big piece of iron broke his leg. Higgins didn't say much—asked to be carried home in the ambulance in company with the piece of iron. The leg was set. Higgins sat up in bed and called an inquest. The iron was brought in, looked at. Great excitement. The great and gallant Commodore Perry had fired this missile ninety-seven years ago—a century to hit its man.

Put-In Bay mayor wants the cannon ball for exhibition in honoring Perry. Higgins says it is his. He keeps a shot gun in bed.

"Carrying Coals to Newcastle."

The joke is on Hon. George P. Graham, who represents the City of Brockville in the House of Commons and it's on him good and hard. It was while he looked about in the Hudson Bay Co.'s store at Pas Mission, on the Saskatchewan River, while on his recent trip that the joke was hung on him, and he appreciates it all the more because it was put on him so innocently.

The Minister of Railways saw some long-sleeved driving gloves that interested him, and he remarked to a friend that it might be a good scheme to buy some to take home to "the boys." Turning to the factor he asked, "Where do these gloves come from?"

And the factor answered, "From Brockville."

WOMAN TEACHES MEN TO FLY

Special to the Examiner.

LONDON, Dec. 3.—Mrs. Maurice Hewlett, wife of the famous writer and man of letters, is a partner in a successful aviation school at Brooklands. Mrs. Hewlett has not yet won her pilot's license, but she will surely very soon, for there is nothing about the science and art of flying nor about the mechanism of a Farman biplane which she does not know. "Like mother, like daughter," her child is the youngest aviator in the world. She has often gone up—as a passenger, of course—in her mother's biplane, and, like Mrs. Hewitt, seems as much at home in the air as on the ground.

Flying "got hold of her," as Mrs. Hewlett puts it, at the Blackpool aviation meet, where she watched Grahame-White, Drexel, and other famous aviators who have flown in or over America since then. Her relatives, barring her distinguished husband, coldly discouraged Mrs. Hewlett's yearning to become an airwoman. She went to France, and durin gall last winter lived at the edge of the aviation ground at Mourmelon. There she met M. Blondeau, a French engineer, who taught her to fly and who is now her partner in the aviation school. That rrather masculine firm name is "Messrs Hewlett & Blondeau."

Together they bought a Farman biplane. Masterlinck, the great poet, offered to christen the graceful and beautiful craft the "Blue Bird," and that is its name. "Messrs. Hewlett & Blondeau" are proud of two of their pupils who have attained their soaring ambition. One is Snowden Smith, of the Army Service Corps, who took his pilot's license early this month, and is the first British officer to be trained in a British aviation school. The other is M. Ducroca, the first Frenchman to take his pilot's certificate in this country.

"Slow, steady and sure," must be the guiding motto of any aviator who teaches others to fly. The first thing to do with a new pupil is to take him on a series of flights as a passenger; then, after the first three or four lessons, the pupil is allowed to "feel his hands"—that is, to touch the lever of the machine. A week later the would-be rival of the birds begins to fly in straight lines up and down the aviation ground, at first skimming the ground, then leaving it for short spells; lastly, he is well up in the air.

Mr. Hewlett is greatly interested in aviation, but he has no time to develop to flying. He made some interesting flights at Mourmelon and frequently visits hi swife's school to watch the fledgling birdmen.

The new comes from Pau that yet another aviation school, the third, has been opened there by M. Gremaud, who has built a monoplane of an unusual type.

This he calls the "Dunbar," for it was created for a most ambitious young airwoman, Mrs. Jeanne Dunbar, of San Francisco. She has been experimenting at Pau with a monoplan sbuilt sixteen years ago by a relative of hers. The machine is nearly identical with that in which Lilienthal met his death, but an attempt has been made to make it modern by putting in a twenty-five horse-power motor.

Singalese.

When a Chinaman eats rice he places the bowl close to his lips and, giving the chopsticks a rotating movement, sends a steady current of grain down the esophagus.

Pineapple Juice.

An old pineapple flavor tells strange stories about the effect of the juice of the fruit upon certain substances. The juice of the pine is supposed to do more for the tongue than anything else in the world. Says the flavor, "Drop a piece of leather into a glass of pineapple juice and see how quickly it will be eaten up."

WHERE WE GET OUR FISH.

Salmon From Fraser and Halibut From Prince Rupert.

When the Ontario housekeeper orders her cut of choice salmon to form the piece de resistance in that delicious mayonnaise and cucumber combination, or the juicy steak sliced from the boneless body of a monstrous halibut, little does it concern her whence comes the fish. So it be fresh and otherwise in good condition, she is contented to let it go at that.

As a matter of fact, that fish she has bought for supper has come a very long way to grace her table—well over three thousand miles. For practically all the salmon and halibut sold in the Eastern market are shipped from British Columbia.

"We get cheap rates on them, as they are shipped in by the carload," said a dealer to a reporter, pointing to boxes filled with two varieties of the toothsome fish, the steel-head and the spring salmon. Nearby, lying amid broken ice, were the flat, decapitated bodies of big 50 and 60-pound halibut whose heads are invariably lopped off to save excess weight in shipment. They all come from the north Pacific, caught in the neighborhood of Prince Rupert.

The sea is full of cod in the same locality. But it doesn't pay to ship them down here as yet. All cod, haddock and flounders consumed in this province are imported from the Maritime Provinces and Newfoundland.

"So, we get none of the Rupert halibut here," declared the dealer.

But more interesting to the epicure than the salt water fish are those from the great lakes. White fish, herring, and salmon trout are, of course, the chief of these, though a few cases of the local perch, pike and pickerel do in the season make their appearance on the market.

"Notice the difference between these two," said the salesman, picking the steaming bodies of two salmon trout from their bed of pounded ice. "This big fellow is a Georgian Bay fish, but just compare this Lake Ontario trout to him." Layers of fat appeared inside the Lake Ontario one, whereas the other, though big and firm, completely lacked this strong evidence of good feeding.

"The Ontario one is by far the better fish," informed the piscatorial expert. "But these herring of ours can't touch those that come in from Lake Erie. Just cast your eye on that." And he wrenched the lid off a box of plump beauties from the smallest of the great lakes. Likewise in whitefish, Erie beats the others. The warm waters of her shallow basin make an ideal home for the fish, which breed there in countless millions. The abundance of food in submarine plant life accounts for the superiority of the finny harvest gleaned therefrom.

A box full of carp in a corner of the ware-room caught the eye of the reporter. They had been caught not far away from Toronto, probably in Ashbridge's Bay, where these destroyers of marsh vegetation abound. Carp is not generally esteemed, though the fish finds great favor with the Hebrews, two of whom presently appeared upon the scene armed with a market basket.

Tons of fish are held in cold storage. In one chamber where an ammonia apparatus keeps the temperature below 32, and where hoary frost coats the rows of piping, the scribe saw a string of salmon frozen hard as iron. Back in the semi-darkness of the room the great white sides of a stiffened halibut loomed ghostly.

"We could keep them there for two years, but we work them out as fast as we can," observed the fishman. "You see fish get rusty if they are held too long in a frozen condition. It may seem strange, but when a fish that has been in storage over time is taken out and thawed, rust, or what looks very like it, actually appears on the scales. It is some sort of exudation. Anyway it won't come off and it spoils the fish."

Deserted Their Towns.

So late as the end of the seventeenth century the inhabitants of Ceylon were in the habit of deserting their towns. Their customs are described in the narrative of Captain Robert Knox, who for nineteen years, from 1660 to 1679, was a captive among them. He speaks of several towns as lying desolate owing to the fact that their inhabitants had forsaken them. This they did if many of them fell sick, and two or three died soon after one another, thinking that it was a visitation of the evil one. Some of them came back when they thought the evil spirits had departed.

A Queer Creature.

Queer that while the male seal is a bull and the female a cow their young one is not called a calf, but a pup.

Why "seal fisheries," too, when the seal is not a fish?

And why should the seals breeding place be styled a rookery?

It looks as if this strange creature is only a fish in common parlance while at sea. On land (or ice) he is almost popularly with animals or birds.—Exchange.

With a [illegible] an answer to the question, "How little food can a soldier exist upon while maintaining his efficiency and marching fifteen miles a day," the War Office has just been experimenting upon a company of Somerset Light Infantry at Dartmoor. The daily ration was two biscuits and a half-pound of "bully beef" a man. Active service conditions were strictly enforced. No luxuries of any kind were allowed—no tents, no changes of clothing beyond what the men carried, no tobacco, no beer, no personal orders and no communications with the outside world. The men marched fifteen miles a day in full marching order, with the addition of a blanket to be used as the sole covering at night.

Modern Miracle.

"Do you believe in miracles?"

VII.—Seasonable Health Hints

By EUGENE L. FISK, M. D.

Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

IT has been estimated that our sun glows with the somewhat feverish temperature of about 10,000 degrees F. and radiates light in the amount of 1,575,000,000,000,000,000,000,000,000 candle power. This is "going some," even for Old Sol, but there are younger suns, like Sirius, that glow with an even higher temperature, not to mention those vast orbs in the uttermost depths of space whose fierce light, traveling 5,000,000 times faster than an express train, requires thousands of years to make the journey to our earth.

Considering these facts, one must be impressed with the exceedingly narrow physical limits within which life exists on this planet. A few degrees more or less of heat or cold and the phenomena we call life would cease, and a blankness of which we can form no real conception would follow. In endeavoring to form a mental picture of such a world we are reminded of CHILDREN SHOULD NOT BE ALLOWED TO PLAYING AROUND WHEN HEATED BY THE SUN.

Mosley's reasons for standing midway between the idealist and materialist, unable to picture either a world in which there was no mind to master its conditions or a mind existing without an external world from which it could receive impressions.

Keep the Mind Busy.

But are these good health-promoting qualities? Isn't the latest "best seller" a more appropriate antidote for the "dog days?" Not necessarily. Anything that will really make you think is hot weather and keep the mind from dwelling on a misfortune which cannot be helped and which comes regularly every summer is of value in preventing the physical ills due to high temperature. Boating trips and those who are undemonstrative enough to be compelled to overheat themselves physically in the hottest heat, most of the floods and physical depressions that ailing people during the heated term are due to rapid mind wandering and to drink.

People who have something worth while to think about are not wasting much time in standing the weather. When dead and worn tired it is wise to work at high pressure, either physically or mentally, during the extreme hot spells. On the contrary, there should be a slowing down of exertion and an avoidance of excitement. But occupation will lighten the mental strain and depression which are such important factors in causing heat prostration.

Evil Influence of Drink.

I hesitate to state that alcohol taken freely lowers the body temperature lest some one seize this as an excuse for drinking in the heated term. It is true, however, that alcohol reduces the body temperature and is therefore a dangerous drink in cold weather. But it does not follow that alcohol is indicated in hot weather. Alcohol is an anaesthetic and depressant, lessening the bodily resistance to disease and so affecting the nervous system that it is peculiarly vulnerable to heat stroke or thermic fever as well as to grip, pneumonia and other cold weather maladies.

During the heated term it is wise to keep out of annoying conferences and disputes. Heat induces a peculiarly sensitive and irritable condition, which is aptly described by the phrase "carrying a chip on one's shoulder."

Dressing For the Weather.

Some persons are guided by the calendar instead of the thermometer in the matter of clothing. During moderate winter weather they are overdressed, and in extreme hot weather they continue to wear clothing adapted to temperate summer heat.

The wisest plan is to dress especially for the weather. We should have extra light clothing for torrid weather, just as we should have extra heavy outer clothing for blizzard weather.

Lightweight and light colored clothing is most beneficial when the heat and humidity are excessive. The extreme conservatism of Americans in the matter of dress and a fear of being conspicuous have deterred many people in the northern section of the country from adopting white duck, linen crash or white flannel suits during the extreme summer weather.

It is not uncommon to see dark colored, thick clothing, more appropriate for spring wear, worn with derby and patient persistency right through the sizzling heat of midsummer. Even an occasional oddly clothed stout person may be noticed.

Loose, light colored, porous clothing will exert a marvelous influence for comfort. The money wasted in futile attempts to quench thirst would be better expended on a linen suit and linen mesh underwear.

On the other hand, neck mufflers and heavy furs worn during moderate winter weather simply invite colds, grip and pneumonia by rendering the wearer unduly dependent on such garments. Furthermore, during moderate weather heavy furs are a burden and induce fatigue and depression. Common sense should be exercised in such matters and due allowance made for individual peculiarities of constitution. Old people and invalids may require extra protection against cold, but the average individual should endeavor to become adapted to the wearing of medium weight clothing for ordinary winter weather and take extra precautions when "blizzard" weather is to be faced.

Bathing and the Weather.

The daily morning shower or plunge will brace the nervous system for the ordeal of a hot day; likewise it will give poise to the circulation and develop a resistance to cold weather perils of grip, bronchitis, etc. A tepid bath in the evening will often prove refreshing and soothing. A cold bath at night may prove exciting rather than cooling and restful.

Children should not be allowed to paddle around in the water with heads exposed to the sun. A sea dip is good for them, but they should not be permitted to play around the water unless their tender little brains are well protected from the sun's rays. Cool feet and hot head make a bad combination.

Restful Sleep Necessary.

Restful sleep is very necessary to restore the nervous system exhausted by prolonged hot weather. Late suppers and indiscretions in eating and drinking are often responsible for disturbed sleep. Care in this regard is especially necessary when the heat and humidity are extreme.

A tepid bath before retiring will often prove efficient in promoting restful sleep.

The Ice Water Habit.

Ice water is not only harmful by checking digestion and shocking the stomach, but the often contains germs of fever, which when taken into the system rapidly multiply. Ice should never be placed directly in drinking water.

PRACTICALLY CERTAIN THE GOVERNMENT COALITION WILL HAVE A MAJORITY

Gossip of the British Election Campaign---The London Papers Comment on the Results—Power of the Lords Must Go Says Liberal Press.

O'BRIEN'S MANIFESTO

Special wire to The Examiner:

LONDON, ENG., DEC. 8.—It is practically certain now that the government coalition will have the majority of the votes in the new Commons. The Conservative newspapers this morning are quoting figures to show that notwithstanding the fact that government may be stronger in the Commons an aproximation of the popular vote does not show a victory for the government. This is quite true when it is taken into consideration that the majorities were heavy for the Unionists last year in ridings which the Liberals this year allowed to go unopposed. Anticipating this leader, the government organ points out this morning that the abolishment of the Lords' power must be insisted on by this commons, no matter what the consequences are. It is alleged that an alliance had been formed between Balfour and Lord Rosebery, erstwhile Liberal leader to hurk the authority of the people.

O'Brien the independent Nationalist leader, elected in Cork yesterday, has issued a manifesto to the British people saying his policy is to conciliate the Protestant Fellow Irishman and unite all classes for justice for Ireland.

LONDON, ENGLAND, DEC. 8. Lead British Elections.

Following is the standing of the parties at four p.m., including to-day's nominations:

Unionists 188.
Liberals 134.
Labour Socialist 24.
Nationalists 46.

Not going:—Unionists 19, Government Coalition 17.

BIG STEAMER ON ROCKS HAS 105,000 BUSHELS OF WHEAT MAY BE A TOTAL LOSS

Special Wire to the Examiner.

FORT WILLIAM, DEC. 8.—With one hundred and five thousand bushels of wheat and a large shipment of flour on board, the steamer "Dunelm" is on the rocks off Isle Royale, and is in imminent danger of breaking up. She left here bound for Goderich yesterday morning, and at midnight a wireless message was received that she was in trouble. Several tugs have gone to her assistance, but were unable to reach her owing to the heavy seas. Unless the weather moderates great fears are entertained for the safety of the vessel. The Dunelm is owned by the Inland Navigation Company of Hamilton, Captain Alvinstone. The vessel and cargo are valued at a quarter of a million dollars.

RIOTERS ARE FINED AFTERMATH OF LAST NIGHT'S DISTURBANCE

Four others were remanded. Pay-as-you-enter cars are still running.

Winding-up Order Granted For The Canadian Cordage Mfg. Co.

An order was made yesterday by Hin. Mr. Justice Sutherland at Osgoode Hall, Toronto, for the winding up of the Canadian Cordage and Manufacturing Company, Limited on the ground that the Company was insolvent and unable to meet its obligations as they matured.

The nominal assets of the Company over and above all liabilities to the public are over $200,000. A valuation was recently made by the Canadian and American Appraisel Company, of Montreal, and the above estimated surplus after payment of liabilities to creditors is based upon the Appraisel Company's valuation.

Mr. G. W. Hatton, Barrister, Peterborough, was appointed Provisional Liquidator of the Company.

DEMANDS THAT ATTORNEY TAKE THE STAND

Special Wire to the Examiner.

CAMBRIDGE, MASS., DEC. 8.—Promising a sensational development that would help to clear Hattie Leblanc, the Canadian girl, of the charge of murdering her employer, Clarence Glover, the defendant's lawyer demands that District Attorney Huggins take the stand. The line of examination was with a view to showing that prosecution was merely trying to convict the girl to shield some body more prominent and influential.

THURSDAY, DEC. 8, 1910

A FAIR, EVEN, DEAL.

A rather striking cartoon, by Fitzmaurice, well known in Peterborough—artist of the Montreal Herald—pretty well represents Canada's attitude on reciprocity. President Taft is represented grinding a street piano, labelled "Presidential Campaign," and discharging "reciprocity" from its melodious thorax. Canada is represented as a trim, dapper maiden, extending a card to Mr. Taft, bearing the words "polite attention" with the legend: Miss Canada—"Here my poor man: I'm sorry, but I cannot give you more." Canada is prepared to civilly talk reciprocity with Uncle Sam, but is not prepared to give anything substantial, without receiving a thumping good equivalent. The more anxious our neighbours are the better bargain we can drive. If Canada does business at all on a reciprocity basis, the conditions must be the maintenance of the integrity of the British preference, and the protection of Canadian industrial and agricultural interests. Canada must have a fair, even deal.

AN OBJECT LESSON.

The self-styled Unionists of Great Britain, the Tory party, at the beginning of the election campaign, nailed their tariff reform flag to the mast. But the Lords' promise to be good, did not bid fair to protect these venerable obstructionists to national reform, sufficiently to clear the air. To concentrate effort, the tariff reform flag was rudely torn from its nailing and the responsibility of dealing with the question was shirked and placed upon the shoulders of the people, whom the Lords have always loved so dearly. That tariff reform—taxing the poor man's bread and relieving the privileged classes from taxation,is not urgently needed, is shown by the latest published return of the British Board of Trade. This showed that under the Free Trade fiscal system Great Britain is doing remarkably well. It showed that during the nine months ended September 30th, the value of the imports of the United Kingdom was, in round figures, 2,045 million dollars, Germany, 1540 millions, United States $1,220 millions of dollars, France, 920 millions. The exports were United Kingdom, $1,594 millions, Germany $1,340 millions, United States 1,143 millions, France, 800 millions. These figures are hard nuts for British fiscal reformers to crack. If a man keeps his health, is robust, and can do good work, he does not need a battery of quack medicine bottles. A hale old gentleman like John Bull, whose free trade farms bring a crop like that mentioned above, does not need a quack nostrum like that which has made his protective national competitors legards in the trade race.

PILES Dr. Chase's Ointment

THE LORDS AND THE PEOPLE.

The House of Lords and the party it stands for, would have far less of a showing in the present elections, if the elections were conducted so as to give as fair an expression of popular opinion as is possible in Canada, where one man one vote—one man as good as another in the eye of the law, is the rule. The House of Commons sent up to the Lords a bill to provide for the abolition of plural voting and the holding of elections on one day—the first an essential condition of the latter. Of course the Lords strangled it. As matters stand now, a man can vote in as many places as he has property. The same privilege is, of course, open to the poor man, but of course it is of no use to him; he hasn't, perhaps, property in even one place. The privileged classes, the wealthy land-holding classes, have not only heretofore escaped paying a fair share of taxes, but they have had the added advantage of having two and three or more votes to a poor man's one, thus enabling the favoured few to outvote the oppressed many. With a fair show, with the franchise put upon an equal basis, the fight would be a fair one and the privileged classes would come out second best. If plural voting, under which many men in Britain have as many as fifty votes, and hundreds can vote in a score of constituencies and thousands can vote in several constituencies—if plural voting had been abolished, and voting held under Canadian conditions in the present elections, the Liberals would win hands down. It is no wonder that the veto power of the Lords—the power to neutralize the people's will—is clung to as a drowning man will cling to a straw; but it is a wonder that the liberty loving, fair play loving Britons have stood it so long.

SATIRICAL HUMOUR.

Satire and epigrammatic expression are the essentials of invective and critical oratory. Premier Asquith excels in this respect. He thus tersely deals, in a recent speech, with the death-bed repentance of the Lords, then suddenly undertaken efforts at self-reform. In speaking the other day he said:

"A year ago the House of Lords was depicted as the ark of the constitutional covenant—(laughter)—the chief defence, nay, the last refuge, of our popular liberties. (Renewed laughter.) It has just—by a supreme display of patriotic courage—rejected, root and branch, the 'most iniquitous and unpopular budget of modern times'—laughter—and with these blushing honours thick upon it—(renewed laughter)—it made a confidential appeal to the gratitude and admiration of its fellow-countrymen. Ah, gentlemen, what a change eleven months—eleven short months—have wrought. (Cheers.) This ancient and picturesque structure has been condemned—and condemned by its own inmates—(laughter)—as unsafe. (Laughter.) The particidal pickaxes are already at work—(loud laughter)—and constitutional jerry-builders—(laughter—are hurrying from every quarter with new plans. (Laughter.) Dr. Johnson once said of a celebrated criminal—(laughter)—who, after his condemnation, showed literary activity—'Depend upon it, sir, when a man is going to be hanged in a fortnight it concentrates his mind wonderfully.'"—(Loud laughter and cheers.)

An Asquith in Canada would have a good text in dealing with the flopping tactics of Mr. Borden and his followers on the Canadian naval question—how he and they trimmed their sails to the "Nationalist" wind; how they swallowed themselves, as Sir Boyle Roach might say, to save their bacon; how they became all things to all men, even consorting with empire wreckers to gain a little political capital.

A CAPITAL DISGRACE.

Toronto the Good is to-day Toronto the disgraced. Mob rule, in Canada, even for two or three hours, is a blot upon civilization. The riotous outbreak in Toronto last night, in which several persons were seriously injured and about 250 street railway cars seriously wrecked, was an exhibition of the same spirit that is behind the lynching atrocities of the United States—the propensity of the lawless to take the law into their own hands. No doubt the mob was composed of the lowest, or, if not the lowest, the unthinking and irresponsible element of the city. Toronto has good cause for indignation against the street railway company and its tyrannically administered service, but possibly a majority of the rioters were persons who do not use the street cars, do not possibly earn the price of a car fare in a week. Toronto, perhaps, suffers enough from the Street Railway Company to justify resort to anything lawful to obtain redress. Resort to violence tends to injure, by adding a complicating element to the process of finding a solution. It is pointed out that the Company is acting within the law, and relief must be sought for in charge of a law that permits petty and pin-pricking tyranny to be exercised in the interests of railway dividends. The Globe says:

The real offenders are the members of the Ontario Railway Board, who approved of the Company's new by-laws, and the members of the Ontario Legislature, from Sir James Whitney, down, who passed the legislation, which gives the Company power to treat the citizens of Toronto as no railway manager dare treat cattle in transit.

The ballot-box, and not the brickbat, is the medium of relief. But will Toronto rise to the point of using this weapon. It has got so much in the habit of sending a solid Conservative contingent to the Legislature and Parliament, that a departure might be regarded as justification of another riot.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

If Toronto permits Russian street car methods, it must expect Russian results — anarchy and metaphorical bombs.

The London, (Eng.) Daily News critically asks whether Mr. Balfour will retain the leadership of his party after thrice leading them to defeat, and it declares that no British statesman, since popular representation was established, has such a record. Mr. Borden might see that the demand for leaders, who cannot lead, is far short of the supply.

LOW TARIFF SENTIMENT AND TARIFF REPRESENTATION.

(Manitoba Free Press)

The farmers of Manitoba, when they reach Ottawa to argue before parliament their case for a reduction in the tariff, may at some point be asked how it happens that they have in Ottawa, as their voting representatives in the house, eight members, out of a total of ten, who are identified with a party which is absolutely committed to a higher tariff than the one now in force. The members of the house were chosen by all the electors, and it is therefore to be presumed that they represent accurately the sentiment of the province. The one or two hundred farmers who will go to Ottawa will not claim that they represent the province, although they will represent a very important part of it.

If Manitoba wants a lower tariff it must have in the Dominion house a body of men who are devoted to the cause of a low tariff. Not only must these representatives be personally in favour of a low tariff, but it is also obviously essential that they should be allied with a party which is in sympathy with the movement for a reduction of the tariff. A Conservative member of the Dominion house, who is in sympathy with the movement for a low tariff, would be of service to the western farmers as long as the Liberal party was in control at Ottawa, but he would lose his value as soon as his party triumphed; whereas, a Liberal, devoted to the cause of a low tariff, would continue the fight for that cause whether the government of the day was Liberal or Conservative.

Danger From Redundant Gold Supply As Affecting Price Of Food Products

(Montreal Witness.)

Mr. Morston Frewen, who was one of the first, after the 'Witness,' to draw renewed and wide attention to the inevitable depreciation of the world's currency through the redundant production of gold, has written further on the subject. Mills's 'quantity theory' was about the first germ of the now well-proved fact that prices rise or decline, assuming other conditions to be stable, in ratio to the world's supply of gold at any particular time—that is, the less gold available the more goods it will buy, and vice versa. Mr. Frewen, however, calls attention to what he calls 'a new phase of the currency question,' but it is one familiar enough to readers of these columns. In the Western world, the prices of perishable commodities (food) are being pushed up by the unexampled increase in our gold supplies; but the great fall in the silver exchanges, especially since 1905, due to the still greater superabundance of silver production, is enabling Asia and cheap Asiatic labour to supply all non-perishable products into which labour enters largely, such as pig-iron, at unprecedently low prices. Mr. Frewen asserts that Hankow, for instance, is now delivering pig-iron in whole cargoes, f.o.b., for 16 1-2 taels per ton, which at the present rate of exchange is about two guineas ($10.50.) The Canadian present price, which is a cut one through United States competition, is from $16 to $18. At the old rate of exchange, and this is a matter of the most serious concern, 16 1-2 taels would have been £5 10s., or about $27.50. No furnace attended by white labour can approach any such figure of cost of production as two guineas gold. This menace is one which we have long in general terms foretold. Mr. Frewen now believes it to be so great that 'with the exploitation of the great Shansi iron and coal field, our Western furnaces must close down unless exchange greatly advances.' While Cobalt and other mines are adding to the world's silver supply at the rate they are doing, this is far from probable. Mr. Frewern further remarks that the situation is further complicated by the fact that not only can Asia now sell pig iron in Western markets, at prices hitherto inconceivable, but the wages of Western ironworkers must needs advance because of the advance of food prices. And the conclusion is: 'What applies to pig-iron will be found to jeopardize also such staple industries a scotton, jute, leather, and especially all steel products. We cannot compete with China unless the price of silver rises one hundred per cent.' This argument that the situation must be rendered worse by the inevitable increase of wages in gold countries is not so cogent as might seem, as it must still more apply to labour in China, where currency is 'depreciating more rapidly than here. But even supposing that the exchange value of silver should rise, it is hopeless to expect that the West can compete for long with the East, unless the standard of living in the East should rise by at least a thousand per cent. There is no more threatening problem at the present time, and all we have for the moment about it is a policy of drift, except in so far as we are forcing down the price of Chinese labour by pemnitting the Chinese up in their own country.

Y. M. C. A. NOTES

The Y. Scouts met as usual last night, and after general business was transacted, discussed a programme for Christmas week. The boys intend having a good time, but also hope to do a good deal towards making others, who are not quite so fortunate as themselves, happy for Christmas.

The Scouts are only a portion of the number, however, who will engage in this good work. Every member of the boys' department will do his share. The boys of the department have started by trying to sell fifty dollars' worth of stamps in aid of the Muskoka Free Hospital, which there is but little doubt of them being successful. This will be followed up by the boys securing from their homes and elsewhere, gifts for the poor of Peterborough, clothing, etc., which will be distributed by them before Christmas.

YOUNG and OLD Are Attacked

Everyone is liable to be attacked with Kidney Trouble, young and old are seized. Pains in the back and aching limbs are sure signs of kidney trouble. Girls that ought to be bright and lissome are languid and nervous. Women worry and suffer torments. Strong men do not escape the ravages of kidney trouble and disease.

Booth's Kidney Pills

Mrs. N. Good, of 70 Stadacona St., Moose Jaw, Sask., says: 'I am pleased to state for the benefit of any person suffering with painful back, that they will find Booth's Kidney Pills a most excellent remedy. I suffered for months with a very weak back and severe pains and aches in the kidneys, and felt very much depressed. There was also a swelling under my eyes. When I learned of Booth's Kidney Pills, I procured a box, and found them the best remedy I have ever used, as they were very quick in giving me relief. The pains have left my back and have restored my health and I am now strong and well.'

THE BOOTH GUARANTEE.

We do not guarantee to cure in all cases, but if you derive no benefit our agents are authorized to refund you your money. Booth's Kidney Pills are sold by all druggists, 50c. box or postpaid from The R. T. Booth Co., Limited, Fort Erie, Ont. Sold and guaranteed by Wm. Madill.

International Secretary is in the City in Regard to Conference

Mr F. H. T. Ritchie, International Boys' Work Secretary, is in the city visiting the Peterborough Y.M.C.A., and will to-night address the Sunday School Superintendents and representatives of the boys' organizations of the city in the interests of the Boys' Work Conference, to be held in Ottawa, Dec 30, 31st, and Jan. 1, and 2.

All junior hockey players in the city are reminded of the meeting to be held to-morrow night in the hockey room at the Brock St. Rink, when the junior team committee will meet the players and plans for the season will be discussed. It is important that there should be a large attendance of players as the management desires to get a line on the men who will figure on the junior Y. M. C. A. team this year. GEO. ELLIOTT STORE, Peterboro

BY R. RUSSELL CONWELL

"Well," said I, "Professor, you are a scientific; I am not. I would like to have an expert, scientific opinion now, why I shivered."

He rose in his facetious way and said to me: "Young man you shivered because you did not know any better! Didn't you have in your pocket a two-cent paper?"

"Oh, yes, I had a 'Herald' and 'Journal.'"

"That is it. You had them in your pocket, and if you had spread one newspaper over your sheet when you went to bed, you would have been as warm as you lay there, as the richest man in America, under all his silk coverlids. But you shivered because you didn't know enough to put a two-cent newspaper on your bed and you had it in your pocket. Applause).

It is the power to appreciate the little things that brings success. How many women want divorces, and ought to have them, too; but how many divorces originated like this? A man will hurry from the factory and his wife rushes in from the kitchen with the potatoes that have been taken out before they seem to be done and she puts them on the table for her husband to eat. He chops them up and eats them in a hurry. They go down in hard lumps; he doesn't feel good, and he is full of crankiness. He frets and scolds, and, perhaps, swears, and there is a row in the family right there, and these hearts that were almost divinely united will separate to satanic hatred. What is the difficulty? The difficulty is that that lady didn't know what all these ladies do know, that if potatoes raised in lime soil, she had put in a pinch of salt when she put them in the kettle, she could have brought them forth at the right time and they would have been ready to laugh themselves to pieces with edible joy. He would have digested them readily, and there would have been love in that family, just for a little pinch of salt. (Applause).

Now, I say, it is the appreciation of these things that makes the great inventors of the world. I read in a newspaper the other day that no woman ever invented anything. Of course this did not refer to gossip; but machines and improvements. (Laughter)

If it had referred to gossip it would have applied better to that newspaper than to women. (Renewed laughter). Who invented the Jacquard loom? Mrs. Jacquard. Who invented the printers' roller. A woman. Who invented the cotton-gin? Mrs. Green, although a patent was taken out on an improvement in Mr. Whitney's name. Who invented the sewing-machine? A woman—Mrs. Hawe, the wife of ElisaHawe. If a woman can invent a sewing machine; if a woman can invent a printing roll, if a woman can invent a cotton-gin, we men can invent anything under Heaven. (Laughter and applause). I say that to encourage the men. Any how our civilization would roll back if we should cross-cut the great inventions of women, though the patents were taken out often in the names of men.

The grandest inventors are those who see what the people need, and they invent something to supply that need. Let me illustrate only once more. Suppose I were to go through this house and shake hands with each of you and say: "Please introduce me to the great men and women in this hall to-night. You would say: "Great men! We don't have any here. There are none in the audience. If you want to find great men you must go to some other part of the world. Great men always come from somewhere else.

How many of your men, with vast power to help your city, how many with great genius, or great social power, who might enrich and beautify and elevate this their own city, are now taking their money and talents and spending them in some foreign place, instead of benefitting their own people here. Yet, here is the place for them to be great. There are as great men here as in any other place of its size. But it is so natural for us to say that great men come afar. They come from London, Rome from San Francisco, from New York, from Manayunk, or any where else. But there are just as great men hearing me speak to-night as there are elsewhere, and yet, who, because of their simplicity, are not now appreciated. But, as the world knows nothing of its greatest men, says the great philosopher, and it is true. Your neighbour is a great man and it is time you appreciated it, and if you do not appreciate it now, you never will. The only way to be a true patriot is to be a true patriot at home. A man who cannot benefit his own city should never be sent to Washington. Towns and cities are cursed because their own people talk them down. A man who cannot bless his own community, the place in which he lives, should not be called a patriot anywhere else. To these young men I want to utter this cry with all my force. Here is the place for you to be great and here are your great men.

But we teach the young people to believe that all the great people are away off. I heard a professor in an Illinois college say that "nearly all the great men are dead." We don't want him in Philadelphia. (Laughter). They don't want him anywhere. The greatest men are living now and will only be exceeded by the generations to come; and he who appreciates that fact will look around him and will respect his neighbour, and will respect his environment. I have to say to-night that the great men of the world are those who appreciate that which is next to them and the larger now to our nation is that we belittle everything that is at home. Have you heard the campaign speeches this year? I heard a man at the Academy of Music say that our nation is going to ruin; that the ship of state is drifting upon the rocks, and will soon be shattered into ten thousand fragments, and this Republic will be no more; that there will be founded an Empire, and upon the empire we will put a throne, and upon the throne will be placed a tyrant and he, with his iron heel, will grind the people into dust! It is a lie! (Applause.)

Never in the history of God's government of mankind was there a nation stepping upward more certainly toward all that is grand and beautiful and true, that is the nation of America to-day. Let the politicians say what they will for personal greed, let them declaim with all their power and try to burden the people. You and I know that which ever way the elections may go, the American people are not dead, and the nation will not be destroyed. It is a living body this mighty Republic, and it cannot be killed by a single election, and they that will belittle our nation are not patriots. Let the land be filled with hope. Some young men will say: "Oh, well, the nation is having a hard time." But it is not. The Bible says: "It is good for me that I was afflicted.' We are getting down to where we can consider and take account of stock. In the next five years from this 1893 you will see the most flourishing institutions, all through the land, will be united a prosperity such as this nation never knew before. What ever the result of the election, don't belittle your own nation.

Some young man is saying: "There is going to be a great man here, though I don't know of any now."

Young man, when are you going to be great?

"When I am elected to some political office, then I will be great."

Oh, young man, learn right now, in these exciting times, that to hold a political office under our form of government is no evidence of greatness. Why, my friends, what would become of this nation if our great men should take office? Suppose you select the greatest men of your city right now, and ask them to leave their great enterprises and go into some political office. My friends, what a ruin would be left if the great men were to take political office, and you and I cannot afford to put them there. To hold a political office to be a servant of the people, and the Bible says: "He that is sent cannot be greater than he who sends him"; and "the servant cannot be greater than his master. The office-holder is the servant of others. He is sent by the people, he cannot be greater than the people. You think you are going to be a great man by being elected to some political office! Young man, greatness is intrinsic, it is in the personality, not in the office. If you are not great as an individual, before you go into the office, you may rattle around in it, after you get in, like "shot in a tin pan." There will be no greatness there. You will hold the office for a year or more and never be heard of again. There are greater things than political office. Many a young man's fortune has been made by being defeated when he was up for political office. You never sa wa really great man in office who did not take the office at a sacrifice to himself. Another young man says: "There is going to be a great man here."

"When?"

"When there comes a war! When we get into another conflict with Spain over Cuba; with England, over the Monroe doctrine, or over the Russian boundary, or with New Jersey, or some distant country of the world. (Laughter). Then I will sweep up among the glittering baronets; then I will tear down their flag from the staff, bear it away in triumph, and come home with stars on my shoulders and hold every office in the gift of the nation; then I will be great!"

Young man, remember greatness does not consist in holding office, even in war. The office does not make the great men. But, alas, we mislead the young in teaching history. If y ouosk a scholar in school who sank the 'Merrimac' he will answer 'Hobson,' and tell seven-eighths of a lie. For eight men sank the 'Merrimac' at Santiago. Yet, where are the women here to-night who have kissed the other seven men? (Laughter).

A young man says: I was studying the history of the War the other day and read about Generals Grant, Meade, Beauregard, Hood, and these great leaders, and they were great."

Did you ever read anything about their predecessors? There is very little history about them. If the office had made their predecessors great you would not have heard of Grant, or Sherman, and McClellan. But they were great men intrinsically, not made so by the office. The way we teach history leads the young to think that when people get into office then they become great men. But is terribly misleading.

Every great General of hte war is credited with many victories he never knew anything about, simply because they were won by his subordinates. But it is unfair to give the credit to a General who did not know anything about it. I tell you if the lightning of Heaven had struck out of existence every man who wore shoulder-straps in our wars, there would have arisen out of the ranks of our private soldiers just as great men to lead the nation on to victory.

I will give you one more illustration. I don't like to give it. I don't know how I ever fell into the habit. Indeed it was first given offhand to a Grand Army post of which I was a member. I hesitate to give it now.

(To be continued)

The Patient Brain

A Tireless Worker So Long as Supplied With Rich, Red Blood.

The brain is one of the most patient and industrious organs of the body. It can be induced, by good treatment, to perform prodigies of work.

But it is sensitive and will not brook abuse. It responds to the lash at first, but if the lash is laid on too hard it balks.

The brain insists on having plenty of good, red blood wherewith to renew its waste and from which to manufacture the nerve force supplied to the whole body.

Nervous trouble is generally brain trouble, and no suffering is to be compared to mental suffering, with the accompanying dread, suspicion and melancholy.

One fifth of the blood in the human body is consumed by the brain, so make the blood rich and red by using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and you will overcome diseases of the nerves.

There is no other way. Stimulants arouse false hope. Narcotics deaden the nerves, and temporary relief is followed by a condition which is worse than the first.

Get the blood right and the nervous system will adjust itself. Headaches will disappear; irritability will go, digestion will improve, and weakness and despondency will give place to new hope and courage, new vigor and energy.

Mrs. Geo. Fuller, Lakeland, Man., writes: "Dr. Chase's Nerve Food cured me of nervous headache, from which I was a great sufferer, and I am no longer troubled with twitchings of the nerves in the arms and legs."

Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Food will enable you to avoid such extreme nervous trouble as prostration and exhaustion, 50 cents a box, 5 boxes for $2.50, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

DONATION OF 100 TARTS

For the Scotch tea in the Gospel Hall Friday night, one man donated one hundred of Potvin's tarts. A woman in the south end sent one hundred buns. Lots more to follow. How's that boys?

ITS WORRY THAT KILLS

Nothing so wastes the vital nerve force as worry. Nothing so certainly regards restoration to health. Get out into the sunshine, be cheerful, use Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Food to rebuild the wasted nervous system, and you will be surprised how quickly there will be a change for the better. This advice will be better than gold to you if you will but follow it.

MRS. PETER GREEN, Jr.,

DESORONTO, ONT.

Says:—"Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup is the Best Cough Syrup She Ever Used."

She writes:—"Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup is the best cough syrup I ever used. My baby had a very bad cold. I was using Dr.'s medicine but that didn't seem to help the awful cough she had until I got a bottle of this great syrup. I have it in the house at the present time for the children and I think I couldn't get along if I didn't have it. I wish to thank you for all the good it has been to my family."

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup contains all the lung healing virtues of the Norway pine tree, which combined with Wild Cherry bark and other pectoral remedies makes it one of the greatest known preparations for Coughs, Colds and all Throat and Lung Troubles.

It is put up in a yellow wrapper; three pine trees the trade mark; price 25 cents at all dealers.

SOMETHING OF THE DREW FAMILY

If one looks only into the theatrical cases, the influence heredity produces numerous evidences of truth of the contention that blood will tell and the presence of the dramatic corpuscle will always ultimately reveal itself. The Drew family is a startling or rather convincing case in point. The original John Drew was a noted actor. Mrs. John Drew—and a few generations still remember her—was an actress of superior merit and splendid artistic accomplishments. Whoever had the happy chance of seeing her, "Mrs. Malaprope" or "The Widow Greene" will never forget the marvelous, humourous details of those wonderful stage portraits. They were delineations of the genre that compel the use of only superlatives. Of her numerous descendants Sidney Drew is a player, whose capacity is well known, especially in the world of vaudeville, where he has displayed his talents for the past few years. "Billy's" tombstone was a medium that stood him well in that field of theatrical activity, and with that as a working basis, George Cameron (his wife, a daughter of McKee, Rankin and Kitty Blanchard) has evolved a three act comedy, which kept the patrons of Daly's theatre, New York laughing for nearly a year under the title of "Billy." John Drew the famous star is his brother, Ethel, Lionel and John Barrymore are his niece and nephews. Sidney Drew has been an actor, author and manager, and has played most everything in the rage of comedy and drama. The fact that Mr. Drew himself is to play the title role in "Billy" at the Grand next Tuesday will no doubt awaken the interest of theatregoers who enjoy a good hearty laugh. Mr. Drew will have with him the original Daly's Theatre, New York cast and production.

OFFICE BOY AT REHEARSAL

Says the Belmont Club are Going to Have a Fine Show at the "Grand" Dec. 15 and 16

THE CATCHY MUSIC

The reporters, being all busy, or afflicted with that tired feeling last evening, the Examiner office boy was pressed into service, and assigned to write up a rehearsal of the Belmont Club minstrel show. After some labour and evidently deep thought, he handed the following to the city editor:

"Well, I was down dere to dat rehearse, all right, all right, and when you sends me to a place like dat again you is going to be responsible to my folks for it. Hully gee, it's me for de nut house if I ain't careful. De way of it is dis. You see I got in all right, and dere was a whole mob of dose Belmont Club fellers with dere coats off, trying into some songs, while a funny-looking jigger, dey calls Holly, standing on a chair, tells dem how, and a little loidy is doing tings to de piano. Dan de queer-looking guy dey calls Holly, he says: "Now, once more boys, and den we'll pass it. Remember now, stick Otto," and den bang, de little loidy hits de piano and de whole gang starts singing de choruses of de songs."

"Right dere is where I gets me card to de bug-house, for dose songs is all so kind of catch-hold-of-you-like dat I've been staying awake nights hummin' and whistlin' dem. On de square, you can't get away from it, and when you goes to dat show on the 15th and 16th of December, you'll be de same way. I'll bet you dat half de town is whistlin' dem choruses de next day. It's de limit, and if I don't get away from it pretty soon I'll be crazy myself and have me neighbours bugs too."

"A man told me on de side dat they haven't got very far yet, but after de singing dat Holly guy takes a bunch of fellers and starts doing what he calls the end stunts. Say, for a lot of mutts, what we tink dey are, you know dose fellers are dere wid de goods. If Lew Dockstader gets wise to 'em, dis town is going to lose some good citizens for dey are all to de good when it comes to dancing dose neat steps what dat Holly guy is ramming into dere noodles.

"Dat show is going to be a hummer all right, just put me down as sayin' so, and if it ain't den I hope to die, if I ain't a no-good mut. De way dat Holly is working dose Belmont Club fellows can't help but make it good, and I'll bet some of dose fellers what has snap jobs around town here didn't know what dey was steering up against when dey went into dat show business. You ought to see 'em sweating'. I bet dey haven't worked so hard before in dere lives. And de best of it is he makes dem go tru it every afternoon and evening. Just tink of de long drill from now to the 15th of December.

"Dat's about all I can tell you about dis one, and say, next time make one of dose lazy reporters do de job, for if I gets any more of dem songs in my holly, I won't be able to sweep de office unless I do it by music."

The advance plan for ticket-holders will be placed on sale at the Opera House on Monday. The sale for the general public opens Tuesday. There will, undoubtedly be one grand rush.

Campbellford Man Arrested Here On A Theft Charge

A middle aged man named Frederick Mallery blew into the city a few days ago with a chum and last night came in contact with Constable Adams, who promptly 'ran him in.' It appears that the prisoner is charged with having stolen a sum of money, about $15 it is stated, from a man in Campbellford. A telephone message was received by Chief Thompson giving the name and description of the man, and a sharp lookout for him was kept, with the result as above stated. He is also supposed to have stolen clothes as well as money. The money was not found on him when he was arrested here last night. Both men were from Campbellford.

Chief Linn, of Campbellford, came up this morning for his prisoner and took him out on the 1.40 train. The stolen coat and some other missing clothing was found on the prisoner.

Splendid Display Of Magnificent Jewellery At W. A. Sanderson's

Each day brings us nearer Christmas and some are yet in a doubtful mind as to what would make a suitable Christmas gift for their friend. Now, don't decide until you visit the W. A. Sanderson Jewellery Store. This is where your decision is to be most quickly reached. Everybody appreciates a piece of jewellery as a Christmas present, and there is something to please the most fastidious at Sanderson's. The store is stocked to its greatest capacity and there is something for all, and the best of it is, that the prices are reasonable, and here the Christmas buyer can shop with economy and at the same time get exceptionally good value for his money. There is a choice array of diamonds in rings, brooches and neckleces and what would be more appreciated by the young lady from her young man than one of these. Then the husband is in doubt as to what he should give his wife, but, why should there be any doubt, when the question can be so easily decided at Sanderson's. There is something required at home in the way of cut glass, silverware, or cutlery. This store is showing a most magnificent display in these lines, and there is no reason why an intending purchaser should go away dissatisfied.

The rush of the Christmas trade is on and this store is experiencing a goodly share. There is every reason that the people should shop early — now is the time. With the rush of business that is now engaging the attention of this store, the choicest of the Christmas stock will be quickly picked up and the late shopper will probably have to go without or do with something that he or she had not intended to buy. As it has been said many times before, "Shop early" and be sure and visit Sanderson's.

NEW ONTARIO AS A FARMING COUNTRY

Sixteen Million Acres of Virgin Soil Await the Farmer with His Plow and Reaper

The Daily Nugget published at Cobalt, Ont., has just gotten out an eight-page illustrated edition dealing with the farm lands in the great clay belt of New Ontario. The mass of information contained in this edition will be an eye-opener to thousands of people who have not been aware of the farming possibilities of the north-western section of the Province.

There are 16,000 acres of the finest possible farm land awaiting the settler, and much of this land can be secured at the rate of 50 cents an acre, while considerable is available free on homestead entries.

The many excellent illustrations in this edition indicate the productiveness of the New Ontario soil. Wheat, oats, hay and vegetable fields are shown in various stages of development, and it is hard to believe that the pictures were not taken in the most advanced portion of Old Ontario. They demonstrate that the new country is being settled very rapidly by progressive farmers.

It is brought out very forcibly that the great clay-loam belt will grow wheat, barley, oats, hay, alfalfa, root crops, etc., equal to any soil on the continent, and far superior in many sections. The wheat taken as one instance of the productiveness of the soil establishes that it is a country of unlimited farming possibilites, for wheat is being produced equal to the very best Manitoba No. 1 hard.

Not only is the clay belt most inviting land for settlers from the farming standpoint, but the rapid growth of the mining camps provided a market that could not be surpassed for the farmer to dispose of his produce in. Cobalt with its 12,000 people and a production of $15,000,000 annually has to have immense quantities of supplies, Cowganda and South Lorrain each use enormous quantities while the new Porcupine gold fields will soon demand food stuffs in immense quantities.

The edition shows that the Ontario Government has a very promising model farm at Monteith in the clay belt and that much will be done experimentally there in the interests of the North Ontario farmer.

Above all, the edition brings out that a new empire is being built up in this great North country, and that between the farming, the mining and the lumbering a country will be developed that the Eastern manufacturer will be glad to make an entry into with his wares.

As this edition was not published as a money-making scheme, it has no advertising at all, but simply to give the facts regarding the great farming possibilities of the country copies will be furnished by the Daily Nugget free upon application until the edition is exhausted.

A PLACE IN THE FAMILY

If you and your family were obliged to depend on one medicine, what would you choose? It is not difficult to guess what medicine Mrs. James Gray, Sartelle, N.B., would choose, for she writes.—"For five years my husband and I have used Dr. Chase's Kidney and Liver Pills for kidney troubles, biliousness and constipation and find them indispensable as a family medicine."

Peterborough Bookstore Is The Home Of Gifts

Headquarters, as usual, for the people who appreciate artistic and meritorious Christmas gifts, the Peterborough Bookstore is being crowded daily with shoppers, who are having no difficulty in selecting just the kind of presents they are looking for. Books are a never-failing resource of the gift-hunter and Messrs. Trebilcock Brothers have a magnificent assortment of popular and standard books. Among the new fiction may be mentioned "The Dopp Doctor," "Lisbeth of the Dale," "The Handicap", Rev. Mr. Knowles latest novel; "Love of the Wild," a new Canadian story, "Master of the Vineyard," Reid's last story, and "Mistress of Shenstone." There is a remarkable sale of the stories by Mrs. Nellie McClung, who lectures here next week, "Sowing Seeds in Danny," and her later book "The Second Chance." It retails at $1.25, while "Sowing Seeds in Danny" can be secured in an edition at 50c and boxed for 65c.

For the boy or girl there is no more appreciated present than one of the popular annuals. The Peterborough Bookstore has them all—"The Boys' Own," "The Girls' Own" "Chums," "Chatterbox," "Sunday at Home," etc. For the boy, too, there is the popular Henty stories, the receiving of one of which always causes satisfaction. There is a new line for the children that will undoubtedly prove popular this year, in the shape of editions of Dickens and Scott, re-written and simplified for young readers. These handsome volumes sell at 50c and make a most desirable present. For children still younger nothing more amusing can be secured than the "Peter Rabbit Series." Messrs. Trebilcock report a very large sale of the work of Robert W. Service, the Canadian poet. There is a big demand for his "Songs of A Sourdough," and "Ballads of A Cheechako," and also for his new novel just issued, "The Trail of '98," which will be on sale in the Peterborough Bookstore in a day or two. Remarkable, too is the sale of Ralph Connor's new booklet, "The Recall of Love," which sells at 25c.

A feature of the Christmas display in the Peterborough Bookstore is the showing of padded booklets in many different, but all artistic, lines, and at different prices. The popular booklet seems to be the one that is offered at 35c. Calendars and Christmas cards always in demand at this time are shown in great profusion, and are being eagerly snapped up. If there is any particular line that Messrs. Trebilcock Brothers take more pride in pointing out to their customers it is the splendid stock of papeteries while hthey are showing. Manufactured by the Eaton-Hurlbert Company, no comment upon the excellence of these goods is required. Writing paper, when it is of the best quality and tastefully boxed, is always popular, and there has been exceptionally large sale. Leather goods, Harrison Fisher pictures, brass goods, hymn books, Bibles, are all being displayed by the Peterborough Bookstore and their splendid stock should be seen. Better come early to-morrow, if possible, to avoid the crowds that are certain to jam the store for the next two weeks.

Well Known Local Man Is In Jail In Lindsay

(Lindsay Post.)

James Wilson, of Peterborough, came to town yesterday with the intention, so he said, of going to work on the new C.P.R. grain route. The last time James visited Lindsay was on the 12th of July, when he imbibed too much fire water and landed in the toils.

Yesterday Wilson filled up again, and last evening visited the Salvation Army, where he created a disturbance. The police corralled him, and he spent the night under the fire hall.

This morning he faced Magistrate Jackson, a picture of despair and degredation. He pleaded for his liberty, as he has done many times before, but the Court couldn't see it that way. He was fined $2.00 and costs, $6.10 in all, or twenty days in jail.

Wilson turned to the Post representative and asked for a loan of $6.10 but Jimmy was no stranger to the newspaper man, and he turned him down. He will spend twenty days' meditation, interspersed with manual labour, in gaol.

Wilson has a very poor opinion of Lindsay whiskey, as he claims he was "doped." He looks as if he would not stand many more drunks.

Lively Runaway Causes A Bunch Of Excitement

Three young men had an exciting experience last evening, about 8 o'clock, when the sleigh in which they were riding was upset at the corner of George and Charlotte Sts. The outfit was a two-seated sleigh, belonging to Dr. F. L. Robinson. The party had just started out for an evening's sleigh drive, and had proceeded a couple of blocks when the accident occurred. They were driving rapidly out of Charlotte St. and when turning around the corner to go up George street, the sleigh slewed, struck the street car track and upset, dumping the occupants out into the street. The team became frightened at the excitement, and ran away. They ran up north as far as Smith street, and turned around and ran back again down to Lake street; in making the turn at Smith street the sleigh righted itself and little damage was done. Neither the horses nor any of the party were hurt. The team is not addicted to running away, in fact it was their first time, and probably would not have run away on this occasion, except for the excitement which followed the upset.

NARROW ESCAPE

Mr. Clarke Knocked Down by Runaway on George Street

Mr. Edward Clarke, of 52 Ware street, was the victim of what might have proved to be a fatal accident last evening about 5.30. The old gentleman, who is 86 years of age, had just about crossed the street in front of LeBrun's store when a runaway horse coming up the street ran into him. The horse knocked the old man down and then fell on top of him, but without serious injury to Mr. Clarke. He was very fortunate in escaping with only a bruised leg. He was rendered unconscious at the time however, and was carried into LeBrun's store, where his son, Mr. F. Clark, of Clark and Son's, was telephoned for. Mr. Clark was later taken home, where it was found that he had not suffered serious injury.

It appears that the horse had been left standing in front of a store further down the street and taken fright at something with the above results.

SMALL BLAZE DAMAGE $50

A spark from a stove set fire to the floor in the grocery store operated by Miss Lockhardt at the corner of Water and McDonnel streets at 7.10 o'clock this morning and as a result $50 damage was done to the building and contents. The brigade was quickly on the scene in answer to the alarm and extinguished the fire by means of four chemicals. It looked for a few moments as if water would be needed, but the brigade was successful in accomplishing the desired results with the chemicals.

DEEP-SEATED COUGH

CURED IN 5 HOURS

Raw Home Made Syrup. From Boston Press

Progress in medical compounds never ceases, and now it is stated by a prominent medical man that any deep-seated cough or cold on the lungs can be actually cured in five hours by the clock. Opium and morphine have been resorted to in the past, as relief measures. But now it is learned that the system must be treated to rid it of inflammation and congestion. A tonic laxative cough syrup does the work so quickly and so thoroughly as to be almost magical. What heretofore has taken weeks to cure can be accomplished in hours. Get this formula filled or mix it at home and always keep it on hand: One-half ounce fluid wild cherry bark, one ounce compound essence cardiol and three ounces syrup white pine compound. Shake the bottle and take twenty drops every half hour for four hours. Then take one-half to one teaspoonful three or four times a day until the system is purified and toned up. Give your children less according to age. One filling will usually cure a whole family, as the dose is small.

OLD PROSPECTOR TELLS HIS STORY

His Real Troubles Started When Rheumatism Got Him.

Plasters, ointments and sulphur were alike useless, but Dodd's Kidney Pills made a new man of him.

Princeton, B.C., Dec. 7.—(Special.)—All over Canada people are telling of the great work Dodd's Kidney Pills are doing, and even in the rocky mountain fastnesses where nature hides her mines men are telling of cures made and suffering relieved by the great Canadian Kidney remedy. Wm. Murray, sixty-six years old, who has tramped the frontier, as lumber jack, rancher, prospector, miner, hunter and trapper, and who has friends all over the west, is one of these. Many a tale of hardship and danger he can tell, but his first real trouble came when Rheumatism claimed him.

"I slipped on the mountain side and strained my kidneys and then my troubles all seemed to set in at once. I had nearly all the symtoms of Lumbago, Sciatica, Neuralgia, Diabetes, Dropsy and Bright's Disease," Mr. Murray states.

"Then I broke out in a terrible rash that spread all over my body and kept me in tortures. I tried all sorts of liniments and ointments and took sulphur enough to start a little hades of my own. But it was all no use. Then I tried Dodd's Kidney Pills, and all I can say is they made a new man of me."

EMPTIED SCHOOL IN 40 SECONDS

In answer to a post card communication which appeared in this paper last evening, asking if fire drill was being done away with entirely in the Central School, Principal Downie, of that institution informed the Examiner to-day that there was some truth in the complaint. Fire drills were not being held daily. However, the regulations only called for drill when it was thought necessary, and as a test this morning resulted in 8 rooms being cleared in forty seconds Mr. Downie did not think there was much cause for complaint or feeling that this important feature of school work was being neglected.

POST CARD COLUMN

Editor Post Card Column.

Dear Sir,—The Property Committee of the Peterborough Board of Education should be congratulated upon having a surplus of $811.15, after all repairs and improvements necessary were completed, if such agree with the facts. Apparently the Finance Committee had not to resort to high finance, which occasionally was the case in relation to appropriations to Property Committee. Probably $788.85 would have been sufficient for repair account, but it is absolutely incorrect to state "that required improvements" could be included in an appropriation of $1,600. With all due respect to achievements attained by the Board, there are several instances in our city, where our Schools would make an unfavourable comparison with those of the poorest rural districts. Why does not the Health Officer see that all schools have proper connections with the sewers? What public institutions require modern conveniences, both from a moral as well as sanitary aspect, more than our public schools? Three schools at least should engage the attention of the 1911 Board, seeing that the Board of 1910 overlooked the matter, namely, Central, East City and West Ward schools.

Trusting the present generation in the schools mentioned will see these improvements installed, I remain,

Robinson; Mrs. John Robinson; Mrs. Frise, of this city. The brothers are Messrs. David and Isaac, of Vancouver, and Mr. John Madill, of Lakefield.

The funeral service will be conducted by Rev. Geo. W. Henderson, at 2 p.m., on Friday. The funeral will take place from the residence of her sister, Mrs. Frise, 498 Bonnacord street, at 2.30 to the Little Lake cemetery on Friday afternoon.

The Quickest, Simplest Cough Cure

Easily and Quickly Made At Home. Saves You $2.

This recipe makes 16 ounces of cough syrup—enough to last a family a long time. You couldn't buy as much or as good cough syrup for $2.50.

Simple as it is, it gives almost instant relief and usually stops the most obstinate cough in 24 hours. This is partly due to the fact that it is slightly laxative, stimulates the appetite and has an excellent tonic effect. It is pleasant to take—children like it. An excellent remedy, too, for whooping cough, sore lungs, asthma, throat troubles, etc.

Mix 2 cups of granulated sugar with with one cup of warm water and stir for 2 minutes. Put 2½ ounces of Pinex (50 cents' worth) in a 16 oz. bottle and add the Sugar Syrup. It keeps perfectly. Take a teaspoonful every one, two or three hours.

Pine is one of the oldest and best known remedial agents for the throat membranes. Pinex is the most valuable concentrated compound of Norway white pine extract, and is rich in guiacol and all the other natural healing elements. Other preparations will not work in this formula.

The prompt results from this recipe have endeared it to thousands of housewives in the United States and Canada, which explains why the plan has been imitated often, but never successfully.

A guarantee of absolute satisfaction, or money promptly refunded, goes with this recipe. Your druggist has Pinex or will get it for you. If not, send to The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

UNIONISTS HAD TURN YESTERDAY

Gained Six Seats in Yesterday's Polling—Liberal Stronghold of Cardiff is Captured

London, Dec. 8.—The Unionists secured six gains in yesterday's pollings, and suffered a loss of only two seats. They thus return to the position held previous to yesterday's voting. The Unionist total gains for the last four days are eighteen, the Liberal gain eleven, and Laborite four. The O'Brienites (Nationalists) hold five seats.

The most notable Unionist victory was in Cardiff, which has gone Unionist only once in a quarter of a century. This victory was largely due to the personal popularity of Lord Crichton-Stuart, who overcome a Liberal majority of 1,555, winning by 299, and the withdrawal from politics of the old member, D. A. Thomas, who was replaced in the Liberal interest by Sir C. Hyde.

There was an even greater surprise, however, in the carrying of Plymouth by Waldorf Astor and A. Shirley Bonn, John Burns' old oppenent in Battersea, who took Sir M. Durand's place as the running mate of the young Anglo-American. They proved a good team, and the work that Mr. Astor had done in the constituency was shown in his success in replacing C. E. Mallet, financial secretary to the War Office, who is the first Minister to be defeated. The Unionists also captured the Melton division of Leicestershire, and their other two gains were made from Labor. Dudley, which was consistently Unionist until 1906, returned to the fold, and Viscount Wolmer recaptured Newton, in Lancashire (S.W.), which Labor had held in two Parliaments.

Almost everywhere in the county the Laborites and Liberals voted, and the Unionists are more pleased with their gains here than anywhere else in the country.

The Government gets some comfort from London, all the districts of which are now polled. Yesterday the Liberals won Stephney, which was Unionist in the last election, and Labor gained Bow and Bromley.

The success of William O'Brien in Cork, and the possibility of his further increasing his following, somewhat complicates the situation. The Unionists are asking what the Government will do, if it has to face a stronger Unionist Opposition, with a strong fighting force of Irishmen on its flank. This fight between O'Brien and Wm. Redmond, the strongest candidates of the respective factions of the Nationalist party, to represent Cork City, resulted in a sweeping victory for O'Brien, who not only heads the poll with a majority of 638, but takes with him to the House of Commons Maurice Healey.

Altogether 64 members were voted for yesterday, but only 36 results were announced.

Speaking at Wrexham last evening, Mr. Balfour practically admitted defeat, and implored the Government, if it did not like tariff reform, to reconsider the whole situation before the next Colonial Conference, and suggest some other method of meeting the impending danger, which was dependent upon the position of the Government, and its obligation to "toe the line."

The situation was full of peril, unless they shook themselves free from Nationalist demonstration. It was clear that the nation could not be trusted in the keeping of the Liberal Government, and, he declared, before long another appeal must be made to the country.

Bonar Law will be offered a safe seat.

Feet Taken Off.

Fort William, Dec. 8.—L. J. Keating, telegraph operator of the C.P.R. lost both his feet by amputation here yesterday; they were frozen during a hunting trip two weeks ago. Keating was said to have been responsible for the collision between Sir Wilfrid Laurier's special and a freight train near Regina last August.

WEYBURN, Sask.

THE TOWN WITH A CITY FOUNDATION

A Few Facts Concerning WEYBURN

WEYBURN is one of the most important C. P. R. Divisional points in Southern Saskatchewan.

THE GRAND TRUNK PACIFIC is building a line through Weyburn to the International boundary. This line is completed to within a short distance of the Town to-day.

THE CANADIAN NORTHERN has surveyed two proposed lines to within a short distance of the Town. With all these Railway lines running into the Town, Weyburn is bound to become a great Railroad centre, consequently a great distributing centre.

WEYBURN'S IDEAL LOCATION as a natural distributing point for Southern Saskatchewan, is recognized by the large wholesale houses, many of which have already located there.

THE WEYBURN DISTRICT has been blessed with good crops this season, and can still boast of never having experienced a crop failure. Last year nearly a million and a-half bushels of wheat were marketed in the seven local elevators, and that amount is confidently expected this season. The Weyburn District lies about 1,500 feet above the sea level. The average rainfall is about twenty-seven inches.

WEYBURN lies in the centre of Southern Saskatchewan, and is surrounded by the most fertile and productive wheat belt in the Canadian West, and now has the reputation of producing more wheat than any other point in Western Canada; yet only about 25% of the land around Weyburn is under cultivation. What will it mean when it is all cultivated?

THE FIVE CHURCHES are all splendid edifices, and a feature of the town.

WEYBURN HAS A SPLENDID system of waterworks and sewerage, and owns its electric lighting system. The supply of drinking water is inexhaustible.

OF THE FIVE HOTELS in Weyburn, three are among the finest in the Province.

NEXT Spring McKinnon & Company will erect a departmental store in Weyburn. The building alone will cost $250,000

NO BETTER Criterion of the Town's growth, and prosperity, could be desired than that of the building and local improvement expenditure this season. It is conservatively estimated that this total will not be less than $475,000.00.

WEYBURN offers a Safe and Paying Investment to Those Who Buy at Present Prices

WEYBURN enjoys the distinction of being the only town in the Canadian West to possess its own CHARTERED BANK. It is named the WEYBURN SECURITY BANK, and has opened branches in several neighboring Towns. Among its financial institutions, Weyburn numbers three of Canada's greatest Banks, namely, the Canadian Bank of Commerce, the Union Bank of Canada, and the Bank of Montreal. The WEYBURN SECURITY BANK is the only Bank operating solely in Western Canada. The Weyburn Security Bank is erecting its Head Office building in Weyburn, it being three storeys high, with a handsome, white terra-cotta front, and will cost $80,000. The fact that this Bank takes the name of the Town, and considers Weyburn the best Town in the West to make its headquarters, should be sufficient information to induce a man to, at least look into the Weyburn Real Estate proposition.

MANY RESIDENCES, costing from $5,000 to $8,000, are nearing completion, and in every part of the Town new cottages and houses, costing from $1,000 to $5,000, are under construction.

Highfield Park

BUILDING LOTS offered for sale range from $125 upward, according to location.

THESE LOTS are all within the Town limits at an average distance of one half mile from the centre of the Town. They are located within three quarters of a mile north of the C. P. R. station, in which direction the town is rapidly growing, and which is certain to become the finest residential district.

ALL THIS LAND has been inspected by clients, who increased their holdings after viewing it, and every lot is absolutely guaranteed to be high, dry land, splendidly situated for building purposes.

Ask to see photographs taken in Weyburn, which illustrate the direction in which the town is growing.

CONCRETE SIDEWALKS have been laid and water pipes, sewer pipes and electric lights have been installed as far north as Highfield Park.

MOB IN TORONTO SMASH STREET CARS AND MANY ARE INJURED IN RIOTS

Great Mass Meeting is Followed by Attacks on the Trolleys—Eight Arrests Made—Several Persons in Hospital.

POLICEMAN HURT

Toronto, Dec. 8.—The worst spontaneous riot in Torontos history broke out last night to emphasize the sentiments of the city at large as towards the Toronto Railway Co.

For three or four hours after the Massey Hall meeting had concluded, street cars were the targets for missiles that wrecked many windows in over a hundred cars and broke plate glass windows in a number of downtown stores, as well as in the offices of the Toronto Railway Co. at Richmond and Victoria and at King and Church streets.

Six citizens had to go to St. Michael's Hospital for attention, due to injuries from broken glass and flying stones, bricks and frozen earth, and eight policemen were also injured.

Eight young men were arrested for throwing stones or dislodging trolley poles. They are charged only with disorderly conduct and with the far more sensible offence of stoning.

The disturbance, beginning at Queen and Yonge street, spread to nearby corners, and then, as the crowds began to scatter, homeward bound, resulted in hardly less serious outbreaks at Queen and York, King and York, King and Church, Queen and Sherbourne and Sherbourne and Carlton streets. At 1.30 this morning a car was stoned at Queen and Bathurst streets.

When the Massey Hall crowd emerged a crowd of about 4,000, nearly all men, enthused by the address of the evening, were cut loose on Yonge street. As no one had anticipated that the "too docile public," as the mayor said, would suddenly become a raving giant and no extra police precautions had been taken, and, owing to the new schedule of duty, no reserves were available in the station. Consequently, the crowd was it for a while, almost immune from interruption the while they volleyed at the car windows. Unfortunately, little heed was paid to the passengers of the cars, and many women were in grave danger of serious injuries. Not a few prostrated themselves on the seats to avoid the shower of stones.

Then when the police did begin to mass at Queen and Yonge streets, and try to handle the crowd, they, for the occasion seemed to go about it in a mush too gentle fashion. Certain it is, American police would not have hesitated to slam-bang with their clubs a great deal more freely.

Inspector Cuddy was the hero of an exciting incident at Queen and Yonge, when, after he had knocked out a rioter and was threatened by the crowd, he told them to back up or he'd draw his revolver. They fell back without further argument.

Before eight o'clock there was a fore-runner of the later events, when a College car, southbound, failed to stop at Shuter street, where many of the passengers wished to alight to attend the Massey Hall meeting. Instantly the bell cord was tugged so vigorously and at so many places that it broke, while somebody managed to pull off the pole, stopping the car, and putting it in darkness. In the rush to get out the fare receiver at the door was broken from the floor, while some windows were broken.

The meeting in Massey Hall was marked by the utmost excitement, and the speakers were continually interrupted by storms of cheers. Among those who addressed the gathering were: Mayor Geary, Hon. Thomas Crawford, Hon. W. K. McNaught, W. D. Macpherson, M.P.P., W. F. Maclean, M.P., Controller Church, Dr. Augusta Stowe Gullen, and Controller Spence. The following resolutions were passed:

"That this meeting of citizens records the emphatic protest against the Toronto Railway Co.'s disregard of the convenience and safety of the public, and its high-handed exercise of arbitrary power in attempting to enforce regulations which cannot be [illegible] and which constitute a danger to passengers, most of the company's cars being unsuited, and the car service insufficient, for operation of the pay-as-you-enter system.

"That this meeting earnestly urges the Railway and Municipal Board to rescind the order approving of the Toronto Railway Co.'s bylaws, which have caused so much discomfort, danger and annoyance to the citizens, and calls upon the board and the Provincial Government to take whatever action may be found necessary to immediately stop, and entirely prevent, any recurrence of the indignity and inconvenience to which so many citizens have been subjected.

"That the railway company's unreasonable exercise, to the public disadvantage, of the power delegated to it by the Ontario Legislature, clearly shows the danger of entrusting a private corporation with such authority, and in the interests of the rights and liberties, as well as the safety and comfort of the people, that legislation ought to be repealed.

"That copies of these resolutions be forwarded to the Toronto Railway Co., the Railway and Municipal Board, and Sir James P. Whitney, Premier of the province."

A Close Vote.

Sherbrooke, Que., Dec. 8.—At a meeting of the Presbytery of Quebec held here Tuesday evening, the question of basis was discussed at great length. The vote, which was taken, stood at 10 to 9. Those opposed to the basis of union were chiefly ministers from the Scotch section of Compton County, where many are descendants of Highland settlers.

To Help Local Industries.

Brantford, Dec. 8.—According to plans adopted from several United States cities, a department for technical works entirely is being installed in the Brantford Library. The department is directed to help those engaged in local industries.

WAS IN THE LAUNDRY.

Hattie Leblanc Admitted Struggling With Late C. F. Glover.

Cambridge, Mass., Dec. 8.—Hattie Leblanc, at yesterday's session of her trial for the murder of Clarence F. Glover, was shown by her own statement, given immediately after her arrest, three days after the shooting, to have been in the laundry with Glover on the fatal night; to have seen the revolver in Glover's hand; to have struggle with him when he is said to have assaulted her; to have heard a noise in the laundry like the rustle of a woman's skirt, which also attracted Glover's attention; to have escaped from his clutches, and then to have heard a shot fired.

She declared in those statements, which she gave to the police in French, and which were interpreted to the police by Miss Zella Gallant, that she never shot Glover, that she did not know how to use a revolver, that she was angry at him for his conduct toward her, and that she had heard other people say that some one would shoot him. She did not know that he had been shot, or that he was dead, until after her arrest. She said that she ran back to the Glover house after escaping from the laundry, and remained three days without food, hiding under the bed, where she was finally found.

Aged Writer Burned to Death.

Poughkeepsie, N.Y., Dec. 8.—Mrs. L. H. Jenkins, a writer, 72 years of age, was burned to death, and her daughter, Miss Eva Jenkins, aged 40, narrowly escaped the same fate yesterday, when fire partially destroyed the boarding-house of Caleb S. Thompson.

LADIES' CURLING CLUB ORGANIZED YESTERDAY OFFICERS ELECTED

At an enthusiastic and well-attended meeting held yesterday at the Y. W. C. A. the ladies of the city organized a curling club, elected officers and skips, and made plans for the season. Mrs. T. F. Matthews was elected president, and Miss Bertha Moore was selected as secretary-treasurer. The skips chosen were Mrs. Travers, Mrs. Coulthard, Mrs. Ritchie, Mrs. Matthews, and Miss Bertha Moore. There is great enthusiasm among the ladies who expect a most successful season. All ladies of the city who wish to curl this winter are asked to give their names in to Miss Moore as soon as possible.

Jim Barnes, Strong Man Wants To Get On Match With Local Grapplers

Sporting Editor of the Examiner.

Sir,—I would like to arrange a wrestling match to take place in Peterborough early in January, with any of the middle or lightweights of Peterborough. Would like to hear from George Gauthier or McLaughlin, the Physical Director of your Y.M.C.A. It will be remembered that I performed my "Strong Man's Act at a local theatre, about a year ago, defeating both Gauthier and McLaughlin in a weight-lifting contest. I now understand they claim to be some wrestlers. Now, if such is the case I will only be too pleased to arrange a match with either of them. I am now training for my go with Chas. Oama, middle-weight champion of Indiana, to take place in Grand Rapids on Dec. 16th, and can be located by addressing me care of the Clarendon Hotel, Grand Rapids, Mich.

Yours truly,
JIM. BARNET.

Ice Probable In Brock Street Rink On Saturday

The weather man promises continued cold to-morrow, which makes it almost certain that there will be skating and hockey practice in Brock Street rink on Saturday night. Last night saw the wind-up of the roller skating and to-day a staff of men is engaged in covering the floor with sand and tar paper to protect it from the water and ice. To-morrow the rink will be flooded and with a continuation of the cold snap there will be ice ready for use on Saturday. Mr. Jack Thirnbeck has been engaged for his ninth consecutive season to take charge of the rink during the winter, an dthe king of the ice-makers will start operations at once. His reappointment will be a popular one with the patrons of the rink Season tickets are now on sale at the rink, and by the way, make a very much appreciated Christmas present.

MAN'S GREATEST ASSET

is physical health and bodily health. The bread winner cannot afford to give out.

It is a vital necessity that he keep his nervous and muscular system in good condition to withstand the daily wear and tear of life.

Those who are run-down, weakened or nervous should remember that nothing excels Vinol, which is a combination of the medicinal elements of the cod's liver and tonic iron, to strengthen the digestive organs, create an appetite, make new blood and restore strength.

Prof. James Mitchell of Jasper, Ont., says his system was run-down to a critical point from overwork. A friend told him to take Vinol. He did so and is now enjoying perfect health, and he considers Vinol a wonderful tonic. (We guarantee this testimonial to be genuine.)

worked, weak person in this vicinity We ask every run-down, overto try a bottle of Vinol with the understanding that their money will be returned if it does not do all we claim. McDermid and Jury, druggists, corner George and Charlotte street; also Payne's drug store, corner George and Simcoe streets.

SOME HOCKEY HAPPENINGS

The hold-out players were to organize in Montreal last night, but the meeting has been postponed indefinitely, as only the Ottawa players want to attend. "Cold feet" is ascribed to some of those who first suggested a rival league.

The Ottawa club will meet to consider the proposition made by the players. They deny that any possibility of a compromise by increasing the salary limit to $7,000 exists, and maintain that they will retire rather than pay more than $5,000.

Cobourg Team Scattered.

Cobourg has only Payne, the centre, Dick Turpin, point, and Lyle Crossen, cover-point, of last year's team left. Bentley, the star rover, is in Winnipeg, Moffatt is with Eaton's, Doheney is at Cornell University, while Paton the goal-tender, is going to S. P. S. here.

About the most interesting announcement in Ottawa last night was one from Manager Dey, of the Arena. Heretofore it has been understood that the Ottawas, with their three-year contract, had sole license to the Arena. This Mr. Dey corrected, saying that the Ottawas had no monopoly, and that he was dickering with the new league.

Renfrew's rumoured jump from the National was denied by Mr. George Mart. The story, in the first place was an absurd one, for the Renfrew magnates were the main movers in the formation of the National league, in which they hold two franchises. The dissension at Renfrew is understood to have been smoothed over. President George Barnet will continue to preside over the Creamery Town club.

Provided the Kingston Frontenacs can get into a proper grouping the club will in all probability enter an intermediate team. Geo. Richardson is out of the game for good, but with such material available as Saunders, Powell, Gratton, VanHorne, Ed. Davidson, Dumphy, Crawford, Hiscock, Moran and Nicholson, a team should be entered in either the senior or intermediate O.H.A.

A Brantford despatch says: "Although entreaties have been made to thiscity to join the Ontario Provincial Hockey League, there is no chance of Brantford going in with Berlin, Waterloo, and Galt again this year. The towns in question did not prove good drawing cards last year, there being a heavy deficit on the season. The deficit is sufficient to stop the local enthusiasts this year, although, with a really good league, Brantford would soon produce a team."

Local trainers are getting pretty well settled down for the hockey season. Jimmie Olcott was with the T. Eaton Co... "Bud" Budway looked after St. Mique's last night, but Frank Carroll will be their regular trainer. Ned Skippon as usual rubbed the Argos out, and Tommy Daly massaged the T.A.A.C. Budway is going to Belleville to look after the Belleville pros., while Daly leaves Monday for Trenton to keep hired hands in shape.—Toronto Star.

Andy Kyle of last year's Parkdale team, has signed to play point for the Port Hope pro. hockey team and will report in time to play at the opening of the season, January 5, though the team wants him to play on Christmas and New Year's Day.

Bill Lane, the Parkdale rover, has not signed yet, though he is expected to go to Port Hope.

Mag. McGregor will go along and play cover point, and an effort is being made to induce YoungLaird, of Regina, who is a student at the University, to turn professional.

Randall, of Lindsay, and Rowden, of Port Hope, will play on the forward line. They have reported already.

Capt. Colwell and George Brown are financing the team.—Toronto Star.

To Grow Hair on a Bald Head

By a Specialist

Thousands of people suffer from baldness and falling hair, who, having tried nearly every advertised hair tonic and hair grower without results, have resigned themselves to baldness and its attendant discomforts. Yet their case is not hopeless; the following simple home prescription has made hair grow after years of baldness, and is also unequalled for restoring gray hair to its original colour, stoping hair from falling out, and for destroying the dandruff germ. It will not make the hair greasy, and can be put up by any chemist: Bay Rum 6 ounces, Lavona de Composee' 2 ounces, Menthol Crystals 1-2 drachm. If you wish it perfumed add half to one teaspoonful of To-Kalon Perfume, which unites perfectly with the other ingredients. This preparation is highly recommended by physicians and specialists, and is absolutely harmless, as it contains none of the poisonous wood alcohol so frequently found in hair tonics. Do not aply to the face or where hair is not desired.

IS APPEALING

Judgment in Case of Scott versus Griffith

Mr. F. D. Kerr, of Dennistoun, Peck and Kerr is in Toronto appealing against the judgment of the County of Peterborough if June last, given in the case of John Scott versus W. E. Griffith.

This was an action claiming $500 damages for refusal of defendant to permit him to enter into possession of certain lands, etc., which he alleged he had leased from defendant. At the trial judgment was awarded plaintiff for $400 and costs. Defendant's appeal therefrom partially argued, but not concluded.

Played Fireman.

Halifax, Dec. 8.—The trial of D. M. Ferguson, charged with setting fire to the big Ferguson Block in Amherst recently, owned by Ferguson himself, Seymour Miner, who is also under arrest in connection with the case, was the star witness. He detailed how, on Oct. 2, at the instigation of Ferguson, he set fire to the premises in three places, and then, escaping from the place, donned the uniform of an Amherst fireman, and hurried to the scene.

ALL YOUR STOMACH TROUBLES VANISH

No Indigestion, Gas, Heartburn or Dyspepsia Five Minutes Later

Every year regularly more than a million stomach sufferers in the United States, England and Canada take Pape's Diapepsin, and realize not only immediate, but lasting relief.

This harmless preparation will digest anything you eat and overcome a sour, gassy or out-of-order stomach five minutes afterwards.

If your meals don't fit comfortably, or what you eat lies like a lump of lead in your stomach, or if you have heartburn, that is a sign of indigestion.

Get from your Pharmacist a 50-cent case of Pape's Diapepsin and take a dose just as soon as you can. There will be no sour risings, no belching of undigested food mixed with acid, no stomach gas or heartburn, fulness or heavy feeling in the stomach. Nausea, Debilitating Headaches, Dizziness or Intestinal griping. This will go, and, besides, there will be no sour food left over in the stomach to poison your breath with nauseous odours.

Pape's Diapepsin is a certain cure for out-of-order stomachs, because it takes hold of your food and digests it just the same as if your stomach wasn't there.

Relief in five minutes from all stomach misery is waiting for you at any drug store.

These large 50-cent cases contain more than sufficient to thoroughly cure almost any case of Dyspepsia, Indigestion or any other stomach disorder.

I close my eyes and I can see my own native hills once more. I can see my mountain town and plateau, the Congregational church and the Town Hall.

They are there, spread before me with increasing detail, as my years fly by. I close my eyes and I can see the crowd again that was there in that war time, 1864, dressed in red, white, and blue; the flags flying, the band playing. I can see a platoon of soldiers, who have returned from one term of service, and enlisted for the second, and are now to be received by the Mountain Town. Oh, well do I remember the day. I was Captain of the Company, although in my teens. I was marching at the head of the Company and puffed out with pride. A cambric needle would have burst me all to pieces. (Laughter). I am sincerely ashamed of the whole thing. But what august pride, then in my youth, marching at the head of my troops, being received by the country town authorities! We marched into the Town Hall. They seated my soldiers in the middle of the hall, and the crowds came in on the right and on the left. Then the town officers filed upon the stand, and took up their positions in a half-circle. The good old Mayor of the town, and the chairman of the select men this family gave me permission to use this without offense to them); he sat there in his dignity with his powerful spectacles. He had never held an office in his life before. He may have thought that if he could get into office that would give him power to do almost anything. He never held an office before and never made a speech before. When he had taken his place he saw me on the front seat and he came right forward and invited me up on the platform with the select men. Invited me, me! Me on the stand with the town officers! Why, no town officer ever took any notice of me before I went to war, yet, perhaps, I ought not to say that, because one of them, I remember, did advise a teacher to "whale" me, but I mean no honourable mention. (Laughter and applause). Now I am invited on the stand with the select men. They gave me a chair in just about this relation to the table. (Indicating the position). I sat down, let my sword fall to the floor, and waited to be received. Napoleon V ! Pride goeth before destruction, and it ought. When the select men and the Mayor had taken seats the Mayor waited for quite a while and then came forward to the table. Oh, that speech! We had supposed he would simply introduce the Congregational minister, who usually gave such public addresses. But you should have seen the surprise when this old man arose to deliver the address, on this august occasion. He had never delivered an address before. He thought the office would make him an orator. But he forgot that a man must speak his piece, as a boy, if he wishes to become an orator as a man. Yet, he made a most common mistake. So he had written out his speech and learned it by heart. But he brought his manuscript with him, very wisely, and took it out, opened it and spread it on the table, and then adjusted his spectacles that he might see it. Then he walked back and came forward again to deliver that address. He must have studied the idea a great deal, because he assumed an "elocutionary attitude." He rested heavily on his left heel, slightly advanced his right foot, threw back his shoulders, and advanced his right hand at an angle of forty-five. (Laughter). As he stood in that elocutionary attitude, this is just the way he delivered that speech. Friends often ask me if I do not exaggerate it. You could not exaggerate it. I haven't the power to exaggerate it:

"Fellow Citizens!"—and then he paused until his fingers and knees shook, and began to swallow, then turned aside to look at his manuscript. "Fellow citizens—we are, we are, we are, we are very happy to welcome back to their native town, to their native town, these soldiers, these soldiers: who have fought and bled, and are back again in their native town. We are especially pleased to see with us to-night this young hero, (that meant me), who, in imagination—(friends, remember he said that, if he had'nt said that I would not have been egotistic enough to refer to it to-day, I assure you) who, in imagination,—we have seen leading, his troops on to the deadly breach. We have seen his shining, we have seen his shining, his shining sword, we have seen his shining sword, flashing in the sunlight, as he shouted to his troops "Come on"! (Laughter and applause).

Oh, dear, dear, dear! He was a good old man, but how little he knew about the war. If he had known anything about war at all, he ought to have known that it is next to a crime for an officer of infantry, even, in time of danger, to go ahead of his men. I, with "my shining sword flashing in the sunlight, and calling to my troops, "Come on." I never did it. Do you suppose I would go in front of my men to be shot in front of the enemy, and in the back by my own men. It is no place for an officer. The place for an officer in time of danger is behind the private soldier. It is the private soldier who faces the enemy. Often as a staff officer I have ridden down the line, before the battle, and as I have given the General's order, shouting "Officers to the rear," and then every officer goes behind the line of private soldiers, and the higher the officer's rank the further behind he goes. It is the place for him for if your officers and generals were killed on the first discharge, where would the plan of the battle be? How ashamed I was of the whole affair. In actual battle such an officer has no right to go ahead of his men. Some of those men had carried that boy across the Carolina river. Some of them had given him their last draught of coffee, one of them had leaped in front of him and had his cheek-bone shot away; he had leaped in front of the boy to save his life. Some were not there at all, and the tears flowing from the eyes of the widows and orphans showed that they had gone down for their country. Yet, in the good man's speech he scarcely noticed those who had died; the hero of the hour was that boy. We do not know, even now where many of those comrades sleep. They went down to death. Sometimes in my dreams I call "Answer me ye sighing vines of the Carolines; answer me ye crags and rocks of Kentucky and Tenessee, where sleep my dead." But to my call no answer comes. I know not where many of those men now sleep. But I do know this, they were brave men. I know they went down before a brave foe, fighting for a cause both believed to be right. Yet, the hero of the hour was the boy. He was an officer and they were only private soldiers.

I learned a lesson there that I will never forget, until the bell of time ceases to swing for me, that greatness consists not in holding an office. Greatness really consists in doing great deeds with little means in the accomplishment of vast purposes; from the private ranks of life—in benefitting one's own neighbourhood, in blessing one's own city, the community in which he dwells. There and there only is the great test of human goodness, and human ability. He who waits for an office before he does great and noble deeds must fail altogether.

I learned that lesson then, that henceforth in life I will call no man great simply because he holds an office. Greatness! It is something more than office, something more than fame, more than genius. It is the great heartedness that encloses those in need, reaches down to those below and lifts them up. May this theme become to every one of these young men and women who hear me speak to-night and abide through future years. (Applause). I close with the words of Bailey. He was not one of our greatest writers, but, after all, in this he was one of our best.

We live in deeds, not years;
In feeling, not in figures on a dial,
In thoughts not breaths,
We should count time by heart throbs (in the cause of right)
He most lives who thinks most."
Oh, friends, if you forget every thing else I say don't forget these two lines, for, if you think two thoughts where I think one, you live twice as much as I do, in the same length of time.

He lives most who thinks most,
Who feels the noblest,
And who acts the best
(Great applause).

(THE END)

To Grow Hair on a Bald Head

By a Specialist

Thousands of people suffer from baldness and falling hair, who, having tried nearly every advertised hair tonic and hair grower without results, have resigned themselves to baldness and its attendant discomforts. Yet their case is not hopeless; the following simple home prescription has made hair grow after years of baldness, and is also unequalled for restoring gray hair to its original colour, stoping hair from falling out, and for destroying the dandruff germ. It will not make the hair greasy, and can be put up by any chemist: Bay Rum 6 ounces, Lavona de Composee 2 ounces, Menthol Crystals 1-2 drachm. If you wish it perfumed add half to one teaspoonful of To-Kalon Perfume, which unites perfectly with the other ingredients. This preparation is highly recommended by physicians and specialists, and is absolutely harmless, as it contains none of the poisonous wood alcohol so frequently found in hair tonics. Do not aply to the face or where hair is not desired.

SKATING AT WARSAW

On the River Now and Rink Will Open Soon

Special to The Examiner:

WARSAW, DEC. 7.—On Monday evening, Jan. 2, 1911, Mr. George Smith Toronto, who has been in South America, will give a very interesting and entertaining address under the auspices of the Presbyterian Sabbath school.

The winter series of Women's Institute lectures will be held in the hall over Mr. Choate's store at 2 p. m. on Monday, Dec. 12th. Mrs. Woeland, of Toronto, who has been a successful Institute worker in Forest, Ont., will address the ladies on "Health and Beauty" and "Healtir Hints to Women." There will be a short business meeting before the lecture and refreshments will be served after, so that those from a distance may not need to go home for lutch. In the evening a mass meeting will be held in the town hall. Mrs. Woeland will speak on poultry raising as a business for women.

Skating is again the pleasure of the hour here. A rink has been cleared of snow on the river and is being much enjoyed. It is expected that the rink will be open shortly.

CAVAN ITEMS

CAVAN, DEC. 7.—Mr. Charley Bent, of Omemee, was out visiting his son, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Bent over Sunday.

No service was held in Cavanville Church on Sunday, Rev. Mr. Clarry the regular pastor, taking part in the Mount Pleasant anniversary.

Mr. and Mrs. George Johnston have moved to Allandale, where George has secured an excellent position as G.T.R. operator there.

Herl Price has purchased the blacksmith business formerly conducted by Wm. Westlake in Bethany. Mr. Westlake is at present engaged with Tinney Bros., of Cavanville.

Representatives of the Daly Tea Co. of Napanee, who have a monopoly on the business in this locality, made their annual visit here last week. Their ability to produce the right kind of goods is unquestionable.

Mr. Bert Tinney of Cobourg was a visitor in the village on Saturday.

Mr. Will Hilton leaves on Friday, Dec. 9th, for England, where he will spend the coming winter. This is the fift hitme Mr. Hilton has crossed the ocean.

The first hop of the season was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Lamb on Friday evening last. There were about thirty guests present. Mr. Robt. Morton furnished the music for the evening, while the knobs tripped the light fantastic, during which refreshments were served. The party broke up during the "wee sma' oors" of the morning.

The Rev. Mr. Clarry of Cavan Circuit occupied the pulpit of Omemee Methodist Church on Sunday while the Rev. R. Burns preached at the Sunday school anniversary in Mount Pleasant, held on the same day.

Mr. Bruce Slaven leaves for the North West on Tuesday, Dec 6th. We admire the pluck and indomitable spirit which unconsciously presents itself, the existence of which is apparent in one who would go out to a new country and start life afresh especially, when Jack Frost is about to seize the country in his mighty grip.

Home Course In Health Culture

III.—Pure Food In the Home

By EUGENE L. FISK, M. D.

Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

It should be remembered that hygiene, like charity, begins at home. It is proper to urge upon the government the enactment of pure food laws and a thorough enforcement of the same, but the household government should also be vigilant in the matter of selecting foods and keeping them pure in the interval before they are eaten. It should also be borne in mind that pure food can be rendered poisonous by bad cooking and that the conditions under which food is eaten may render the finest materials either innutritious or positively harmful.

Food should be selected with due regard to the appetites and tastes of the family, so far as such tastes are normal and reasonable. People fall into strange habits with regard to food, and if such habits lead to an ill balanced diet they should be corrected. For example, milk, eggs and beefsteak all consumed at the same meal show a lack of the sense of proportion as well as of food values. A variety of foods all of the same class indicates lack of resource and ingenuity on the part of the housewife or steward and may lead to much digestive trouble, not to speak of graver ills, and ruined dispositions.

EXCELLENT GERM CARRIERS.

["Cats and dogs should not be allowed in the kitchen, and the less they are in the house the better. They are excellent germ carriers."]

Food for each meal, therefore, should be selected with a due regard to its palatability, digestibility and nourishing properties. Remember that a steady diet must contain proteids, carbohydrates (sugars, starches) and fats; also minerals. Milk contains all of these elements and taken in sufficient quantity will support life, but it is not a very desirable food for the healthy adult who can eat a mixed diet. Meat, poultry, game, fish and the leguminous vegetables (peas, beans, lentils, etc.) are rich in proteid. Potatoes, cereals and many vegetables contain carbohydrates. Fats are supplied by butter, fat of meat, lard, etc. The various minerals required are found in the food constituting a mixed diet, and in addition common salt (which is not a salt, by the way, but a compound of sodium and chlorine) is taken freely for seasoning purposes.

Right here it may be stated that salt is usually taken in excess. One easily falls into the habit of taking a little more salt until ordinary and proper quantities fail to tickle the palate. In cases of chronic disease a salt free diet is often beneficial, and it is probable that most of us eat far more salt than is good for us.

An effort should be made to combine all of the elements above mentioned in the daily dietary, varying the bill of fare so that each meal may possess some attraction of novelty and provide a normal stimulus to digestion. According to one authority the ratio of nitrogen to carbon should be as 1 to 15. It will be observed that a large excess of vegetables or carbohydrate food is required to maintain this balance. The general rule may be followed, therefore, of meat about once a day and certainly not oftener than twice, nitrogenous vegetables, such as peas and beans, at meals where poultry, game or light meat portion is served; salads and green vegetables to accompany heavy meat portion.

Fresh Food the Safest.

Some families insult their wonderful digestive mechanism with a steady diet of delicatessen atrocities or innutritious canned foods when a little more energy and ingenuity would enable them to secure a meal of fresh, nutritious and appetizing food. The tendency to run to the pantry for a can of sardines or salmon, instead of cooking a chop or fresh fish or providing nutritious cold meats or salads, is responsible for a certain amount of American dyspepsia.

Some one has said that "a chafing dish is a frying pan that has got into good society." We boldly maintain that the frying pan has no business in good society.

Greasy fried foods will continue to "upset" the digestion of countless Americans until natural selection has eliminated the frying pan users. "Out of the frying pan into the fire" is a good axiom. The food prepared in the frying pan would better go into the fire than into our stomachs, where it is very likely to set up a fire in the shape of acute or chronic indigestion. If you must fry, make it a "dry" fry. Not only is it difficult for the gastric juice to penetrate and act upon food that is thickly coated with grease, but an excess of fat spread out over the lining of the stomach retards the secretion of gastric juice.

Protection of Food.

The article of food most likely to be contaminated by disease germs is milk. The bureau of animal industry has formulated fifty rules for the guidance of milk dealers or dairymen. People who keep their own cows would do well to secure a set of these rules. Epitomized, they prescribe cleanliness and care in the handling of milk as well as proper treatment, housing and feeding of cows. Scrupulous care should be exercised in keeping clean all utensils in which milk is used. Milk from a doubtful source should be boiled or pasteurized before use. Milk preserved with formalin or other chemicals should not be used. Iceboxes should be regularly cleaned with hot soapsuds solution or strong solution of soda. Ice often contains germs and spores which multiply as soon as they get in a warm temperature.

Food should never be exposed to contact with flies, insects, rats, mice, etc., as these pests often act as germ carriers. Nothing is so harrowing to the soul of a modern physician as a kitchen filled with bussing flies while food is left standing around, inviting these germ carriers to alight and promenade.

Cats and dogs should not be allowed in the kitchen, and the less they are in the house the better. They are excellent germ carriers.

Food Adulterants.

Many food adulterants have little influence on health, except in so far as they substitute inert or unappetizing material for that which is nourishing and of appetizing flavor. Other adulterants, however, are directly injurious because of their chemical effect.

Some of the more common adulterants are as follows:

Milk.—Water has probably been used ever since there was a milkman; harmful by decreasing nutritious value. Various preservatives, as salicylic acid, formalin, boric acid, are also used and are injurious.

Butter.—Sometimes adulterated with other fats, which possibly render it less digestible.

Lard.—Cottonseed oil is the most commonly used adulterant.

Canned Vegetables.—Salts of copper and zinc are often used to impart a brilliant green color. The normal color for canned peas, beans, etc., is a dull green. The brilliant hued varieties should be avoided, as they may contain sufficient copper to prove unhealthful.

Jellies, Jams, Etc.—Aniline dyes are often used to give bright colors. Such preserves are open to suspicion in exact proportion to the brilliancy of the coloring. Preservatives are also used, as boric acid, salicylic acid and benzoate.

Beer.—Salicylic acid.

Temperance Drinks.—Aniline dyes.

Coffee.—Chaff, spices, prune stones, cocoanut shells.

Olive Oil.—Cottonseed oil.

Meat, Poultry and Fish.—Borax and other preservatives.

Many of the coloring matters, preservatives and adulterants are not prejudicial to health, but unless their presence is stated the public is victimized and cannot exercise the right of choice as to whether it will drink raspberry-[illegible]

SUFFERED THREE YEARS

Till Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills cured his Kidney Trouble

There are few diseases that cause more acute suffering than Kidney Trouble, and Mr. F. A. Thomas, of Sudbury Ont., is one of those who know it. He writes: "For over three years I suffered from kidney disease. First I thought I had sprained my back, for suddenly the pain would catch the small of my back and it would be impossible for me to straighten myself up for several minutes. A dull ache across the kidneys was always present, my urine was thick and cloudy, and passing it caused a burning, scalding pain. Tried medicines, but they failed. I was advised to try Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills, as they had cured my wife years before. A few boxes affected a complete cure. I now enjoy the blessings of good health, which is due to this remedy."

Don't neglect kidney trouble—it's too dangerous as well as too painful. That old, reliable family remedy, Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills, has cured thousands and will cure you. It is equally effective in curing constipation and its attendant evils, biliousness, indigestion and sick headaches, and in purifying the blood. 25c a box at your druggist's. 10

Poetry and Pickles.

O woman, in our hours of ease,
Uncertain, cranky, hard to please,
And in our hours of toil the same,
With all our faults on you to blame,
How sweet, angelic and divine

Upon the snowy plane, foretells
That spring comes laughing up the dells!

Cookery Points

A woman who always dresses the salad at the table has various accompaniments brought to her with the oil and vinegar. Sometimes a sweet red pepper chopped very fine is used; at another time hard boiled eggs reduced to flakes serve as a foundation for the dressing. Chervil and chives chopped very fine are sometimes in the bottom of the bowl, and when the salad is plain lettuce there may be a slice of onion chopped very fine or a green pepper minced or even a tomato. The three tablespoonfuls of oil and one of vinegar, salt and paprika go into the bowl, whatever it may contain, and are emulsified with them.

A New Soup.

Not every one knows that the common field sorrel makes a soup that is popular in France. A cultivated kind with larger leaves and somewhat less acid flavor than the wild kind is sometimes found here in the fancy markets. Wash, drain and chop about a pint of the sorrel and mix it with minced chives. Turn the mixture into a pan with a tablespoonful of butter and cook very slowly for ten minutes. At the end of the time add three cupfuls of boiling water with salt and pepper and boil for five minutes. Remove from the fire, stir in the beaten yolks of two eggs and turn into a soup tureen over croutons.

Spiced Plums.

For the sirup allow one pound of sugar to each pound of fruit and a scant pint of vinegar to every three pounds of sugar. To each peck of plums allow one tablespoonful of ground cinnamon, one of cloves, one of mace and one of allspice. Prick each plum well with a darning needle, add the spices to the sirup and pour the sirup, boiling hot, over the plums. Let them stand three days, then skim out the plums and boil the sirup down until quite thick, so there is just enough to cover the fruit. Pour hot over the plums. Set away in a stone jar, with paraffin paper over the top.

Sweet Apple Pickles.

Make a sirup with three pounds of sugar and one pint of vinegar and while it is heating put in about a teaspoonful each of cloves and allspice and a stick of cinnamon broken in bits. When the sirup boils up well put in seven pounds of good cooking apples, pared, cored and cut in quarters. Turn them over gently with a wooden spoon, being careful not to break them. Cook until you can penetrate with a fork and then turn into jars. More apples can be added from time to time, if you have them in a stone crock, until the crock is full. These will keep for a year.

Apple Lemonade.

Take six tart apples, three lemons, one-quarter stick of cinnamon, four cups of sugar, two bay leaves, one cup of raisins and one orange. Wash, quarter and core the apples. Put them into the kettle with the raisins, bay leaves and cinnamon. Add two quarts of water and bring to the boiling point. Add two quarts more of cold water in which the sugar and grated rind of the lemons and orange have been dissolved. Simmer slowly half an hour, strain and when ready to serve add the juice of the lemons and the orange. Set on ice until very cold.

Ask Yourself These Questions

And Find Out if You Have Kidney Disorders. Also Make This Test.

Have you pains in the back over the kidneys?

Have you urinary disorders?

Do you suffer from severe headaches, dizziness or defective eyesight?

Is the skin dry and harsh?

Are you failing in health and strength and suffering from rheumatic pains or swelling of the limbs?

These are a few of the symptoms of kidney disease, and here is the test.

If the urine after standing for twenty-four hours is cloudy, milky or has particles floating about in it, or if there is a sediment in the bottom of the vessel, your kidneys are diseased.

There is no time to lose in beginning the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney and Liver Pills. Delay means the development of Bright's disease, and you do not want to take any chances with that. Dr. Chase's Kidney and Liver Pills will help you more quickly than any treatment you can obtain, and that is one reason why they are so successful and popular.

Mr. W. H. Mosher, South Augusta, Grenville county, Ont., writes:—"I used Dr. Chase's Kidney and Liver Pills and firmly believe there is no medicine to equal them. I was troubled for years with kidney disease, and this treatment has cured me. When I began the use of these pills I could only walk from my bed to a chair. Now I can go to the field and work like any other man. Dr. Chase's Kidney and Liver Pills are an excellent medicine." This statement is certified to by the Rev. E. H. Emett, Baptist minister, of Brockville, Ont.

CHANGING FROM A "GETTE" TO A "GIST"

BEING the Story of One Woman, Who, Bent on Procuring Suffrage for Her Sex, Tackles the Militant Process and Becomes a Backslider

WHEN I am asked how I came to adopt the cause of woman suffrage I invariably answer:—

"Why, I was born a suffragist." And that is literally the truth. Mother, father, aunts, uncles, and even more distant relatives had adopted the cause long before I came into their sphere of action. My two brothers equally with me listened to and imbibed the doctrine of the vote for women, and, as a matter of course, we three became suffragists.

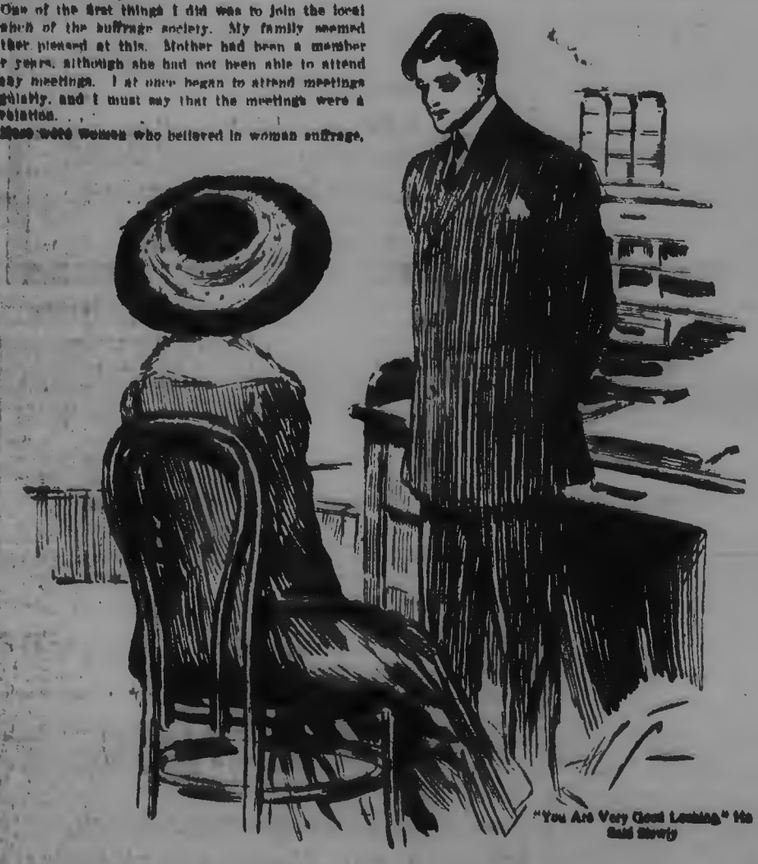
Despite this fact we were on the whole a conservative family. We were suffragists with the "gist," as it is accepted in popular parlance, accented—that is, we believed in votes for women as a matter of justice in consideration of woman's place in the community and her usefulness to society.

About the results of the vote when placed in the hands of women we troubled but little. There was time enough when the vote was placed to consider that. We believed this, I say, until I was twenty-one. Oh that day my father presented me, with a twinkle in his eye, with a latch key, duplicates of which my two brothers had received some years before, upon their twenty-first birthdays, and with the acquisition of the latch key came certain other changes.

As my mother's health was failing, I was asked to consider the position of housekeeper at a generous salary, far better, I knew, than I could manage to get in the outside world. I accepted the position at once, and then, as became the incumbent of so important a position, I began to regard myself as a woman grown, ready to take a part also in the affairs of the world at large.

One of the first things I did was to join the local branch of the suffrage society. My family seemed rather pleased at this. Mother had been a member for years, although she had not been able to attend many meetings. I at once began to attend meetings regularly, and I must say that the meetings were a revelation.

Here were women who believed in woman suffrage,



"You Are Very Good Looking," He Said Slowly

indeed, but chiefly, it seemed, upon the ground of what woman suffrage would accomplish. To the majority the millennium was scheduled to begin upon the day on which women secured the ballot. I listened to these impassioned orators who depicted in such glowing terms the marvellous changes to be wrought when women had the vote, and every time my thoughts returned to what seemed to me two pertinent facts which had apparently been unnoticed.

The good, kind husbands and fathers of the women who made the impassioned speeches had the ballot and they did not seem to have brought any millennium. Were their wives really better than they? And then my silliest mind kept reverting to Katie, our Irish-American cook, with her ignorance and superstition; to Graham Lit, who made night a terrifying time in a tenement court not far from my own home, and the valley packed. Would Katie and Lit be sufficiently ennobled when it came to a matter of voting to confer even a portion of the millennium? And there were reasons in our own little local for querying even further.

On one occasion, a celebration of Miss Anthony's birthday, we were all assembled patiently awaiting the coming of our president. It was a blizzardy day, with a sharp fall of sleet, but there was to be a special programme, and the meeting room was well filled. The president was very late, but she lived in the suburbs and, we knew what difficulty she must have experienced in trying to reach town. After a prolonged wait, however, the members began to grow restless, so the vice president took the chair. In a neat speech she explained that she had no knowledge of the programme prepared, but offered to do her best. Suddenly a sweet voice spoke. "Here she is!"

Up the aisle came the president, her coat wet, her hair matted and her cheeks red. Straight to the platform she proceeded and before the vice president had an opportunity to retire announced:—

Pass Them Anyhow.

"Ladies, I am sorry to be late, but you know what our business is, and in addition to that I have just heard and there a case of tragedy entered her relief work. I—— and drawn up a beautiful set of resolutions upon the birthday of Miss Anthony and in the meeting I lay them—and—and they cannot be found."

The conclusion of the speech was in tones of appeal calculated to move the sternest heart. There was a moment of silence. Then a woman in the rear of the hall arose.

"Ladies," she said, "I move that we pass the lost resolutions."

"Second the motion," cried a dozen voices. Two newspaper reporters and I hastily sought the refuge of the hall in the rear, where, choking with laughter, we watched the applicants for the ballot pass that set of lost resolutions!

For four years I attended suffrage meetings, but did little else for the "cause." To be sure, I talked suffrage from my own viewpoint, and even had a record of several converts, both men and women, to whom the logic of my stand appealed, but otherwise I was an inactive member.

Then last winter our little local was awakened by the tremendous activity in suffrage circles in all New York. Even the inactive members felt a stir in the blood and started to do something. Inspired by a very able speaker who visited our society I joined an association of working women. I felt not a little proud of my claim to membership. I was a genuine working woman myself and eager to claim kinship with all my working sisters.

They were a splendid lot of women, most of them professional, well educated, up to date, alert, in every way far beyond the women in my branch of the suffrage society. They welcomed me in spirited fashion, and ere long drafted me into service at one of their street meetings. As this particular association was composed of working women their street meetings were evening meetings. I was a little dismayed at the prospect, but the chairman of the committee was reassuring.

"Not a thing to do," she said, airily, "but to hand out literature."

I arrived at the street corner appointed promptly. No one of our party was visible. A little nervous, I hung about for some fifteen minutes. The notice had said eight sharp. I looked at my watch a dozen times until it registered eight twenty, and then I sighted the chairman and two of her helpers. From a nearby grocery store we hauled an immense soap box, donated by the grocer to our persuasive chairman, and guaranteed to stand the weight of any of us. Three small boys who certainly should have been preparing for bed at that hour and two stray dogs watched this performance with interest. I armed myself with bundles of "literature," as I saw the other helpers do, and wondered when the audience would arrive. But the chairman did not wait. Upon the box she mounted, and, addressing the three small boys and two stray dogs, began:—

"Fellow citizens!" At this one of the small boys looked over his shoulder in a startled manner, and finding no one there turned tail and ran away in alarm, emitting a wild whoop as he went. The whoop was effective. Two laboring men who were passing turned. The chairman fixed them with her eye and began again:—

"Fellow citizens!"

"Gee, it's one of them suffragettes," remarked the first man to his companion. "come along." They edged their way slowly in toward the soap box, and then, miraculously it seemed, there was a small group, and then a large group, and then a crowd, and the chairman was giving forth in her silvery tones her best arguments for woman suffrage. A pinch on the arm aroused me.

"Hurry up," said some one, "and get out the stuff." Mechanically I rubbed the arm and started. The pamphlets disappeared as rapidly as the crowd had gathered. I was returning empty handed for a fresh supply when the voice of the chairman arrested my attention.

"The next speaker," she was announcing, and then my knees sank beneath me, for the name she gave was mine! Somehow I found myself up on that soap box. It shook a little beneath my weight and I had a fleeting hope that the guarantee of the grocer would prove a false one. But no, the box held, and I looked out over expectant faces, hard faces, curiously lit up by the double glory of a full moon and an electric street lamp. Almost without volition I began talking. I had no idea what I was saying, but after an interval I heard my own voice repeating:—

"The economic status of woman," and at the same time I felt a tug at my gown. I looked down. The chairman had arrested my wild speech and was trying to bring me to reason.

"And do you think that suffrage would help the economic status of woman?" she inquired, sweetly.

"I do," I replied, emphatically.

"And in what way would suffrage help?" she suggested.

"It would raise wages," I volunteered uncertainly. I was repeating some of the favorite arguments which I had listened to for four years.

"And what else?" she persisted, in the manner of one teaching a kindergarten child her lesson.

"It would give her shorter hours," I faltered.

"What else?" began the chairman again, but a big voice out in the crowd interrupted.

"There, you've said your lesson, baby, get down!"

Learning the Lesson.

"Get down, you goose," said a voice behind me, and I got down. Up mounted the indefatigable chairman.

"You know this is Miss B——'s first speech," she said, smiling, "and you know also that it takes experience and courage to do things like this."

"That's so," murmured the men sympathetically.

"She was all right, but we like you better," called a man on the outer edge. The chairman smiled and went on. I listened dully. I was aflame with anger. I had failed, miserably failed, before these ordinary men; I, who had been born a suffragist, had been spoiled for. It was not to be endured. I forced myself to listen to the chairman. It was not such a good speech she was making. After all, I could do as well as that; no, I could do better than that, and I was going to do it, too. I edged up to the soap box. After the chairman had talked ten minutes she glanced down. I had been waiting my chance.

"I want to get up there," I said imperatively. She yielded without a word. I mounted the box.

"Learned your lesson yet, baby?" inquired a facetious voice. There was a suppressed laugh.

"Yes, I have," I retorted. Nervousness had fled. I made a speech—oh, I made a speech. I talked for over twenty minutes to a spellbound mob. I painted suffrage as I had heard it painted in those four silent years. No argument was missed, no impassioned appeal forgotten. Then I descended, flushed, triumphant, to a chorus of handclapping and cries of:—"Baby's all right!" descended into the arms of the chairman, to be petted and flattered and admired—descended a suffragette!

I had gone upon that box a conservative. I came down a radical. I had gone up a "gist," I came down a "gette." And to avoid any misconception as to my change in sentiment perhaps those two terms should be defined. "Suffragist" is a term including those who desire votes for women, but who employ conservative, dignified means toward working for that end. "Suffragette" defines those who use aggressive methods, who demand votes rather than ask for them, and who stop at nothing, using all means, whether dignified or not, to gain the goal.

When I announced my transition from "gist" to "gette" to my family they were mildly interested—so mildly that it was annoying. My father inquired the reason for my changed attitude, and to my surprise and confusion I was unable to tell him. I certainly could not admit that the applause of a street mob and the admiration of three suffragettes had made me alter lifelong views, so with a view to convincing myself as well as him I advanced all the best suffragette arguments of which I knew. They were politely received and evidently rejected.

This increased my irritation and augmented my zeal. If my family did not appreciate my talent there were those who did. I plunged into suffragette demonstrations as rapidly and as thoroughly as my daily business permitted. Soap box speeches became a regular evening performance. I always enjoyed them hugely. The flickering lights, the upturned faces, and particularly the growing popularity of my speeches intoxicated me. I looked forward assiduously to my next great day, a day in which a detachment of suffragettes were to parade in a monster labor parade, and I was to carry a banner.

I dressed carefully for the occasion in a pretty frock of yellow—suffrage colors. When I joined the group waiting on a side street to turn in I noticed a peculiar look upon almost every face. I felt a bit queer myself and very conspicuous in my bright gown. The women clustered in groups about doorways. They looked anything but militant—indeed they were a shy and shrinking lot. Our indefatigable chairman passed me with her lips pale and her hands trembling. I wondered, then suddenly the explanation dawned upon me. These women were accustomed to night meetings. For most of them this was the first, or possibly the second, day demonstration. The broad glare of the sunshine made them nervous. There was a seemingly interminable period of waiting. Every one grew weary. Finally we mustered into line and "fell in." As the light caught my yellow banner there came a burst of shouting.

"There's the suffragists!" Then came a prolonged "Who-oo!" Then a series of cat calls, interspersed with:—

"Where's yer baby?" "Who's a doin' yer old man's washin'?" "Look at her in yellow"—my frock had attracted attention—"She's a young un lookin' for a husband, she is." A burst of laughter.

The Weary Duty.

Some faint applause greeted us from the clubs which looked down from windows above us, but from the crowds which lined the sidewalks came little but adverse criticism. Before we had marched ten blocks the banner became heavy. After twenty my arms ached and my feet burned painfully. At the twenty-fifth a ripe tomato, well aimed, struck the front of my yellow gown, burst, and dribbled to the hem. A mounted policeman started after the offender as we moved on. At the fortieth block one great voice rose above the others:—

"You tired women," it demanded, "what do you expect to accomplish that way?" Through the remainder of the march that question rang in my ears. At the forty-fifth block the women began to drop out. Finally our contingent was so small that we withdrew, and the parade moved on.

At dinner that evening my father asked, "And how did the parade go, daughter?"

I stretched my aching feet in their most comfortable slippers and answered vaguely, "Oh, pretty well."

"Was there much enthusiasm?" he persisted.

With a little start I considered. I thought of the shrinking waiting groups at the start, of the ceaseless fusillade of banter and insult, of aching feet and tired bodies, and of the final weary withdrawal.

"Not very much," I answered truthfully.

It was about a month after this that I was appointed to watch the polls at election. I was assigned to an outlying district where presumably affairs would be rather quiet, and my only accompanying sister managed to develop a severe cold, which left me alone in their field. The election was held in a tiny tobacco shop. The proprietor was very civil, supplied me with a cushioned chair in honor of my sex, and repeatedly offered me a glass of water. I had a vague notion that I was to watch carefully for repeaters and to estimate the number of ballots cast, but, as I was not to be on duty at counting time, I anticipated an easy task. The morning passed quietly. As I had no relief I had to forego luncheon. I sent word to headquarters and received a promise that some one would relieve me at four o'clock. Between twelve and one the shop was almost deserted, and, seeing a chance to breathe a little pure air, I moved my chair just outside the entrance. I must have fallen into a half doze, for I suddenly started, conscious that a man was standing at my side.

"Whatcher doin' here?" he demanded. I looked full at him. His flushed face and bloodshot eyes told their own story.

"Say, whatcher doin' here?" he repeated, grasping the back of my chair as he lurched violently. I tried to rise. The man swayed forward toward me and would have fallen upon me but that, with my senses in revolt, I thrust out my arms and pushed him violently from me. His hold on the chair relaxed and he fell to the pavement.

In a moment the street was full of people. Closer and closer they crowded, foul breaths and voices still more foul. A white gloved hand came down upon my shoulder and I was in the hands of the law. Down the street to the patrol box we filed at the word of the policeman, the wounded man, aided by a bystander, on one side, while a chorus of shrill young voices from the rear brought fresh followers at every moment.

"Oh, look at the lady pinched!"

The patrol wagon came at last. Into it we all piled. Then I roused myself from bewilderment and faced the situation. I was evidently being arrested. I wondered if the man was much hurt—arrested. At the word I felt elated. I should be a real heroine after this, arrested like those English suffragettes, of whom we Americans felt so proud. I smiled in anticipation of my father's anger, of my brother's realization of the real position of women in this benighted country.

Insult followed by arrest as a reward of a civic duty done! I was in exultant mood when we reached the station house. We alighted and filed through a narrow corridor into a great square room. Upon a platform at the end, facing with a cord, his feet high upon a chair, sat a fine looking, gray bearded man. He put his feet down and surveyed us in amazement. Then he rose and spoke to me. "Will you kindly step up here, madam?" he asked. I mounted the platform, wondering if they would put me in a cell. The wounded man, somewhat recovered, sank on a bench at the side of the room and applied a dirty rag to his forehead. I could hear the gray bearded man and the bluecoat talking in low tones.

"There was no reason, absolutely no reason, for bringing that young woman," said the gray bearded man, sternly.

"But," pleaded the policeman, "you ought to have seen that mob. It wasn't fit to have her with. I had to get her away."

"I see," said the other; "well, take that fellow in." The officer and the wounded man went out. Then the gray bearded man turned to me.

"I am so sorry," he began kindly. I sat listening, dazed. This man was apologizing to me for the insult, for the officer's misplaced zeal in bringing me there, and offering to send me back or home under escort! This was not the way in which arrested persons were treated. My exultation vanished. It was a very meek suffragette who asked:—"Will you please tell me who you are?"

Upon the Box She Mounted, and Addressing the Three Small Boys and Two Stray Dogs

"Oh," replied the man, rather embarrassed, "I'm one of the magistrates. I just happened to be here, you know."

I went, escorted by the policeman, back to my post. My relief, or rather my reliefs, for there were two of them, had arrived. They had heard something of the fracas and were exceedingly curious. I vouchsafed no explanation. It wasn't a real suffragette story.

Becoming a "Gist."

Last month our chairman had an idea that it would be a good plan to do some personal canvassing on the suffrage question among the minor politicians so that we might have a record for and against, and of possibilities for converts. The idea was received with enthusiasm. Since the election there had been little active work and the more energetic among us were languishing in shrewd illness. In a very businesslike manner we divided the work by lot, every member of the committee promising to see three politicians before the next meeting. Then our chairman set our task in plain language before us.

"The majority of these men," she said, "will not want to see you and will refuse to talk with you. But this is your opportunity. Use it if you have to adopt militant methods; use it if you have to seem rude and unladylike; insist upon a chance to present your cause!" We applauded with vigor and started out fired with a conviction that at least one of our three must succumb to our attack. The first one of my three was a lawyer, with offices in a building not far from my home.

Aglow with the inspiration engendered by the chairman's speech I set the date for my first call on the day following. I entered the office with a light heart and surveyed my victim. He was a handsome young man, evidently boasting of ancestors from the Isle of Erin, with deep blue, merry eyes. He looked up rather abstractedly and inquired.

"You wish to see me? What can I do for you?"

"I have come to talk about woman suffrage," I announced. My lawyer opened his blue eyes.

"I am afraid that you will have to excuse me," he said, civilly. "I have an important appointment in a few minutes."

"Postpone your appointment," I said, quickly. The man looked at me in amazement. His color rose.

"I assure you," he retorted, in crisp tones, "that I need this office. Will you be as good as to go?"

"Nothing can induce me to leave without your attention for a few minutes," I said, firmly. By this time the lawyer was very red, indeed. He glanced at his watch. Then he turned to me and actually smiled.

"You are very good looking," he said, slowly. I rose. He followed. With a gasp I turned and fled to the corridor, only to hear the key turn in the lock behind me and a low chuckle.

Somewhere down the corridor another door opened. Then voices floated over the transom.

"Thought I'd have to call the police. Had a suffragette in here who refused to go."

"How'd you get rid of her?"

"Told her she was good looking," chuckled my lawyer, "scared her to death and she had fun enough." There was a burst of laughter.

"Better be careful," cautioned the second speaker, "she might believe you."

"It was true," returned the lawyer, "she was a peach, a regular peach"—— the voices trailed off into mere murmurs.

There were two big tears running down my cheeks and I crouched on the stair opposite the door to stem them and the tide that followed. I was humiliated as well as outwitted. There was no music for the shame that possessed me. I cried and cried until my nose was red and sore, and just in the middle of one big sob the door opened and my lawyer stood upon the threshold.

"What in the"—— he began. "Why, it's the littlest suffragette, and crying!" Very gently he persuaded me up, and actually took out his big handkerchief and mine was drenched—and wiped away the tears, while I sobbed out:—

"I'm so sorry I was so rude"——

"There, there, that's all right," he returned soothingly. "I was rude enough myself in all conscience. Why, I believe in woman suffrage, anyhow, and I would have told you so at first if you hadn't been so chipper." But this proved the last straw. To my own and my lawyer's dismay my tears flowed faster than ever. Finally the second man came from the office and between borrowed handkerchiefs and a glass of water and much friendly sympathy I at last calmed down. And then one look at my swollen nose and inflamed eyes convinced my lawyer that I could not go home in a car. So he found a taxicab and rode with me all the way. I gave him my hand at the door with a wan smile.

"I am afraid I make a pretty poor suffragette," I said sadly. The lawyer fixed his merry eyes on me most seriously.

"I assure you that I think more of the cause for your espousal of its merits," he returned with a most profound bow.

Some time during the course of that ride I backslid. When I awoke next morning I was a suffragist, and a "gist" I have continued and a "gist" I shall remain. No longer shall I share the glories of street meetings and parades; for me the lesser honors of mothers' clubs and of women's associations. And yet—and yet—I owe much to my suffragetting. I saw the wife of the lawyer with the deep blue eyes.

RECORDING MUSIC ON NEW MACHINE

Instrument Invented That Is of Great Help to Composer—No Notes Will Be Lost Now

A famous critic once made the rather sweeping statement that "more masterpieces were lost to music than were ever gained." Strange as this remark may at first appear, there was a good deal of truth in it. He meant, of course, that many wonderful passages which must have been played by great composers while idly fingering the piano were lost forever. The brain of the genius is notoriously fitful, and while working out one idea a dozen others might subconsciously be communicated to the fingers, and their value not appreciated until too late. Such tragedies must be frequent.

Now, however, by the aid of a new invention with the rather formidable name of the "Automusicograph," nothing need be lost to music in the future. This ingenious apparatus, which can be attached to any piano, records on a roll of music paper every note that is played whether good, bad, or indifferent. Many an amateur can compose melodies in his head, and play them but few can write music as it should be written. Now this little machine does that part of the work.

It takes the form of a small cabinet with a glass front, and is fixed over the reading desk. A paper roll, marked with different colored lines, is placed inside and the clockwork machinery set going. As it revolves, every note that is touched is marked upon it in typewriter fashion. When the sheet of paper is detached after playing, a graduated gauge is placed by the side of it which determines the exact position of the note.

Don Angelo Barbitri, the inventor, claims for it that it is not only accurately reproduces the notes played, but also the time. The value of the device, therefore, to every composer who extemporizes will be enormous.

Mascagni, the famous composer, is using one of these machines in writing his new opera, "Elsibeau."

HATS FROM PARIS

Present Large Picture Creations the Most Artistic Yet Seen

A hat from Paris! Show me the woman who is not attracted by such a hats. In the French capital to-day $100 is regarded as a comparatively low price to pay for one of the popular hats of automobile-tire dimensions, and having but the slightest apology for trimming in the way of a tiny cord or band of fur or a single rose. But why so dear? may be asked. Well, it is all because of the line, the cut, if one may so term it, as a leading milliner expressed it the other day.

Truly, the present large picture hats are the most artistic headgear seen here in many years. During the summer season when Paris is supposed to be dead the designers for great milliners spend many an hour in the Louvre or the Carnavalet galleries, or studying the wonderful collection of the National Library, and the result of which can be easily seen in this year's hats, many of which are copies of the Directoire and Louis XV. and Louis XVI. styles. These large hats are chiefly for afternoon wear, it may be explained.

The winter models are so varied and becoming that there will be no difficulty of selection. The poke of an aigrette or a bunch of plumes suited to the individual face, will entirely change what looks like an impossible becoming toque into the most chic and becoming headgear.

YORKSHIRE RELISH

He was a throaty tenor, with a mighty opinion of his abilities as a warbler, so when asked to sing at a "smoker" in a certain Canadian town, he was pleased—nay, delighted—to oblige. Instead of receiving the plaudits of the company, however a solemn silence fell upon all when the last chord was reached.

Naturally the young man was disappointed, and looked it as he resumed his seat, and Yorkshire candor did not reassure him.

"Never mind, lad," said the man from Sheffield, patting him on the back. "Tha's done thy best; but the fellow as asked thee to sing ought to be shot!"

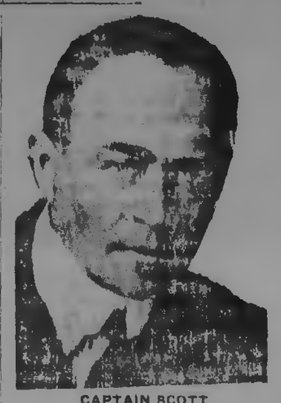
HOW TO BANISH ENGLAND'S FOG

Sir Oliver Lodge Claims to be Able to Regulate the Weather by Electricity



CAPTAIN SCOTT

It will take just half a million dollars a year to transform England from an island of fog to a country of perpetual sunshine, if we are to believe Sir Oliver Lodge.

At a recent meeting at Birmingham the eminent scientist said that if the people of England would grant $500,000 annually to the universities of the country, he would apply electricity not only to accelerating plant growth, but to dispersing the fog from harbor stations and influencing weather in clouds and rain.

THE HOUSE OF KNOLLYS

Several Generations Have Held High Positions Close to Britain's Sovereigns

Lord Knollys, who visited the Premier at Downing Street several times last week, has been a trusted counsellor and servant of the Royal House for many years. Indeed, the association of the Knollys family with the reigning House dates back for several generations. An ancestor of the present peer was Treasurer of the Household to Queen Elizabeth, and was raised to the peerage eventually, becoming the Earl of Banbury, a title extinct. Lord Knollys's father was General Sir William Thomas Knollys, who likewise held various offices in the Royal Household, and was also at one time Usher of the Black Rod. Lord Knollys became Private Secretary to the late King in 1870 and continued as his Majesty's adviser until his death, a period of 40 years' faithful and uninterrupted service. How highly he was esteemed and what confidence was reposed in his judgment by the late King is known to all the world, and King George doubtless esteems himself equally fortunate in having the benefit of his services at such a time as the present, although it is understood that Lord Knollys, who is now in his 74th year, does not feel equal to discharging the arduous duties of his responsible position very much longer.

The barony which Lord Knollys holds dates from the year of the Coronation. He is one of the few peers who have never taken the trouble to acquire a grant of arms, and the record of his peerage contains the entry: "The stamp duty on this peerage patent was remitted" a reminder of the faithful service for which the peerage was bestowed. Lord Knollys married in 1887 the elder daughter of Sir Henry Thomas Tyrwhitt, Bt., and Baroness Bernets, and has a son and daughter, the latter bearing the curious name of Louvima a composite name made up out of the names of King Edward's three daughters, Louise, Victoria, Maud.

UNEMPLOYED TEACHERS

Of England—How Canada Could Get Some of Them

A leading official of the London Teachers' Association, W. J. Pincombe, according to a Winnipeg dispatch, answers the question which has often been asked in the educational world of Western Canada—why the many unemployed teachers of the United Kingdom, of which it is alleged there are about 4,000, do not come to seek employment in Canada. Mr. Pincombe attributes this fact partially to the fact that the unemployed teachers in Great Britain are young, and partially to the fact that financial considerations keep them from making the trip to Canada.

Mr. Pincombe draws attention to the fact that to send a teacher from an English home out to Saskatchewan or Alberta means an outlay of about $150. He suggests that, if Western Canada wants some of the unemployed British teachers, a system of free or assisted passages be instituted, whereby an advance is made to cover the cost of emigration, the amount to be repayable out of the salary after arrival.

Mr. Pincombe, too, points out the necessity of providing situations for the teachers upon arrival. He believes that the department of education, after an inspection has revealed that the papers of the candidate for employment are in order, should assume the responsibility of providing work for the newly-arrived teacher. He argues that all that is required is the endorsement of some responsible official representing the provincial government on this side before the guarantee is given.

MEN WHO TOILED IN THE ATTICS

Masterpieces That Have Been Produced in Garrets—Paderewski Drummed His Fingers There

Even within human memory great men have dwelt and worked in attics, and have often enough hungered and starved there. Yet, most curious of all, many of the world's most noble masterpieces have been produced in humble, slope-roofed garrets. Imagine writing an epoch-making novel at a table the position of which you have continually to shift to dodge the large drops of rain that come through a faulty roof, and on the other side of the door an irate landlady declaiming against you having not paid your rent.

That is just what happened to Oliver Goldsmith when in Green Arbor Court, Old Bailey, he was preparing his immortal "Vicar of Wakefield." Besides a ramshackle bed and a table, the only other piece of furniture the room contained was a chair. Nor did Goldsmith reap any of the rewards of his genius; he was born poor, and lived and died in London garrets, with swallows his only companions.

Coming nearer to our own times, Thomas Carlyle occupied a top-back room in Cheyne Row, Chelsea. It was lighted from above where no sight or noise penetrated. He could have lived there all his life without anyone ever knowing of his existence.

If the question as to who is the greatest living woman were given to ten people, nine of them would unhesitatingly answer, Mme. Curie. Now, Mme. Curie and her husband lived for years in apartments in Paris which would not favorably compare with many a London attic. Except for half a dozen acquaintances, few knew of their existence; but in that tumble-down dwelling (it was not even rain-proof), these two, husband and wife, were doing a work that was eventually to revolutionize science. They discovered radium, and it was not until the news had been shouted from one end of the world to the other that the neighbors began to take a sort of interest in the quaint couple who kept the light going all night long in their window.

A Young Inventor

Strange, too, is the story of the young inventor who one day walked into the office of the famous Commodore Vanderbilt, the founder of the Vanderbilt millions. He had devised an air-brake, he said, and wanted to interest the multi-millionaire in it—in short, he wanted money.

"Do you mean to tell me," cried Mr. Vanderbilt, "that you claim you can stop a train by wind?"

"That is exactly my intention, sir," replied the young fellow.

"Go away," said the elder man; "go away. I've no time to waste on fools."

The inventor went back to his attic, where for weeks, nay, for months, he had existed on the most meagre of allowances. Among his friends he became known as "Crazy George." One day a railroad manager good-naturedly allowed him to experiment.

Capitalists who had snubbed him and who were present at the trial were staggered, dumbfounded, when "Crazy George" demonstrated by actual fact that a train could be brought to a dead standstill by air.

That was forty years ago, and today that man, whose name is George Westinghouse, is himself responsible for over a hundred patents, and is the head of a corporation having a capital of $100,000,000.

For days and weeks and months Paderewski drummed his fingers on a plain deal table in a Paris garret. He knew he could play the piano as few others could, but the information was unfortunately native to himself. All he wanted was the opportunity to convince people what he was capable of: but who would dream of looking for a musician in a damp, out-of-the-way attic near the Seine?

But one day somebody did go there and engage the young Pole to play some accompaniments at the house of a society lady. So overwhelmed was his employer with his performance that she offered on account of the rain, to send him home in her own carriage.

"No, madam," said Paderewski, "are not my own carriage and coachman waiting for me at the end of the street?"

And overcoatless and umbrellaless, through the rain and the slush and the mud, he walked home. That night the tide turned, and the young Pole soon found himself with no further use for such things as garrets.

Victor Hugo

The story of men of genius hungering for food and pining for recognition is a long one. Take Victor Hugo, according to some critics the greatest genius of modern times, who executed some of his finest poetical masterpieces in a garret in Belgium, where the rain came through the tiled roof and which was so small that he could but take four steps as he walked about thinking. His writing-table consisted of a hinged shelf, which he always put up against the wall so his four steps could not be curtailed.

Tom Hood the author of the celebrated "Song of the Shirt," rented a top-back room in London at six shillings a week, and it was dear at that. Charles Dickens's blacking-factory days were spent in equally miserable surroundings. De Quincey spent half his life in a garret off Oxford Street, and Maxime Gorky wrote some of his most realistic stories in the over-heated and unhealthy atmosphere of a baker's oven-room. Chatterton, the boy poet, died in a tiny apartment at the very top end of a flight of stairs; and Whistler, the famous impressionist once had his pictures sold to pay off his attic landlord.

CAPTURED ALIVE

A raccoon was captured alive at Lucknow, Ont., the other day. It entered a drug store and by means of considerable strategy was captured alive in a box. It is supposed that while hunting for food along the river it became frightened and lost its way.

WEARIED BY SICK-BED VIGIL

Benjamin Humphries was fined five guineas and costs at Hanley, England, for being asleep while in charge of an engine at the Deep Pit. It was stated that he had been sitting up all night with his sick child.

A WOMAN'S BACK.

Not One Woman In Twenty Has a Strong Back.

The kidneys are to blame nine times out of ten.

When the blood isn't properly filtered the poisons that ought to be carried off by the kidneys are sent back through the system, and it's hardly to be wondered that backaches and lame backs come to make life miserable.

Doan's Kidney Pills are a specific for all kidney troubles. They begin by expelling all the poisonous matter from the kidneys, and then heal the delicate membranes and make their action regular and natural.

Mrs. A. H. Hutton, Jr., McCreary, Man., writes:—"Two years ago last spring I had a very severe pain in the small of my back. When I would rise it seemed as if my back would break. My kidneys were very badly out of order, and I would have to get up three or four times during the night. I took one box of Doan's Kidney Pills and they effected a cure."

Doan's Kidney Pills are 50 cents per box or 3 for $1.25, at all dealers or mailed direct on receipt of price by the T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

If ordering direct specify "Doan's."

WEYBURN, Sask.

THE TOWN WITH A CITY FOUNDATION

A Few Facts Concerning WEYBURN

WEYBURN is one of the most important C. P. R. Divisional points in Southern Saskatchewan.

THE GRAND TRUNK PACIFIC

is building a line through Weyburn to the International boundary. This line is completed to within a short distance of the Town to-day.

THE CANADIAN NORTHERN has surveyed two proposed lines to within a short distance of the Town. With all these Railway lines running into the Town, Weyburn is bound to become a great Railroad centre, consequently a great distributing centre.

WEYBURN'S IDEAL LOCATION as a natural distributing point for Southern Saskatchewan, is recognized by the large wholesale houses, many of which have already located there.

THE WEYBURN DISTRICT has been blessed with good crops this season, and can still boast of never having experienced a crop failure. Last year nearly a million and a-half bushels of wheat were marketed in the seven local elevators, and that amount is confidently expected this season. The Weyburn District lies about 1,500 feet above the sea level. The average rainfall is about twenty-seven inches.

WEYBURN lies in the centre of Southern Saskatchewan, and is surrounded by the most fertile and productive wheat belt in the Canadian West, and now has the reputation of producing more wheat than any other point in Western Canada; yet only about 25% of the land around Weyburn is under cultivation. What will it mean when it is all cultivated?

THE FIVE CHURCHES are all splendid edifices, and a feature of the town.

WEYBURN HAS A SPLENDID system of waterworks and sewerage, and owns its electric lighting system. The supply of drinking water is inexhaustible.

OF THE FIVE HOTELS in Weyburn, three are among the finest in the Province.

NEXT Spring McKinnon & Company will erect a departmental store in Weyburn. The building alone will cost $250,000

NO BETTER Criterion of the Town's growth, and prosperity, could be desired than that of the building and local improvement expenditure this season. It is conservatively estimated that this total will not be less than $175,000.00.

WEYBURN offers a Safe and Paying Investment to Those Who Buy at Present Prices

WEYBURN enjoys the distinction of being the only town in the Canadian West to possess its own CHARTERED BANK. It is named the WEYBURN SECURITY BANK, and has opened branches in several neighboring Towns. Among its financial institutions, Weyburn numbers three of Canada's greatest Banks, namely, the Canadian Bank of Commerce, the Union Bank of Canada, and the Bank of Montreal. The WEYBURN SECURITY BANK is the only Bank operating solely in Western Canada. The Weyburn Security Bank is erecting its Head Office building in Weyburn, it being three storeys high, with a handsome, white terra-cotta front, and will cost $80,000. The fact that this Bank takes the name of the Town, and considers Weyburn the best Town in the West to make its headquarters, should be sufficient information to induce a man to, at least look into the Weyburn Real Estate proposition.

MANY RESIDENCES, costing from $5,000 to $8,000, are nearing completion, and in every part of the Town new cottages and houses, costing from $1,000 to $5,000, are under construction.

Highfield Park

BUILDING LOTS offered for sale range from $125 upward, according to location.

THESE LOTS are all within the Town limits at an average distance of one half mile from the centre of the Town. They are located within three quarters of a mile north of the C. P. R. station, in which direction the town is rapidly growing, and which is certain to become the finest residential district.

ALL THIS LAND has been inspected by clients, who increased their holdings after viewing it, and every lot is absolutely guaranteed to be high, dry land, splendidly situated for building purposes.

Ask to see photographs taken in Weyburn, which illustrate the direction in which the town is growing.

CONCRETE SIDEWALKS have been laid and water pipes, sewer pipes and electric lights have been installed as far north as Highfield Park.

MILLBROOK NEWS ITEMS

Special to the Examiner.

MILLBROOK, DEC. 7.—Dr. Montgomery left last week for Emlro, Oxford County, where he has secured the practice of a well known physician there. Dr. Montgomery, while being possessed of a reticent nature, was held in high esteem by the people with whom he came in contact with, and he succeeded during his residence in the Bailliebero and Millbrook districts in building up a large and extensive practice. Dr. Montgomery's departure from this section will leave a blank which will be hard to fill, and we join in wishing him unbounded success in his new field of operations, a wish which we have no doubt will materialize when it concerns a man of such sterling integrity and sound business principle as Dr. Montgomery is.

Good Form

A little observation and attention to detail will make it possible for every woman to have her dinner table appear and be served in accordance with the newest decrees of form. Details of service change as do shapes of gowns. For example, soup spoons now are placed at the right side of the plate instead of, as formerly, at the top of it. The dinner knife retains its old place next to the plate, but the soup spoon is parallel. Except when soup plates are of extreme beauty they are banished, cups with one handle at each side being served instead. There are soup or bouillon spoons which correspond in size to the cups, those to be used with plates being too large for the smaller surface of a cup.

Individual saltcellars are relegated to limbo, probably on the theory that all food is so well cooked that further seasoning is not required. This being more theoretical than true, large salt cellars appear, and, be they of silver or glass, they are more ornamental than individual receptacles. Two are enough, although four—if one has those that match in sets of two or four—may be put on the table together, one at each corner of the center, as it were. Salt shakers are never seen now.

It is no longer good form to have more than three forks at a plate at one time. If the meal is a long course dinner or luncheon, when more will be required, they are brought in with the service plate after the last one already on the table has been used.

Never are dessert forks or spoons now seen on the table until they are brought on the individual plates and placed, still on the plates, before each person. Also both fork and spoon are used, not merely one, no matter what form the sweet may take.

Equally also the finger bowls are not on separate plates to be brought in later, but appear on the dessert plate, which, when properly appointed, has the finger bowl on a small doily in the center, with the fork on the left side and the spoon on the right, the handles pointing in the same direction, which is toward the individual before whom they are placed.

Every one at the table immediately removes the bowl and doily, putting them at the upper left of the table, and then lays the spoon and fork by the plate, one at each side.

The reasons for the unparalleled success of Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey are that being devoid of impurities, it has all the healing properties of a medicinal whiskey not found in beverage whiskies, that it is an absolutely pure, gentle, invigorating stimulant and tonic that overcomes all weakening, wasting and run down conditions of the body, brain and muscle, giving the system power to throw off and resist coughs, colds, grip, catarrh, bronchitis and lung trouble; and that it is a wonderful remedy in the treatment and cure of consumption, pneumonia, malaria, low fevers and all stomach troubles, taken as directed.

has had many imi-

Be sure when you purchase Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey that you get the genuine. Make certain that the seal over the cork is unbroken. The genuine can be purchased at grocers and liquor dealers everywhere or direct, $1.25 a large bottle. Write for our Aseptic Drinking Cup, sent free.

house of friends a "bread and butter note" must be written. As a matter of fact, it is safe to say that a note must be written after any courtesy when a call is impossible. As one cannot pay a call on persons living forty miles away unless one has an automobile, a note becomes the medium of thanks. A married woman expresses appreciation of hospitality for her husband as well as herself, and the form of communication sent by an unmarried woman differs only in that she thanks her hostess for herself alone.

A "bread and butter note" may read something like this:

My Dear Mrs. Brunson—Mr. Page and myself made our train without difficulty Monday morning, and we were even fortunate enough to have our trunk come through without delay. We did enjoy our time with you so much. It was really awfully good of you to ask us, and to have a breath of the sea after the country we found decidedly stimulating. Thank you so much for all you did for our pleasure. With best wishes for you both, sincerely,

ELIZABETH STANLEY-PAGE.

Congratulatory Note.

Immediately on hearing of the engagement of a girl friend a man or woman is expected to write her a note of congratulation, or if she is an old acquaintance a call is necessary. Sending flowers at the same time is optional, but it is a delicate act of friendship and always gives great pleasure. It is to be remembered that, however commonplace to others an engagement to be married may be, to the principals it is extremely important, and anything which helps to celebrate the event means much to them.

A note of congratulation from a formal acquaintance might read:

My Dear Miss Van Toole—It is with interest and pleasure I have heard of your engagement to Mr. de Groot, and I want to add my congratulations and good wishes to the many that must be reaching you now. Will you kindly extend my sincere felicitations to Mr. de Groot in his good fortune and tell him I hope and believe this is only the beginning of a happiness that will increase during your lives? Cordially,

DOROTHY REVERE STAUNTON.

Good Breeding.

The best bred women do not fuss. They take their gowns and their furniture and their jewels as a matter of course. They are unconscious of their veils and their gloves, and they expect every one else to be equally so. If they see an intimate wearing a handsome gown they refer to it admiringly, but they also preface their comment with an apology. Their differences with their husbands are not aired; neither are the domestic upheavals. The repose of the well bred woman is not the quiet of weakness, says Woman's Life. It is the calm of trained faculties, balanced so nicely that an earthquake may cause a change of color, but will not bring forth a loud cry.

Mushrooms in Saxony.

There is probably no country in the world where mushrooms are more highly prized for food than in Saxony. Although it is recognized that their nutritive properties are moderate, nevertheless mushrooms are extensively used there in place of ordinary vegetables, as well as for soups, sauces and garnishing.

Heavy Dumbbells.

Directors of physical culture say that heavy dumbbells do more harm than good, as they strain the heart and lungs as well as the muscles they are supposed to benefit.

Ship Scuttlers.

The last man executed in England for ship scuttling was Dudding, hanged on Deal beach about 1862 for scuttling a vessel in the Downs in order to obtain the sum for which she was insured. Less drastic laws prevail now, and the gravity of such a case is met by penal servitude and the cancelling of certificates should the offenders be shipmasters or officers.

Chisholm a la Mode.

Freddie was visiting relatives in Canada, and his mother constantly besought him to be on his good behavior and to avoid saying anything that might give offense, but one day when his aunt asked him at luncheon if he would have some curried chicken he could not help showing his surprise.

"Why, what's the matter, Freddie?" inquired the aunt. "Don't you like curried chickens?"

"Well, auntie, I can't really say," was his reply. "You see, down in the States we don't curry our chickens—we pick 'em."—St. Paul Dispatch.

THE PLEXIBAR CORSET.

Every woman who does her own housework and every woman who suffers from too, too solid flesh knows to her regret how easily corset stays break when she bends over. Here is a corset which is warranted to withstand the most strenuous exercising and hold its own unbroken.

The steels are made of some sort of spiral steel which rebounds with every motion of the wearer. They are something new and will be a comfort to womankind, as they are shapely and there is no outward appearance of "common sense," which mars so many of the hygienic garments.

A Typewriter and a Princess.

Times do change.

Even a dozen years ago the thought of speaking of a typewriter and a princess all in one breath would have seemed shockingly incongruous.

But not so now. Princesses are very much up to date.

They would every bit as soon bang away on a typewriter as to laboriously dip a gold tipped quill into a bottle of ink and indite their thoughts with laborious dignity.

No less a personage than Princess Mary, the only daughter of the king and queen of Great Britain, has recently learned to use a typewriter and will assist in typing some of her father's more private correspondence. The princess intends to learn stenography also and is keenly looking forward to helping her mother.

Bridge Prizes.

Silver sets for running ribbons of various widths through lingerie make excellent simple prizes for bridge or euchre. There are usually four "leaders," as the bodkins are called in such set, and in little brocaded covers, as they are, become attractive as well as useful. Another pretty trifle that every girl likes to have is a small housewife for her sewing bag. A tiny fancy emery cushion, a small pair of scissors, a needlecase and sometimes a gay bit of wax—all mounted and joined together—are desirable and not expensive.

So great is the fad for bridge scores of various kinds that they are always excellent prizes for men as well as women. Most elaborate are some of the newest pads and books, being bound in the gayest fashion and having small reminders of the trump so arranged as to change it after each hand. Pencils accompany them, and the class may be used again when the original scores have been exhausted.

Smart School Blouse.

For school wear a plaid blouse is always good style worn with a dark skirt. The material may be either silk or one of the new worsted plaids that are as soft and silky as the latter fabric. These woolen plaids come with the name on them of the clan to which they belong, as if one is of Scottish descent they may sport their own particular "plaidie."

The blouse illustrated has a narrow vest of navy blue taffeta with simulated buttonholes and small buttons covered with the silk which also edges the wide shoulder plait. There is little change in the new shirt waists except that most of them when not of wash stuffs have the long shoulder effect and are often made in one with the bodice portion.

A Mind's All Right, But—

It is all right for a woman to have a mind of her own if she keeps it to herself and lets the man think his is the only mentality in the neighborhood.

"A nuisance, isn't it?"

"No, that isn't it, but I can't remember whether he favors Scotch or rye."—Widow.

APPALLING CONDITIONS OF CRIME, DEGRADATION AND FILTH REVEALED

Some Startling Revelations Made by Inspector Gunton and High County Constable Cochrane This Week, in and Near the Village of Havelock—Eleven Children Brought to Shelter.

BIGAMISTS IN GAOL

The deplorable condition of affairs in certain sections of Belmont Township is receiving a thorough investigation at the hands of Inspector Gunton of Toronto, and High County Constable Cochrane, agent of the Children's Aid Society of this city. Inspector Gunton is connected with the Provincial work of the Society, and was sent out by Mr. J. J. Kelso, Superintendent of the Children's Aid Society. Inspector Gunton and Mr. Cochrane have been in Havelock since Monday last and have made many visits to homes, finding in most instances, a terrible state. Men, women and children living in hovels so filthy that it is small wonder that disease and sickness is not rampant in these parts. Families of five and six are housed in one-roomed shacks in the most desolate parts of the township, in some cases there being no neighbours within several miles. The true state of affairs has not yet been disclosed, but from what Mr. E. L. Goodwill, Solicitor for the Society, has heard from Mr. Cochrane, during the week, it is learned that more destitute and more degrading conditions can hardly be imagined.

Degradation and Filth.

These unfortunate people live in the remote parts of the Township, where the farms are poor, and the means of sustenance are not what one would term generous. Children and women were found with hardly sufficient clothing to protect them from the cold, and it is impossible to realize the struggles and hardships that these families pass through, during the long winter months." It is little wonder that crime of the most degrading character is brewing, when the standard of morals among these people is so low," remarked an officer of the Children's Aid to the Examiner yesterday. Mr. Cochrane spoke of one home he visited with Inspector Gunton. To reach this place he had to cross a stream on a very narrow log and on the opposite side was situated the lonely little hut, in which were existing a mother, five little children, and the woman soon to become a mother again. The husband and father, it appears, had deserted his wife and family, and had left them with practically no wearing apparel, and very little food on which to eke out a livelihood. This is but one of the many cases that the Society is called upon to deal with.

Arrivals at the Shelter.

The first batch of children from this part of the country, arrived at the Shelter Wednesday evening, six in number. It is said that there are about twenty-four in all to be taken over by the Society. The new arrivals that came on Wednesday night, it is said, were badly in want of a good bath with plenty of soap. In fact, it was stated to the Examiner, that they were so dirty that they were refused admittance into the street cars on their arrival here. However, when they reached the Shelter a marked change was soon effected, and for the first time in their lives, they slept in thoroughly sanitary and home-like surroundings. Of the six who were brought here, only one was a girl and the balance boys.

A number of ladies are to-day kept busy in sewing for these little ones, in order to provide them with suitable wraps. The accommodation at the Shelter on Wednesday night was taxed to its utmost. In fact there were not sufficient beds, and some had to sleep on the floor.

This investigation was carried on at the urgent request to the Provincial Society for Neglected Children, on the part of Mr. E. L. Goodwill, Solicitor and Secretary for the local society.

An Official Statement.

Inspector Gunton and High County Constable Cochrane, agent for the local society, returned to the city this morning with five more children for the Shelter. In an official statement to the Society here, Inspector Gunton reveals the following state of affairs:

Gross neglect of children, adultery, wife desertion, bigamy and incest, are among the vile conditions found in and near Havelock, by the officers of the Children's Aid Society of Peterborough County. Conditions were recently found to be so bad and

An Address On The Boys' Work Conference In Ottawa

Mr. F. H. Ritchie, representing the Provincial Committee of the Y. M. C. A. for Canda, last night, addressed a number of men interested in Boys' work, in regards to the coming conference, to be held at Ottawa, Dec. 30-31 and Jan. 1st. Mr. Ritchie gave a thorough outline of what the Conference would mean to the cities, that will be represented. This will be the most elaborate conference ever held in Canada or the United States, and will set a standard for conferences. The men present represented the High School, the Sunday Schools, the Boys' Brotherhoods and the Scout movements of the City.

A committee was selected to work out plans, whereby Peterborough may have a creditable representation.

Principal Falconer To Address Canadian Club

The executive of the Canadian Club of Peterborough have great pleasure in announcing that Dr. Falconer, Principal of the University of Toronto, will address the Club on Thursday evening next, Dec. 15th. As Principal Falconer is at the head of one of the largest educational institutions on the continent and his services are eagerly sought after, it has been difficult to secure him for a meeting in Peterborough, and the Executive has every confidence that every member of the Club will be present at 8 p.m. next Thursday night. The executive would like every man in Peterborough, who is a British subject, and interested in the welfare of his country, to become a member of the Canadian Club. Membership tickets may be secured from any of the following:

Past Presidents H. R. H. Kennet, D. O'Connell, and F. D. Kerr; President Dr. Cameron; First Vice-President, E. L. Goodwill; Second Vice-President, T. F. Matthews; Secretary Treasurer W. B. Morris. Executive members, His Honour Judge Huycke, A. Grant, O. S. Gordon, W. Mellroy, A. Mowat, G. C. Wainwright, J. E. Hodgson, R. E. Wood and W. O'Brien.

EXAMINER'S CHRISTMAS EDITION OUT TO-MORROW

The Examiner's annual Christmas Edition will be published to-morrow, and will be the largest, and, at the same time, the most artistic and complete issue of this kind ever published in this city. The edition will be published in six sections, forty-four pages in all, and has occupied the attention of the Editorial and mechanical staffs of the Examiner for some weeks. The extra work has, however, been fully recompensed by satisfaction at the results attained, and it is with a feeling of confidence that the Examiner awaits the verdict of its readers upon to-morrow's special number.

There will be a magazine section, printed upon the finest paper, and containing some magnificent pictures appropriate to the season, as well as a number of most entertaining stories and Christmas articles. A special Children's section, containing the photographs of many of Peterborough's prettiest children, as taken by the Roy Studio, will be another feature. All six sections of the paper abound in Yuletide stories and holiday articles, suggestions as to gifts, Christmas recipes, Christmas poems, and the edition is a veritable embodiment of the holiday spirit.

In to-morrow's issue, too, the Examiner's new serial "Ashton-Kirk, Investigator," a thrilling, gripping, Detective Story, that will be eagerly read by all fiction-lovers, will commence with a generous instalment. The thousands who have enjoyed the Examiner's splendid serials, will find the latest fully up to the standard of its predecessors.

The Christmas Edition of the Examiner will be distributed to the subscribers without any extra charge and the issue will be on sale at this office for the usual price—two cents a copy. However, for the benefit of those who wish to send copies to friends, a number will be sold in special mailing tubes for five cents each. There will be only a limited number of these, so that people wishing them had better order early. In all, to-morrow some 5,000 papers will be printed.

TOLD OF A THEFT

Keegan Who Pleaded Guilty to Stealing Gin Gives Evidence Against Man He Said Was With Him on Night in Question

A LIQUOR CASE

"Guilty" said Chas. Martin, when charged with supplying liquor to John A. Coulter, knowing that the other was on the black list. "$30.00 and costs," said the magistrate, and Martin counted out the necessary amount of 'williams.'

Albert Meakins, who appeared on a charge of stealing liquor from the storeroom of Alex. Elliott, would not plead nor elect. Mr. G. N. Gordon appeared for the defence.

The first witness called was Mr. Verne Stephenson, one of Mr. Elliott's employees. He testified as follows: "On Monday night everything was all right, as I locked up as usual. On Tuesday morning there was a case of gin broken into and seven bottles were missing. They were quart bottles and the case when full contained fifteen bottles. The only way the building could be entered, would be through the Lock Works yard. There was a window in the back of the store house in the first story with the glass broken out, and I think that is where entrance was made, as the window was also raised up a couple of feet."

Robt. B. Keegan was then put in the box. He admitted that he had pleaded guilty a few days ago, of taking liquor from the warehouse, and stated that it was on the night of Oct. 24th that he committed the theft. He also gave other evidence as follows: "I know Alfred Meakins, he was with me the night I took the gin. We met at the usual place that night, between Charlotte street and King street on George street. That is where the fellows generally meet, and then Meakins and I went up town. He asked me if I knew where we could steal something and then we went over to Elliott's and stole gin between us. I worked at Elliott's for a while and that is how I knew how to get in. It was about 9.0 or 10.30 when we got there and we got up on the fence and then up on the shed at the back and climbed over to the window. Meakins lifted the window and I got in first. He followed me and we went down cellar. We found a bottle there and broke it open. It contained gin, and I took two bottles and I think he took three. When we came out, we went down Aylmer street and drank a bottle between us. We met some fellows there and treated them. I got drunk then and one of the fellows took me home. I don't know what became of the other four bottles. We gave one to Sam LaFave and Ernie Lowes and another fellow named Main got the other three bottles."

"Did you ever go in the same way and take liquor from Elliott's before?" asked Mr. Gordon.

"Yes," answered the prisoner, "I was in once before when I worked there and took a bottle then."

"And you took some other stuff too?" continued Mr. Gordon. "No," said Keegan. "I never took anything else."

"How old are you?" asked the Magistrate.

"I will be 17 on the 15th of March. I would not have taken the gin, only I was urged to do it. I have no love for liquor, but I take it when I get it given to me."

He admitted that he had been drunk on several occasions before, and that he got drunk on the first bottle he stole. Keegan was then allowed to go on suspended sentence.

Meakins will likely come up for trial in the morning.

TORONTO, ONT., DEC. 9.—J. A. Mears, alias Jas. Phillips, accused of victimizing the residents of several cities and towns in Eastern Ontario, taking orders for well-known publications, pleaded not guilty at the Police Court, and was remanded for one week.

THE UNWRITTEN LAW.

VINCENNES, IND., DEC. 9.—After a long consideration the Jury here this morning handed in a sealed verdict, which was a definite and direct vindication of unwritten law, when they acquitted Mendo E. Moore of murdering Chas. E. Gibson, millionaire operator, whom Moore shot dead after his wife had confessed an intrigue with Gibson. Mrs. Moore repeated her story in the witness box, and the Jury said "not guilty" on her evidence.

SEVERAL YOUNG LADIES ADMITTED TO THE SODALITY AT ST. PETER'S

Yesterday the Feast of the Immaculate Conception was observed in the Roman Catholic churches of the city, and very large congregations attended at all services throughout the day.

St. Peter's Cathedral was the scene of a very impressive religious function last night, when a large number of young ladies were admitted to the Sodality of the Blessed Virgin, by Rev. Father McColl, assisted by Rev. Father Toner and Rev. Fr. Casey.

The ceremony began at 7.30 with the recitation of the Rosary, after which Rev. Fr. McColl preached a special sermon to the candidates for admission. He briefly explained the objects of the Sodality. A mother always influenced the lives of her children, for good or for bad, as the case might be. A good mother had an enormous influence for good, not that she advised so very much, but rather because she acted rightly herself, and children are quick to imitate. The members of the Sodality were called children of Mary. All Christians, indeed all mankind, were Mary's children, but the members of the Sodality were her children in a very special sense. And good mother as she was, Mary would watch over them, and good children as they were they would imitate their mother. They would endeavour to imitate her matchless virtues, especially her humility, obedience, purity and charity. Pride was the beginning of sin. Eve questioned God's right to forbid certain things. So Eve's children down through the years are forever asking, "Why is this so. Why should God prohibit this?" And then the devil comes along with his specious reasons, as in Eve's case, until, like Eve, we fall. Humility was the antidote to pride; it was the beginning and foundation of all virtue. The humble person would be obedient—it was pride rebelling that made us disobey. Humility implied chastity, for if are humble we will avoid the danger, we will not presume on our own strength. And humility will make us charitable—if we are humble we will be all the more ready to make allowance for people; we will not be so ready to resent imagined wrongs.

In conclusion, Father McColl referred to the great dignity conferred on the human race, and especially on the feminine sex, by the Blessed Virgin's immaculate sinlessness. And the influence of the Virgin Mary had radically altered man's idea of woman. In pagan times she was a slave, an inferior, but the Christian religion, elevated her to her rightful sphere as man's equal. In the person of the Virgin Mother, woman became the object of respect and homage, of which antiquity has no conception. All that was best in Europe clustered round this ideal of woman, and it is the origin of many of the purest elements of our civilization.

The candidates, looking very picturesque in their white dresses and veils, and bearing lighted candles in their hands, then advanced to the altar rails and made their solemn consecration to Mary, after which Rev. Fr. McColl invested them with the ribbon and medal and pronounced them admitted to the Sodality. The service was brought to a close with benediction of the most Blessed Sacrament, at which Rev. Father Casey officiated.

Fourteen candidates received the blue ribbon, the highest degree of the Sodality and twenty the white ribbon, which is the first step.

Grace Van Studdiford Is Coming Here Next Week

Miss Grace Van Studdiford, who charmed so delightfully our music lovers two seasons ago by her performance in "The Golden Butterfly," will come to the "Grand" next Wednesday, December 14th, in the Parisian comic opera, "A Bridal Trip," that Manager Daniel V. Arthur secured the American rights for while he was abroad last summer.

"A Bridal Trip" has been repeating on this side the tremendous success that it scored on the other side and will soon be taken to New York.

The well known playwright, Harry B. Smith adapted the book and lyrics for the American stage, while the music is by Planquette the famous author of "The Chimes of Normandy."

The story that the new Van Studdiford vehicle tells is one of love in the Orient. It has to do with the intrigues of a prince who has been fascinated by a young widow, of whom he caught but a fleeting glimpse as he was starting out on a tour of the world. He returns to Constantinople just as she is about to marry a scheming English marriage broker, who is after her dowry. The prince discovers a gypsy girl whom the Englishman has forsaken. He enlists her aid in spiriting away the widow, while all the wedding guests are stupefied from the punch which had been drugged. When the widow recovers from the stupefaction, she is made to believe that she is in Paradise instead of in the gardens of the palace of the prince.

He masquerades as her first husband who was lost at sea. His American chauffeur, an able abettor in all his schemes, masquerades as the missing husband of the aunt of the young widow, and together, after many unexpected complications have arisen, they accomplish the purpose of the prince to make the widow his wife.

It is said that not since the days when comic opera was all the rage has a more delightful story been told in witty lines and wittier lyrics, while the music is all that the name of Planquette would lead one to expect.

The two acts are pinced in a cafe on one of the quays of Constantinople and in the gardens of Prince Cassim's palace. The Oriental flavour, both in scenery and costumes has been most faithfully preserved. In every way this new comic opera is a return to the good old days when the singers had real music to sing and the comedians could raise a laugh by the wit of their lines without resorting to buffoonery.

Among the principals supporting Miss Van Studdiford are Maude Odell, Harry MacDonough, Bernice Mershon, Robert Pitkin, H. David Todd and Florence Kolb. A very large and excellent singing chorus is along. The regular house orchestra will be increased for the engagement.

Amount Of Damages Was Reduced To The Extent Of One Hundred Dollars

In the appeal at Osgoode Hall, yesterday by the defendant in the case of John Scott versus Wm. E. Griffith, from the judgment of the County Court of Peterborough of June 28th, 1910, argument of appeal was concluded yesterday. The appeal was allowed to the extent of varying the judgment by reducing the amount of damages to $100; defendant to pay plaintiff's costs of action on the County Court scale, there being no costs of appeal to either party. Mr. F. D. Kerr of Dennistoun, Peck and Kerr, appeared for the appellant.

EASY FAULT-FINDING.

Narrow-minded politicians at Ottawa, who would pick a flaw in an opponent, if he were the angel Gabriel himself, blamed Sir Wilfrid Laurier for having at one time said that British statesmen, in international arbitrations, had not been as careful as they might have been of Canadian interests. Judge Grantham, a British judge, in speaking at the Canada Club banquet, in London, on December 6, paid a high tribute to the importance of Canada, and said British statesmen "should adopt a somewhat more congenial tone towards Canada"; he deplored "the ignorant action of British statesmen in the past on the Alaskan boundaries, was a standing disgrace." As usual our hypercritical Conservatives are more loyal than the King himself. Both Sir Wilfrid and Judge Grantham voiced a popular idea: if Hon. Mr. Aylesworth in Parliament, recently, was able to correct this impression from his knowledge gained at the Hague tribunal, and do justice to the good faith of British diplomacy, so much the better.

THANKS TO TAG-DAY.

The rather gruesome story reported in another column of the discoveries by the agents of the Children's Aid Society, in Belmont, is instructive. It impresses the public with the significance and importance of Children's Aid Tag-day. Without that and its substantial monetary results, it would have been impossible to have made the inquiries and investigation that led to the actual rescue and placing in the Shelter of eleven children to be followed by five more. The Provincial officers assist in such investigations, but the county concerned has to bear the expense. If we hadn't had the money, the children mentioned would to-day be in the condition of suffering, degradation and vicious influences, from which they have been rescued, thanks to the means provided by tag-day. It is sometimes suggested that the government should provide funds for the work of the Children's Aid Society. This would simplify the ways and means problem, but would it be the best way? Would it not tend to lessen the active and personal interest aroused by everyone being a contributor to the good work through tag-day? These contributions, constitute every one making them, a sort of agent of the society, and thus we have workers, in its interests largely multiplied and widely distributed. To gain an appreciation of the value and importance of the work of the Children's Aid Society, a contrast might be made. Let any mother at this blessed Christmas time, contrast her own dear children, well housed, well clothed, tenderly loved and tended—with bright childish visions of Santa Claus to be realised—let her contrast these with the starved, beaten, abused, ill-clad children, such as rescued by the agents of the Children's Aid Society, thanks, practically, to tag day. "Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these, My little ones, ye have done it unto Me."

GOODY, GOODY.

Without disappointment, the world can look to the press for light, leading and moral uplift; but it seems to be possible to have the press a little too indicted, a little extreme, a little too puritanical, not to say, pharisaical. The esteemed evening contemporary, whose morals are as impeccable as its politics are bad, came out yesterday with a saucy dissertation upon the "weed," a poetical name for tobacco. It is all very well for the editor to discharge his conscience by animadverting upon the evils of the intemperate and untimely use of tobacco. But when he goes to the extreme of condemning tobacco smoking on the streets, he assumes an excess of sentimental sensibility worthy of the cloying moral hyperæsthesia of a heroine of Richardson's goody-goody three volume novels. It will not seriously be argued by our great moral mentor that the house, with curtains to be browned, with the housewife's sensibilities outraged, is the proper place for smoking. If one must smoke what better place than the open air,—under, what Mrs. Malaprop calls, the "broad cannister of heaven." If the heavens absorb the dense foul smoke of millions of tall chimneys, and all the stinks, fumes, vapours and rank compound of villainous smells, that come from all sorts of factories, decaying garbage, etc., etc., it certainly can be trusted to provide for a few whiffs of a few pipes, without danger of suffocating the hyper-sensitive. King James in his notorious "counterblast" against tobacco, did not go so far as that; he argued against tobacco on principle. Can our contemporary tell us, of an instance of any one being seriously or even mildly offended by tobacco smoke on the open street? The public who safely survive, running the gauntlet of the fragrant motor car wasting its gasoline, or the oil on the streets, or the perfume of festering garbage in season, can certainly stand a little tobacco smoke, air-diluted to the millionth degree, at long range. It is well to be good, but not too good. Editors fill too important a place in the moral economy to contemplate the loss of their services to humanity. We don't want them to become so good that they incur the danger of being snatched up bodily in chariots of fire and wafted to celestial regions, not in postal or news-boy touch with the reading public.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Mr. J. L. Englehart, chairman of the T. & N. Railway Commission, has presented to the Town of Petrolea his $50,000 residence in its park of 50 acres, to be used as a hospital—in memory of his late wife. If the wife could voice the loving spirit of the happy region where she rests, it would be to endorse the applause of all true-hearted men, of the noble act of her husband.

Mr. E. A. Lancaster, M.P., for Lincoln, a good Conservative, is down on the Whitney Government Hydro Electric policy. He asserts that the way in which it has been administered, the unjust treatment of farmers in his bailiwick, in the matter of easements, have made them hostile to the Whitney Government and their wrath will fall upon him, so heavily that he cannot be re-elected. It is certainly human to regard things from the view-point of number one. It comes to this—if the hydro-electric scheme does not go, Mr. Lancaster must go, and—level crossings stay.

Lord Strathcona, the Canadian High Commissioner at London, is an evergreen optimist, as well as a generous benefactor in respect of Canada and Canadians. In presenting a pair of loving cups to the Canadian Club of London, at its last meeting, Lord Strathcona said the Club originated at a time when it took sixty days to cross the Atlantic; at a time when the West, which now sent a hundred million bushels of wheat, did not then produce one. He said the potentialities of Canada were so great that her sons would look upon the present prosperity as a trifle.

POLLING UNTIL 8 O'CLOCK.

(Ottawa Free Press.)

The bill which Claud Macdonnell of Toronto has re-introduced in the House of Commons to make election day a public holiday and to extend the hours of polling in the cities from five to eight .m., has something to commend it, especially so far as the latter proposition is concerned.

It is a matter for discussion whether it would be advisable to add to the number of holidays, but one argument in favour of the proposal is that in Canada federal election days come only once in four years, and that, even as things are now, there is a certain amount of dislocation of business which is inevitable in every business house and industrial establishment when political feeling is running high. Election day in the United States is a general holiday and no one there would now abolish the custom.

But there is little doubt that with the growth of our cities, such as Montreal, Toronto and Winnipeg, many of the working class have to submit to personal loss of time and to suffer much inconvenience in the attempt to get their votes in before five o'clock. The Dominion Trades Congress is understood to be behind the bill, and its members will, it is said, bring influence to bear upon the members of the House to have the bill passed. In any case it is worthy of full discussion.

WHERE CHILDREN ARE NEEDED.

(Ottawa Journal.)

Alberta announces that in the province there are three couples with good homes asking for a child to adopt, for every homeless child that can be found. In other parts of Canada the situation is somewhat similar.

In the past few years childless people have come around to the idea of adoption. There once were many children of clean ancestry and attractive personality in the public charge, but now, not so many can be found. Where, a few years ago, anyone could get a child for adoption, now it is rather a mark of honour to be intrusted with one. For the state, or institutions appointed for that purpose keep a close watch on children so taken, until the child becomes an adult, and makes sure that the adopted one gets a good education, and receives good treatment generally.

The lack of children to adopt furnishes another reason why the Government should permit and encourage the immigration of properly chosen and supervised British orphans to this country. Children of the right kind will soon find a home. With thousands of homeless children in England, who, under present conditions will grow up on the street, and with hundreds of couples in the Canadian west asking that they be given children to educate and bring up to manhood, the solution seems simple. Let the Government do everything to encourage this immigration, and the result will mean many useful lives saved to the element of law and order in the generation next ahead.

THE FORESTRY SECTION OF THE CONSERVATION COMMISSION

The cause of conservation of natural resources, particularly our forests, is making rapid progress. The Canadian Forestry Association, of which His Excellency Earl Grey is Patron and Sir Wilfrid Laurier Honorary President, has been at work ten years, and, starting with ten members in 1900, it has grown into a national organization with over two thousand five hundred members scattered throughout all the provinces. Sir Wilfrid Laurier has just called a Dominion Forestry Convention to meet in the City of Quebec on Jan. 18-19, 1911, under the auspices of the Canadian Forestry Association, and the President of the Association, Hon. W. C. Edwards, the great lumberman of the Ottawa Valley, is now drawing up the main lines of the work with Sir Lomer Gouin, Premier of Quebec, and Hon. Jules Allard, Minister of Lands and Forests. Senator Edwards is also the Chairman of the Forestry Committee of the Commission of Conservation, and this body, under the Chairman, Hon. Clifford Sifton, will hold its annual meeting in the City of Quebec during the same week. There will, therefore, be a gathering of those interested in Conservation, such as has perhaps never been seen before in Canada.

The people of Canada, through the work of the Canadian Forestry Association and similar organizations, have become awakened to the need of conservation and the aim of this convention is to deal with these subjects in such a way as to have a definite and practical result upon the saving of our forests from fire, timber thieves, 'lake settlers', improper cutting and other enemies, and thus to preserve the tree growth on the lands not suited for agriculture, not only for its constantly recurring timber-crop but for its effect upon stream-flow, climate, agriculture, navigation and water-power.

The preservation and development of the forest on these rocky or sandy areas that would otherwise be barren wastes, (as, alas, too many have already become) means the continuance of the industries dependent upon the forest—the second largest group of industries in Canada—and it means the keeping up of the source of timber supply for our railways and our mines, both of which are absolutely dependent upon wood for ties and mine props. It means, too, the increase of tourist traffic, which already brings millions of dollars yearly into Canada and the retention of a great hunting and health resort for the people. These, combined with the advantages of forest in regard to domestic water supply and as refuges for fish and game, show why leading business and professional men in Canada are interested in this Convention.

In Quebec the Canadian Forestry Association numbers on its directorate, in addition to Hon. Mr. Allard (the Ministers of Crown Lands in the different provinces are Vice-Presidents) such well-known forest experts as Messrs. William Little, E. G. Joly de Lotbiniere, E. Stewart (ex-Dominion Superintendent of Forestry), Herbert M. Price, Ellwood Wilson, G. C. Piche (Director of the new Forest School at Laval University), Alex. MacLaurin and Carl. Riordon. The Church in Quebec, realising the vast importance of this subject to its members, has taken a deep interest in it, and His Grace Archbishop Bruchesi is Vice-president for Ungava; while one of the most serious losses ever sustained by the Association was that of the death of Mgr. J. C. K. Laflamme, late rector of Laval, for many years one of its most enthusiastic directors.

Ontario is well represented in the directorate and Hon. Sydney Fisher dealing with this subject from an agricultural standpoint, has lauured unceasingly to advance the interests of the Association.

The Secretary, Mr. James Lawler, Canadian Building, Ottawa, to whom enquiries regarding arrangements may be addressed, will spend considerable time in the City and Province of Quebec until the conventions conferring with the local committee as to the details. The railways have promised special rates and, with the meeting of the Quebec Legislature at the same time as the Convention and meeting of the Commission of Conservation, the Ancient Capital will witness one of the greatest gatherings of this character ever held in Canada.

Stamina in Men and How to Possess It

(From "Man's Maladies.")

A prominent physician being asked the question: "What are the things in life a man needs most?" answered, "Physical health, strong nerves, mental efficiency, money and social success." Any man possessing these five attributes is a success. Any man possessing the first three can be a success and have the other two. Possession of a sound body, with strong nerves is really the requirement which men need most. Men need stamina, courage, staying qualities, endurance and perseverance, but in order to have these qualities the nerves must be strong and keenly sensitive to every emotion. When a man has forebodings, sensations of fear, timidity, accompanied with such symptoms as trembling hands and limbs, weak voice, nervousness, sleeplessness, numbness, dizziness, heart palpitation, restlessness, forgetfulness, melancholia, weariness without cause, and many others of a similar nature, it cannot be expected that he will be a success financially, socially or otherwise.

Strong virile magnetism comes only to those whose nerves are properly nourished in a sound body. Nature in her wisdom has supplied certain extracts, essences, etc., which, if properly blended, will restore a normal keenness to the nerves so that any man can feel the rich, red blood surging through his body supplying all the elements necessary to derive the most out of life in all its various phrases.

For the benefit of those temporarily deficient in nerve strength the following ingredients can be obtained of any good druggist and prepared in the privacy of home. Purchase three ounces of syrup sarsaparilla compound in a six ounce bottle. Add one ounce of compound fluid balmwort, shake and let stand two hours. Then add one ounce tinctire cadomene compound (not cardamom) and one ounce compound essence cardiol. Mix. Shake well and take a teaspoonful after each meal and one when retiring. All distressing symptoms will soon vanish and a complete restoration to normal follows.

BROOM CORN

Considerable interest has been aroused amongst farmers and others in Peterboro County, Ont., in the vicinity of Norwood in broom corn that has been grown this year entirely by Mr. John Doherty, a well known local farmer. The crop was quite a success. Mr. Doherty believes that in view of the fact of broom corn selling in Toronto for $800 a ton, he has in broom corn the prospects of a very profitable crop.

On the invitation of an editor of Farm and Dairy, Mr. Doherty called at the Farm and Dairy office in Peterboro last week, bringing with him samples of the broom corn he had grown this year season. These samples were photographed and may be seen in the illustration herewith, as they were held by Mr. Doherty before the camera.

The seed from which this broom corn was grown was obtained from Indiana. It seems somewhat remarkable that such fine samples of the plant can be grown so far north from this Southern seed. Mr. Doherty believes that he could go on another year with the seed obtained from the crop this year and by means of selection from year to year produce broom corn as good as can be grown. The samples grown by Mr. Doherty were pronounced by a broom expert to be first-class and although slightly short for the largest brooms, was quite suitable for making whisks, brushes and brooms for little girls.

Speaking of his experience with this new crop, Mr. Doherty said: "Our soil is very rich and very early. We have grown hops on some of it for years. I grew five separate plots of broom corn this past year on five different kinds of soil varying from the best to quite poor land. There seemed to be very little difference in the resulting crop in favor of the best land. The straws were longer and the seed was much harder and better developed on the best land.

IT MAKES GOOD FEED

"One thing I like about this crop is that provided one cannot grow it successfully for the purposes of broom making, one still has good feed. It is not so coarse as the ordinary corn. It grows from 10 to 12 feet high and would make fine feed. I have 75 acres of land that will grow this crop. Next year I shall plant two or three acres in order to give the crop a more thorough trial.

"I can remember well when the American corn first came into these parts. Everyone, far and near, went to see the first fields of it that were grown. They all said that it could not be grown. But they soon obtained cobs and on planting seed from these plants, they in a few years obtained strains of corn suitable to the climate and now all grow corn and it is the best feed we have. It looks to me as if this broom corn might turn out ultimately to be a crop quite adapted to our climate.

Two fast and exciting games were played last night in the Intermediate Basketball League. The first game was between the Saw Bones and Shamrocks, and proved to be a see-saw game all through, it being well contested. The Saw Bones' captain rallied his team in the final moments of the game and when the whistle blew for time it was discovered the Saw-Bones had a lead of three points. Score, Saw-Bones 9, Shamrocks 6. Referee—C. Nicholls.

The second game stacked the Maple Leafs against the Burglars, and this game was a see-saw game, the score being no indication of the play, with but two minutes to play, the score was 14 to 13, in the Burglars, true to their name, stole over a few baskets and won the game. Score, Maple Leafs 14, Burglars 21.

Following is the League standing to date:

THE EVENING CHIT-CHAT

By Ruth Cameron

THERE are eight rules for living which have been posted in a nurses' training school in a California hospital.

How would they do for your home?

(1) I will not permit myself to speak while angry, and I will not make a bitter retort to another person who speaks to me in anger.

(2) I will neither gossip about the feelings of another NOR WILL I PERMIT ANY OTHER PERSON TO SPEAK SUCH GOSSIP TO ME. GOSSIP WILL DIE WHEN IT CANNOT FIND A LISTENER.

(3) I will respect weakness and defer to it in the street car, in the department store and in the home, whether it be displayed by man or woman.

(4) I will always express gratitude for any favour or service rendered to me. If prevented from doing it on the spot, then I will seek an early opportunity to give utterance to it in the most gracious way within my power.

(5) I will not fail to express sympathy with another's sorrow or to give hearty utterance to my appreciation of good works by another, whether the party be friendly to me or not.

(6) I will not talk about my personal ailments or misfortunes. They shall be one of the subjects on which I am silent.

(7) I will neither eat nor drink what I know will very best that capability to do my best work, detract from my to be always prepared for the

(8) I will striven happen to me. I will seek to be ready to seize the highest opportunity, to do the noblest work, to rise to the loftiest place which God and my abilities permit.

* * * * *

At different times I have been asked to inveigh against the swinging gait, the protruding hat pins, the gum chewing habit, the flirtations, and ever so many other bad habits that I can't remember all at once, of the American girl.

The latest indictment I am asked to bring against her is her habit of biting her nails.

"Really it is terrible how many well dressed, refined-looking girls one sees on the street cars and elsewhere, with nails bitten right down to the quick," my correspondent assures me.

Personally, I must admit I had not happened to notice the prevalence of this habit, but I can surely join with her in condemning it, if it is prevalent.

A pretty hand is one of those less obtrusive but none the less potent attractions which go to make up the sum total of a woman's charm.

A brilliant skin, noticeable eyes, fluffy hair, good features, a fine figure—these are the striking attractions that make a girl "pretty."

Vividness of expression, a pretty dimple, a smooth, white forehead, a mobile mouth, long eyelashes, a pretty hand—it is things like these that give a girl "charm."

And I have often thought that if I were given the choice I would rather have the things that give charm than those which make up prettiness.

And so, to return to the original indictment, I simply cannot understand how a girl feels she can afford to deform her hands by biting her nails.

Incidentally it may be interesting to anyone who has the habit to know that doctors consider it a sign of degeneracy.

Does any girl want degeneracy written across the tips of her fingers? Course she doesn't.

WHOLE FAMILY SLAIN MAY LYNCH ASSAILANT

Revenge the Motive for Shooting Down Father and Mother and Burning to Death Two Beautiful Children

Examiner Special.

GUILFORD, MO., DEC. 6.—Charged with quadruple murder—the killing of an entire family by shotgun and fire—Hezekiah Rasco has been removed from the county jail at Maryville for fear an enraged countryside will lynch him.

His victims, Ods and Mrs. Hubbell and their two beautiful children, were followed from the little country church to the grave by hundreds of grim neighbours from miles about. The crime, unique and brutal in the annals of Missouri, has stirred the prosperous rural community to a high pitch of excitement, which may easily show itself in violent reprisal when Rasco's trial begins.

Rasco already has served two prison terms, one for the brutal murder of a woman when he was sixteen, the other for horse theft. The motive assigned for the Hubbell murders is revenge and robbery.

On the night preceding the murder, Hubbell, Rasco and others were playing poker in a box car at Guilford. Hubbell won about $200 and when the party broke up Rasco is alleged to have said to Hubbell in anger: "I'll get you yet."

The next night when Hubbell's neighbour, Jamies Lett, and his son were returning from church, they found the Hubbell home in flames and tried to rescue the occupants of the house. A tub of water thrown through the kitchen door cleared that room of flames. When the smoke and steam lifted, Ods Hubbell was found lying on the floor in a pool of blood. Mrs. Hubbell was found dead in the living room under the telephone. She had been shot while trying to summon aid by telephone. The charred bodies of the two children, Jessie, a girl of eight years, and Welten, a boy of six, were beside their little bed in a room upstairs.

Bloodhounds, brought by Deputy Sheriff Evans, were given the scent at another pool of blood outside the kitchen door and took the deputy directly to the home of Rasco's father and upstairs into Hezekiah's room. The latter was arrested and jailed at Maryville, the county seat, but for fear of lynching the prisoner was removed to the jail at St. Joseph.

There was blood on Rasco's clothes and he had borrowed a shirt from another neighbour, Joseph Dayton, on the day of the murder. A shotgun shell, No. 12, gauge, the same as Clayton's gun, was picked up near the ruins of the Hubbell home.

Rasco denies the crime, but tells a flimsy story. He says he borrowed the gun to shoot squirrels and that he got the blood on his clothes when he was helping his father ring hogs. The evidence against him is strongly circumstantial.

POST CARD COLUMN

To the Editor of the Examiner.

Sir,—A certain portion of this community seems to be greatly exercised over the refusal of the Council to extend the exempting of institutions for entertainment for "institutions of entertainment" those in question, certainly are. But the Council has no moral right, even if it had a legal right, to saddle the taxpayers with exemptions without their consent, nor the legislature either. Let the whole question, therefore, go to the taxpayers in January, worded say in this way: "Do you wish institutions of entertainment, under private control to be exempted from taxes"? If they say "No", then the whole question of the exemption of such houses in the past, as well as in the present, will be provided for, and the course of exemption will have to be retraced and cut out, instead of extended. As the matter stands at present, it is a crisis not a settlement, but that settlement must be looked for without delay. Let enthusiasts for exemption remember that the taxpayers of this city are saying that this business has gone too far already. If the whole course, with regard to houses of entertainment, is retraced and we are put back where we were in the beginning, then we shall have peace and the only peace possible, viz., peace with justice to all. Let there be no mistake made about this matter, purposely or otherwise. It is wholly a question of exemption. It may appear to be, and for the moment is, a question of discrimination. The good sense of the community may be thoroughly depended upon to settle the question of discrimination, but not until the question of saddling the unfortunate taxpayers with exemption, is duly and properly settled.

Yours truly,
"One Who Was There."

Editor Post Card Column:

Sir, I was much pleased with the prompt and very practical reply of Principal Downie to my inquiry regarding the fire drill in the Central school. Yesterday's despatches reported a fire in a Hamilton school, stating how quickly the scholars got out of the building. It is gratifying to know that our own schools are in a similar state of efficiency in this regard,

The Rink is Flooded Skating To-morrow Night

Caretaker Jack Thirnbeck took charge of the operations at Brock Street rink last night, when the water was flooded for the first time this season, after having been covered with tar paper and sand to protect the surface. The weather seems to be with the rink people and undoubtedly produced a rubber tread of skating, the thermometer dropping to nine below zero during the night, so there will be skating in the rink to-morrow night, when the rink will be open for the season. The hockeyists will also have their innings as there will be a practice between 7 and 9 o'clock for the C. H. A. players. Season tickets are now on sale at the rink and are much in demand for Christmas presents.

NEW BOOKS

For T. A. S. Library—Eugene Hurtubise Physical Director

St. Peter's T. A. S. has decided to secure a number of new books for their splendid library, which is now one that is indeed a credit to the Society. The books have been carefully selected and a censorship is used in order that no questionable literature should be placed before the young people. The Society has been very fortunate in securing the services of Mr. Eugene Hurtubise as director of the gymnasium, and classes will be commenced at once. The large gym. is well equipped, and with Mr. Hurtubise in charge, promises to be very popular with the members.

NOTICE

All persons having in their possession books belonging to the Public Library which have been retained for a month or over, are requested to kindly return them as soon as possible to the Library, Water St., for purposes of cataloguing and classification. By Order, getting steadily worse, that the Society requested the Department to send down Inspector Gunton, who is associated with J. J. Kelso. In company with George Cochrane, agent for Peterborough, and Constable Williams, of Havelock, Mr. Gunton investigated again several cases, which Messrs. Cochrane and Williams had inquired into previously. It was thought at first that about twenty-four children would have to be removed. However, by taking only the worst cases and warning the others, the number committed by the court was only sixteen. In one old "shack," situated six miles from Havelock, in a barren wilderness, was found a family of five children, with the unfortunate mother and a day-old baby in bed. The house was cold, the fire out, and the children shivering. No doctor had been in attendance, and no one to cut wood, and scarcely any food to eat, and the father, who deserted them some nine months previously, wandering in the north woods, hunting. This father had supplied nothing but 100 lbs. of flour during the last year. He will be arrested soon on a serious charge, preferred by his thirteen year-old daughter. These children were taken charge of and sent to the Peterborough Shelter, the mother being assured it was not a permanent removal, but only until she can be called upon to attend an investigation. Money was given a neighbour to supply bread and a woman left in charge of this unfortunate mother.

The next case was in Havelock Village, where a family of four children were found in an old house, which is certainly unfit for habitation. The food was frozen on the table, although a fire was going in the same room. The children were foul with dirt, as was the father and mother. Their only excuse was that water is scarce. This, however, is not to be believed, in a town so well supplied as Havelock.

In another Havelock house, three women and two men, three of whom are separated from husbands and wife, was found a "Black Pig" and three small children. The man of the house was convicted of selling liquor in a local option town, and the children handed to the Children's Aid Society. Out near Cordova after a sixteen-mile drive, part of which, over a road almost impassible, the officers found a man and woman guilty of bigamy. There were many children, HIS children, HER children, and THEIR children. The woman, in this case, has had a bad record. Three of her children have been taken in the past seven years, and now it was thought a stop should be put to it, when two more illegitimate children were found with her; accordingly, both she and her husband were arrested and committed to jail, charged with bigamy, which they both admit.

Other minor cases were investigated, but the people were given a second chance.

Around Cordova, a large number of children are not attending school, and accordingly many of the young people can neither read nor write.

It will be a great satisfaction to those who made "Tag Day" such a huge success, to know that the money is being used in such needy cases.

Inspector Gunton speaks of Officers Cochrane and Williams as being "as conscientious and careful officers as can be found in Ontario."

HEALING POWER A MARVEL

So remarkable is the healing power of Dr. Chase's Ointment that the results of a single applications are often a marvel to persons who witness them for the first time. Mrs. C. Beattie, St. George, Ont., says her son was cured of blood poisoning which got started in a wound on wood at a threshing. Relief was prompt and cure effected by three boxes.

YULE-TIDE PACKAGES

Sometimes first impressions are lasting, even with Christmas gifts.

Just think for a moment of how disgusted you would be at receiving a gift wrapped in a soiled paper and tied haphazard with a piece of string. The chances are that, no matter how beautiful the gift might prove to be, there will always be a certain something in your mind about the present.

On the other hand, you may receive a very tiny and inexpressive gift, but its dainty exterior appearance will fascinate you to such a degree as to win your approval immediately.

First of all, enclose a dainty little Christmas card bearing your name and good wishes. Then wrap the gift in white tissue paper. Of course if it is a "breakable" it should first be properly packed and then wrapped in paper. Ribbon then should be tastefully tied about the package, and tied in a dainty bow. There are many kinds of ribbon desirable, but first of all plain red suggests itself. It is Christmassy. Green is also much used, as is also white, with sprigs of holly to beautify it. Besides red and green combined, gold and silver cord is also quite popular. Then the package should be tagged and the tag should also bear the imprint of Yuletide. Little labels or "stickers" of Santa Claus heads or holly to fasten down corners of the paper or the ribbon are almost indispensable. Labels of "Please do not open before Christmas" are also much used and are very attractive. If the gift is to be delivered by messenger a spray of holly should not be missing; it will add so much if the gift is to be sent by mail or express the package should be wrapped in heavy paper.

FLEECED LAUDER

Canny Scot Comedian Said to Have Been Separated From $25,000 in Worthless Stock Deal

"BANG WENT SAX PENCE"

WALL STREET, DEC. 7.—Will wonders never cease? It will be hard for you to believe it, but it is true.

Harry Lauder, the greatest exponent of simon pure thrift Broadway ever knew, the man who never let a guilty penny escape, has fallen by the wayside. He has been "separated," disentangled, as it were, and as a result he is out just $25,000.

Robert E. Davie, formerly of Boston, and arrested here, turned the trick. And all the frugal Scot received in return were two full meals and a lot of copper stock of no value. Apropos of the marvellous feat, the following might help a little:

He loved the dollar,
The bonnie U. S. dollar,
And he clung to each dollar that he got.

But a Hub schemer fool him,
And for a big roll bled him,
Harry, the fru—gal Sco t'

Davie, whose age is but 24, is reported to have cleaned up between $250,000 and $300,000 in crooked stock deals in Boston. This alone doesn't warrant his being called "a remarkable young man," as he has been referred to, but getting $25,000 from Lauder brands him as a youth deserving of the title, "Napoleon of Finance."

BUYS COFFIN, HANGS HIMSELF

Old Prospector, After Years of Preparation, Ends His Life

BOULDER, MONT., DEC. 9.—After contemplating suicide for eight years, George Hulden, eighty-three, a prospector who lived at the Ruby mine, about thirty miles from here, hanged himself with a rope, kicking out from beneath him a coffin box, which, with a coffin, the aged man had purchased in Butte some time ago for his own use.

For years Hulden had been blasting a tomb for himself out of the solid rock, working at odd moments, and his often repeated wish to his son and friends was that his body be interred in this stone sepulchre.

Following Hulden's purchase of his coffin and the completion of the tomb, his cat kept watch over him, but the aged man eluded the boy, and when the latter found him swaying from the limb of the pine tree close to the tomb, the body was still warm.

WOMAN THREE TIMES SAID THAT SHE WOULD KILL HER HUSBAND

Sensational Evidence in the Glover Murder Trial — Witness Says Widow Tried to Force Girl to Confess.

SOMETIMES BEAT HER

Cambridge, Mass., Dec. 9.—The defence in the trial of Hattie Leblanc, the little Cape Breton girl who is on trial for the murder of Clarence F. Glover, the Waltham laundry proprietor, opened with sensations yesterday. A. Farley Brewer, for the defence, declared in his opening address that the defence would show that some one beside the prisoner had the opportunity, the motive and the ability to commit the crime, and M. M. Johnson, senior counsel for the girl, called District Attorney Higgin as the first witness for the defence. Mr. Higgins declined to acquiesce, the jury was sent from the room, and a heated argument followed. Mr. Johnson declared that the prosecution had kept material witnesses off the stand, had introduced one witness who showed great bias, and had done everything he could to prevent the defence from properly preparing its case. Mr. Higgins denied the allegations, and retorted that Mr. Johnson had kept witnesses for the defence locked up so that the prosecution could not interview them. Judge Bond finally ruled that the district attorney need not take the stand, and the jury was recalled.

Evidence was later introduced to show that Mrs. Glover had three times threatened to shoot her husband.

Mr. Brewer in his opening address spoke of the mystery surrounding the death of Glover and declared that Hattie Leblanc was brought to the Glover home designedly.

"Somebody," he continued, "killed Clarence Glover and did it with a cold and deliberate purpose. Others had the opportunity to kill him and we shall show that one other in particular had opportunity, motive and ability."

Hattie, he asserted, had no motive for killing Glover. The defence, he said, would not attempt to defend the relations between Glover and Hattie which he said, "may or may not have been proper."

A firearms expert testified that the revolver with which Glover was killed could not backfire, this tending to show that alleged marks on Hattie's hand could not have been received in that way.

Mrs. Kate Sampson, a witness for the defence, said Mrs. Glover had made three threats while visiting her at Auburndale, and that she appeared enraged because, as she alleged, she had found her husband insulting Hattie Leblanc, who was working in their home, in the bathroom.

The witness said also that Mrs. Glover told her of having repeatedly beaten Hattie, and that once Mrs. Glover brought Hattie to the home of the witness and struck her under the chin, in an attempt to make her confess that she had acted improperly with Glover.

On cross-examination, Mrs. Sampson adhered to her story of the threats, but said that Hattie had denied the bathroom incident.

The final witness of the day, Hattie Leblanc's sister, Mrs. Irene Leblanc Langley, said Mrs. Glover had shown her three notes which she had written, in which she declared that she wished to rid herself of her husband, and would do it. On the night before the murder Mrs. Langley testified Mrs. Glover forbade her husband to come into the house to supper, and exclaimed that if he did come in it would be the last supper he would ever eat.

Coal Stays Up.

Philadelphia, Dec. 9.—The United States Circuit Court for the eastern district of Pennsylvania yesterday decided that there is no general conspiracy among the anthracite coal-carrying railroads or coal companies to restrain trade or commerce, or to monopolize the trade, or to maintain certain prices.

It decided, however, that the Temple Iron Co. is a combination of anthracite coal-carrying railroads, in violation of the Sherman anti-trust law, and granted the prayer of the Government for an injunction, restraining that corporation from continuing in violation of the act.

The exact substance of the decision is that the Government wins only one of several points, that in the Temple Iron Co. case, and that the defendants will not be compelled to change the present prices of coal, as a result of the court's decision.

Magistrate Smith, Dunkirk District, postponed sentence for four months, but was born at Ridgeway, Ont. He was arrested by J. H. Bond, provincial constable of Bridgeburg, in Buffalo, on Monday night. The others also pleaded guilty to the same count. Magistrate Smith, Dunkirk District, postponed sentence for four months, but

THE TIGHT RACE STILL CONTINUES

Fifth Day of the British Elections Saw the Parties Running Neck and Neck

CHURCHILL WINS

London, Dec. 9.—The fifth day of the elections ended with the parties still running neck and neck, and with the prospect that they will come under the wire in almost precisely the same relative position they held at the start. Returns had been received up to midnight from the voting for 419 members, and the result is a Union gain of two seats in that number over those held by that party in the last Parliament.

This amazing result is unprecedented in English history as it is embarrassing to politicians of all factions. Both parties predicted great gains, but are now convinced that the new House of Commons will be practically identical with the old. The Conservatives argue that Premier Asquith's bid for a sweeping endorsement from the country, and has not obtained it; therefore, he cannot be justified in fastening upon the nation such radical changes as home rule and the disarming of the House of Lords. The coalitionists insist that the voters, by returning them to power, endorse their policies, and direct them to carry out their program in its entirety.

Forty-four seats were balloted for yesterday. Returns were received from 21 of these, and from 44 which were balloted for Wednesday. In these 65 the Liberals gained Radnorshire and Bedford, while the Unionists gained Eskdale. The contests were close nearly everywhere. The Unionists continue to cut down the Liberal majority, and to make numerical gains all along the line, but insufficient to turn out the Liberal members.

Winston Churchill, the Home Secretary, was returned by Dundee, but about 1,500 votes shifted to the Unionist column. The indications are that the O'Brienites are cutting down the strength of the Redmondites in most sections of Ireland.

Heavy rains last night, coupled with a delay in the reports, decreased the general enthusiasm.

At Belfast rioting followed the closing of the polls. There was much stone throwing, and many windows were broken. Police reinforcements were turned out, and quelled the trouble.

O'Brien and Healy have issued the following message to the British people, with reference to the election in Cork:

"Cork has declared itself emphatically for a policy conciliating our Protestant fellow-countrymen, for uniting all ranks and classes in an appeal to the good feeling of the English people in favor of financial justice to Ireland, for the re-establishment of land purchase, and for the handing over to friendly united Ireland legislative control of their own domestic affairs."

Asquith, addressing workmen at the Guard Bridge Paper Works, said to reduce the Lords to the position of a subordinate chamber was the whole point of this election.

Strong Medicine for Detective.

Toronto, Dec. 9.—Rumors of a bomb having exploded in the office of Walter Duncan, inspector of detectives, and resulting in injuries to the inspector, resulted in a wild dash on the part of people near by into the room where Mr. Duncan holds forth. Crown Attorney Corley had given out the following statement, and no one for a moment thought of disbelieving.

The bomb turned out to be a bottle of strong smelling pink liquid which the inspector has been imbibing for some time in the hope of curing a slight attack of ptomaine poisoning. He lifted it up yesterday morning to have his little nip when the cork blew out and spattered his coat with medicine. Thinking that the safest thing to do was to put the cork back in he tried it, and the bottom of the bottle blew out with even more velocity. This process had the pleasing effect of spattering his neatly creased pantaloons with every drop of the pink liquid that his coat had received, and the bottle explosion was a complete success.

Wolves.

The wolf in England disappeared about 1400. In Scotland wolves were numerous in 1577. According to Pennant they became extinct in 1680.

Hunting Seals.

The Swedish seals thrown from the market, while hot as valuable as the ermine, is costly enough to prevent its becoming common, some coats being valued as high as $2,000 each. They range in size from fifteen to twenty inches in length and five to eight inches in breadth.

The Noisy Stone.

The whistling stone common on the beds of mountain streams, on the Bay shore county, Australia, is the only stone known to emit a sound on the application of heat.

For the Children

Interesting Family of Five Clever Boys.

One of the most interesting families in the diplomatic corps and, for that matter, in the whole city of Washington is that of Count de Buisseret, the minister from Belgium. The children are great favorites at the national capital, where they have become known through their skill as linguists and musicians. The children are all boys, and there are five of them. Even the youngest is a good musician, for their education began at an early age. On occasions when the count and countess entertain the youngsters are often called upon to show their skill in music, and so well do they perform that their efforts have won universal commendation.

Who Was Touched?

The two players who know the secret remain in the room long enough for the trick to be made sure.

One stands in a corner, and the other in the middle of the room calls out, "Ebenezer, do you hear?" Ebenezer says nothing, but listens attentively to hear who among the company speaks first. The other partner repeats the question, and still no answer. Some one will be likely to make a remark soon, and then Ebenezer will rouse up and answer. "Yes, I hear." "Then leave the room," says the other player, and Ebenezer goes out. The partner then makes a great show of choosing which one he shall touch, but of course ends by touching the person who first spoke after the game began. This done, Ebenezer is called in to say who was touched, and every one is puzzled to know how he can tell.

My Lady's Toilet.

The players are all seated except one, for whom no chair must be provided.

Each player takes the name of some article of a lady's toilet—her necklace, chain, bracelets, rings, comb, gloves, hat, shoes, gown, etc. One stands in the center as lady's maid and says, "My lady is going out and wants her hat." The hat must instantly jump up and spin around. If she forgets to do so she pays a forfeit. Each article must spin around when "wanted." Occasionally the lady's maid says, "My lady wants her toilet changed," when all the players must rise and change seats. In the scuffle the center player tries to get a seat. If she succeeds the one left chairless becomes lady's maid for the next turn.

The Ticket Collector.

One of the boys in the back of the room was evidently thinking of something besides his lesson.

So the teacher, merely to attract his attention, put the question:

"Harry, can you tell me where Noah was when the animals were going into the ark?"

"Guess he was takin' tickets," was the prompt response.

Corner Ball.

Four players stand on the four angles of a square and the four adversaries in the center. The ball is passed from one to another of the players in the corners and finally thrown at the central players. Those hit, if they can catch the ball, may fling it back. If the player in the corner hits a central player the latter is out, and vice versa.

The Thieving Magpie.

A few weeks ago a large tree in England in which several magpies had nested for years was blown down during a gale, and in a hollow which was subsequently was found over $500 worth of silverware stolen from various houses. The principal thing was a diamond ring worth $300. The largest article was a silver teakettle.

Ink on Marble.

Try removing ink stains from marble with lemon juice.

The Wig.

The wig is older than civilization, for the Assyrian used one to hide his more favorable on the head of Assyria. The French favorably adopted the article as a means of beautifying. Before the continental fad in France and Spain which followed the heads of the rich men were bald as eggs.

SHIP IN BAD WAY.

Crew Are Rescued But Dunelm May Go to Pieces.

Port Arthur, Dec. 9.—Captain Atkinson and the 21 members of the crew of the Inland Navigation Co.'s steamer Dunelm, which stranded early on Wednesday morning on Black's Point, Isle Royal, were brought to Port Arthur yesterday evening by the Canadian Towing & Wrecking Co.'s tug Whalen, which, with the lighter Empire, left for the scene of the disaster in the afternoon.

They report the steamer resting easily, with her bow on the rocks, but in an exposed position, where she might be broken up, if heavy seas commenced to run. The hull is badly punctured in the forward part, but water has not reached the cargo. In addition to the danger of the boat being broken up, it is also possible that she may slip off the rocks and sink in deep water. It was impossible when the tug Whalen left for the lighter Empire to start taking off the cargo, but the Empire is standing by ready to start that work when it is considered advisable.

It was in a snowstorm Wednesday morning that the steamer Dunelm lost her way in endeavoring to get through the passage of the island gap. She could not pick up the light or whistle on Passage Island, and endeavored to turn back.

Shortly after she struck the rocks the U. S. steamer Squires, which followed the Dunelm out of port, had a narrow escape from the same fate, and seeing the Dunelm going aground, used her wireless to send word of the accident to Duluth, from where it was sent overland to Port Arthur.

Kingston, Dec. 9.—The cargo of the Dunelm is owned by James Richardson & Sons of this city, and was the last cargo the company was handling from Fort William this navigation season. The cargo is fully insured. The steamer and cargo are valued at $250,000.

THE FISH EXPERTS' SESSION

International Fisheries Commission Holds Conference at Ottawa—Government Will Not Close the Rideau Canal

DEPUTATION PRESENT

Ottawa, Dec. 8.—The International Fisheries Commission met yesterday in Ottawa in the rooms of Hon. Mr. Brodeur, House of Commons. The sessions will continue for three days, and will conclude on Saturday.

The commission consists of the U.S. commissioner, David Starr Jordan, the famous fishery expert, and Prof. E. E. Prince, Canada's leading expert on international and scientific fishery questions.

The object of the conference, it is understood, is to thoroughly discuss certain controversial matters arising out of the system of fishery regulations, which Profs. Jordan and Prince were authorized to frame under treaty of 1908 between Great Britain and the United States, for the settlement of fishery difficulties in the contiguous international waters from the Atlantic coast along the great lakes to the Pacific coast.

Members of the Saskatchewan Fisheries Commission, of which Prof. Prince is chairman, are also here drawing up their report.

Hon. Walter Scott, Premier of Saskatchewan, arrived yesterday to attend the conference of the Dominion Premiers in respect to the question of representation in the Federal House.

Prof. Prince has just received word that the University of St. Andrew's, Scotland, has appointed him the representative of Canada on the international committee which has been formed at the suggestion of Lord Rosebery, the lord rector of the university, in connection with the celebration of the 500th anniversary of the university.

Hon. George P. Graham, Minister of Railways and Canals, told a deputation yesterday morning, in effect, that the Rideau Canal would not be closed up at Ottawa. He said the Government had not considered the question of closing up the canal, for the simple reason that it had not been asked to do so.

Without committing the Government in any way, he would say that it would be a pretty large order for any company to ask of the Government to close up any portion of the canal, from the St. Lawrence to the Ottawa. If a company came and offered an alternative outlet, that might be a different matter, but there was a history about the old Rideau Canal, he said, which would make him, for one, not very ready to interfere with it.

The deputation also asked that the Rideau waterway be improved. The canal is a military defence work, which was built by British soldiers and handed over to the Dominion Government. The C.P.R. wants the Ottawa end of it, in order to build a tunnel through the city.

Conference of Premiers.

Ottawa, Dec. 9.—Premier Walter Scott of Saskatchewan has arrived at Ottawa to take part in the conference of Provincial Premiers. Other representatives who have arrived to take part in the celebration include Sir James Whitney, Ontario; Hon. Robert Rogers, representing Manitoba; Sir Lomer Gouin, Premier of Quebec; Premier Hazzard, Prince Edward Island; Premier Hazen, New Brunswick; and Hon. A. K. McLean, acting Premier of Nova Scotia.

Sir James Whitney last evening expressed the view that the conference would be brief, and that talking would mostly be confined to the representatives of the Maritime Provinces, who are anxious to reach an agreement whereby there will be no further reduction in their representation in the Federal House.

Young Girls Arrested.

Toronto, Dec. 9.—Bertha Sear, 17 years, and Agnes Bush, 16 years old, were arrested yesterday by Detective Miller, charged with wholesale thefts from the T. Eaton store.

After their arrest, the detective recovered about $400 worth of rings, pins, furs, mufflers and glasses of their robbing at 227 East King street.

He observed the girls selling valuable goods in a second-hand store and suspected that all was not as it should be.

Mary Morrison, Winnipeg, was arrested yesterday by Detective Tyrell charged with stealing an ostrich plume from the Eaton store.

Navigation of the Fraser.

Ottawa, Dec. 8.—A delegation from British Columbia was the Prime Minister and Hon. Mr. Templeman, Hon. Dr. Pugsley and Hon. Mr. Oliver, and asked for the improvements of the north and south arms of the Fraser River near New Westminster, so that navigation would be possible. The delegation was told that the Government favored the improvement of this river, and had already made a commencement with a dredge.

Perch Slimmers in Detroit.

Detroit, Dec. 9.—Perch climbers on Wednesday night entered the residence of Mrs. J. Elizabeth Buhl, widow of the late Theodore D. Buhl, 240 Jefferson avenue, while the family were at dinner, and escaped with $4,000 worth of jewelry and diamonds.

Ten Years For Assault.

Quebec, Dec. 9.—Mr. Justice Cimon, presiding in the court at Frasserville yesterday, sentenced Joseph Lavoie to a year of ten years in St. Vincent de Paul Penitentiary for rape and assault. The prisoner, in the case was so convincing that the hearing of the case was short, and after retiring for fifteen minutes, the jury returned to the court and rendered a verdict of guilty. Before passing sentence, Judge Cimon severely censured the prisoner, reminding him that leniency was not shown for his abhorrent crime.

Farmers to Get Hydro Power.

London, Dec. 9.—Speaking yesterday to the Middlesex County Council, Hon. Adam Beck announced the Government's plan for supplying power to farmers. Low rental rates are to be charged, he added. It also was the proposition of the Government would adopt the same principle as the municipal telephone system, so if farmers could go to the County Council and have a telephone line erected; paying for it on the same basis as a local improvement, so would the Government foster the power lines.

"It is quite the Government would be but the financial affairs of the people. We will grant the low interest rates, which you will pay all at the rate of four per cent. So the Government pulling the Government at the end of fifteen or twenty years, to give some interest on money loaned.

IN THE WORLD OF SPORT

Junior Hockey Players To Meet At The Rink

With the Brock Street Rink flooded and the nip of the frost in the air the hockey enthusiasts are beginning to feel right in their element, and there will likely be a big bunch of junior O. H. A. players at the meeting called for to-night at the rink by the junior commitee. The executive wishes every junior player in the city who wishes to play the game this year to be on hand at to-night's meeting in order that they may get a line on the material that is in sight.

SOME HOCKEY HAPPENINGS

Varsity will likely enter a team in the junior O.H.A. as they have plenty of material, including Webster and Clarkson, of the Simcoes, Caldwell, who played cover for the snior O.H.A. team last year; Pete Campbell, of Trinity school; Jack Maynard, of Stratford, and other cracks. This matter will be decided within the next few days, if ice can be secured.

CHICAGO, DEC. 8.—Although it hurt him considerably to admit it, Jack Johnson, heavyweight champion of the world, had to confess to-day that he was "licked" last night by half-a-dozen husky stage hands at the La Salle Theatre, when he tried to invade the stage "to see a friend."

Johnson created such a commotion outside the theatre in the lobby after he was thrown out, that 500 people gathered to watch the dispute. Madison street was blocked for 20 minutes by the crowd that wanted to see the heavyweight champion "get his."

Johnson, with his wife, occupied a stage box at the performance of "The Sweetest Girl in Paris." During one of the intermissions Johnson sent his card back to Alex. Carr, a member of the company, whom Johnson said was a "friend." Carr sent word back he was too busy to come to the Johnson box, whereupon the fighter decided to go to Carr's dressing room, although not invited to do so.

When he reached the stage door Johnson was stopped by the doorkeeper, but forced his way on to the stage. There he was met by one of the managers, who asked him to withdraw. Johnson refused, and half-a-dozen stage hands threw him out into the alley behin the theatre. The fighter made his way to the front of the house, and demanded admission back to his box. This was refused, and Johnson started a scene. His wife, who heard of the disturbance, joined him in the lobby and finally induced him to enter his automobile and drive away.

GOTCH ARRIVES IN CHICAGO

CHICAGO, DEC. 8.—Frank Gotch, world's wrestling champion, who has defended his title successfully against the invasion of foreign grapplers since he wrested the championship from Hackenschmidt in 1908, and who announced his retirement from the mat game when he threw Zybszko at the Coliseum last winter, arrived in Chicago yesterday from his home in Humboldt, Ia., to look after some personal business, and to be a spectator at the Hackenschmidt - Westergaard match at the Coliseum.

The first statement which Gotch made to several friends who were eager to find out if he would be willing to consider a match with Hackenschmidt was to the effect that he is through with the wrestling game forever, and that there is not enough money in the world to bring him back onto the mat. He asserted he tries to convince followers of the wrestling game last winter when he beat Zyszko that he had retired, and he intends to stand by that announcement.

Through With the Mat Game.

"I am through with the mat game" Gotch said in answer to a number o queries about his future plans. " made this announcement last winter and I am going to show the world that I was sincere in making th statement. Since I beat Hackenschmidt I never have hesitated to meet any man whom the public demanded that I should wrestle, and have defended my title against th best grapplers the European countries could produce.

"I am earning from $10,000 to $15,000 a year in my business in Iowa and I have made enough out of the mat game to keep me comfortable the rest of my life. You must realize that I could not be champion forever, and the time is coming when some strong young fellow would surely beat me. As I gave the public the best I had while I was in the game, I think it is only just that I retire with the honours which I have worked so hard to win. I have always wrestled on the square, have thrown my opponents as quickly as possible, and I think my match with Zybszko upholds me in this statement.

Turns Down Big Offer.

"Just a short time ago W. W Witting, who promoted my championship match with Hackenschmidt, offered me $30,000 for a fifteen weeks' theatrical engagement and $20,000 more if I would agree to wrestle the man he named. If I intended to go back in the game I surely would have accepted this offer, but I am through with wrestling forever. The sportsmanlike manner in which Hackenschmidt is going about things since he came over is a source of great pleasure to me. He certainly came over to meet me and when he heard I had retired he has not made any efforts to force me into a match. I wish Hackenschmidt all the luck in the world while he is over here."

Gotch said he was about fifteen pounds heavier than his usual wrestling weight, but he looks fit to grapple with any of them.

ODDITIES OF THE WEEK'S NEWS

WHAT THE DOG BROUGHT HOME

Count Seefried who is a relation of the Austrian Emperor, got the biggest scare of his life one day recently when he discovered the head of a young girl lying on his writing-table in his castle at Rosenberg, in Hungary. His servants could give no explanation, and declared that no stranger had entered the castle. The police were immediately informed of the matter, and thinking it might be intended as a warning from some secret society the countryside was scoured for possible murderers. At length the headless body of a girl, who had apparently been run over by a train, was found near a railway embankment. As a retriever belonging to the Count had been seen in that neighbourhood, it is presumed that its instinct as a sporting dog had induced the animal to bring the head to its master's room.

GIRL WITH A BIRD'S THROAT

Doctors and musicians alike have been puzzled and amazed by the unique formation of the throat of a little Ballara girl named Vida G. Manley, who trills like Melba, whistles like a canary, and sings like no other human songstress in Australia.

The child is only six years of age, and is as yet unspoiled by the publicity which the comments of medical men and the press have secured for her unique gift. The parents have agreed to their little one being tested in every way. Mrs. Manley has other children, but none have a throat formation similar to Vida. In an interview the mother stated that one day when her daughter was only two years of age she suddenly warbled like a canary and ever since had retained at command this peculiar power.

NOVEL WAY TO MARKET POULTRY

The toll levied by roadside poultry owners on motorists in the natural order of things is heavy, but a French peasant has hit on an idea which if it becomes general will be a terror indeed to wheelmen. This farmer has taught his birds to answer the horn at feeding time, and by a singular coincidence feeding time is whenever a motor is passing. Out goes the peasant and sounds his horn. The fowls hasten to obey the call, and one or more fall victims. The motorist pays, generally about double their value, and the farmer is spared the trouble of sending his birds to market.

NEW FORM OF ADVERTISING

Alpine visiters are threatened with a new pest in the form of aerial advertising from balloons and aeroplanes. An Italian aeronaut ascended in a balloon at Montreux the other week and scattered hundreds of advertising leaflets over the country. When he had attracted the attention of the entire populace, he dropped towards the lake at Bonport. The spectators, who saw him descend with frightful rapidity, believed that he was the victim of an accident, but the aeronaut dived into the lake when fifty feet above the surface and swam ashore unhurt. The "accident" was a part of the advertisement.

"IF THERE BE ROOM"

A Paris contemporary gives an example of curious errors in inscriptions. A Caen maker of mortuary wreaths was requested to place on the ribbon "Rest in Peace, Au Revior." Two hours later his client desired to add to the tribute and sent a telegraphic message with the request to add the words after "peace," "in Heaven," if there be room on the ribbon. The letterer was equal to the occasion, and improved upon it, so the mourners had the consolation of knowing that their good wishes were provisional, for the legend read:—"Rest in Peace in Heaven, if there be room, Au Revoir."

POLICE IN PACKING CASES

Exercising considerable ingenuity, Preston police effected the arrest of a man last week whom they suspected of street betting. Warrant-sergeant Yardley and three other warrant officers secreted themselves in two large packing cases, which were placed upon a cart. They were then driven along the principal street for nearly an hour and through perforations in the sides of the cases saw the man they were watching taking bets. As the cart travelled over cobblestones the position of the officers was extremely uncomfortable, but they at last stopped the vehicle and arrested the man.

BOY AND GIRL DIVORCE CASE

What would appear to be the youngest divorced couple in the world is to be found in Abyssinia. Last year the Princess Romanie Obouk was married to the Prince Lidj Evasu, the heir apparent, the bride then being eight years old and the bridegroom fourteen. The princess happens to be the niece of the Empress Taitu, and this lady is not popular with the regents of the country. So to prevent the empress exercising any baneful influence upon the future ruler's wife, the statesmen recently required the prince to divorce her.

BABY'S STRANGE DEATH

The ten-month-old baby of William Rodgers, an Essex (Eng.) labourer met its death in a peculiar way the other week. The mother had put the baby to bed, and to prevent her falling out had fastened a man's tie through the neck of child's pinafore, and on to the bedpost. An hour later, when the mother returned to the bedroom, she found the child hanging from the bedpost quite dead. The means of safety provided by the mother had proved a veritable hangman's rope to the little one.

THE CAT CAME HOME

The story of a cat's remarkable journey comes from Wycombe Marsh, Buckinghamshire, England, which seems to indicate a marvellous sense of direction. Some few weeks ago the feline went amissing. The owner surmised that the animal had been stolen or had strayed away, but the other day communication was received from some friends to the effect that the cat had returned to its old home at St. Neots, Huntingdonshire, a distance of about ninety miles.

Rather Buy Booze Than Get Water

HAMILTON, DEC. 8.—It has cost the foreign boarding house keepers of Hamilton a small fortune to learn the liquor law. Two more cases of ignorance of the act were in Police Court to-day, as a result of the vigilance of Inspector Sturdy. Rosa Attelo and Mirk Page were charged with having an illegal quantity of liquor in their premises.

Mrs. Attelo's husband appeared for her, and every turn the case took against him he offered a new excuse. The first was that he had 21 boarders in the house, and that they bought the liquor without consulting him. Attelo even volunteered to march the 21 boarders from Irondale to court to-morrow to prove that what he said was true.

"That would not do any good. The boarders should not have it. You must not have any more in the house than is required for the use of yourself and family," said Magistrate Jelfs.

The ordinary lawyer would have pulled his forelock and argued, but Attelo with a smile of triumph, told an interpreter that there was no water in his house, and that the boarders and himself drank beer in preference to walking to the bay or neighbors for water.

His Worship smiled. "That is a far better plea than the others," he said; "but I'm going to fine you $50. The next time the fine will be $50."

A TIME TO LAUGH

"Well, there were only three boys in school to-day who could answer one question, that the teacher asked us, said a proud boy of eight to his mother.

"And I hope my boy was one of the three," said the proud mother.

"Well, I was," anawered Young Hopeful, "and Sam Harris and Harry Stone were the other two."

"I am very glad you proved yourself so good a scholar, my son; It makes your mother proud of you. What question did the teacher ask, Johnnie?"

"Who broke the glass in the back window?"

"I see you have your arm in a sling," said the inquisitive passenger. "Broken, is it?"

"Yes, sir," responded the other passenger.

"Meet with an accident?"

"No. Broke it while I was trying to pat myself on the back."

"Great Scott! What for?"

"For minding my own business."

"I see. Never could happen to me, could it?"

"No."

"And if it did, I wouldn't be blame fool enough to tell it."

Then there was silence in the car.

"Father?"

"Well, what is it?"

"It says here: A man is known by the company he keeps. Is that so, father?"

"Yes, yes, yes."

"Well, father, if a good man keeps company with a bad man, is the good man bad because he keeps company with the bad man, and is the bad man good because he keeps company with the good man?"

Nine-year-old Linnie was taken to her first classical concert the other night.

"How did you like it, Dot?" inquired papa, who had been too busy to attend.

"Most of it was tiresome," said the child, "but there was one lady who gargled just beautifully."

SOLD

A well known German, who is something of a wag, walked into one of the public offices in Cincinnati the other day, and from the noise it was plain that he was wearing a pair of new shoes, or ones that had recently been repaired.

One of the clerks remarked about the noise and the German said:

"I gomme pretty near selling dese shoes like other day."

"How is that?" asked the clerk.

"I had 'em half soled," said the German, as he walked out of the office.

A deep groan was heard as he slipped through the door.

A New York politician once found it necessary to attend an entertainment at an orphans' home and he was having a bad time of it. The selection by the boys' band was particularly distressing. Turning to a friend the politician said with a shudder, "No wonder they are orphans."

"Now, Tommie," said the teacher, "you may give me an example of a coincidence."

"Why—er," said Tommie, with some hesitation, "why—er—why—me fadder and me mudder was both married on the same day."

"I teach my parrot only short words."

"Do you? I should think parrots better adapted to polysyllables."

"Pa, what is a philosopher?"

"A philosopher, my boy, is one who tells other people that their troubles don't amount to much."

THE CHRISTMAS MINCE MEAT

High time to have Christmas mince meat under way in order that it may be properly "ripened" by the national holiday. Just here is pleasant work for the children. Let them help with the seeding of the raisins, the shredding of the peel, and the chopping of the apples. If allowed to take a moderate toll as the work progresses, and more particularly if allowed to "work in flocks," or at least with a few congenial souls, the work will progress as by magic. It is cooked reduced to a jelly-like consistency. Set away over night to cool in the stock and take off the fat before morning. The suet for pies should have all the bits of stringy fibre removed, then be sprinkled with flour and chopped fine. One-third butter and two-thirds suet give a better flavor than suet alone. Many good cooks boil raisins that they are going to use in pies, adding the water in which they are cooked to the mince meat.

For the mince meat allow to three pounds of finely chopped beef, weighed after cooking, six pounds of apples chopped rather coarsely, one-third pound of butter, two-thirds of a pound of suet, four pounds of sugar, four pounds of seeded raisins, three pounds of currants, washed and dried, three pints of sweet cider, three pints of boiled cider, one quart of the stock in which the beef was boiled, six heaping teaspoonfuls of salt, one pint of molasses, one teaspoonful of pepper, a half pound of shredded citron, the same quantity of candied orange and lemon peel mixed, and a quart and a half of jelly or juice of preserves. Cook about half an hour, just long enough to be sure the meat is thoroughly scalded, pack in stone jars or glass cans and stow away in a cool place. When ready to make the pies scatter a few fresh plump raisins over the top of each pie before putting on the upper crust, and if not quite moist enough add a little more cider or fruit juice, cold tea, or coffee.

CHRISTMAS SHOPPING HAS BEGUN IN LOCAL STORES

Peterborough Merchants Have a Full Stock and Anticipate a Good Yule-tide Trade.

RUSH HAS BEGUN

The spirit of Christmas has taken hold of Peterborough, and nothing is needed to make the Yuletide season a complete success. Good sleighing is needed to bring the farmers to the city in large numbers, and the merchants are grateful to Old Probs for sending along a good snow storm.

Shop early and often, says the philosopher. The merchants are already beginning to feel the result of the Christmas trade. Of course, it is not by any means heavy as yet, but every day sees an increase, and if there is a rush that is not now, it seems there will be something doing later on. Merchants are looking for a good trade this season. All the stores are quite decorated, and are most inviting.

The old motto of "shop early," should be adhered to. It is a well-known fact that the early shopper gets the very best there is to be had. Every shopper knows that if he goes into a store just a few days before Christmas he will find that everything has been picked over, and that there is very little choice in what has been left.

A merchant was asked by the Examiner if he thought the people were doing their shopping earlier this season.

"Yes," he replied, "I believe they are. In our store, we have been quite busy, and it would appear as if the other stores have been busy, too."

The newspapers have, no doubt, suggested the people to the advantage of doing one's Christmas shopping early. When people begin to realize that goods are more or less damaged the last week of the rush and that there is not the same variety there will be a still greater effort to shop early.

There are many very pretty window displays in the city. And what is more attractive than a pretty window? It is a great advertisement for stores which have men hired especially to do this class of work but this is the time. A window, nicely dressed, is sure to catch the eye. "What shall I give for a Christmas gift?" This is a question that is agitating a good many minds these days. The best way to settle this question is to go out and take a walk through the stores of the city. You will be sure to see something which will appeal to you. And don't forget, "shop early."

The Band will play at the Street Railway Rink to-night.

Song Service At The Crystal

The Crystal Theatre will be the scene of another bright song service on Sunday night. Last Sunday the theatre was well filled and it is hoped that next Sunday night there will be a still larger crowd. The leader has introduced a brief Bible reading, not more than five minutes, but it is interesting. There will be a male solo by one of the city's good singers and the quartette will sing "Remember Me." You can drop in at any time and leave as it suits you.

Last night an orchestra was organized in connection with the Y.M.C.A. The officers will be: President, Mr. Mendel Green, vice-president, Mr. Brayshaw; and secretary-treasurer, Mr. C. Green. The purpose is to make this organization a musical club, for the purpose of encouraging the study and practice of good music. The next meeting of the club will be held next Friday night at 8 o'clock sharp, when the Executive committee will submit a constitution for the approval of the club.

The Sunday morning Bible Study Club will meet as usual on Sunday morning at 9.30. The leader has been asked to change the hour of the club, but he believes that a man who cannot get up in time to attend a Bible class at that hour has very little possibilities in him, and a Bible class would only serve to make his responsibility the more keenly felt.

The Band will play at the Street Railway Rink to-night.

WEDDING BELLS

HOOD—HENRY.

A quiet but pretty wedding took place at the Knox church manse this afternoon at 3 o'clock, when Miss Mary Elizabeth Henry was united in the bonds of holy matrimony to Mr. Geo. Apsey Biggs, formerly of St. John, Newfoundland. The ceremony was performed by Rev. H. J. Keith.

After the ceremony the young couple went to the home of the bride's parents, 187 Bethune street, where a sumptuous wedding repast was in wait for them. Mr. and Mrs. Biggs will reside at 418 Park street, city.

"FANCY CHEESE IN AMERICA"

From Farm and Dairy.

A most interesting and instructive book entitled "Fancy Cheese in America," is Dr. Chas. A. Publow's latest book, a copy of which has recently been received by Farm and Dairy. Dr. Publow, as Ontario people well know, is one of the leading authorities on cheese making. The book tells the cheesemaker, the farmer's wife or the city house keeper just how to make 40 varieties of fancy cheese,—the kinds that are mostly imported from Europe and can just as well be made in this country.

Like other books of Dr. Publow's, "Fancy Cheese in America," does not preach theory. It is a practical handbook, easily understood by the layman as well as by the professional cheesemaker. Every one who reads Farm and Dairy will be interested in this book, which is handsomely bound in green cloth with neat gold lettering. It may be secured through Farm and Dairy for the low price of 75 cents. Send your order to the Book Department, Farm and Dairy, Peterboro, Ont.

In the Nov. 17 issue of Farm and Dairy an error was made in stating that the test had been used in dividing the proceeds at the Elma factory, Atwood, Ont., for 23 years. It should have been 20 years.—R. A. Thompson, Atwood, Ont.

HORSE THIEVES KILL INDIANS

WASHINGTON, DEC. 8.—Fourteen Indians are supposed to have been killed and their bodies, with those of their horses, buried in two trenches in Elk County, Nevada, according to a communication sent to the Department of Justice by T. Barley Lee, Prosecuting Attorney for Cassius County, Idaho, who seeks the department's aid in bringing the murderers, who are said to be white horse thieves, to justice.

The attorney writes that his informers are three Indians, whose wives and children were among those "slaughtered by white men and their bodies concealed and burned."

Coincident with the report of the murder, according to Attorney Lee's letter, three bad characters disappeared from the vicinity of the crime, one of whom brought the first report of a crime having been committed.

Rumors of the massacre drifted into Albion, Idaho, last June, according to Mr. Lee. Upon investigation, an old wagon and two trenches hastily covered, it is said, were found. The trenches, it is alleged, contained a number of carcasses, probably those of horses, and it is supposed that the bodies of the Indians were beneath them. It was evident, according to Mr. Lee, that the horses were led to the edge of the trench and there slaughtered.

Mr. Lee, in his letter, says that he has brought the matter to the attention of the department for the reason that there has been little activity shown on the part of the Nevada officials to bring the slayers to justice. This condition, he says, has caused a feeling of discouragement among the Indians.

SOME DEAD PARCELS

The annual report of the Post Office Department shows that the total number of letters, books, packets, etc., received at the dead letter office was 2,547,749. These included 5,427 letters containing money amounting to $27,206, 3,119 letters containing cheques to the face value $518,044, 360 letters containing drafts to the face value of $171,883, 2,093 letters containing express orders to the value of $47,917, and 3,967 letters with post office money orders worth $43,669. Some of the contents of the postal parcels, etc., received at the dead letter office are of a most curious nature. There were 13 suits of baby clothes.

220 blouses.
251 cakes.
12 packages of chewing gum.
24 packages of cigarettes.
1 marriage contract
8 corsets.
1 ear drum.
2 gramophones.
4 parcels of hair.
88 pieces of maple sugar.
10 pedigrees.
98 shoes.
102 silvtr watches.
1 4artificial teeth, and
6 pair of trousers.

As usual Ontario does almost as much mail business as the rest of the provinces combined, and Toronto as the leading city of the Dominion in respect of letters handled. The total number of letters posted in Ontario last year was 263,448,000; in Quebec, 85,334,000; in Manitoba, 43,008,000; in British Columbia, 37,200,000; in Nova Scotia, 25,821,000; in Alberta, 20,822,000; in Saskatchewan, 18,659,000; and in New Brunswick, 17,500,000.

By cities the reports show the following totals for letters:

Toronto, 1,703,103.
Montreal, 1,093,229.
Winnipeg, 695,051.
Vancouver, 257,301.
Hamilton, 202,921.
London, 145,250.
Halifax, 114,318.
St. John, 111,074, and
Calgary, 125,749.

The people of Canada posted during the year 456,085,000 letters, 45,104,000 post cards, and 10,405,000 registered letters. In addition the mails handled 14,975,000 free letters on Government business, 87,000,000 pieces of third-class matter, and 7,000,000 packages of fourth-class matter. The increase in the number of letters and postcards handled was 45,705,000, or a little over 10 per cent.

The rapid expansion of the service involved an increased expenditure of $632,351, but in spite of this the total revenue of $7,958,547 was $743,710 in excess of the total expenditure.

Other figures showing the growth of country area follow: In the number of post offices there was an increase of 408; in postal notes 441; in the aggregate miles; mail routes, both by land and 1,475,506 miles; in the revenue the sale of postage stamps, $7:

REAL LIVE HERO

Whilst walking one day recently the River Lea, Mr. E. Fry, of Hatfield, England, heard a cry in the trees. On running to the spot he saw a boy struggling in the water. Without hesitation he plunged into the river fully dressed and rescued the lad, who, to his great astonishment proved to be his grandson.

LEAVES FOR STRATFORD

Mr. L. E. Pritchard, who has been floor manager of the Brock street Rink all season, leaves for Stratford where he will act in the capacity of trainer for the Stratford A. teams during the coming season a position that he has held for the past two years. It was expected that he would be here to look after the Peterborough O.H.A. teams this season but the Stratford Club have made a tempting offer, which he has decided to take. The Classic City is to have a very strong team this season.
